LONDON, Nov. 12 (C.P.).—A striking feature of the brilliant assembly at the opening of the Indian round-table conference to-day was the presence of two women: Mrs. Subbarayan, noted welfare worker and leader of modern Indian women, and the Bengum Shah Nawaj. Mrs. Subbarayan wore long silken robes of gold and grey, with many bracelets, while the Bengum wore flowing silk robes of pale blue which swept the floor.

Switzerland expects bumper fruit crops this year.

SEVERAL ANGLES ON INDIA PARLEY TO BE PRESENTED

King George V. Will Formally Open Conference Wednesday.

GANDHI'S PARTY ABSENT.

Future Course of Events in India Depend on Outcome.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—(C. P. Cable)—At least three different foundations for a new Indian constitution are expected to be presented during the Round-Table Conference on India, which was formally opened by His Majesty today in the Royal Gallery of the House of Lords.

Simons Plan to Come Up

The first of these will be that scheme of constitutional reform put forward in the report of the statutory commission which, under Sir John Simon, delved deeply into the present situation in India.

The second will probably be a scheme put forward by the British Government. In pronouncements of Premier Ramsay MacDonald some political observers profess to discern an intimation the Government will favor Dominion status for India or at least a much greater degree of Governmental autonomy than is now the case.

A third plan may possibly be put forward by the Indian delegates themselves, including the native Princes and representatives of British India.

In any event upon the outcome of the conference probably will depend the future course of events in India, where the Nationalist element has been engaged for almost a year in a civil disobedience campaign which they had hoped would force the Government to recognize their clamor for independence.

96 Delegates to Attend

Ninety-six delegates will be present at the opening of the conference. These include 15 British Ministers and Members of Parliament, representing all three parties, and representatives of the Indian States and political elements in British India. The Indian Nationalists, led by Mahamatma Gandhi who is now in prison, will not be represented.

The Indian Princes will attend the sessions in sober morning dress. Actual work will get underway next Monday at St. James' Palace.

SALVATION ARMY POLICY AWAITED

Something Definite Expected on Higgin's Plan For Naming of Future Generals.

POWERS MAY BE LESSENED.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—(AP) Delegates to the Salvation Army Conference are figuratively sitting on the edge of their chairs awaiting announcement by Commander Evangeline Booth this afternoon of suggestions for methods of controlling the army's internal policies.

Commander Booth's position in the famous fight against what she called "the autocratic disposition of the late General Booth's regime has caused keen interest in what she may say to spokesman for the United States contingent at this Conference.

It is expected that her recommendations will be an answer to the plans of General Edward J. Higgins, present head of the Army, for curtailing the powers of the generals.

She had given no indication as to the nature of the recommendations she will make, but it is thought that they will deal with a definition of the "electoral body" which General Higgins recommends as an instrument for choosing future Generals replacing the present system of appointment.

KINGSTON BARNS BURN.

KINGSTON, Ont., November 11 (C.P.). — Two of the finest barns in Kingston Township were destroyed by fire, together with twenty-one head of cattle, seven horses, he season's crops, and a quantity of farm machinery.

The barns were owned by P. A. Gravelle and George Draper, and were on adjoining farms.

The origin of the fire is unknown, but Mr. Draper intends asking the Provincial Fire Marshal to conduct an investigation.

LETTER READ TO HAVELOCK BOARD

HAVELOCK, Nov. 12 (Examiner Correspondence).—A special meeting of the School Board, called by the chairman, Trustee Evans, for Friday evening, November 7, resulted in the attendance of only two members beside the chairman. This meeting was called to discuss the plan now being considered to enter the town drain, and to advise the members of the receipt and contents of a letter recently received by the village clerk in connection with the plan.

The letter was not read at the meeting of the village council and the chairman thought the Board should know its contents before proceeding with the plan as discussed at the last meeting of the council. The letter read as follows:

Dept. of Health,
Parliament Buildings,
Toronto.

Mr. Howard Fennell,
Village Clerk,
Havelock, Ont.

Dear Sir:

I enclose herewith blue print of the proposed layout in connection with the sewage disposal at the Havelock school. It is expected that this will allow of sufficient purification of the effluent from the septic tank that it may enter the town drain without danger and without any nuisance ever arising from it. It is clearly understood, however, that should this at any time in the future become or cause a nuisance it will be discontinued and its effluent disposal disposed of by directing it into a regular disposal bed. Such an outcome is not anticipated but it is necessary that it be considered.

Yours sincerely,
N. H. Sutton, M.B.D.P.H.
D.O.H. District No. 4

It was further the intention of the chairman to deal with the resignation of Miss Scully, who has tendered her resignation to be effective at the Christmas holidays. Mr. Brewster spoke of the large number of boys and girls, who should be in school, but through indifference of parents or themselves, or fault of teacher, are not there except occasionally. He stated that the teachers are only required to make a periodical report. Consequently the truant officer employed by the village to look after such cases, was not being made the most of. He thought the matter should be looked into.

ASSOCIATION HAS SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Peterborough County Shorthorn Breeders' Association Holds Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough County Shorthorn Breeders' Association was held Saturday in the Ontario Agricultural branch office here. A successful year's operation was reported by Secretary Beecher Matchett and promises are for another big year. The bull sale in the spring and the field day in the summer were two of the outstanding activities of the association last year.

It was decided to hold a similar program for 1931, and the chief feature will again be the February sale of cattle. The secretary said that already a considerable entry to the sale had been received.

The executive was re-elected intact, as follows: President, Walter Bowles, Ida; vice-president, M. H. Pimmett, Indian River; secretary-treasurer, Beecher Matchett, of Otonabee.

REV. A. E. MOORHOUSE IS GUEST SPEAKER AT LAKEFIELD CHURCH

ASSISTING CLERGYMEN

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 12.—(Examiner Correspondence).— The anniversary services of Regent Street United Church were held with marked success on Sunday, the preacher being Rev. A. E. Moorhouse of St. James' United church, Peterborough.

Rev. T. M. Wesley and Rev. J. B. McCormack assisted with the evening service, which was exceedingly hearty, with an especially large congregation.

The choir sang two anthems, "The Lord Is High Above the Nations" and "I Will Sing of Thy Power" the solo part in the latter being taken by Miss Mildred Purdy. Mrs. MacMillen sang "I Need the Father's Tender Care" very sweetly with organ and saxophone accompaniment. Mrs. H. E. Moore presided at the organ and Kenneth Kemp played the saxophone. Bert Hiscock of Bowmanville was the the guest soloist and sang a fine arrangement of "Nearer My God To Thee."

Rev. Mr. Moorhouse took his text from St. Paul's epistle to Titus, chapter 2 and verses, 11-13: "For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men, teaching us that denying ungodliness and wordly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously and godly in this present world; looking for that blessed hope and the glorious appearing of the Great God and Saviour, Jesus Christ."

The Reverend speaker referred several times to Moffatt's translation of this passage which gives some excellent suggestions. "The grace of God is the means whereby men may be saved but St. Paul does not stop there; he tells us of the sources of salvation. It is said that grace is God's love in action. No one is saved by themselves alone, and many are interested in our salvation; it is not what we do for God, but what He does for and with us.

"Doubt is an enemy to Christian thought and practice and is a devilish kind of thing." The speaker recently attended a meeting of the Ministerial Association at Detroit and there heard two very helpful experiences. One was that of an Italian, who, while attending a Roman Catholic college in Rome had one days as his French lesson the story of the Good Samaritan. He was so fascinated with the story that he wanted to read the New Testament which contained the story, but found difficulty in obtaining one, finally securing one at the Methodist Bookroom in Rome and after studying it, he met a Christian whose teaching went straight to his heart.

"Denying ungodliness and worldly lusts" Moffatt translates this as, "renounce irreligion and worldly passion." "We need the grace of the spirit in our hearts to teach us. A young girl who was reproached for an indiscretion said "They all do it." I hate that phrase for it shows that the world is telling the church what to do and if that is so, God pity us. Bunyan said, 'There was my dancing, there was my pitch and toss.'

The speaker repeated that he had nothing to say against dancing, but the Grace of the Spirit taught Bunyan that these things were stumbling blocks in the way of his progress. So was cock-fighting which is being indulged in in Windsor on Sunday.

The Grace of God told Bunyan what was right and what was wrong; the grace of God tells you whether you can get into your car and go to Toronto on Sunday, or whether you should attend church.

"We must live a life of piety: a controlling reverence toward God is indicated by a loving conformity to His word. We are irreverent and have lost our respect for the Eternal and we cannot get it back until we have a loving obedience to His will. All Christian ministers must live like Jesus Christ, practising blessed hope of the resurrection: the promise and Glory of God will appear in that day when the grace of the Spirit works in our hearts and lives."

Miss Ruth Hamilton Addresses Society

BETHANY, Nov. 12.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Miss Ruth Hamilton who recently returned from the Labrador Mission Field, where she has spent the past year and a half, addressed the ladies of the Women's Auxiliary of St. Paul's Anglican church at their monthly meeting held on Thursday at the home of Mrs. McCartney.

Miss Hamilton was requested to give the address and very graciously consented, giving an outline of her work at the Mission Field, she being now home on furlough, and her many friends gave her a warm and hearty welcome.

The president of the auxiliary presided for the opening when the usual routine exercises were observed. The ladies arranged for the bazaar to be held on the first Thursday in December, and convenors for the different departments were appointed.

Following the transaction of business, and Miss Hamilton's address, supper was served, Mrs. E. Reynolds acting as hostess owing to the invalidism of her aged mother.

The next meeting of the Auxiliary will be held at the rectory on January 8, 1931.

SOCIETY WILL PRESENT PLAY

Mrs. Leslie Sherwin Entertains Members of Roseneath Women's Institute.

USUAL BUSINESS

ROSENEATH, Nov. 12 (Examiner Correspondence)—Mrs. Leslie Sherwin entertained the members of the Women's Institute on Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Elva Sandercock, the president, conducting the meeting.

After the usual opening excercises, business was transacted and the play to be given in the Orange Hall on Friday evening was discussed. Mrs. George Mouncey and Mrs. Arthur Braithwaite, together with Miss Doris Mouncey and Mrs. Ezra Sherwin were appointed a committee to arrange the stage for players. Mrs. A. Halstead and Mrs. F. Nichol were appointed door keepers. Mrs. Delbert Brisbin and Mrs. Clarence Varcoe are the music committee and are securing an orchestra to supply between acts for the evening.

It was voted to exchange Christmas gifts at the December meeting and a limited price was set to be the value of these gifts.

On motion it was carried, that Misses Doris Mouncey and Mary Braithwaite attend the Women's Institute convention at Belleville this month.

The program committee for December meeting is Mrs. C. W. Varcoe and Mrs. Delbert Brisbin and the home of Mrs. Barton Thackeray is the place of meeting.

After the business Mrs. B. Thackeray played a beautiful instrumental selection on the piano. Mrs. C. W. Varcoe read a humorous piece entitled "I know my onions" and Miss Mary Braithwaite gave a reading, "How to knock the Institute" which was a good advice to all present. The entire program was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

The topic for the meeting was "Planning a country girl's wardrobe" by Miss Doris Mouncey and was very interesting and sensible, comparing a country girl to the city girl. The country girl does not need as many dresses as the city girl. Why? Because she does not go into society as much to wear them, therefore her clothes do not wear out so quickly and yet styles change when they would become out of style.

It is wise for the country girl to purchase her coat in a color that she can wear with different hats for seldom do the country girls get a new coat each winter with a new hat her coat retains a new and stylish appearance. If a girl buys good material even though she has fewer clothes to the public eye she looks smart and neat—more so than the girl with many clothes of cheap material.

Miss Mouncey's paper told of the various costumes and when and where to wear them including hats, hose, etc. It was evident that Miss Mouncey spent considerable time in arranging her notes by the various descriptions given for the country girls wardrobe.

Following was the roll call when each member answered by words "what I am thankful for" which were very appropriate for the season.

Attend Meeting

Mrs. Frank Brown, Mrs. R. B. Nichol, Mrs. J. T. Drope, Mrs. W. Houghtailing and Mrs. Ernest Timlin were in Hastings on Thursday afternoon to hear Mrs. Hughes of Toronto, when she addressed the ladies of St. George's Women Auxiliary in giving many interesting messages and helps for the society.

COBOURG DRIVER STRUCK BY TRAIN.

COBOURG, Ont., Nov. 12.—Suffering from injuries received yesterday in a collision with a C.P.R. passenger train, T. Clarke, truck driver, was brought to Cobourg hospital this morning. Clarke was injured when he drove his truck into the path of a C.P.R. train at 4.10 at Colborne yesterday.

WARSAW THANKSGIVING SERVICE LARGELY ATTENDED BY MEMBERS

INSTITUTE ADDRESS

WARSAW, November 12 (Examiner Correspondence). — The United Church was well filled for the Thanksgiving service on Sunday evening. There was a full choir and Mrs. Herrington assisted. The choir repeated the anthems of the anniversary service, the quartette being sung by Mrs. O. B. McIlvena, Mrs. Hilliard Edwards, Henry Batten, and Bryn Thomas. Mr. Batten sang "Guide Thou My Footsteps"

Rev. J. W. Wilkinson read from Psalm 100, and Revelations 14, verse 14. His text was the fourth verse of Psalm 100. Rev. Mr. Wilkinson, an earnest speaker, make his audience feel he means intensely what he says. He stressed the fact that we should be thankful to God for the many blessings we have received. He asked if the young people are thankful for father and mother, and stressed what the gift of parents means. Some love them early in life. The physical conditions and forces of the earth, land, water minerals, electricity, and others were here ages ago for our use, and more is being made of them. Would we not rather live now than five hundred years ago? We are in a period of development. Things are better in every way. We must not be satisfied with our condition. We must develop, grow stronger and better, grow daily in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man. Use the powers God has given us. A primitive people had a primitive religion. A developed people must have a developed religion with the same God.. If we become satisfied with ourselves we become Pharisaical.

"Pity the man who is thankful for nothing, who says 'What I have I have earned, no thanks to any.' Back of all he has, no matter how he has gotten it, is God. Without His having given health, strength, brains, nothing could have been earned. No matter what we are or whether rich or poor, we need the capital of God. So be thankful.

"The righteousness of God demands thanksgiving. There are people who just grumble. Grumbling has a bad effect on the mind. It is a long time since there was so much wealth. Crops are good, what if the prices are low. Let us be thankful. Thanksgiving is a state of mind. We have neither pestilence nor famine. God has abundantly blessed. He quoted from Dr. Poole: 'We all have impressions, and every impression must have expression, and if you do not express, you are depressed.' Cultivate optimism rather than pessimism. Goodness and mercy have followed us all the days of our lives We have ups and downs, of course. Be thankful for the modern conveniences we enjoy. Be thankful for our souls, and develop them. Thank God we are not at war, and that our nation is at peace with the world. Pray God be with us yet, lest we forget. Let us be better in 1931 than we have ever been. We are living for life. The next generation must be better. It must go forward. In material things the farmer is careful to harvest his crops so they do not spoil, and in some of the caring for harvest many men work together. We must work to save souls, and work together. Souls are God's harvest. Jesus paid the price by the shedding of His blood. There are sheaves to gather in, and be thankful for the chance. It is our task. It is a personal task, the task of the church and of the nation."

Rev. J. W. Wilkinson will address the Women's Institute on Thursday afternoon on "Feministic Ideals."

GROVE SCHOOL HOLDS REUNION

Thirty-five Old Boys Participate in Annual Thanksgiving Festivities.

ENJOY DINNER

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 12—The annual Thanksgiving festivities at the Grove School took place during Thanksgiving week-end. About thirty-five Old Boys of the School returned to the "Grove" for the occasion.

On the Saturday evening, the annual dance was held at the School, attended by the School and about two hundred guests—parents and friends of the boys. On the Sunday, the Memorial Service was held in the School Chapel, commemorating the thirty Old Boys who fell in the Great War. The Headmaster, Dr. Mackenzie, preached at Matins, and also held Communion at 8 a.m. Dr. and Mrs. Mackenzie entertained the Old Boys to tea on Sunday afternoon, and Mrs. T. J. Wood and Mrs. K. A. Mackenzie had fifty guests to supper in the evening, after the evening service.

On the Monday morning, November 10, the Old Boys game was held, with a crowd of three hundred to cheer on the School team. But the Old Boys, due chiefly to the work of Gishart, Massie, Macrae and Peck, won the game 21-5. The School team was assisted by two members of the staff, Mr. Wood and Mr. Gray.

Lakefield is, as far as we know, the only school which does not grant Thanksgiving holliday to the boys, but instead invites such Old Boys as are able to come. After the game, Miss Perry, the Matron, entertained all Old Boys and visitors to a Thanksgiving dinner, as which Ross Little of Trinity College, Toronto, expressed the appreciation of the Old Boys for all that the school and the staff had done for them during the week-end.

Athletic Association Holds Holiday Dance

BETHANY, Nov. 12.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The members of the Athletic Association held their holiday dance on Friday evening, when young people attended from Blackstock, Peterborough, Toronto, Lindsay, Millbrook, Lifford Line and other places.

Music for the dance was supplied by Mowry-Steer and their Silver Collegians, and was greatly enjoyed by the dancers. The hall was attractively decorated for the occasion, the color scheme being in green and white. The large arch across the stage front was draped most artistically and much credit is due to the decorators.

To Hold Euchre.

Smothering and Fainting Spells Everything Would Turn Black

Mrs. Andrew Black, Harcourt, N.B., writes:—"I had been troubled with smothering and fainting spells and everything in front of me would turn black, and I would fall down in a faint and be unconscious for several minutes. I did not know what to do, until one day I was reading where Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills had helped so many people and decided I would give them a trial. I used four boxes and found they help me wonderfully."

The Extra Cough Help Extra In Power And Price

Creomulsion is a super-help for coughs from colds. It is for deep coughs where you dare not risk a weak help. Seven major helps are embodied in it, including the best known to medical science.

The creosote is blended, emulsified and palatable. It is to soothe the membranes and combat the germs. It presents the world's best help for coughs of this kind in a pleasant form.

There are white pine tar, wild cherry bark, menthol, ipecac, etc. All the greatest helps in one, but with no narcotic. Despite all its power and efficiency, it is harmless to a child.

Some coughs call for one help, some another. Nobody can tell. So we combine the best in Creomulsion to be safe.

Creomulsion costs $1.25—a little more than lesser helps. But all druggists guarantee it and return the full price to anyone not satisfied.

It may be too good for your cough. A lesser help might serve. But is it wise to take the risk when coughs are danger signals? Anyway, a cough from a cold which hangs on calls for this super-help. Do the best men know, to be sure.

MISS ELSIE McLUHAN DELIGHTS BIG AUDIENCE AT MURRAY STREET

Reader and Impersonator Presents Concert—Excellent Programme.

FINE STAGE PRESENCE.

(By Jeanette)

"Life, bring me a fresh rose". It was the tag line for Miss Elsie McLuhan's master reading of last night. Anyone who heard her give "The Slave with the Two Faces" will probably remember that unusual allegory, as long as they live.

It was a recital quite out of the ordinary that Miss Elsie McLuhan of Winnipeg, reader and impersonator, gave to her audience in Murray street Baptist church last night. Readers and elocutionists of many varied types have come and gone in past years to Peterborough, but the city has probably never heard anything just like the program that was presented last evening. The members of the audience probably did not realize just how this versatile young lady held them, while she made for them word pictures of different scenes. An art like this is like a spell that weaves for its hearers images from song and story.

Miss McLuhan is extremely versatile and she does not follow a beaten path. Quite evidently, she takes what she wants from many sources, and then gives it the impress of her personality and presents it to her hearers, who listen and mark and applaud.

A charming lady in a graceful gown whose corn-yellow satin draperies reached the ankles, with black lining, the uneven peplum and black accents in costume jewellery, Miss McLuhan has a fine stage presence and she possesses all the accessories; the well modulated voice, the absence of pose or affectation, the unerring memory, and above all, the power of presenting a selection in such a way as to make its characters live and move and breathe for the listeners. It is an absorbing art when presented just in this manner. And it gained much by the careful placing of the selections and the contrasts afforded by swift transitions from grave to gay, from thoughtful to practical. It seemed just right to have that strange composition, allegorical in type, "The Slave with Two Faces," followed immediately by the idle story of Peter and his bothersome bath.

The opening selections were two wooing scenes; the crass affair from "The Taming of the Shrew", where Petruchio and the cranky Kate have it out, and the scene from Sheridan's "Rivals," where the choleric Sir Anthony Absolute and the primly bombastic Mrs. Malaprop, with her genius for the wrong word, meditate on the alliance between Sir Anthony's nephew and Lydia Languish. In both of these, the characterizations were excellent.

Then came more character bits from a village where Sam Stone's advertised demise was an affair similar to that of Mark Twain, somewhat premature. After this was the first touch of artistic contrast, with pathos of the brief bit by Drummond, "The Little Red Canoe," with the crazed girl waiting for her lost love. And then, "The Ship of Faith", another bit of dialect, this time from the lips of the negro preacher.

Miss McLuhan's second group opened with a bit of charming mimicry in the lesson of the fan, done with the aid of a large black ostrich feather fan, just a little prelude to the absorbing piece of the program, "The Slave with Two Faces." A real mastery of her art was evidenced in this, and the manner in which the reader held her audience as she pictured that strange, mystical scene was a triumph. The allegorical stanzas picture the figure of Life as a man with two faces. To those who fear him not and master him always, he is a slave, yielding life's choicest gifts, but to the fear-ridden and cowardly he is a cruel, tyrannical master. To the one girl who feared him he brought death, but to the other, who mastered him, a crown. "Life, bring me a fresh rose", repeated Miss McLuhan as the imaginary curtain fell on the scene she had painted so superbly for her hearers.

Then came little Peter, unwilling recipient of a bath, as a reward for the juniors who had listened in silent patience to the sterner stuff that preceded this humorous bit.

Friendship.

Standing out as the second major offering of an entertaining recital was the homely little character sketch, "Jim and John." Sitting in her chair, with clasped hands, the reader brought again that sense of another person when she made her hearers see that lovely old man, in the pathos of the story of the two old friends who were parted by death. As a companion to this word picture of the call of friendship was a recitation of "Each in His Own Tongue", illustrative of the urge or call of the Infinite.

Humour rose supreme again in the human interest and appeal of "The Florists' Shop", with its many different characterizations, so well presented. There was Maud, the bookkeeper and saleslady, Henry, the office boy, Miss Wells, the spinster, her suitor of fifteen years' standing, Mr. Jackson, and last of all, the proprietor, Mr. Slavsky. Maud acted as the god in the machine for the two elderly lovers and all ended well, under her skillful manipulation. Again Miss McLuhan scored in her character parts.

The finale was a charming thing of sweet, poetical rhyming, "The Legend of the Twilight Bell", recited to a background of soft organ music and chiming bells, played by Arthur Collison, the church organist.

Mr. Collison also played a voluntary as an introduction to the program and gave two solo numbers in an intermission. The music of this brilliant young organist added much to the interest of a fine program. Playing with firm, rounded, smooth tone, the music swelling out from his skilful fingers, he gave a beautiful interpretation of a Beethoven Sonata that was followed, by request, by the lovely music of "The Rosary."

The other assisting musician of the evening was the pastor, the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, who sang two solo numbers, accompanied on the organ by Mr. Collison. Mr. Sutcliffe's resonant, rich-toned baritone voice with its expressive cadences, was as its best in "Somewhere a Voice is Calling" and its encore, "My Task." The Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe also made the opening announcements for Miss McLuhan.

Applause was generous and continuous for every number on an exceptionally fine program.

CUSTOMS MEN PLEAD GUILTY

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Nov. 11. (CP) Having obtained pleas of guilty from three customs border patrolmen, the Government proceeded today with the prosecution of eight others accused with them of conspiring to smuggle intoxicants from Canada.

Francis L. Coveney, Colin Morris and Weldon J. Cheatnam, customs patrolmen, pleaded guilty yesterday when arraigned under indictments which were returned sealed by the October Federal Grand Jury. Sentence was deferred.

ARMISTICE DAY—AN AFTER-THOUGHT.

I sat alone in the firelight glow,
Smoking the pipe of peace.
And my thoughts went back twelve years ago,
When carnage blind did cease.

When the world was drenched in a sea of blood,
In an anguish no tongue can state,
And peace was doomed in the direful flood
Of malice, revenge and hate.

Each sickening scene comes back anew—
O God, how the memory clings!
In the bloom of youth, the boys we knew
Lay shattered and lifeless things.

The glories of war, 'tis the devil's phrase—
'Twas coined in the caves of Hell;
And Flander's Fields, where the crosses raise,
Prove it too well, too well.

No martial strain can quicken the pulse,
Nor tramp of a warlike horde.
Hear the mother's sigh, and the widow's cry:
Give us peace in our day, O Lord.

Bronchitis

Every cold is serious.

It is only a step from the ordinary cold to bronchitis with soreness and tightness in the chest and the dry, harsh cough and distressing coughing spasms.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine seems almost like a specific for bronchitis because it is so successful in loosening up the cough, aiding expectoration and relieving inflammation.

A trial will prove the effectiveness of this well-known treatment.

WORK IS STARTED ON NEW HIGHWAY

Much of Work Will Be Done By Trucks—Steam Shovel Starts.

WORK ALL WINTER.

A big steam shovel started to eat into the top of a rounded hillock a little more than three miles east of the city this morning, and the work of building six and a half miles of paved Provincial highway commenced.

The steam shovel and other equipment of the Brennan Paving Company of Hamilton, Ontario, was set up yesterday midway in the "block road" section of the new highway east of Peterborough. Seven big trucks are on the job, and within a few days another steam shovel will be added to the equipment.

In company with J. F. Strickland, M.P.P. for Peterborough City, The Examiner yesterday afternoon visited the place where road building operations commenced this morning. The purpose of Mr. Strickland's visit was to secure as many jobs as possible for city workmen on the highway job.

G. A. Crane, chief engineer of the Brennan Company, E. Birdsall general superintendent, and Gordon Wilson, construction superintendent, were interviewed. It was learned that not more than fifty men will be employed on the job during the winter. Some bushmen will be needed at the start, shovellers all the time, and only a few teamsters, since most of the carrying work will be done by trucks. All the men will be local labor and they will receive the standard wage being paid in the district.

The six and a half miles of road will require much filling and cutting, stated Mr. Crane. In all it is expected that 110,000 cubic yards of earth and rock will be moved, and in an average day it is hoped to move 800 cubic yards with the two shovels in operation.

It is thought that no difficulties will be encountered to slow up the work during the winter, since most of the work will be carried on in cuts, which will afford the workmen protection.

ENGLISH BLOODS

"Were it not vouched for as autobiographical by the publishers, it would instantly be categoried as incredible and impossible," says the Montreal Daily Star of October 25th, in reviewing the book recently published by the Graphic Publishers, Ottawa, entitled "English Bloods", by Roger Vardon. (F. M. Dela Fosse).

"The boy came to Muskoka country to learn farming; and the actual country where he 'farmed' under the tutelage of another Englishman is still rocks and bushland, much as it was in 1878, except for the summer cottages, which now overlook one of Muskoka's many pretty lakes", says the Star.

"Hardships and blunders—laughable now—were the lot of the tenderly nurtured group of people with which the tale most closely deals. To their everlasting credit they stuck it, when less handicapped settlers gave up the struggle."

"The style is brisk and humour abounds throughout—the authors description of a logging "bee" is vivid, quite obviously photographic and vastly amusing, so that the book should have wide appeal."

WORK OF MILITIA HIGHLY PRAISED BY JUDGE HUYCKE

RESPECT FOR MEMORIALS.

Finds That Great Care is Being Taken to Graves of Heroes in France.

"On this memorial day of peace fulfilled,
When to the god of battles
praise is said,
The warfare gone and the long
clarion stilled,
Forget not then the dead."

The memory of Canada's heroic dead was fittingly recalled last evening by many of those Peterborough men, who having plunged through the battle's torture were fortunate enough to return, when officiers of the local Garrison and their guests gathered at a banquet in the Armouries to remember the twelfth anniversary of Armistice.

A wonderful spirit of comradeship, doubtless fostered during the eventful days of the Great War, prevailed; old friends became closer linked and laughter and jollity spread about the festive board. The toast to "Our Fallen Comrades," feelingly proposed by Captain the Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave, brought sad memories of comrades who lie in Flanders' Fields.

It is our privilege as Canadians, stated Dr. Blagrave, to remember on Armistice Day the sacrifices made by the men who died and those who returned.

In an inspiring address, His Honor Judge Huycke, the speaker of the evening, paid a great compliment to the Canadian Militia. He stated that for many years he had not sufficiently appreciated the work of the militia, but that during the war the militia had more than proved itself.

Referring to the recent movement by a certain political party in England to stop the laying of wreaths on war memorials, His Honor said that it would be a sad day when the soldier dead were not honored. He hoped that the day would never come when wreaths would not be placed at the feet of those memorials.

Respect for Memorials

He stressed the need for the youth of Canada to be impressed with the sacrifices of the war and respect for the war memorials. He said that while the memorials were beautiful and impressive the things they represented were more beautiful and more impressive. He decried the fact that it had been reported that boys and young men in the city climbed about and cut capers on the memorial at Confederation Square.

Judge Huycke also praised the work of the Canadian Legion and especially complimented James Abraham, president of the local branch. He urged every returned man to join the Legion and assist in its work, because each day it was gaining greater influence and greater respect.

Having returned recently from a trip to the Old Country and Europe, he described in inspiring words the respect shown the war memorials in England, Scotland, France and Belgium. Everyone who passed the cenotaph at Whitehall, be he lord or lady, millionaire, merchant, or drayman, stopped a moment, lifted his hat and bowed, he said. Flowers always crowned the tomb of the "Unknown Soldier" and the place was a scene of beauty, dignity and sorrow.

Speaking of the soldiers of the late war, Judge Huycke said, "Show me a returned soldier and I will show you a man I want to have as my friend."

He also described the care extended to the war cemeteries in France. A bed of flowers, mostly roses, grow over each grave and they are as well-kept as the favored in any Peterborough garden.

Captain Gordon Monkman, M.C., was chairman and Lieut.-Colonel M. H. Park, O.C., of the Peterborough Rangers, sang two numbers, with John Crane as accompanist.

Among those present were: Lieut.-Colonel R. E. Willets, D.S.O., A.A. and Q.M.G., of M.D. No. 3; Judge E. C. S. Huycke; Lieut.-Colonel J. W. Miller, V.D.; Lieut.-Colonel T. W. H. INDIAN DELEGATES APPEAR UNITED IN EXPECTING SELF-GOVERNMENT

Main Divergence is Manifesting Itself on Rights of Minorities.

MOSLEMS, HINDUS DIFFER.

LONDON, Nov. 12 (C.P. Cable).—As the delegates assembled at the historic opening of the Indian Round Table Conference to-day, there was no sign of any tangible result of the continued efforts which have been made by the representatives of British India to reach some agreement on the position to be accorded the Moslem and other minority communities. It had been considered that agreement on the relative positions was desirable in order to clear the way for consideration of the form of India's future constitution.

Expect Self-Government.

Generally the delegates appeared united in expecting self-government, both for the Provinces and for the central Government, to emerge from the conference, but there was a cleavage of opinion regarding procedure. One section, comprising leading Hindus, is apparently of the opinion the conference should receive from the British Government, right at the outset, assurance that the Conference's object is to draw up an Indian constitution embodying Dominion status. This school of thought regards such problems as defence, the position of minorities, and the position of the Indian States, as domestic questions which a self-governing India could be left to solve.

Special Problems First.

On the contrary, leading Moslems and others Moslems have never joined the civil disobedience campaign), while agreeing that self-government should be the ultimate object, insist the special problems of India demand prior attention. They take the view that any new constitution must statutorily guarantee the rights of minorities. It is on this problem that the main divergence is manifesting itself. But there are cross-currents, such as the question whether India should have Federal or a centralized constitution and the question of whether British India should work out its own constitution or proceed with the Indian States on all-India lines.

Torchy Peden Peddling Eighth in Chicago Grind

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Desaets, the Belgian six-day star, and Belloni, the veteran Italian rider, held down first place in the six-day bicycle races at 9 o'clock last night, the end of the second day. The riders had covered 800 miles and 9 laps.

Sixty laps were gained last night, bringing the total for the week up to 202, before an Armistice crowd estimated at 18,000.

TUNNEY FACES ANOTHER SUIT

WITH MAX HOFF.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Nov. 12 (C.P.)—Victor in his $526,000 court fight with Timothy J. Mara, sports promoter, Gene Tunney prepared to-day for another legal struggle next Monday, when the suit of Max (Boo-Boo) Hoff, of Philadelphia, is scheduled to begin.

Hoff is suing for 20 per cent of Tunney's earnings, more than $400,000, alleging he had an oral contract with Tunney. In support of his claims, he submitted a document which Tunney admits he signed, using the name "Eugene J. Tunney," although his correct name is "James J." Ring authorities predicted that the Hoff case would uncover considerable about the big time sports world, since the means by which Hoff was to earn 20 per cent of Tunney's earnings has not been made clear.

How a warm room and "B.O." (Body Odour) cost her another admirer

LAST NIGHT when they skated together in the park, she had seemed so attractive. But here in the close, warm room her charm completely vanished.

She felt his coolness. The same old story. Why did she always attract men—but never hold them? It had happened so often.

But not now! Today she makes friends and keeps them. For she discovered her fault and the simple way to correct it. Let her tell you how.

• • •

"I could have cried when my uncle, who is a physician, warned me in an indirect way about 'B.O.'—body odour. For I thought I had been so careful.

"But, as he explained, our pores are constantly giving off odour-causing waste—as much as a quart daily. We're so used to this familiar odour that we don't notice it in ourselves. But others do—especially in an overheated room with windows closed. And it always offends.

"So now I've adopted this simple precaution. I wash and bathe with Lifebuoy—and I love it! Lifebuoy makes me feel so gloriously fresh and clean—so safe. For its rich, creamy antiseptic lather purifies pores—banishes every trace of 'B.O.'"

New complexion beauty

Lifebuoy is a marvellous complexion soap. Its gentle, searching lather clears away all impurities from the pores. Dull skins freshen. Complexions fairly glow with clear, healthy, radiant beauty. Its pleasant, extra-clean scent—that vanishes as you rinse—just tells you Lifebuoy purifies. Adopt Lifebuoy today.

REV. E. R. C. ADYE TO VISIT LEGION

Campbellford Branch Will Greet Zone Representative From Whitby on November 24.

PROGRAM WILL BE GIVEN.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 12.— (By Examiner Staff Correspondent)— Featuring the regular meeting of the Campbellford Branch No. 103, Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., held on Monday evening in the Armories, arrangements were made for the visit of the zone representative, Rev. E. R. C. Adye, L.Th., of Whitby, to be held on the evening of Monday 24th. The president, J. Watters, occupied the chair.

The attendance at this meeting was discussed and it was felt that all ex-service men in the town and district should attend. This includes men who have seen service in any war and is not confined to Great War veterans. Mr. Adye will address the gathering in connection with the work of the Legion. A program will also be presented.

The report of the Poppy Day drive was also laid on the table and showed a very pleasing result. It was passed on motion that a letter of appreciation be sent to Mrs. R. T. Cowell and the members of the Sunshine Club who were responsible for the annual sale of poppies.

The appointment of a publicity committee was also made. This consists of Comrades A. G. Morgan, G. Free and C. Holmes.

A very pleasing report that was presented to the meeting was to the effect that there were fifteen prospects for membership in the local branch. Three of these are from Campbellford and twelve from Warkworth.

The new book-keeping system that has been arranged by the Ontario Command for all branches has been received and will go into operation immediately. This system will make the keeping of the branch books uniform throughout the Command.

A special invitation was read from the Lakefield branch inviting the members of the Campbellford organization to attend their annual banquet to be staged on Tuesday evening. Arrangements for this function were made.

YOUNG PEOPLE RALLY AT KEENE

SPECIAL SPEAKERS

KEENE, Nov. 12.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The members of the Young People's Societies of the Presbyterian churches of the Peterborough Presbytery held their annual rally in Knox church, Keene, on Saturday afternoon and evening.

Rev. Mr. Duncan of Warkworth presided for the opening exercises and G. McCubbin of Warkworth occupied the chair, welcoming the representatives from Warkworth, Bowmanville and Keene.

Rev. Mr. Duncan addressed the gathering, stressing the importance of co-operation. Organization is necessary too in young people's societies and the leaders should be experienced and energetic. Each individual member should recognize his or her duties and have a definite aim, keeping the goal always in sight.

A business period followed with short reports from the societies present. The officers for the ensuing year were elected and inter-society debating was discussed.

The meeting was followed by a very delightful banquet served by the members of the W.M.S. of the Keene Presbyterian church, the toast of welcome being given by Malcolm McFarlane, followed by one to The King and to The Church, Boyd Renwick proposed the toast to The Young People's Societies, to which Miss Rita Wilson responded. Miss M. Richards proposed the toast to The Ministers, Rev. Mr. Duncan responding.

A trio composed of the Misses Nellie Hunter, Mae Renwick and Marion Comrie was enjoyed as was also the reading by Miss E. Richards, the solo by Mr Maycock and the instrumental duet by the Misses Marion Comrie and Nellie Hunter.

LIBERAL CLUB IS ORGANIZED

Campbellford and Seymour Form Organization to Meet Monthly—Outside Speakers Featured.

ADDRESS BY W. A. FRASER.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 12 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — The formation of what in the future will be known as the Campbellford and Seymour Liberal Club took place on Friday evening in the Liberal Committee Room, Queen's Hotel, Campbellford, when the organization came into being and officers were elected.

The object of the club is to arrange for monthly meetings at which outside speakers of note will address the gatherings on world wide topics. The meeting was largely attended by town and country people, the hall being crowded to capacity, the guest speaker for the occasion being W. A. Fraser, M.P. of Trenton.

The officers of the club as elected are as follows: Hon. presidents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Fraser, Trenton, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Lynch, Campbellford; President, P. C. Denyes; 1st vice-president, Mrs. L. B. Glover; 2nd vice-president, Marshall West; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. Frank Lee; secretary-treasurer, R. N. Morrison.

In connection with the departure of D. Douglas from the district, who was for many years the president of the Campbellford Liberal Association, W. S. Wiggins of Campbellford was elected to fill this office.

Business Conditions

Mr. Fraser gave a splendid address on the business conditions of the world, especially as they affected this country. Speaking of the Russian situation, he drew attention to the fact that two years ago Russia was in need of assistance, and that though many nations were against that country, the United States launched a loan for her. The result of this was that the first order that had come to America for Russia through the International Harvester Company, had been for the amount of fifty million dollars. The Russian wheat situation had also been the result of Russia trying to sell her grain in the markets of the world to repay that loan to the United States.

Swinging to the question of the New Zealand butter and the Canadian tariff, Mr. Fraser pointed out that it had resulted in the closing of many of the creameries in that country and the increasing of cheese manufacture, with the result that that country was a strong competitor on the English market with Canada in the cheese industry.

Speaking on the situation in the West, Mr. Fraser thought that if something was not done for the Western farmer, that in a very short while the banks and trust companies would own two-thirds of the land.

EVERYBODY knew

That Baby Loved His Bath!

HIS ecstatic splashings were a witness to the fact. Everybody knew that he smelled like a clean, pink rosebud—proof positive that his skin was soothed and comfortable.

They knew that the credit went to Infant's Delight. Being pure and borated, they trusted it to cleanse and soothe his tender skin. The dainty white cake was regarded as baby's special treat. It lay in the soap dish untouched for any use save baby's.

Now, reasoning people are considering it from another point of view. If this soap is such a protection to baby's skin, it is equally a protection to the older children. It is just the thing for the delicate complexion of the school miss. It promises longer years of youthful freshness for mother's skin, and even father's. Its mild efficiency and antiseptic healing qualities are a boon to infant and adult alike.

OBITUARY

THOMAS McDONALD

MADOC, Nov. 12 (Examiner Correspondence) — The funeral of the late Thomas McDonald was held from the residence of his sister, Mrs. Foy, on Friday morning to St. Carthaga Church, Solemn Requiem Mass being sung by Rev. Dean O'Riordan. Burial was made in St. Carthaga cemetery. Pall bearers were Mitchel Lesage, M. McAvoy, B. Elliott, John Murphy, P. McIlroy and Charles Lafranier.

CYRIL McCLORY.

LINDSAY, November 12 (Examiner Correspondence). — The funeral of the late Cyril McClory, who met a terrible death in his car on the highway near Cooksville early on Sunday morning, took place from his home yesterday morning.

Solemn Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Begley of St. Mary's Church, Rev. Father Kelly of Victoria Road, and Rev. Father Gillogly of Kinmount. The church was crowded to capacity with sorrowing friends and relatives, including representatives from Queen's University and the Municipal Council of the town of Brampton. Floral wreaths were also sent by Queen's University, the Mayor and Council of Brampton, the Ontario Road Building Association, etc.

The pall-bearers were Dr. C. W. Lyons, Everett Reeves, Dr. M. F. White of Lindsay, Dr. W. S. Fitzpatrick and Hibbert Johnston, B.Sc., of Peterborough, A. S. Hays, B.Sc., of Niagara Falls, N.Y., the last three being Queen's University classmates of the deceased.

The late Cyril McClory was born in Lindsay thirty-one years ago. He was educated in the Separate School and Collegiate Institute, and afterwards attended Queen's University, Kingston, for a course in science. He was prominent in all University activities, was prosecuting attorney on Queen's University Students' Administrative Council, Historian of Science (1926), and for two years Orator on Science Executive.

After his graduation the deceased served in Lindsay as Assistant Superintendent of Roads, later joining the staff of the Northern Development Co. He was appointed town engineer at Brampton in 1928.

He is survived by his parents and two brothers, Norbert, well-known O.H.A. goalkeeper, and Urban, both of Lindsay.

WARSAW INSTITUTE SOCIAL IS SUCCESS

Good Program Rendered by Members of Society at Friday Night Gathering.

WARSAW, Nov. 12. — (Examiner Correspondence.) — The box social held by the Women's Institute on Friday evening was a good success, Rev J. W. Wilkinson acting as chairman.

The opening numbber on the program was "O, Canada." Dr. Munro's orchestra gave several selections. Mrs. O. B. McIlvena sang "What's the Use of Worrying?" Miss Anna McMurray recited "A Marriage Tragedy" and "Arithmetic," and also gave a piano selection, "The Robin's Return." Percy Drain in cowboy costume, sang a cowboy song and one "I'm a Bachelor." Mrs. F. Crowe and Mrs. Carman Seymour gave a guitar duet, a lullaby and "Wise Old Owl," Cressa Payne, Emily Payne and Monda McQuaig gave motion songs, "Making Pumpkin Pies" and "John Brown's Baby." Henry Batten sang "Just a Cottage Small."

A fixed price was set on all boxes, and there were some exceedingly pretty ones. Rev. Mr. Wilkinson created much amusement when he auctioned some of the extra cakes.

WEDDING BELLS

HULL—GOLLOP

A quiet wedding took place on Saturday morning, November 8th, when Ethel Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Gollop, 98 Spruce Hill Road, Toronto, was married to Mr. Leonard Franklin Hull, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hull of Strathroy. The Rev. Peter Webster, pastor of Yonge Street United Church, officiated. The attendants were Mrs. R. B. Bowen, Peterborough, and Mr. Jack Gollop, brother of the bride. On their return from a trip to Pittsburgh and Detroit they will reside at 105 Kenwood Avenue, Toronto.

LYNN—HOLMES.

QUEENSBORO, November 12 (Examiner Correspondence). — A quiet wedding was solemnized at the United Church parsonage on Saturday afternoon, when the Rev. J. F. Everson united in the holy bonds of matrimony Thomas Frederick Lynn, son of Mr. and the late Mrs. John Lynn, Queensboro, and Irene Cynthia Holmes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Holmes, of Pine View.

The attending parties were Miss Evelyn Holmes, cousin of the bride, and John Curtis, uncle of the bride. A reception was held at the bride's home on Saturday evening. After several days spent among friends the young couple will settle on a farm south of the village.

Cabinet Quits Over Dispute In Brussels

BRUSSELS, Nov. 12. — (C. P. Cable via Havas)—The entire Cabinet today resigned over the language question in connection with the new University of Ghent.

The Ministers resigned as a result of meeting of the Liberal Federation last night which unanimously refuted the action of the Minister of Education in agreeing to a cabinet decision which prohibited Professors of Ghent University — where the Flemish language is used — from teaching also at the Institute of Advanced Instruction in Ghent where the language is French.

CAR IS ROBBED.

Havelock Girl Places New Coat and Dress in Auto—Returns to Find Them Gone.

HAVELOCK, November 12 (Examiner Correspondence). — A young lady went into a local store on Saturday evening last, and purchased an expensive coat and dress, which she placed in her father's car on one of the side streets near by. She went back down town to make some further purchases, and when she returned to the car, found that her parcels had been removed during her absence. A search failed to locate the missing articles. No trace has been found of them.

To take Nature's Corrective for these Common Ailments

NATURE herself has a safe, pleasant way of correcting constipation, which afflicts so many people with its languor, headaches, nervousness, bad breath and other evils.

Instead of taking habit-forming purgatives, just add Quaker natural Bran to your daily diet. Muffins made with this bran, plain or with raisins, are delicious. Or Quaker natural Bran may be sprinkled over other cereals or served in various tasty recipes given in every package.

But be sure the bran you buy is Quaker natural Bran. Made of soft Ontario winter wheat, it does not irritate. It is sterilized and uncooked. Physicians will tell you that this gives unequalled laxative qualities.

An Ontario physician says:
"I enjoyed Quaker natural Bran very much, and I am recommending it to my patients."

McNABB TO OPEN NEW DEPARTMENT

Sobie's Tailored De Luxe Undergarments and Hosiery Will Be Displayed.

OPENS THURSDAY.

Are you planning a trousseau? Are you interested in seeing just what the latest idea is in dainty things for under wear, this season? Would you like to know what they are wearing in the big style centers, in matters of up to date lingerie?

Just step into McNabb's Ladies' Wear store on George street and see the attractive new department that they are opening up there tomorrow, where Sobie's "Tailored De Luxe undergarments and hosiery for particular women" will be on view. Women who are accustomed to deal at this store know their slogan: "Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded." So they realize also quite fully how their wishes will be catered to in this new department that will have everything in the way of dainty underthings; bobbettes, step-ins, chemises, the new three-way combinations, bridal and trousseau sets, as well as everything in up-to-date hosiery.

The Sobie firm goes in for merchandise of quality to suit the most discerning, and yet maintains a price average calculated to appeal to the careful buyer. Owing to their tremendous purchasing power for a chain of forty stores throughout Canada, they are enabled to eliminate middlemen's charges and thus give the customer the benefit of such saving, while the quality remains at top-notch. Their products are manufactured according to very strict specifications as to quality and style and their experts watch every change in the mode to have it immediately copied or modified to suit Canadian trade.

For those who desire something special and out of the ordinary in trousseau or visiting sets, the company is enabled to call on enormous stocks carried in their larger stores in Toronto, Montreal, Vancouver, Ottawa and Quebec, and have it laid down here in record time. The manufacturer, standing behind his produce, makes his watchword: "Service to the customer and serviceability in merchandise", at an exceptionally low cost.

The new department, offering high-class merchandise with an air-tight guarantee, at very low cost, opens tomorrow. The opening announcement will be found on another page of this issue.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

The term 'inventorying one's personal belongings' sounds rather formidable but it just expresses the right meaning.

• • • • • • •

In a simplified form it signifies taking account of what one possesses, individually. Few women know just what is their very own, not that anyone disputes their rights to the things, but because they have never taken the pains to know themselves.

• • • • • • •

In a home many things are jointly owned, home things, that everyyone enjoys and to which all have an equal right.

• • • • • • •

These are household effects, and are so called in legal parlance.

• • • • • • •

Besides these there are personal properties, the portable things which individuals possess in their own right. And then there is real estate, including land of any and every sort, houses, and any and all buildings erected on such premises.

• • • • • • •

To business men and women these terms and what they mean are very familiar, but the housewife is sometimes sadly unaware of them.

• • • • • • •

Trouble often arises from lack of these meanings, and classifications, and misunderstandings are fruitful sources of family wranglings. So let us become acquainted with such terms not in any aggressive way, but as a subject of mutual interest in a home.

• • • • • • •

Let us turn to one feature of personal inventorying that should be attended to twice a year by every woman. Many do attend to it as part of routine work without thinking of it in any special terms.

• • • • • • •

But let us call it wardrobe inventorying!

• • • • • • •

To make a wardrobe inventory should not be hard, for the average person. It consists of setting down what one has and noting its condition The woman who has closets and bureau drawers crowded with articles may find it difficult, but it is she who should know what she has that is just right for her to wear.

• • • • • • •

Probably much of the stuff is in need of mending, is not quite in the right style or is what the woman means to dispose of. It will continue to hang in the closet taking up much needed room, or remain lying in the drawer to clutter it up, unless it is inventoried.

• • • • • • •

Moreover how can a woman know what she needs to buy unless she knows what she has that can be put in good condition and be made serviceable again for her. From the angle of thrift a woman will find wardrobe inventorying will save her many a penny that she can put towards other wanted articles.

• • • • • • •

The woman who has little will find wardrobe inventorying a very simple matter, but it will make her appreciate just what she absolutely must have to make her wardrobe meet her necessities.

• • • • • • •

The value of wardrobe inventorying to a woman therefore consists in knowing what she has in the way of clothes and accessories for personal use, what she needs, what she must get, and what she would like to have to make her wardrobe suit her desires, should funds permit.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D

THE MIND ALSO NEEDS TRAINING.

I have spoken before about examing the boys of a reformatory school. My work was to make the physical examination. The mental tests were made by a professor of psychology, and the boy was then interviewed by a judge of a juvenile court, a former schoolmaster.

Our combined report was then submitted to the government.

I believe we were able to help some of these boys.

However, as I read about a boy committing suicide recently because he was unable to face a condition that boys have been facing for centuries, I was just thinking that it would be a good idea if every boy were given not only the physical and mental test, but was given a real chance to talk about himself, his difficulties, his doubts, his fears, his desires, to some understanding heart.

Many youngsters in the age between babyhood and going to school become possessed of various notions, fears, dislikes and so forth, that become an actual part of their makeup, and have as much to do with their actions later on, as has their actual physical strength or resistance to disease.

What can be done to straighten out the "kinks" in the mind of the growing boy or girl?

I know a preparatory school where in addition to the physical examiniations, the daily attendance of a physician, and the keen oversight of a most competent head master, there is also on the staff an instructor who devotes his entire life to boys

One of his ways of helping each boy is to have every other boy in the school write down his candid opinion of every other boy as he "sees" him and "knows" him about the school.

Thus each boy as he is interviewed by this instructor learns just what the other fellows think of him—his good points and some not so good.

The boy realizes in this way just what he has to do, to become the normal all round boy that he would like to be.

The boy will usually open up his heart and mind to the instructor and many of the kinks, or tangles, can be straightened out or unwound in one or two interviews

I believe that parents should think more about this. Mothers should get the confidence of their daughters and fathers the confidence of their sons If necessary a little help may be obtained from the family physician, the spiritual adviser, or some well informed family friend.

I talk every day about that body of yours, but the mind needs just the same thought and training if it is to render the service for thich it was intended.

SENATORS SHOW SUPERIORITY OVER MONTREAL MAROONS BY WINNING 2-0 TILT AT HOME

RANGERS STRONG.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 12 (CP)—Three shut-outs featured the 1930-31 opening of the National Hockey League last night. Highlights of the individual games were Ottawa Senators' undeniable superiority over Montreal Maroons who they trounced, 2 to 0, the marked improvement shown by New York Americans who lost to the Bruins, National Hockey League champions, at Boston by a narrow margin; and the ability of the New York Rangers' reserve players who scored two of the three goals garnered by Lester Patrick's team in their three to nothing defeat of the Philadelphia Quakers, recent migrants from Pittsburg.

Despite the loss of Frank "King" Clancy, defence luminary sold to Toronto, Ottawa's well balanced team playing at home, outplayed their Montreal rivals throughout. Hec Kilrea, speedy winger, put the home team in the lead late in the opening period with a neat unassisted goal, and they stayed in the driver's seat to the finish.

Danny Cox, left winger, increased the Senators' margin half-way through the middle frame with an individual attack that saw him craftily trick the Maroon goalkeeper out of position and score.

When the Maroons saw they could not outskate or outplay the opposition they attempted to wear them down, but the home team proved just as durable as the losers, perhaps more so and the sum total of the Montreal effort was eight penalties in the final period, making a total of 16 for the game. One was a major to Hooley Smith for roughing with Harold Starr, of the Senators, who also got a major.

Six players of the Montreal A.A.A. hockey team of last year, winners of the Allan Cup, made their appearance in the game and created a favorable impression, particularly Earle Roche, forward.

Win by Close Margin

More than 15,000 saw the Eddie Gerrard coached Americans open the season at Boston in a thrilling hockey battle. One lone goal in the first period by "Dit" Clapper, rangy forward on a pass from the one and only Eddie Shore, defence player extraordinary, decided the clash in favor of the Bruins who did not have any noticeable margin of superiority over their less illustrious opponents, by any means. Only spectacular goalkeeping by Tiny Thompson saved the Bostonians from a tie if not defeat as the American snipers sent in frequent bombardments that saw the target missed by inches or the puck blocked marvellously by Thompson.

Rangers proved too well conditioned for Benny Leonard's Quakers at Philadelphia and rapped in a marker in each frame to assure themselves of victory.

It was the Quaker's first game before Philadelphia fans since the franchise was moved from Pittsburgh. About 5,000 saw the game, which proved the Rangers will again be a power in the American group and that the Quakers are weak defensively.

Butch Keeling, sub left winger got the first goal on a three-man rush. Another alternate, Johnny Callaghan got the second in the middle frame, while Ching Johnson, bulky Ranger defense man got the third and last on a lone sally.

Draws Major.

HAROLD STARR

Stellar defense man with the Ottawa Senators, who drew a major penalty in a tangle with "Hooley" Smith in Ottawa-Maroon game last night.

Falcons Win Easily In Cleveland Game

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 12. — The Detroit Falcons of the National Hockey League won a runaway victory over Cleveland Indians, champions of the International League, in an exhibition game here last night, 6 to 1.

Left Defense Noble, holdover from the Cougars, scored for Detroit unassisted in a scramble around Shantz, recruit goalie, after one minute ten seconds of play. Centre Goodfellow took a pass from Sorrell and slipped the puck through for another Detroit goal at the 11.45 juncture. Fillmore made Shantz look bad as he sent in an unassisted shot after 14.44 play time. Shantz got poor support, while Dolson, Cougar goalkeeper, got good support in stopping Cleveland rushes.

Black Hawks Rally To Beat Bulldogs

WINDSOR, Nov. 12.—Held even for two periods and trailing by one goal, with barely ten minutes to play, Chicago Black Hawks finished with a smart rally here last night to take a 5-4 verdict over the Windsor Bulldogs in a well-played exhibition game.

Ripley notched three of the goals, one in each period, and was responsible for the tally that broke the 4—4 deadlock a few minutes before full time. Each time the center was assisted by Johnny Gottselig, the pair of them standing out on the Chicago sextet all night, 'Mush' March and Tommy Cook, midget forwards, bagged the other scores that fooled Benedict.

Parachute Jumper To Seek Better Mark

KITCHENER, Ont., Nov. 11. — Warner Lips, 18 year old Kitchener boy, who created a new Canadian record Sunday for parachute jumping from a height of 13,000 feet, only to have his mark bettered at Toronto yesterday by Charles Daly, who jumped 13,950 feet, will attempt to better the latter mark. This announcement was made here to-day by Lips, who will make the jump next Sunday afternoon if the weather is favorable.

FLYING FRENCHMEN DEFEAT LONDON 7-1

Canadiens Flash Clever Attack Against International Leaguers.

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 12—Flashing much the same sort of prowess that won for them the world's professional hockey championship last spring, the Montreal Canadiens went through the exhibition game here last night against the vastly strengthened London Internationals, registering a brilliant victory by a 7-1 score.

A big crowd was on hand to witness the final preparation game for the long seasons before the two opposing teams. London Tecumsehs played their last game here for a week, as they play the curtain-raiser in the International loop at Pittsburg on Thursday night, and follow that with a game at Cleveland on Saturday night before opening at home with Cleveland next Tuesday.

DEGREE OF HUMILITY ABLY EXEMPLIFIED

Peterborough Members of Ancient Mystic Order of Samaritans Visit Ottawa.

The Ottawa Citizen publishes the following account of the visit to that city on Saturday of local members of Cyzicus Sanctorum No. 24, Ancient Mystic Order of Samaritans. The local members were guests of Ottawa's Gotno Sanctorum No. 3, and exemplified the Degree of Humility. The article follows:

"The visit of the Cyzicus Sanctorum of the Order of Samaritans from Peterborough to Gotno Sanctorum of Ottawa, Saturday night, proved very successful.

"Twenty-six visitors came to Ottawa at 6 p.m., in time to be entertained at supper by the officers of Gotno Sanctorum.

"Then at 8 p.m., the officers and members of Cyzicus Sanctorum, headed by a piper and accompanied by a five-piece orchestra, filed into Gotno's hall on Somerset street and received an uproarious welcome.

"After the formalities the staff of Cyzicus Sanctorum proceeded to put on the degree of Humility with Grand Monarch McIntyre in the chair. A large class of Ottawa candidates was shown the path of Humility in a snappy two-hour initiation.

"After the initiation all the Samaritans proceeded to the supper room in the lower hall where an excellent banquet was served. The banquet was followed by speeches and music. A toast to "Our Order" was proposed by G. H. Wilson P.D.D.S.M. and replied to by Sheik Ness, D.D.S.M., of Toronto, in which district Peterborough is located. A toast to "The City of Ottawa" was proposed by Sheik Wm. Knox and replied to by Sheik Alderman Sam Crooks. A toast to "Our Guests" was proposed by Sheik G. A. Anderson B.D.D.S.M., and replied to by Sheik McIntyre, Grand Monarch of Cyzicus Sanctorum.

"On Sunday morning the members of Gotno Sanctorum showed the visitors the beauties of Ottawa in a fleet of motor cars. In the afternoon the visitors were taken to the government museum and other places.

"The visitors will to-day visit the Peace Tower.

"The members of Cyzicus Sanctorum were loud in their praise of beauties of Ottawa and of the treatment by local Samaritans.

AUSTRALIA LOAN GIVEN APPROVAL

Will Use $140,000,000 to Take Care of Maturing Obligations Due Next Month.

GOV'T MEMBERS MEET.

CANBERRA, Australia, Nov. 12 (C. P. Cable).—Orthodox financial policy triumphed when representatives of the Commonwealth Government and of the six Australian States gathered yesterday for an all-important meeting of the Commonwealth Loan Council.

The meeting approved the issue of a conversion loan of approximately $140,000,000 to take care of maturing obligations of about that amount which fall due next months. The Trades Union element of the Labor Party, backed by the new Premier of New South Wales, had declared in favor of asking bondholders to wait another year for their money.

The present conversion loan is on the terms of two years at six per cent, ten years at 5¾ per cent, and 30 years at 5½ per cent.

TITANIC STRUGGLE BILLED WHEN TWO EASTERN MAJORS TANGLE IN THE TITLE TILT

Fans Hoot Fighters In Stribling Bout

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 12 (C.P.)—Arthur Dekuh, the six-foot Italian, held W. L. "Young" Stribling so well that the best the Georgia heavyweight could do here was win a comfortable decision on points in ten rounds.

The Tigerish attack which had flattened Otto Van Forst, Phil Scott and O. K. Christner, was missing, and the slow bout with frequent clinching by both men was booed on several occasions by the fans.

Dekuh outweighed Stribling more than thirty pounds and this advantage served him well. Dekuh weighed 226 and Stribling 191.

Seven Teams Operate American Hockey Loop

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 12.—The American Hockey League will be a seven-team circuit instead of an eight-club affair, it was announced here tonight, with the New York membership being moved to Minneapolis.

Difficulties in getting a financial backer and the inability of the New York entry to find a suitable rink brought about a change in the make-up of the American League, William F. Grant of Kansas City, President and Secretary, said. He left tonight for Chicago to rearrange the league's playing schedule.

President Grant said the New York team will be shifted to Minneapolis intact, with P. L. Smithers, President of the Booth Fisheries and the United States - Dominion Transportation Company, the financial backer; Harland Rohm, Secretary, and Nip Dwan, formerly of the New York Americans of the National League, coach and manager.

Under the new arrangement the same number of games, 48, will be played by each club, 24 in each city. The Western teams, instead of playing three games in the East, now will play four, and vice versa.

Hamilton Club Will Go Into Heavy Training For Big Battle To-day.

ARGOS TAKING FORM.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 12 (C.P.) — Having found that rest is good medicine, Coach Mike Rodden has given his Hamilton Tigers a training respite until to-day. In preparing for the Montreal invasion last week, Coach Rodden was advised to rest his players for a few days. He did, and they went out on the gridiron Saturday to decisively whip the Winged Wheelers.

This Saturday, the Dominion champions have a much harder assignment before them, for they invade the Queen City to test their crushing wing line against Argos, who started conditioning for the game last night. True, Tigers have already beaten the Scullers. But, that was early in the season at Hamilton. Argos have improved a lot since then and will have the added benefit of playing on their home grounds.

It is certain to be a titanic struggle. Last year Tigers beat Argos here through a lucky break and Saturday's game and the "Big Four" championship will probably be decided by a stroke of fortune.

The four teams scheduled to go into action in the final pair of games in the Intercollegiate got to serious training. Two of the squads are completely out of the running for the college honors, but they can throw a monkey wrench into what looks a foregone conclusion, should either upset predictions by winning.

At Kingston, Coach Harry Batstone's Tricolor twelve, heavy favorites to annex the title once again, entertain McGill University. The latter have been soundly trounced by Queen's at Montreal, but have been improving steadily since then and the players would like nothing better than to score a victory over the Kingston students. Should they accomplish this, remote as the possibility seems, University of Toronto, by defeating University of Western Ontario at London, would become champions. If Western Ontario should hold Varsity to a tie while McGill won, a deadlock for the leadership would result between the Tricolor and Varsity.

Our Boarding House - - - - - - - - - - By Ahern

Some time ago I had a discussion about the possibilities of the Hamilton Tigers in the battle for the Dominion Football title with coach Mike Rodden. Mike was worried over the loss of players this year in trades and also injuries. "It's been hard to get a full team," said Mike, "out at the one time to go through with a signal practice. Now the Tigers face a gigantic task with their line riddled with injuries and for the first time in the past few years there will be some doubt as to their chances for the Rugby crown." Montreal and Argos have not yet definitely bowed before the Jungletown team and Rodden has only four substitutes. Although there has been no official announcement it is rumored that "Pep" Leadley, the peer of drop kickers, and one of the best running backs that the game has ever seen is likely to be seen in action wearing the yellow and black colors. Leadley has not been seen on the Hamilton line-up since the return of the team from the Western tour. However with the distress signals flying from the Tiger camp "Pep will get back in harness to help out his team mates.

EDDIE GERARD'S A MERICANS WILL PROVIDE OPPOSITION

Toronto Squad Scores Thirteen Goals in Three Games Played Last Week.

ONE CHANGE IN CREW.

TORONTO, November 12. — With the National Hockey League season opening last night in Boston, Ottawa, and Philadelphia, when the Bruins and Senators shut out the visiting Americans and Maroons, and the Rangers dipped the Quakers in a dose of kalsomine at Philadelphia, the Maple Leafs will open the local season and their 44-game quest for the championship to-morrow night, when Eddie Gerard's New York Americans will provide the opposition. On Monday night, in the Poppy Fund game, as well as in the three exhibitions against International League clubs last week, two of which were won and the other tied, the locals looked stronger than they have at the start of any season in recent years, and the fans and club officials have every reason to confidently expect them to at least finish in the first three in the Canadian group and so qualify for the play-offs.

Scores 13 Goals.

In the three games last week they showed lots of attacking strength, scoring 13 goals and only having four scored against them, and on Monday night they displayed their ability, both offensively and defensively, before a near-capacity crowd of local fans. The team will be almost the same as last year, there being but a few changes in the personnel, but one of the changes has greatly strengthened the club. That is the purchase of Frank Clancy from the Ottawa Senators, and the dynamic defence man has already pepped up the Leafs. With Clancy and Day on the defence, and Horner to relieve either one, the Leafs have a fast-breaking, fast-skating and rugged defence, and the opposing attackers will find the road to the goal much more difficult than it was last season. Coach Art Duncan does not intend to play regularly, but he will be available in case of necessity.

Up forward it will likely be the same two sets of forwards, Blair, Bailey, and Cotton in one trio and Primeau, Conacher, and Jackson in the other, and both sets are playing smarter hockey than they did last season. They have shown better combination and much is expected of the three youngsters this season. In goal there is a struggle on between Lorne Chabot and Benny Grant and they are battling along on even terms at present, both playing smart hockey. There has been considerably more interest in the team this season, and indications are that capacity houses will greet the club to-morrow and Saturday nights, against the Americans and Quakers respectively.

Regina Visits Coast For Western Finals

CALGARY, Nov. 12.—Vancouver's Meralomas were all that separated Regina from its fifth straight rugby conquest of the west yesterday. Opposition to the Rough Rider advance had ceased to exist on the prairies since the Marron warriors Monday rode to a thrilling 9 to 6 victory over the Calgary Tigers.

With a proud record unequalled by any football team the west has produced, the regiment of Rough Riders prepared to march into British Columbia, where Thursday and Saturday they expect to complete demolition of the threat to their supremacy over the gridiron forces west of the Great Lakes. Fresh from their last-period triumph over Calgary, Rough Riders will go to the coast at full strength.

WATER MEET IS SCHEDULED FOR FRIDAY NIGHT

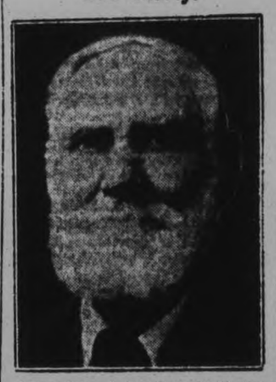
Still Hearty.



When Wm. A. Goodwin of Lindsay, Ont., shown above, was 28, he was given up by doctors, who gave him only a short time to live. He is now 91 years old, doing well and optimistic of the future.

Throughout the Province this will be a real Ontario farm products week, and hundreds of thousands of city people will be able to see the products of our own fields exhibited as their high quality warrants. The retailers and city organizations have given us their best co-operation in this feature of our big program. It is expected that the consumers of our cities will not be behind in also giving it their full support."

Mining Brokers Given Sentence Thursday

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 12.—Imposition of sentences on local mining brokers which was to take place today was deferred until to-morrow at the request of the defence counsel. The brokers were recently convicted on charges of conspiracy to defraud the public and conspiracy to affect the market price of stocks.

The eight men who will come up for sentence to-morrow before Mr. Justice Jeffrey in the Assizes are: William J. Smart and Maurice E. Young of the Homer L. Gibson and Co.; James Heppleston and W. T. Shutt of Arthur E. Moysey and Co.; Austin Campbell and D. S. Paterson of D. S. Paterson and Co.; and Malcolm Stobie and Charles J. Forlong of Stobie-Forlong and Company.

172 NEW RECORDS IN SPORTS WILL BE DISCUSSED AT A. A. MEETING IN WASHINGTON CITY

42nd Annual Convention of United States' Body Will Be Held November 16-18.

MANY WATER MARKS.

Helene Madison and Stella Walsh Set More Records Than Men During Year.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(C.P.)—Applications for recognition of 172 new records in swimming and track and field will come before the 42nd annual convention of the Amateur Athletic Union at Washington Nov. 16, 17 and 18.

Through the activities of Helene Madison of Seattle and Stella Walsh of Cleveland, women athletes set more new records during the past year than did men. Feminine stars broke 46 records in swimming against 28 for the men and 24 in track against 17 for the so-called stronger sex.

Miss Madison, only 17 years old, set 12 world's and 2? American marks in swimming, while Miss Walsh accounted for 11 new standards in running.

Frank Wykoff's 9 2-5 seconds performance for the 100 yards dash attracts principal interest in the men's division. This time and Paul Jessup's mark of 169 feet, 8 7-8 inches in the discus throw both better world's records. Wykoff turned in his great century at Los Angeles, May 10, 1930 and did not use starting block as had George Simpson, Ohio State flash, the previous year. The present world's record is 9 5-10 seconds held by Eddie Tolan of Michigan.

Jessup's record-breaking discus throw was made at the National A.A.U. championships in Pittsburgh where Jimmy Devers tossed the javelin 222 feet 6¾ inches and Herman Brix heaved the shot 52 feet 5¾ inches, both new American records if acted upon favorably by the A.A.U.

Among other track records set were: One mile run, 4.12 2-5 by Ralph A. Hill, University of Oregon, one mile relay, Stanford University team, 3.15 2-5, 220 yards dash around turn, George Simpson, 21 3-10, 120 yard high hurdles, 14 4-10, Steve Anderson, half mile, Phil Edwards, 1.52?.

Letourneau Will Sell Interest in Canadiens

MONTREAL, Nov. 12. — (CP) — Louis Letourneau will sell his interests to his associates and resgin from the triumvirate of Letourneau-Dandurand-Cattaranich, owner of Les Canadiens, National League hockey club, Dorval race track, and many other race track interests in the United States, according to an article in Le Devoir yesterday.

The French newspaper says that Louis Letourneau, for 15 years associated with Leo Dandurand and Joe Cattaranich, had a difference with his partners at the annual meeting of the Dorval Jockey Club.

Though a financial power in the sporting world, Louis Letourneau was never himself classed as an active sportsman, his leaning to golf two years ago being his first entry into sporting life.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

AMOS 'N' ANDY, IN "CHECK AND DOUBLE CHECK"

Well, here they are at last, the two black face playboys who entertain America's millions nightly over the air. Lovers of the radio will have their chance now to see them in person. They are here for four days, and yesterday saw hundreds of patrons crowding into the Capitol Theater to see and hear their favorites.

Freeman F. Gosden has the part of Amos and Charles J. Currell is Andy. With their rolling eyes and their black faces, their mannerisms of speech that have made them a familiar byword to thousands, they are a likeable and very amusing pair. Here is the Kingfish also, right to the life, pompous and crafty. But Madam Queen and Ruby Taylor haven't a place in the show, as real people, that is. They only appear offstage, as it were, by way of the telephone. The office of the famous Taxi Cab Company is just as many have pictured it and the famous taxicab is all that could be desired in the way of age and wheeziness, although the old bus certainly does travel when Amos, in one of his rare moments of mastery, speeds through traffic in a manner calculated to strike fear to the heart of Andy.

Andy "unlaxes", and Amos is "regusted," just as in the radio dialogues. They attend a meeting of the wonderful Mystic Knights of the Sea, with Kingfish presiding, and get mixed up with a haunted house and a paper that turns out later to be the mystic formula for the happiness of their old patron from the South, Richard Williams.

A little love story and a thwarted villain come into the action, but Amos 'n' Andy and their woes and thrills, form the main section of the production, which had a rousing reaction of applause from the fans who saw it yesterday. The shadow of these two tar-dipped comedians evidently hasn't yet begun to grow less. There were packed houses at the theater yesterday for the arrival of the famous pair.

The program includes a very attractive colored small film, with some excellent singing, entitled "Babies a la Mode." And the big picture brings in, in an interlude, Duke Ellington's Cotton Club band, a group of well-known musicians who include a left-handed trumpet player in their midst and who play in a manner calculated to thrill the blood of every jazz-lover in the audience. —Jeanette.

Modern auto service stations, patterned almost exactly after those in America, are to be built in India.

Notre Dame May Play Game With Northwestern At Soldiers' Field For the Sake of Charity

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Negotiations for the transfer of the Notre Dame - Northwestern football game, Nov. 22, to Soldier Field, Chicago, as a charity project, were resumed yesterday by George Getz, Chicago philanthropist and chairman of the Illinois State Unemployment Commission.

"Transfer of this game would raise $150,000 for charity, and although there are numerous obstacles to be overcome, I believe we can arrange it," Getz told the United Press. "I have conferred with President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern and found him sympathetic to the project. We expect to have a definite ruling from the Big Ten faculty committee within 48 hours and I believe it will be favorable."

Dyche Stadium, Evanston, the scheduled site of the game, seats only 48,000 spectators and already is completely sold out for the contest and thousands of dollars are being turned back to unsuccessful ticket applicants. Transfer of the game to Soldier Field would make approximately 52,000 additional seats available.

Both Northwestern and Notre Dame have agreed to the change, with all additional gate receipts over Dyche Stadium capacity figures to be given to charities aiding the unemployed.

A previous request for transfer of the game was rejected by the Big Ten Conference faculty committee.

125 Pound Sturgeon Caught in Quinte Bay

KINGSTON, Nov. 12 (Special to The Examiner).—A mighty big sturgeon has just been caught in a net near Big Island Bar, at Amherst Island, in the Bay of Quinte. The sturgeon tipped the beam at one hundred and twenty-five pounds. The giant fish measured six feet in length and the girth was nearly three feet. Reginald Milligan and Robert Hickey made the catch. The fish was taken to Bath and disposed of to the local fish exporter, Ralph Sexsmith. It is said that a sturgeon which weighed one hundred and ninety pounds was caught in the lake waters a few weeks ago.

WINDOW DRESSING CONTEST SUBJECT

Peterborough merchants are co-operating with the Department of Agriculture of the Province in the Ontario Farm Products Window Dressing Competition which is being conducted in every centre in the Province. In Peterborough the dates are November 16 to 23, and entries close on November 19, and judging not later than the November 22.

Prizes totalling $100.00 are offered for the best Peterborough windows, and the affair is sponsored here by the Chamber of Commerce and by J. B. Nelson, district representative. All Peterborough merchants handling products of the farm are invited to participate.

The window dressing contest is but one feature of the program planned by the Ontario Department of Agriculture to strengthen the demand in the cities and towns of the Province for Ontario-grown produce. Letters received at the contest committee office here from city organizations and service clubs in other centres express the warmest sympathy with the objects of this program.

The recent statement here quoted from the Department of Agriculture, explains the need for this program: "The city's householder's income is directly dependent upon the prosperity of the Ontario farmer. When you buy Ontario proucts the Ontario farmer in return becomes a customer and sends an industry-stirring shower of dollars to urban workers. Ontario's farm market is considered an exceedingly important one by the manufacturers and merchants of the Province. But the farmer must sell to you before he can buy from the breadwinner's workshop or store. In every way it is good business for the housewife to buy from the town's best customer—the Ontario farmer. You buy not only because you can often buy cheaper, but because Ontario farm products are freshest and best. Trading with the Ontario farmer ultimately means more money for the home."

In commenting on the Ontario farm products window dressing competition, J. B. Fairbairn, Deputy Minister of the Department of Agriculture, states: "This is a unique opportunity for the city buyer to see Ontario farm products displayed to excellent advantage in the shop windows of leading city retailers.

Re-organization Meeting Of C.G.E. Boxing Club

A re-organization meeting of the C.G.E. Boxing Club will be held Thursday night at 5.05 in the Employment Building, when last year's President will outline a proposition set forth by the Y.M.C.A. which invites the C.G.E. boxers to train this winter as a unit of the "Y" Boxing Club under the expert supervision of C. Garwood. This plan would enable the C.G.E. athletes to enjoy the facilities of the Y.M.C.A. at a special membership rate.

The attendance at a meeting held last night at the Y.M.C.A. indicates that the boxing is due for a very successful season locally, and it is expected that the "Y" program will start on Tuesday of next week by which time the C.G.E. Club should have the coming stason's program launched.

CHURCH WINDOW IS DEDICATED

IN STIRLING CHURCH

STIRLING, Nov. 12.—(Examiner Correspondence)—On Sunday, November 9, S. John's Church at Stirling was the scene of a very impressive evening service when a memorial window, erected by Mrs. Elizabeth Gordon in memory of the Preston family, was dedicated.

During the prayer service, the wardens, Dr. Alger and B. Belshaw, lowered the flags which veiled the window. Bishop Seager, of Kingston conducted the confirmation service when ten young people were confirmed.

For his text, Bishop Seager chose the words, "By the grace of God I am what I am." His address, being most inspiring. The church was attractively decorated for the occasion with white chrysanthemums. Rev. B. Byers assisted the Bishop in the service.

Appointed Director.

Mrs. Walter Wright was appointed a director of the Women's Institute at a recent meeting, following the resignation of Mrs. M. Sine.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S LITTLE POTATOES.

After Uncle Wiggily had helped Floppy Twistytail, the pig, out of the hole under the fence where Floppy and his brothers ate some apples the old rabbit gentleman happened to think of something.

"Maybe that farmer man, who owns the orchard where those pig boys took so many apples, will be angry," thought Mr. Longears. "True, the apples fell off the trees and would rot on the ground if Floppy and Twisty had not eaten them. And of course it wasn't right for Floppy to make such a little pig of himself eating so many apples that he grew fat and couldn't get back out through the hole by which he crawled under the fence. But still, and for all that, the farmer man may be watching for those two pig boys to throw stones at them.

Thinking this way, Uncle Wiggily had an idea it would be a good thing for him to hop up toward that orchard and see what was going on.

"I may see that farmer and I may hear him say something about the pigs taking his apples," thought Mr. Longears. "If there is any danger I can tell them to keep out of the way."

It did not take Uncle Wiggily long to hop from his hollow stump bungalow, over the fields and through the woods to the place where the farmer man had his apple orchard. There was the fence, under which Floppy had crawled. But the hole, in which the little apple fat pig had been stuck was no longer there.

They will be fine for pigs to eat.

"The farmer man must have filled it up," said Uncle Wiggily to himself as he peered over the top of a burdock plant behind which he had hidden. And just then he saw the farmer man, with a shovel in his hands. The farmer laughed to himself as he said.

"There! I guess no more pigs will crawl through that hole to get my apples. Not that I mind them taking the apples off the ground. But if pigs get in the habit of digging under my fence it will soon be nothing but holes and then the boys and goats will come in and I'll have no apples left. I wish those pigs would take my little potatoes instead of my apples, though. I haven't any use for little potatoes and they are all over my field. The pigs are welcome to them."

"Little potatoes, eh?" murmured Uncle Wiggily. "Now maybe I can help this farmer by taking away the little potatoes he doesn't want and so I can pay him for the apples Floppy and Curly took. At the same time Mrs. Twistytail, the fat lady pig, will be very glad to get even little potatoes."

Uncle Wiggily knew where the farmer's potato field was for the rabbit had hopped near it in coming to the apple orchard. And, making his way to the field, Mr. Longears saw where many hills of potatoes had been dug, for it was time to move them into the cellar for winter. The farmer, or his men, had picked up all the fine, big potatoes, but, as always happens, in each hill were some little potatoes, about as big as walnuts. These are of no use to save over winter.

"But they will be fine for the pigs to eat," thought Uncle Wiggily. "I'll take as many as I can and tell Floppy and Twisty to come and get more, as the farmer doesn't want them. Then we shall do him a favor to pay for making a hole under his fence and taking apples."

First Uncle Wiggily filled all his pockets with little potatoes. Then he took off his tall, silk hat, and filled that with little potatoes. And then, when he could carry no more, he started to hop toward the pen house of the Twistytail pig family.

All of a sudden, as Uncle Wiggily was hopping through the woods, out from behind a bush popped Red Fox, the cousin to Fuzzy Fox.

"Ah, ha! I know you, Uncle Wiggily," howled Red Fox. "You can't fool me this time by fastening a dusting brush on your little tail to make it look big so I won't know you! I've caught you this time!"

"It looks so," said the rabbit, sadly.

"What have you there?" growled Red Fox, pointing at the hat.

"Little potatoes," truthfully answered the rabbit.

"Ha! You can't fool me! Little potatoes, indeed! Nonsense! You have apple pie there, or lollypops, or something like that!" growled the Fox. "Here, give me some until I see if you are telling the truth!"

"All right! Take the little potatoes! I know where there are lots more!" cried Mr. Longears. With that he threw his tall hat full of little potatoes right in the face of Red Fox. The Bad Chap was banged and slammed on the nose and ears and eyes until he howled and yowled.

"No more potatoes, little or big!" he cried. "Oh, how sore I am!" Then he ran away and Uncle Wiggily picked up the little potatoes and took them to Mrs. Twistytail who made a pudding of them. Curly and Floppy gathered up all the rest of the little potatoes and so helped the farmer to pay for the apples they took. So everything was all right.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 12.—(Examiner Correspondence).—A feature of peculiar interest at morning worship in St. Andrew's United church, on Sunday, November 9, was the reading of the report for the year of the Young Worshippers' League, prepared by the secretary, Miss Marion O'Brian, and the presentation of the awards to those boys and girls who had been present at the morning service twenty-six Sundays and over during the twelve months.

The object of the League is to encourage the habit of regular attendance at the church services morning worship only be recorded the organization having been in existence in connection with St. Andrew's church for a period of more than twelve consecutive years. The membership totals over fifty, the age limit being fixed at fifteen years; any child under that age is readily enrolled.

Suitable books are presented at the year's close each November to those members who have been present twenty-six Sundays and over, and the league, the church officials, and the congregation generally are greatly indebted to the late Rev. Joseph Wilks for a legacy which makes possible the securing awards for the next 5 years without there being any charge on the church funds. The deep and kindly interest which Rev. Mr. Wilks took in the work among the young folk of his own church, and of the community, and the constructive activities which were its results, are widely known, and gratefully remembered.

The list of those receiving awards this year, with the number of Sundays present, includes: Mary Burnham, 49 Sundays; Elwood Fallis, 45 Sundays; Gordon Jones, 43 Sundays; Madeline McDowell, Esther and Gordon Might, 41 Sundays; Marjorie McDowell, 38 Sundays; David Hatherly, 36 Sundays; Evans Hatherly and Allan Earl, 35 Sundays; Martha Earle and Lenore Lambert, 33 Sundays; Bryar Edmunds, Beatrice McDowell, and Freddie Garside, 32 Sundays; Audrey Garside, 30 Sundays; Venner Lambert and Ida Lunn, 28 Sundays; Teddy McDowell and Reg. Edmunds, 26 Sundays.

Prayer by the pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones closed this part of the service, the boys and girls having gathered about the altar railing to receive the books, immediately at the conclusion of the reading of the year's report.

SPECIAL MEETING OF WARSAW W.M.S.

Several Visitors From Norwood and This City Take Part.

WARSAW, Nov. 12.—(Examiner Correspondence).—A special thanksgiving meeting of the Warsaw Presbyterian W.M.S. was held in the church on Thursday afternoon. Several visitors were present from Norwood, some of the United Church W.M.S. as well as from Peterborough. Mrs. Borland, president, was in the chair and Mrs. Richard Tedford presided at the organ.

After the usual opening exercises, Mrs. Munro sang "Alone," and Mrs. James Greystock read a missionary selection. Mrs. Allan, of St. Paul's Church, Peterborough, gave the talk of the afternoon on the words, "Lovest Thou Me?" Mrs. Allan spoke as one woman to another. She explained faith as when a little child, when told to jump into her father's arms when she cannot see him. Also that to love Jesus did not mean we could be thinking of him all the time, but we could live to show that He is all in all to us. Her theme seemed to be faith and love and action, in the service of the Saviour, and with these His gospel would spread.

Mrs. Rogers of Norwood sang "The Stranger of Galilee."

Refreshments were served by the Warsaw members.

SPECIAL SECTION FOR BIG RE-UNION

Members of the "Iron Seconds" Will Meet in Peterborough on Saturday.

TRACE EXPLOITS.

On the occasion of the 2nd Battalion re-union, to be held in this city on Saturday next, The Examiner proposes to publish a special section which has endeavoured to trace the exploits of the "Iron Second" throughout the four years of the War, and up to the time of the Battalion's demobilization at Kingston.

For the first time a complete and authentic account will be given of the ill-fated but heroic encounter, on the morning of April 23rd, 1915, when Major G. W. Bennett and almost the entire complement of No. 1 Company (Peterborough) were killed at the second battle of Ypres. This chapter provides a gripping drama of heroic sacrifice, and is from the pen of Capt. W. W. Murray, M.C. the 2nd Battalion Regimental historian.

Captain Murray is now a member of the Press gallery at Ottawa. He will be here for the re-union along with about 250 other former members of the Battalion, who will be coming to this city from all corners of Central Ontario, in which district the Battalion was largely recruited.

As a sign of welcome and to notify visitors to the re-union that they are approaching Peterborough, a large sign will be strung across King's Highway 2, somewhere out in the vicinity of Springville.

The sign will consist of a large red square surmounted by a large half circle of green—the Divisional sign—which will convey a wealth of meaning to the "boys."

DEATH IN CELL TO BE PROBED

VICTIM IN UGLY MOOD.

DETROIT, Nov. 11.—Although Police Commissioner Thomas C. Wilcox announced he had obtained a confession from a fellow prisoner in the death of William T. Jones, who died in a cell at the Central Police Station, Mayor Frank Murphy said there would be a thorough investigation and "no whitewashing."

Commissioner Wilcox said that in the alleged confession Peter Wentala, 35, former patrolman and now an iron worker, stated that Jones was in an "ugly mood" when he was placed in the "golden rule" cell with Wentala and two other prisoners Monday night.

Wentala was quoted as saying that Jones reiterated his statement made previously to police that "I killed Jerry Buckley." (Gerald E. Buckley, radio political commentator, slain by gangsters July 23). A fight ensued, according to the alleged confession, and Wentala knocked Jones down.

Jones died of brain concussion. Police said the medical examiner's report of an autopsy showed that the prisoner was suffering from cirrhosis of the liver, tuberculosis, heart disease and anaemia.

WELLAND CANAL WILL BE OPENED DEFINITELY EARLY NEXT YEAR

Dr. Manion, Minister of Canals, Promises Speedy Action.

DEALS WITH CLAIMS

WELLAND, Ont., Nov. 12.—There is no truth to rumors that engineering difficulties will prevent a speedy completion of the Welland canal. It is certain to be officially opened next year. This definite statement was made by Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, minister of railways and canals, who visited this city to look over the progress of the work and to discuss with civic officials disturbances to the city's property by reason of the canal development.

"There is no doubt about the canal being officially opened next year," said Dr. Manion. "The suggestion has been made that the opening might be made a special Dominion Day event, but it may take place earlier. Everything is in first class shape. It is largely in use now. There is nothing to delay completion," he added.

"The canal is a part of the great St. Lawrence scheme," he declared. The minister, however, would not discuss the recent representations to the government of the Montreal harbor commissioner's concerning the diminishing grain export business from that port because of poor storage facilities and the fact that only small cargoes could come through the shallow canals. "Is this not something that would indicate the great need of the St. Lawrence deepening? Dr. Manion was asked.

"The Montreal harbor commissioners made no representations to me. Anything that the harbor commission might say is a matter that comes under the charge of the department of marine and I don't wish to express my opinion upon something concerning another department," the doctor replied.

Dr. Manion visited in St. Catharines, Thorold, Merritton and Welland over the week-end and goes on to Port Colborne on Monday. He explained that he was familiarizing himself with the development.

On his visit to Welland to-day, Dr. Manion was accompanied by Col. Dubuc, chief hydraulic engineer of the department, Mayor F. M. Brown of Welland, Mark Vaughan, M.P.P., of Thorold; Hon. J. D. Chaplin, M.P., of St. Catharines; Geo. H. Pettitt, M.P. and A. J. Grant, L. D. Hara, engineers in charge of the Welland canal, E. B. Jost, hydraulic engineer, City Engineer Coulson, City Clerk Watt and the aldermen of Welland.

Hon. Dr. Manion agreed that Welland and St. Catharines were entitled to docks. Welland also asked for a road to be put through on the north side of the canal at the Main St. corners and asked that the government fill in the land at the northeast side of Main St. where the river was diverted. The city hoped to make a park at this point.

THE RETURN OF TARZAN No. 51 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

And so Tarzan of the Apes, carrying the unconscious American girl, went through the secret tunnel beneath the temple of the Flaming God, without pursuit. When he reached the crest of the great boulder, he halted to cast a backward glance at the city. Coming across the plains he saw a band of the hideous men of Opar, sent out to search for him.

With loud cries of savage delight they spied him and broke into a mad run. But by maintaining an easy trot, Tarzan kept the distance between them always the same. Occasionally he would glance at the face so near his own. Had it not been for the faint beating of her heart, he would not have known she was still alive. Thus they reached the barren cliffs.

During the last mile, Tarzan had run like a deer that he might have ample time to descend the cliffs, before the Oparians could reach the summit and hurl rocks down upon him. So he was half down the mountainside ere the fierce little men came panting to its edge. Here, for some reason, they decided to give up the chase, and Tarzan reached the forest's edge in safety.

Laying his burden upon the grass, and going to a near-by rivulet, he brought water with which to bathe her face and hands. But even this did not revive her. Greatly worried, he gathered the girl into his strong arms once more and hurried on toward the west. Late in the afternoon, when Jane opened her eyes, she thought she was being borne through a leafy paradise in the arms of her dead lover.

Hockey Club Meeting Starts At 7.30 P.M.

All junior and intermediate hockey players also all those interested in the famous ice game are asked to attend the annual general meeting of the Peterborough Hockey Club, which will be held to-night in the Chamber of Commerce Rooms. The meeting will get under way promptly at 7.30 o'clock.

RESUME CLASSES ON TUESDAY NEXT

Will Embrace Pupils From the "Y," C.G.E. and Normal School.

Boxing classes at the Y.M.C.A. are to be resumed for the winter session on Tuesday next at 5.30 o'clock and will be conducted each week on Tuesday and Friday by Gord Garwood, former boxing instructor at the "Y" in Winnipeg.

The decision was made at a well attended meeting of boxing enthusiasts at the "Y" last evening. The classes will embrace boxing pupils from the "Y", the C.G.E. and the Normal School, and promise to be exceedingly popular.

There are vacancies remaining for a few more local young men who desire to become proficient in the fistic art, who can obtain full particulars as to enrollment and fees by application to the instructor or to Doug. Loomis, physical training director. Early application is essential as the classes will be conducted on a progressive basis making it advisable that pupils attend every class of instruction, right from the commencement of the course.

Teacher "Skinny" Nervous, Gains Pep 14 Lbs. in 3 Weeks

ST. AURELIE, P.Q.—"Was nervous, exhausted. So skinny, was embarrassed," says Miss Alphonsine Fortier, teacher. "Tried Ironized Yeast. Gained 14 lbs. in 3 weeks. Now healthy and happy."

Teachers, lawyers, doctors, nurses, mothers, ministers all write of gains of 5 to 15 lbs. in 3 weeks with new Ironized Yeast. Blemished skin clears. "Nerves," constipation, indigestion go overnight. New pep first day.

Ironized Yeast is two great tonics in one. Weight-building brewer's Yeast plus strengthening, blood-enriching Iron. Many times more effective than unmedicated yeast. Results in half the time.

Don't be "skinny", weak, nervous, in danger of serious ills. Take these pleasant little tablets. No yeasty taste; no gas. If not delighted with quick gains, manufacturer refunds money. Get Ironized Yeast from druggist today. Feel great tomorrow. New pounds quick.

DR. RYAN ADDRESSES FENELLA INSTITUTE

PENELLA, Nov. 12 (Examiner Correspondence)—Dr. S. Ryan, of Roseneath, addressed the ladies of Fenella Women's Institute on "How to keep fit during the winter months" on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank George, when the regular monthly meeting of this organization was held.

"Keep fit during the winter months," said the speaker, by guarding the body externally and internally. Give attention to eyes, ears, throat and teeth. Keep ears free of wax. Wax accumulating and hardening harms the eardrum and some times results in mastoids. Keep the teeth clean, have them examined twice yearly by a dentist. Consult a medical man when suffering from ailments of the throat as much suffering may be avoided if throat troubles are attended to promptly. Use caution when going out of a dry hot room into the outdoors, have a hot room moist if possible as the lungs are affected when exposed to the cold air immediately after leaving a hot dry atmosphere. Do not over-work or over-eat and avoid spirituous drinks, thus guarding the heart.

"Speaking for the stomach," Dr. Ryan said, "again do not over eat, many diseases may be avoided by watching the diet, eat plenty of roughage. If the heart and stomach are over-worked, then the power of resistance is lowered. For the kidneys drink plenty of water, overworked kidneys cannot eliminate poison.

Concluding, the speaker said, "Dress lightly and warmly, do not wear heavy or tight clothing, change wet clothes as soon as possible. Use your common sense to ward off colds externally and internally."

Mrs. N. C. Leach gave a reading entitled "Women who love their work." There are four things a home maker should consider, first to keep in touch with the outside world by books and periodicals. Second, keeping in touch socially. Third by taking necessary physical excercises and fourth, a real knowledge of housekeeping. All these things are necessary to make a real homemaker.

During the business period a letter was read from Mr. Putnam soliciting aid for the poor in the form of second hand clothing and bedding. On motion it was decided to respond to this call and a quilting will be held in the hall during the following week. Mrs. G. Montgomery thanked the society for fruit sent her during a recent illness. A letter was read from Mrs. A. Nill thanking the society for fruit sent her following a recent accident and illness.

A roll call, "If you could have just one more labor saving device, what would it be and why" brought forth many original and helpful suggestions.

Successful Supper Held By St. George's Church

A very successful supper in aid of St. George's Church was held on Monday evening in the church basement. The long tables were attractively laid, with vases of colored flowers brightening the appearance. A large number of people sat down to supper, which started at 5.30 p.m. The kitchen, where members of the Ladies' Guild, in the persons of Mesdames H. Wood, R. King, C. Cole and F. McBride, were kept busy serving, also found employment for a staff of male members of the congregation, these being Messrs. R. W. Butler, G. Martin, A. Sims, A. Cuff, R. King collected tickets at the door, and E Tucker gave general assistance wherever needed. Members of the A.Y.P.A. waited at the tables. To take care of those who were waiting for places at the supper tables, a series of slides on "A Trip Across Canada," kindly loaned by the Canadian National Railway Co., interspersed with scenes depicting the missionary work of the church, were shown by the rector, Rev. J. L. Hughes.

The evening's entertainment took the form of a program at which E. Tucker acted as chairman. Vocal solos were given by Mrs. J. Howard, Miss Beatrice Curtis, Aileen Hughes, Rev. J. L. Hughes, and Messrs. Jarvis and C. Cole; readings by Mrs. Hughes and community singing brought the items to a close.

In addition to being a general helper, Harry Caller made a jovial auctioneer in disposing of the surplus food.

Holiday Clean-Up Brings Disaster To Home Of Mr. And Mrs. Peter Rabbit

Thanksgiving Day brought sadness to a North Monaghan couple who lost their home and all their belongings in a raging fire that completely destroyed years of labor in less than an hour.

Two years ago this couple decided to build out in the rural district near Jackson Park, where living was easier and where they could gather in the fall enough produce to keep them well supplied during winter.

Their home was the last word in comfort and convenience. It was well sheltered against the blasts of January. And the early rays of the morning sun shone in their sleeping porch. Now all is gone, and so destitute are they that last night at 10 o'clock they were seen sleeping beside a cedar hedge with nothing to cover them but the clothes they escaped with.

Surely at this time of the year some one should come to their help, because the cold nights are here, and the winds are blowing chill. The bitter aspect of it all is that they are certain their home was set on fire. They saw a man come up to the rear of their house, set a pile of brush afire, and before they could call help the whole thing was in flames. They have not one dollar of insurance, and barely time to build a new home. This is truly a pitiable case. The one consolation is that they are small of body and will not require much room to house them. Their names are Peter and Mrs. Rabbit, and their home was in a pile of apple brush that was consumed in a final gardening clean-up on the holiday.

MR. FROST GIVES SPECIAL ADDRESS

Young People of St. James Church Hold Weekly Meeting.

Nearly fifty of the young people of St. James' United Church gathered for their weekly meeting on Tuesday evening.

Miss Aileen Rose, vice-president of the missionary department, presented an interesting and well-planned program, opening with a service of song.

Rev. Mr. Moorhouse, pastor of the church, offered the introductory prayer, after which the Scripture lesson, chosen from the gospel of St. Matthew, was read by Florence Cripps.

Special prayer for the missionaries and their work was made by Muriel Moorhouse and Connie Wagar.

"What Shall I Do With Jesus" was the appropriate solo given by Geneva Sedgwick.

Miss Edith Smith's reading, "The Minister Comes to Tea," proved an interesting interlude in the program.

"Neglecting Our Missionary Duty" was the theme very capably dealt with by Mr. Frost in the address of the evening.

A comprehensive survey of the world mission field gave some startling facts and figures about missions. In our own land the new Canadians present a problem, when we realize that they make up nearly half the population of the prairie provinces. Of the 106,000 Indians in Canada over 8,000 are yet unreached by the gospel. Latin America with its 94 million people, Japan with its 77 million, China with 400 million, Africa and India, have merely been touched by Christian missions and present a challenge to missionary endeavor.

The young people were delighted and honored in having present with them their former pastor, Rev. J. H. Dudgeon and Miss Marjorie. In a short address Mr. Dudgeon recalled his pleasant associations with the young people of St. James.

The president, Lloyd May, took charge of the business session and the meeting was closed with prayer and the benediction.

At the conclusion, an invitation was extended by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stevens to the members of the Friday Night Bible Study Class to enjoy an hour at their home with Rev. J. H. and Mrs. Dudgeon, their former teacher.

A sing-song, with Ashton Fife at the piano, was heartily entered into while old friendships were renewed. Rev. A. E. Moorhouse, Mrs. Moorhouse and Muriel were also present to enjoy the social time.

After the service of refreshments, Rev. Mr. Dudgeon offered prayer in behalf of the young people.

OBITUARY

MRS. N. J. SWAN.

The funeral of the late Mrs. N. J. Swan, formerly Carrie Boyler, will be held on Thursday from the family residence in Otonabee Township at 3 p.m., to Zion Cemetery.

The late Mrs. Swan was in her 53rd year, and had resided in Otonabee Township all her life. She was highly respected by all who knew her.

She leaves to mourn her loss, besides her sorrowing husband, three daughters, Mrs. S. Lee of this city and Pearl and Emeline at home, also four sons: Roy, Clarence, George and Maxwell, all at home.

ELIZA JANE HART.

Eliza Jane Wilson, widow of John Hart, passed away early this morning, following an illness of lengthy duration, in her 84th year.

The deceased lady was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wilson of Bethany, but had resided in this city practically all her life. Her Christian character, so fully demonstrated at all times, made her a person greatly loved and respected by all who knew her. She was a faithful member of George Street United Church, and was connected with the Women's Missionary Society and was also interested in W.C.T.U. work.

She leaves four sisters: Mrs. R. Moore of Lindsay, Mrs. John Richardson of Oshawa, Miss Bella Wilson of this city, and Mrs. A. Schrimshaw of Springbrook, N.Y.

The funeral will be held on Friday, leaving D. Belleghem and Sons' Funeral Home at 1.30, for interment at Graham's Cemetery, Bethany. Rev. J. E. J. Millyard of George Street Church will conduct the services.

LOUISE AUDREY HICKSON.

The death occurred Monday morning at five o'clock, at St. Joseph's Hospital, of Louise Audrey, six months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Hikson, Parnell street, after an illness of several weeks. Interment took place in St. Peter's cemetery.

8 Brokers To Spend 22 Years In Prison

CRIMINAL TRIALS FINALLY CLOSED AGAINST BROKERS

Total of 22 Years is Given Eight Brokers By Mr. Justice Jeffrey.

APPEALS ARE ENTERED.

Three Years Given Heads of Companies and Two Years Six Months to Others.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 13. —(CP)—Eight Toronto brokers will spend a total of 22 years in prison following the imposition of sentences by Mr. Justice Jeffery in the assizes today. The proceedings marked the close of the criminal trials on various charges of conspiracy of members of five large Toronto Mining brokerage houses prosecution was instigated by the Ontario Government last winter as a result of their stock exchange operations. Appeals against the convictions have been entered with the exception of two cases in which the brokers pleaded guilty.

James Heppleston and W. T. H. Shutt of the Arthur E. Moysey brokerage company, who had previously pleaded guilty to a charge of conspiracy, were sentenced to terms of three years, and two years and six months, respectively.

Appeals Are Entered

Appeals, however, are being made against the convictions of William J. Smart and Maurice E. Young, of the Homer L. Gibson and Company, who were convicted on charges of conspiracy to defraud the public and of fraudulent purchase and sale of stocks. Smart was sentenced to three years in penitentiary while Young was given a term of two years and six months. D. S. Paterson, and Austin Campbell of the firm of D. S. Paterson and Company, who were convicted on two counts of conspiracy to defraud the public by false pretences, are also appealing against the convictions, as are Malcolm Stobie and Charles J. Forlong, of the defunct firm of Stobie, Forlong and Company, who were found guilty on similar charges. Paterson was sentenced to three years on the first count and two years on the second, while Campbell received two years and six months on the first and two years on the latter. Stobie was given a similar sentence to that of Patterson while Forlong, whose counsel claimed he had little or nothing to do with the actual business transactions, received two years and six months on the first count and two years on the second, the sentences to run concurrently.

The prisoners were all released on renewal of their bail, except Heppleston and Shut, who left the Court to commence their terms. The time spent in jail while awaiting their trials will be included in the sentences.

The arrests, trials, convictions, and sentences of the eight men to-day was the result of the investigation and subsequent raids on the leading Toronto mining brokerage houses by the Attorney-General's Department.

B. C. IS OFFERED ROAD TO ALASKA

U. S. Financiers Would Build $20,000,000 Highway For Certain Concessions.

PASS THROUGH YUKON.

VICTORIA, B.C., Nov. 13. (CP)—Construction of the British Columbia-Yukon-Alaska highway, together with a chain of ultra modern tourist resorts and service stations along the route at a cost in the neighborhood of $20,000,000 without expense to the province, has been offered to the Government in proposals tentatively advanced by United States interests Samuel Hill, pioneer road-maker of the Pacific northwest, says an announcement from Premier S. F. Tolmie.

Financiers whose identity is not disclosed, in making their proposals through Mr. Hill, said they were willing to form a corporation to finance the construction of the road extension from Hazleton, B.C., to the Yukon and through the Yukon to link up with existing Alaska roads, in return for certain concessions on the new road.

Cyclone Wipes Out Town in Burma

LONDON, Nov. 13 (A.P.)—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Rangoon to-day reported that hundreds of lives were lost in a cyclone which wiped out the town of Kyauk-Pyu on the west coast of Lower Burma.

All buildings were reported destroyed, trees uprooted and vessels in the harbor carried out to sea.

The news agency reported that all communications had been cut.

IMPERIAL PARLEY WILL NOT DECIDE ON WHEAT QUOTA

Adjournment of Issue to Later Conference at Ottawa Favored.

GRAHAM REPORT APPROVED.

Appointment of Governor-General Matter For King and Dominion Concerned.

LONDON, Nov. 13. — (By George Hambleton, C. P. Staff Correspondent.)—"There will be no decision for or against the wheat quota at the present Imperial Conference in London."

This was the semi-official announcement after another four hours' discussion by Empire Premiers here to-day.

What the Imperial Conference will decide remains to be determined Common reports still favor adjournment of the whole issue to a later conference at Ottawa.

Graham Report Up.

It was a day of long discussions and more are to come. At 8.15 Premier Bennett conferred with his Canadian Cabinet colleagues on the situation. At 9.30 he was closeted with the heads of the other delegations at 10 Downing street and there, for four hours, the report of the Graham committee on the wheat quota purchasing scheme was under discussion.

The Premiers approved the principle of the Graham report, which showed the wheat quota technically practicable. But that, it is carefully pointed out, does not mean either acceptance or rejection of the quota scheme, which would allot the Dominions a certain percentage of British wheat requirements.

TORONTO DOCTOR HIGHLY HONORED

TAKES OFFICE JAN. 1. 1931.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 (C.P.).—The National Committee for Mental Hygiene to-day announced that Dr. C. M. Hinks, Toronto, has been appointed general director to succeed Dr. Frankwood E. Williams, who is retiring.

Dr. Hinks, founder and medical director of the Canadian National Committee for Mental Hygiene, will become general director of the United States organization on January 1, 1931.

Dr. Hinks will remain in Toronto and will continue as medical director of the Canadian committee, thus becoming the leading figure in mental hygiene in North America.

Nova Scotia Pastor Called To Montreal

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 13 (CP) Rev. Kenneth M. Munro, pastor of the First United Church, Truro, N.S., has been sent a unanimous call by the American Presbyterian Church of the United Church of Canada, Montreal. The call was decided upon at a meeting last night and a telegram sent at once to Rev. Mr. Munro.

Rev. Mr. Munro, if he accepts, will take the place of Rev. Dr. Lynn Harold Hough who has accepted a professional appointment in a United States College. Mr. Munro is a Canadian, native of Nova Scotia.

CITY LABORERS ARE GIVEN WORK ON NEW HIGHWAY

Half Men Employed on First Six and Half Miles to Come From City.

MEMBERS AGREE.

At Present Time All the Men Needed on the Job Have Been Hired.

Half the men employed by the Brennan Paving Company on the construction of six and a half miles of the new Provincial highway east of Peterborough will be city men. J. F. Strickland, M.P.P. for the city, and T. P. Lancaster, M.P.P for East Peterborough, decided this knotty problem of deciding the division of employment on the new highway yesterday.

Mr. Strickland pointed out that since the city is sharing in the cost of the work, city men should get some employment, although most of the highway is in Mr. Lancaster's riding. Mr. Lancaster agreed to this, and half the men on the job will be city men and half from the county.

At the present time all the men needed on the job have been hired, and among them are a fair share of city men. However, when the second steam shovel arrives within a few days, the number of men will be increased to forty. It is not thought that more than that number will be required on the winter job.

Another gang of unemployed married men will be added to the city's pay roll to-morrow in building storm drains under the unemployment relief scheme in which the Dominion and Provincial governments are sharing half the cost. Mayor Denne said this morning that with this addition practically every unemployed married man in the city who can work will have a job.

BURGLAR ENTERS HASTINGS STORES

Mode of Entry Corresponds With That Used in Stirling Robberies.

LOSS IS NOT HEAVY.

HASTINGS, Nov. 13.— (Examiner Correspondence.)—J. J. Collin's grain office and T. A. Coughlin's jewelry store were last night the scene of operations for a burglar or burglars who entered the buildings in both cases by cutting a portion of glass from the door panel, thus gaining access to the lock. The mode of entry corresponds with that adopted at a recent robbery at Stirling.

In addition ot the premises entered, an attempt was made to gain admittance to the Haboco store, as marks on the door plainly proved. Nothing as far as can be ascertained was taken from the grain office, and Mr. Coughlin has as yet been unable to estimate his loss.

Thos. Kirk, night constable who went to his home at about 2.30 a.m. passed the premises, and is able to state that at that time they had not been entered.

Provincial and town police are working on the case.

DOZEN AIRPLANES SEEK LOST MEN

Arrangements Made For 5 U. S. Machines to Join Hunt in B. C. Wilds.

TWO PLANES MISSING.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Nov. 13.—(C.P.)—A dozen airplanes to-day were enlisted in the quest for half-a-dozen men whose two planes have vanished in British Columbia's north country. Seven machines are already engaged in the hunt for the lost planes of Capt. E. A. A. Burke and Robin Renahan, Vancouver fliers, and assistance of five United States' navy machines is to be added.

Premier S. F. Tolmie last night notified Senator Conner at Seattle, Wash., that necessary International arrangements had been made preliminary to acceptance of the offer of five fast pursuit machines of the U. S. Air Service at Bremerton, Wash. Hon. Donald Sutherland, Canadian Minister of National Defence, had notified Dr. Tolmie that no barrier stood in the way of accepting the offered aid.

Canadian Choir in England Greets Premier Ferguson

The Brantford Choir, which is at present touring the British Isles on a concert tour, was photographed above on arrival in London. When the train drew in to King's Cross Station, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Prime Minister of Ontario (left), was on hand to greet the choristers, who promptly gave him a rousing reception with the old song, "For he's a jolly good fellow."

Appendicitis Victim Rides 21 Miles Alone to Hospital Upon Motorcycle

QUESNEL, B.C., November 13 (C.P.). — Clutching the handle of a motorcycle with one hand, while pressing the region of his appendix with the other, Otto Reinfrandt rode 21 miles to the hospital to have his appendix removed.

Suddenly stricken at Cottonwood House, where he had been working, the young man mounted his motorcycle when, at the end of two hours' frantic effort the only car at Cottonwood still resisted all attempts to start it, and headed for Quesnel.

Forced to ride in a standing position because of the pain his right side, he was two hours making the journey, and in the semi-darkness the machine threw him off twice. Reinfrandt finally reached the hospital. His appendix was removed an hour later. Next day he was sitting up reading a newspaper.

WORRIED FATHER KILLS 3 GIRLS

Prominent Uniontown Lawyer Seriously Wounds Wife, Then Suicides.

HAD FINANCIAL TROUBLES.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 13 (C.P.).—Three children were shot and killed to-day by their father, R. H. Playford, 55, a prominent Uniontown lawyer and banker, who then killed himself, apparently while suffering under the delusion that the family was facing poverty. Playford's wife was wounded, probably fatally.

The dead, besides the father, are: Nancy, 13; Margaret, 10, and Paline, 9. Mrs. Playford, 45, before her marriage to Playford, was Nancy Stirling, member of a prominent Baltimore, Md., family.

Maid Makes Discovery.

A maid in the Playford home was the first to discover the victims. The girl, Viola White, said that she heard shots about 7 a.m., but believed the reports were caused by heating radiators in the house. A short time later, she said, she saw Playford leave the children's room and enter his own. She heard another shot, and upon investigating, found her employer's body on the floor.

All of the bodies except that of the man were in their beds. The children and Mrs. Playford apparently were sleeping when the shots were fired.

ADJOURNMENT DISCUSSED AT IMPERIAL CONFERENCE

LONDON, Nov. 13. — (By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.) — Adjournment of the Imperial Conference to next June 1 in Ottawa, is understood to be under discussion and the final decision of the Empire premiers is expected to be reached to-night.

This would mean the conference would follow the session of the Dominion Parliament. The idea is to give further expert consideration in the meantime to methods of developing Empire trade.

Round Table Parley Halts Till Monday

LONDON, Nov. 13 (A.P.)—Delegates to the Indian Round-Table Conference stepped aside to-day for the remainder of this week and permitted the Imperial Conference to write the closing chapters of its history and the Dominion Premiers to get on their way back home.

The interim between now and the next meeting, Monday, the Indian delegates will use in an effort to reach agreement on policy and bases for negotiations, so that they may act with a united front in parleys with the British representatives.

12 YEAR LAD DIED OF BROKEN NECK

Post Mortem Shows Smithville Boy Was Not Strangled Then Strung Up.

DEATH INSTANTANEOUS.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Nov. 13 (C.P.)—Charles Royal Grant, the 12-year-old boy who was found hanging from a tree about fifteen feet over the line fence of his foster father's farm near Smithville on Monday night, died from a broken neck, the post mortem examination revealed. This fact throws into the discard any theory that the boy was first strangled and then strung up, and indicates that Charles either climbed on to the eight-foot limb, tied the rope and then jumped off, or that he was thrown from the limb with the rope about the neck.

The post mortem shows conclusively that death was caused by a fractured neck and was instantaneous. All indications usually present in strangulation were missing. There was no congestion, none of the signs which indicate strangulation, only the fracture of the neck, pointing to a sudden drop and instant death.

WOMAN WOUNDS 8 YEAR DAUGHTER TAKES OWN LIFE

Stratford Man Enters Room Just as Victim Sinks Knife in Her Heart.

CAUSE IS MYSTERY.

Doctors Hold Little Hope For Girl—Inquest is Probable.

STRATFORD, Ont., Nov. 13 After stabbing her eight-year-old daughter in the neck, inflicting serious knife wounds, Mrs. W. S. Mills, age 33, sank a knife into her heart and died instantly this morning.

Coroner Dr. Maxwell is in charge and an inquest in all probability will be held. Dr. Fraser stated late this morning that the child was in a precarious condition and her death is not unexpected.

Cause Of Act Unknown

No reason can be advanced for the woman's rash acts, except that it is known she has been unwell for some time past and has been in a depressed condition of recent days.

Police were called soon after the double stabbing and the little girl was rushed to the General Hospital. Attending doctors doubt that she will recover.

Mr. Mills had been staying with her father Alex Scrimgeour for some time at the Brunswick street address, her husband being an engineer on a boat. He has been absent for some time past.

Until an investigation is made by the Coroner and the police details of the tragedy cannot be learned.

Child Been Ill Some Time

The child, Patricia, had been ill for some time and had been sleeping with her mother. Mr. Scrimgeour was awakened this morning by the child's heavy breathing. He tried the door but it was locked.

When he entered the room he found Mrs. Mills standing up fully dressed and with a wound in her neck. She gave her father the correct number of the doctor who had been attending the child. When the father attempted to take the knife from her, Mrs. Mills collapsed in his arms and died almost immediately.

WOMAN COMMITS SUICIDE.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 13.—(C.P.)—Mrs. Elsie Drohan, wife of ex-Constable of Toronto, committed suicide yesterday when she dropped 65 feet from the C.P.R. bridge at Leaside.

Mrs. Drohan is the mother of four children and was still alive when admitted to the hospital. The reason for the woman's suicide is not known although her husband is not working at present.

Hope of Finding Victims Living In Lyons Fading

Landslide Down Steep Incline in French City Undermines Foundations of Houses Which Fell in Rapid Succession —Residents Caught While They Slept.

TWENTY FIREMEN AND SEVEN POLICEMEN CAUGHT WHILE ENGAGED IN RESCUE WORK IN SECOND SLIDE

Scores Have Been Removed From Debris, Many of Them Injured—So Dangerous is Further Work That It May Be Days Before Last of Victims Are Found.

LYONS, France, Nov. 13.—(CP)—A catastrophe landslide, taking the lives of between sixty and one hundred persons has thrown the entire city of Lyons into mourning.

In the dead of last night practically the entire Fourviere hill surmounted by the noble basilica of St. Jean slid in the city proper bringing ten houses down in ruins.

This afternoon more than twelve hours after the first of three recurrent collapses, not a single body had been recoverd although eleven injured had been taken to a hospital. Twenty-seven persons, unhurt but badly shaken, also were being cared for at the same hospital.

20 Firemen Buried

Twenty firemen and seven policemen were buried themselves when they were caught in the entangled mass of masonry by the walls of one of the last buildings to fall. A new series of landslides and collapses sent many tons of earth, stone, and brick upon them.

As morning wore on hope of finding any of the victims alive grew fainter, but the rescuers, their number constantly augmented by new volunteers, continued their feverish efforts.

Police held a large crowd of anxious people at a safe distance. Mayor Edouard Herriot, former Premier of France, personally superintended the work of rescue despite his being ill with intestinal grippe, which has forced him to remain in bed the past few days.

One of the score removed from the debris and sent to hospitals was a woman of 70 who was expected to die. Another was a workingman who had lost his power of speech. Both were cared for by military physicians from the nearby barracks.

The landslide, apparently the result of heavy rains during the last two days, swept down the hillside at the base of the cathedral at one a.m. Three buildings collapsed in the twinkling of an eye and occupants of other adjoining buildings rushed to their doors only to be caught themselves when their own homes collapsed.

Ambulance Cut in Two

When the first rescue squad was buried beneath falling masonry, the ambulance which had come with them to the site of disaster was cut in two by a large falling block of stone.

A few persons were able to leap from the windows and doorways to safety, but most of the inhabitants of the houses were buried as they collapsed. There was an initial landslide at 1 a.m., another shortly after, a third at 3.00 a.m., and a fourth at 4.00 a.m. The authorities fear that there will be additional movements.

All buildings in the immediate vicinity of the stricken district have been evacuated, including the charity hospital nearby. Victims were taken to the cathedral for treatment. That building, one of the most noted church of Europe, standing on the top of a huge rock hill which dominates Lyons, is said to be in no danger.

NORTHERN FIRES NOW CONTROLLED FORESTER SAYS

Men Called Out to Fight Fires Were in Many Cases Disbanded.

KEEPING CLOSE WATCH.

Slight Rain Was General Over the Entire Northern District.

Fires in the northern sections of Peterborough and Hastings counties were completely under control this morning, and most of them had been extinguished.

Telephone reports to The Examiner from Apsley, Havelock and Tweed at noon to-day brought the same reassuring information, which was officially verified by H. W. Crosby of Tweed, District Forester.

"Most of the fires were under control Tuesday night" Mr. Crosby stated. "In nearly every instance the men we have called out to fight the fires were disbanded yesterday, but in a few places we are keeping some of them on duty to-day, just as a precaution and to keep watch against any further outbreaks."

Dotted Northern Township

At one time during the holiday week-end bush fires dotted the townships of Galway, Cavendish, Anstruther and Methuen and also Lake, in Hastings, across the border from Methuen. The most serious threat was in Methuen, but the danger there has also subsided, and only a few men have been left to protect the country from a possible recurrence of fire.

Apsley reported no rain last night, but Mr. Crosby stated that the district as a while had been dampened. The District Forester expressed the opinion that many of the fires must have been caused by deer hunters, but the settlers burning marshes may have contributed to the general outbreak. Marsh lands have been so dry that these fires may have got out of control.

"There have been no new fires reported to-day" said Mr. Crosby "The weather yesterday was more favorable for us, and the work of our men throughout the district has been very effective."

Two Of Party Killed In Belle River Crash

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 13. (CP)—Mrs. Belle Northrop, of East Windsor and Howard Corbett, 16, of Riverside, were almost instantly killed this morning when the auto which they were passengers went into a ditch on Highway 18 east of Belle River.

They were members of a party of six in a small roadster with a rumble seat, and were on the way home from Toronto where they had visited relatives. They had driven all night.

BODY FOUND IN BUSH IDENTIFIED.

KITCHENER, Ont., Nov. 13 (C.P.). —The body of a man was found in the bush near New Hamburg yesterday and was identified this afternoon as that of Andrew Becker, Wilmot Township farm laborer. Relatives established the identity of the man after viewing the remains.

The presence of two small bottles, one containing a small quantity of carbolic acid, has led police to favor a theory of suicide.

KING OF SPAIN FAVORS ELECTION

Voting For Parliamentary Officers to be Held First Time in 8 Years.

DATES SET IN MARCH.

MADRID, Nov. 13.—(A.P.)— King Alfonso, presiding at a special Cabinet meeting to-day approved the Ministry's previous decision to hold Parliamentary elections on March 1 for Deputies and March 15 for Senators.

The elections will open the way for Spain's return to Parliamentary Government. It will be the first time in eight years that such elections will be held.

The last Parliament was dissolved by a Royal decree in September, 1923; and a National Assembly, which was only a consultative body, was convoked in September, 1927. This National Assembly was dissolved in February, 1930, and plans were made to hold general elections.

SOVIET SEEKING ECONOMIC RUIN OF ALL EUROPE

Geneva Body Claims Britain Aiding Russian Power By Trade Realtions.

RELIGION TO BE ATTACKED.

Civilization Menaced if Soviet Gov't in Control For Another 10 Years.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 13—A special despatch from Geneva says:

"The Permanent Bureau of the Entente Internationale, which maintains headquarters at Geneva, Switzerland, and devotes its activities to exposing the Russian Soviet system and its work, has issued a statement dealing frankly with the present situation.

Britain, Germany Helping

"This statement declares that the British, German and Italian Governments are contributing to the maintenance in power of the Soviet Government by their trade relations, although the Soviet is working continually for the economic and social ruin of these countries.

"It declares that if the Soviet Government retains mastery for another decade, or even carries through partially its five-year plan in industry and agriculture, the present peril will be greatly increased, threatening the moral and economic values of civilization.

"The statement which is given in full herewith, also says the Central Committee of the Union of the Godless has decided to intensify the fight against religion outside Russia by means of literature, and propaganda.

Dumping Policy Deliberate

"The policy of dumping commodities on other countries at prices below cost of production is described as a well-devised plan to destroy one after the other, or concurrently the economy of so-called capitalist countries.

"Further, it is declared that one of the main causes of the existing economic situation in the world is the political condition of European and Asiatic countries due to Soviet Activities."

WOLVES DISTURB HUNTERS' SLEEP

Party of American Visitors Bag Two Moose Near Otter Lake in Galway.

HALIBURTON DEER FEW.

LINDSAY, Nov. 13. (Examiner Correspondence)—Some of the deer hunters who journeyed to the highlands of Haliburton in quest of game, are returning with the report of a great scarcity of deer.

One party of Americans from Berea, Ohio, reached town yesterday at noon from the north with four deer decorating their motor truck. They are on their way home, which they expect to reach on Thursday morning. They were delighted with their outing, but their sleep was disturbed at night by howling packs of wolves which penetrated close to their camp.

Mr. J. R. Falconer, Division Court Clerk of Gooderham, was in town yesterday and told of having seen four deer on the highway near Norland on Sunday morning.

A resident of Fenelon Falls also reported that a party of Americans hunting in the township of Galway, bagged two moose near Otter Lake. It is a good many years since moose were reported in that section.

POLICE BY-LAWS NEED SANCTION OF CITY COUNCIL

Board of Control Passes Pearce's Motion With Little Discussion.

DRAPER STICKS TO GUNS.

Toronto Commissioner Suggests Taxi Driver Get at Least $3 Daily Wage.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 13 (C.P.) — The first step in Controller Claude Pearce's campaign to put a Legislative curb upon the Board of Police Commissioners, met with success. His motion, asking for an amendment to the Municipal Act to make the sanction of the City Council necessary to the enforcement of any police by-law, was passed unanimously by the Board of Control without scarcely any discussion.

Controller Pearce's resolution is the outcome of the much-talked-of police bylaw which embodies regulations that taxi drivers must be finger-printed and that all taxis must install fare meters.

Chief Constable E. C. Draper, a supporter of the bylaw, who stated taxi drivers in London, England, were finger-printed by the authorities, insisted this was so, despite publication of a cabled despatch which stated the London Police Commission had flatly denied such a practise existed there.

While the press and the majority of the civic administration are in opposition to the new taxi bylaw, the Board of Control agreed on one matter with the Police Commission, and that was that taxi-drivers are entitled to a minimum wage clause. The Commission suggested $3 a day, but the Board decided to leave the amount to be fixed after legislation had been secured.

Man Is Taken On Force For Police Games Only

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 13.—(C.P.)—Chief Constable D. C. Draper, who was alleged to have "known all about it" and agreed to taking Alfred Bishop on the police force for his athletic ability, declined to comment when shown a despatch from Hamilton which stated officials of the Police Athletic Association were going to investigate charges that Bishop was taken on to the force merely to play in the police games.

Like the Chief, all other high officials of the department refused to say anything about the Bishop case. The latter claims he was asked to resign a position with the Toronto Transportation Commission and apply to the Police Department. He was accepted despite the fact he was under the required height.

After the police games were over, however, Bishop claims he was discharged.

PRAIRIE FARMERS DECIDE TO STAGE BOYCOTT SESSION

Will Ignore Tax Sales as Means of Resisting Evictions.

M.P. TAKES PART.

North-east Saskatchewan Men Claim They Have Had No Consideration From Gov't.

CANORA, Sask., Nov. 13 (C.P.).—Organized boycotting of tax, sheriff and foreclosure sales has been decided on by farmers of municipalities in this section of North-East Saskatchewan as a means of resisting evictions from land. Farmers of Buchan, Keys, Sliding Mills and Goodlake municipalities passed a resolution taking this stand at a meeting here.

The gathering was addressed by Anton Morkin, M.P.P., and Milton N. Campbell, M.P.

Protest Tax Sales.

In passing the resolution calling for resistance to foreclosures and evictions the meeting went on record as protesting against "tax sales imposed on us by the Saskatchewan Government through the Department of Municipal Affairs in time of the present capitalist economic crisis and demanding cancellation of arrears of taxes."

The resolution went on to say: "We know full well that our demand will not receive serious consideration by the representatives of big business, as evidenced by the last Government-creditor-farmer conference where, instead of giving us debt-ridden farmers' relief, we were given a sheriff, an agent of capital, with whom we refuse to co-operate. But we do rely on our ability to organize ourselves on a new basis to struggle for existence."

FAULT IS FOUND IN DIVORCE LAW

Legislation Lacking in Provision For Children, Mr. Justice Middleton Points Out.

ONLY MORAL DUTY.

TORONTO, Ont., November 13 (C.P.). — The fact that Ontario's new divorce legislation is completely lacking in provision for the children of divorced parents was again emphasized yesterday during the hearing of an appeal in First Divisional Court brought by Lucius Wright, Oshawa, against conviction and sentence for failing to support his eight-year-old daughter. Judgment was reserved.

Under the present state in Ontario, Mr. Justice Middleton remarked, there is no law which makes a father civily liable for the care of his children. He suggested to W. B. Common, representing the Attorney-General's Dapartment, that the provincial Legislature might well introduce such legislation.

Mr. Justice Hodgins pointed out that Parliament had failed to include in the Ontario Divorce Bill provision for the children of divorced parents.

Chief Justice Sir William Mulock agreed that there was now only a moral duty on the father for the responsibility of his children.

TWO FUGITIVES TAKEN AT ACTON

COUNTRYSIDE COMBED.

GUELPH, Ont., Nov. 13 (C.P.) — Twenty-four hours' search by Ontario Reformatory guards resulted in the capture last night of Clifford Marshall of Guelph and Walter White of Gananoque, who had escaped from custody.

Three others who made a break for liberty at the same time were captured shortly afterwards. Marshall and White face a pentientiary term at the conclusion of their sentence here.

On a report that the pair had been seen near Acton, a number of guards were sent there and, working with Provincial Police, they succeeded in rounding up the missing men after a long search over a wide area.

Palestine Question Will Be Brought Up

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 13. (CP)—Premier Ramsay MacDonald has assured the House of Commons that Parliament would have a full opportunity to discuss the white paper on Palestine before any ordinances were framed on its basis.

In response to questions, he reiterated Governmental assertions that the recent white paper, regarding the British attitude towards Jews and Arabs in Palestine, had been misinterpreted and said the Government intends to carry out its obligations under the mandate to both sections of the Palestine population.

Endurance Planes End in Disaster

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 (C.P.)—An attempt to shatter the world's endurance record ended in double misfortune early to-day when the "American Legion" burned in a forced landing and its refuelling ship, "Miss Queens" fell into Jamaica Bay.

Captain John S. Donaldson, promoter and pilot of the endurance ship, was uninjured, but his co-pilot, Edward Weimer, former war flier, suffered a broken ankle and lacerations.

Charles Soule, pilot of the refuelling plane, and George Adams, his assistant on the hose, were drenched but were pulled out of the water uninjured.

Saskatchewan Likely To Abolish French

REGINA, Nov. 13 (C.P.).—Legislation to abolish French as an official language in Saskatchewan will be introduced at the next session of the Legislature if it is found there is more than one official language in the Province, said Premier J. T. M. Anderson yesterday.

"The Attorney-General," continued Premier Anderson, "is looking into the subject, and if it is found there are two official languages we are prepared to introduce legislation to remedy the matter."

11 MILES CANALS.

Canada Will Have Developed 1,600,000 Horse Power Without Expense to Her.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Major George Washington Stephen, of Montreal, former Chairman of the Harbor Commission there, addressed the Canadian Club of London at the noon luncheon in Hotel London.

"If the United States undertakes to construct at their own expense, power and navigation facilities in the International Rapids section and deepens the Great Lakes," he said, "and Canada undertakes to construct the 11 miles of necessary canals from Montreal to Beauharnois, deepens the ship channel in Lake St. Louis and Lake St. Francis, the St. Lawrence waterway can be opened for navigation from the ocean to Lake Superior for a capital cost to Canada of something like $100,000,000, according to the estimates now available. And Canada will have had developed without expense to her, 1,600,000 horsepower of electricity which can be used to increase her industrial wealth and prosperity.

"This would leave 3,500,000 horsepower all in Canada, still to be developed as and when it might be required.

"On this basis I regard the development of the St. Lawrence deep waterway as a sound proposal."

ARCHIE COCHRANE STARTS OWN FIRM

Prominent Associate of Late W. F. Kerr, K.C., Opens Office in Cobourg.

COBOURG, Nov. 13.—Recently Attorney Archie Cochrane opened his own law offices in premises now being fitted up for him east of the post office and opposite the registry office. A host of friends in this district predict a highly successful career for Mr. Cochrane, who for years was a partner of the late W. F. Kerr, K.C., crown attorney of Northumberland and Durham, with whom he was associated in Mr. Kerr's wide private practice. Since Mr. Kerr's death on June 11, Mr. Cochrane has carried on the business of the firm, and has been of great assistance to the crown through his intimate knowledge of his greatly lamented partner's affairs and methods.

Mr. Cochrane was born at Kingston and studied law under Porter & Carnew, of Belleville, whose outstanding position at the Ontario bar is a matter of general knowledge.

He graduated from Osgoode Hall in 1912 and began practice in Toronto. He enlisted in 1915 with the Canadian Field Artillery and served in France both with that Corps and the Royal Canadian Engineers. Wounded tiwce, he returned to Canada in 1919 following the Armistice.

He began his post-war practice with the firm of Collins & Cochrane, of Belleville and Tweed, and joined the late William F. Kerr, K.C., in 1922.

ENGLISH FACTORIES COMING TO CANADA

Two English Firms Plan to Build Factories in Canada.

MONTREAL, Nov. 13—F. Downes of the Bradford, England, firm of Downes Coulter Company, worsted manufacturers, has just sailed for England, after having made an extensive investigation in this country regarding a suitable location at which his firm contemplate the establishment of a Canadian factory, while nothing definite in this connection was decided it is understood that the most probable site will be at Shawinigan Falls, P.Q., where abundant power is available.

The project calls for an initial outlay of approximately $500,000, and the plant would employ upwards of 1,000 hands, Mr. Downes' findings will be laid before the directors and it is understood a decision will be made at an early date.

The Driver Hartley Company, Aireworth Road, Keighley, England, have under consideration the establishing of a Canadian plant and inquiries to this end have been conducted by a representative of the firm during the last few weeks. Nothing is known at present as to the location in Canada most favored although indications are, that a site in the Province of Quebec will have first consideration.

A decision on this project is expected to be reached within a few weeks.

WEDDING BELLS

MALONEY—COUGHLIN

St. Paul's church, Lakefield, was the scene of a quiet, pretty wedding on October 28, when Helen Mary, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Coughlin, was united in marriage to Roger, eldest son of Mrs and the late Daniel Maloney.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of green georgette and lace with black hat and shoes, white hose and gloves and carried a bouquet of white carnations.

The bridesmaid, Miss Annie Coughlin, wore a gown of maize georgette and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was attended by Mr. William McCarthy of Douro.

Mr. and Mrs Maloney will reside in Peterborough.

BLAKELEY—BANNON.

At the parsonage of the United church at Havelock, on November 6th, at one o'clock, the Rev. W. R. Archer, B.A., performed the ceremony which united in the holy bonds of matrimony Ruby Mae Bannon of Peterborough and George Harold Blakeley of Peterborough, formerly of Cottesloe.

The bride wore a pretty gown of royal blue georgette with eggshell trimming, ankle length, made on princess lines. She wore black satin pumps with rhinestone trimming, and eggshell silk hose.

N. Sexsmith of Havelock acted as best man.

After the ceremony, a dainty wedding repast was served at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. M Sexsmith of Alexander street, Havelock.

Later, Mr. Blakeley and his bride left by motor for a short honeymoon trip, the bride travelling in a dress of navy blue flat crepe with hat to match and black coat and accessories.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a cheque, to the bridesmaid a white gold vanity case and to the best man a pair of white gold cuff links.

Mr. and Mrs. Blakeley will reside at 856 Water street, Peterborough.

MOORE—GRAHAM.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 13.—(Examiner Correspondence.) — The marriage took place quietly on Monday at 2 o'clock at the manse of Knox United Church of Marjorie Graham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Graham, Smith, to William Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Moore, Lakefield. Rev. T. M. Wesley performed the ceremony. The bride wore pale pink georgette and looked very pretty. She was attended by her sister Viola, who wore a dainty frock of midnight blue crepe. Mr. and Mrs. Moore will reside in Lakefield.

Assassination Plot Denied By Cosgrave

DUBLIN, Nov. 13 (C.P.)—The city was excited last night by an unconfirmed report that President William T. Cosgrave had been fired upon on Monday night while motoring to his home. The rumor became so general that Cosgrave himself saw fit to make a denial.

However, the day shift of military guards, who constantly protect Cosgrave's home, was fired upon on Monday when returning to barracks, after completing its tour of duty. No one was hit. Attempts by police to trace the person who did the shooting have been unsuccessful.

In one month recently Spain exported 21,208,000 pounds of olive oil which is more than double the amount for the corresponding month of last year.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

TORONTO PRODUCE.

TORONTO, November 13. — Butter prices were unchanged yesterday on the local market, but trading was at a standstill and few sales were reported. Brokers were offering Ontario No. 1 at 30c to 30½c, and No. 2 at 29c to 29½c, but buyers were maintaining their cautious attitude and were taking only a few boxes as needed for immediate requirements. The large amounts in storage and the uncertainty of the importing situation have created a dullness that will probably continue for some time. Any finest New Zealand that was sold brought 31c, though some buyers were offering slightly less, but not getting very much at their prices.

Cream.

Creamerymen were holding to the steady quotation of 33c for special, 32c for No. 1, and 29c for No. 2 f.o.b., country points. With the butter market at the present low ebb, these prices are exceptionally good.

Cheese.

Cheese was weaker ½c per pound, from the new low of Tuesday, and new large, Government graded, colored, was offered at 14¾c to 15c; twins at 15c to 15½c, and triplets at 15¼c to 15½c. The cheese now offered is mostly of the fodder variety and good September stock would command higher prices.

Eggs.

Storage eggs were moving a little more freely yesterday, from brokers to wholesalers, at 34½c to 35c for extras and 32½c to 33c for firsts. Wholesalers were asking 38c for extras and 36c for firsts, candled out of storage. New laid eggs were no more plentiful than previously and most of the trading between wholesalers and retailers concerned short held supplies, with prices at 52c for extras in cartons, 50c for extras loose, 44c for firsts loose, and 35c for seconds loose.

New Laid Receipts.

New laid eggs were hard to figure on, as none of the dealers had any to offer, but a fair range of prices for any size lots would be as follows: 50c to 55c for extras, 46c to 48c for firsts, 28c to 30c for seconds, and 35c to 37c for pullet extras, from country shippers, ungraded, delivered, cases returned. Quotations to retailers for new laid receipts were: 58c to 60c for extras in cartons, 56c to 58c for extras loose, 50c to 53c for firsts loose, 37c to 38c for seconds loose, and 45c for pullet extras loose. Retailers claimed they had little difficulty in getting 65c and 70c for strictly fresh eggs.

BUFFALO LIVE STOCK.

BUFFALO, N.Y., November 13 (C.P.). — Hogs 2,000, holdovers 200; slow, 25-35c lower; some light lights off more; bulk desirable 160-230 lbs. 9.40 to 9.50; 150 lbs., down, 9.25 to 9.50; packing sows, 7.75 to 8.50.

Cattle, 425; general trade rather slow, weak to 25c lower; medium weers, $9.00 to $9.50; fleshy grassers, $7.50 to $8.00; beef cows, $5.25 to $5.75; cutter grades, $2.50 to $4.00.

Calves, 200; vealers active, fully steady, $13.00 down.

Sheep, 1,500; holdovers 900; fat lamb trade at standstill; scattering bids sharply lower; other grades 25c to 50c lower; medium and mixed offerings, $7.00 to $7.50, throw-outs, $6.00

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Nov. 13.—Prices were mainly steady on the produce and dairy markets here yesterday. The butter market was slightly weaker with storage quoted at 29½c and fresh at 29½c a pound. Owing to the fine autumn weather the quality of both butter and cheese is superior than usual at this time of the year. To retailers, butter solds were 32c and prints 33c a pound, while receipts totalled 113 boxes.

On the cheese market, Ontario was quoted at 13¾ cents and Quebec at 13⅝ cents a pound. Receipts were 3,312 boxes.

Prices on the egg market were steady. Less than carlot prices for new laid eggs were 58 cents; fresh firsts, 44c to 45c; and seconds, 32c a dozen. Receipts were 1,753 cases.

New Brunswick Green Mountains were 85 cents an 80-pound bag on the potato market and Prince Edward Island potatoes per 90-pound bags were 85 cents for Cobblers and 90 cents for Mountains.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, November 13. — Final quotations on wheat yesterday were ⅝c higher to unchanged following an unimpressive trading session. Trading was light, and export demand negligible throughout the trading period.

No. 1 Northern brought a little life to an otherwise dull session by trading at a premium of ⅛c over the option for the first time in two years. Prices on the other cash grades of wheat and coarse grains were unchanged from the previous close

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—Brisk upturns in price took place in all the grain pits yesterday after all cereals had undergone a setback to fresh bottom records. Simultaneous with the late rise of grain values was much talk that the record of past cycles of low prices for commodities indicated that recoveries were now to be looked for. Significance also was attached to reports that Farm Board allies would require actual deliveries of about 10,000,000 bushels on December wheat contracts and that the world's available surplus of wheat was 32,000,000 bushels less than recently had been estimated.

Corn and Oats Are Irregular

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous ⅞c to 2¾ a bushel higher than Monday's finish. Corn closed at ¼c net decline to ⅝c advance, oats ⅞c off to ⅛c up, and provisions unchanged to 32c down.

CAMPBELLFORD

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH

CAMPPBELLFORD, Nov. 13.—Rev. W. H. Fuller of Markham, Ont., occupied the pulpit of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Campbellford, on Sunday. At the morning servce, the sermon was preached from Psalm 34, 3 "O magnify the Lord with me and let us exalt His name together." The speaker emphasized the first part: "O magnify the Lord." To magnify means to make great but we cannot make God greater than He is. He is all in all. Our thought of Him should grow as we are little without Him. Mr. Fuller divided his remarks into three parts namely, the place of God in our life, the place of Jesus Christ and the place of the Holy Spirit. We must never forget the existence of God. It is our duty to praise Him who is the same yesterday, to-day and forever. All that we are, all that we have and all that we hope for are from His hand. Our knowledge of Christ helps us to magnify God.

"Be ye therefore perfect, even as your father which is in heaven is perfect" Matt. 5.48 formed the basis for the evening discourse. Perfection and not happiness should be our goal in life. Happiness is not in itself fitted or suited for a goal in life. People can be made happy by different things but it is not lasting—it is here to-day and gone to-morrow. We cannot escape the loss of happiness or the having of it. Who searches or builds on happiness builds on the sand and the storms of life sweep it away. The young people say they want the most out of life they can get. One of the tragedies of a big city is to see the crowds of people—mostly young people—walking the streets in search of pleasure.

Christ gives us a better ideal when he says "Be ye therefore perfect . . ." The statue of Christ should be our goal. Build characters of which He is an example. Thus if Christ is our goal it matters not whether we are happy. Christ is the highest ideal, let hapinpess come if it may. Some people suffer on beds of pain for years yet we call them "The Saints of God" for they have learned patience in the school of suffering. The youth of to-day should remember that it is development of character that is all important. Christ did not see how He could escape the painful experience of life but followed the will of God for Him. Is it possible for us to attain perfection in this life? This life gives us no promise, even saints confess their faults and failings; Christ says "Be ye therefore perfect . . . ." which, in itself, is a duty, a command and a goal of life. We must attain it; our ideal here shall in eternity be a reality.

St. Andrew's choir under the able direction of William A. Newcourt, L.C.C.M., A.L.C.M., rendered appropriate Thanksgiving music. Two anthems were sung at each service with solo parts taken by Mr. Wm. Collison, tenor, Mrs. F. De Carrol and Miss Helen McDonald sopranos. The anthems were "Recessional" (Koven), "Ye Shall Dwell in the Land" (Stainer), "The Day is Past and Over" (Marks) and "I Waited for the Lord" (Mendelssohn).

STARTING FOREST FIRES.

According to fire rangers, the carelessness of hunting parties is responsible for the serious outbreak of forest fires that is doing so much damage and causing so much trouble in the northern part of Peterborough County and in other districts.

With the woods unusually dry because of the fact that there has been little rain and practically no snow, the conditions are just right for a rapid spread of the flames; under the circumstances it is reasonable to think that hunters with any experience would exercise every care to see that no act on their part gave the fire fiend a chance to get under way.

Apparently, however, many of them have failed to take ordinary precautions; the officials claim that the practice followed by these careless nimrods of lighting fires on the runways has resulted in the starting of a number of decidedly dangerous bush fires, one of which has already destroyed eight hundred acres of valuable timber.

There would be a tremendous demonstration of disapproval were the Government to announce, as was done in several sections of the United States this autumn, that Ontario woods were to be closed to hunting parties as a precaution against forest fires—but the present conduct of some of the hunters in this district is leading to the adoption of just such a policy.

Our forest resources are much too valuable to be jeopardized to provide sport for a few hundred hunters, some at least of whom have shown themselves indifferent to everything save their own comfort and convenience.

GIVE THEM A CHANCE.

The Examiner is in thorough accord with the correspondent to "The Voice of the People" volumn who complains of the plight of elderly single men in periods of industrial depression.

As he points out, such men are the last to be taken on, the first to be laid off, and again the last to be considered in any relief scheme.

In many cases single men are without relatives, have no home except a boarding-house, and when work is not available and their slender savings are exhausted, their condition is serious.

The Examiner, while recognizing that married men with families must, in all fairness, be first taken care of, is firmly of the opinion that the unemployment relief scheme should make some allowance for single men who are in financial straits and who should at least be given an opportunity to earn enough to pay their board and keep them clothed and warm.

If provision could be made to give these men several days' work each week until conditions improve the opportunity would be a God-send to many individuals who will soon be forced to seek a bed at the police station and beg for their meals unless their plight is recognized.

And, as the correspondent points, elderly unmarried men deserve especial consideration, for even where jobs are available the unemployed who have left their youth behind are given scant consideration when applying for work.

BUY THEM NOW.

The new slogan is, "Do your Christmas shopping now," thus linking the gift-buying season with the "Buy Now" campaign that has been waged for some time.

Those who are in a position to do their Christmas shopping at once will not only assure themselves of better choice and better service, but they will give business in general a needed fillip and thus stimulate industry and create more opportunities for employment.

"The difference between prosperity and hard times in this country is $1 per week per capita," says Philip Gadsen, president of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce, and his statement is equally applicable to Canada.

It is always good business to shop early where Christmas presents are concerned; but this year when every purchase is a stepping stone toward the return of prosperity, every Canadian who is able to do so should feel it a duty to speed up his purchase of Christmas gifts.

This is an industrial community, and the people of Peterborough should have no difficulty in visualizing what is involved in increased buying at this time.

They should realize that a larger volume of purchases will benefit first the retailer, then the manufacturer and then the workers, and that the latter regaining employment will by their own buying accelerate the movement.

CONGRATULATIONS, P.C.I.

Congratulations are in order to the gallant football squad of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, who have once more captured the championship of the Central Ontario Interscholastic Association and the cup donated by Dr. Frank C. Neal as emblematic of rugby supremacy among the secondary schools of this section of the Province.

As always, the Collegiate boys have played fast, clean and clever football to win the title this year, and they have earned the thanks of local sport-lovers for a number of thrilling exhibitions of Canadian football that have provided entertainment these autumn Saturdays.

There is nothing new, of course, in Peterborough Collegiate's winning of the Neal trophy, for no other school has succeeded in capturing that fine cup since it was first presented—but this year's team, suffering the loss of several of last year's stars and beginning the season with a loss, deserves especial credit for a consistently successful march toward the Central Interscholastic championship, a march that saw a string of seven consecutive victories and that culminated in two clean-cut wins over the more-than-usually powerful eastern group winner.

The Peterborough students went into the second game of the play-off series at Belleville yesterday with out a slender lead, but their proverbial steadiness under fire carried them through to a splendid triumph.

They will now go on into the Ontario series carrying the best wishes of their host of supporters in Peterborough.

HE'S HANDICAPPED.

We were interested in reading an editorial in the Mail and Empire about the chances for a mild winter, the speculation being based on what the birds and animals of the bush were doing. Dealing with the birds, the Toronto paper says: "If the migrating birds delay their departure for the south, is it not because they are somehow assured of fair weather ahead?"

That theory does not hold good. Most of the migrating birds have already departed, and chances are that those who do not know enough to leave are the stupid ones. There are stupid birds, because stupidity is not the monopoly of the human race. A robin seen around here after the snow has come has probably a poor sense of direction, and there are cases where some of them actually fly north instead of going south. These are the stupid robins, we suppose, that grow thin waiting for an earthworm to come up through a pavement.

The Mail and Empire also says: "This year there is said to be no haste on the part of birds and animals to change their summer habits or habitats." And there comes that qualifying phrase, "There is said to be." That's the trouble with an editor, cooped up in a building in Toronto, trying to interpret the great outdoor things. He looks down on the roofs of street cars, automobiles, and he sees pedestrians hopping about so they may scamper home in the evening in as good shape as they were when they partook of their victuals in the morning.

It is really not a good place from which to judge the habits of birds and animals. And it is a fact that animals, when they do get into cities do the most outlandish things. Remember the time Mrs. Murphy kept a cow in Chicago. It went and kicked over a lantern and well nigh burned the whole place down. That shows conclusively that even domestic animals do not act well in large cities, and that makes it so hard for a large city editor to do his best work when writing of birds and animals. He is not an intimate knowledge; the place of his existence forces him to rely on what he hears that other people have said. The birds he sees are so apt to be in cages, and probably when he walks along Yonge street he may sees a big bear in front of a fur store (at least it used to be there), but it is stuffed and has an unnatural appearance.

* * * *

Animals removed from the large cities behave more naturally. We read just this morning about a dog near Port Arthur. It lived out on a farm, and noticed that the barn was on fire. It did not go back to sleep, nor did it hide under the couch. It barked out loud and kept on barking until the family came down and got the live stock out. We wouldn't doubt in the least that had that dog a chance to be out when the fire started it would have had a couple of pails of water ready to douse on the blaze.

The sad part is that an editor in a large city never has a chance to see such a dog in action. The dogs he sees are on the end of a piece of clothes line being taken for a walk, and he has small chance to judge of the ingenuity such an animal can display in a crisis.

Even the common cat behaves differently in a large city. We often see pictures of them in Toronto papers, showing where they have been attending cat shows. People are holding them up and cuddling them. Such cats are well fed; they do not need to get out and battle for existence, and an editor viewing them is apt to get a wrong impression of how intelligent a cat in a smaller place can be.

May we illustrate: This morning a large black cat invaded the ice box at the ancestral home. It carried away a nice fish that had been brought in from Bayfield yesterday. Anger at seeing that fish disappear was tempered with admiration for the knowledge that cat displayed in knowing that the fish was in a certain place at a certain time. That cat generally makes a habit of looking over the garbage cans, and the fact that it turned from those lowly flesh-pots to a diet of fresh fish proves conclusively the superior intelligence of the cat that lives and prowls in the smaller cities.

Editors in big places like Toronto can write on traffic problems, national issues and constitutional questions. They really seem to excel in these because they are matters with which they are in daily touch. But when they seek to reach out into the great open spaces they are badly handicapped. That man on the Mail and Empire, for instance, has read about birds and animals not preparing for winter, and the chances are that he has put off lifting out the fly windows and stuffing rags in the opening around the porch door. We bet, too, that he hasn't taken a shovel and banked up around the outside of the kitchen yet. It's too bad, but a man on a big city paper hasn't got half a chance to know very much about robins, sparrows, hen hawks, crows, cats, dogs, cows, horses and all such things.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

As a matter of fact, points out the Border Cities Star, few prominent citizens are actually misquoted in print. All the newspapers do is to correct their grammar.

The Sverdrup group of islands in the Arctic Ocean have been ceded by Norway to Canada, but this country will not appoint an ambassador for that territory for the present.

Montreal thieves stole $40 from poppy day vendors, an extra mean variety of crime that should earn a drastic penalty for the guilty parties if they are located.

Mayor McLarty of Sault Ste. Marie would seem to be exactly the type of go-getter the Soo needs as a chief magistrate. He started out on a hunting trip, shot a deer soon after he left, and was back home with his trophy within an hour.

The Soviet charge of a French-British plot against Russia sounds as if some Soviet leader has been reading too many Oppenheim stories.

And now comes the time when worried parents find it difficult to explain how the voice of Santa Claus sounds different every time it is heard over another radio station.

THE SILVER HAWK

By

WILLIAM BYRON MOWERY

A TABLE SET FOR TWO.

As days passed and those two planes never molested him in the slightest, Dorn became more and more uneasy. Since he was the rock in the path of his enemies' finding Aurore, he believed they were gathering thunderbolts against him and that he would know it when they made any decisive move. But the quiet was strange and ominous; he preferred a fight to this gnawing uncertainty of what day or hour the storm would break.

Old Luke was a dismal prophet those days, and hard to get along with. It was his opinion that Dorn and he should go down there some night to Baux Mortes with hiyu dynamite and blow their enemies into the Dead Waters. He would grunt and snarl in his unintelligible Beaver, and finally break out: "I used believe you wise man; you think much, say little. But now I believe you hyas fool like all other white men. Way you fight, much chance is you lose young squaw-siche. Some day big chief find her, carry her away. Why not take he' in roaring air-devil and fly siah-siah south into the Bostonland?" (The States.) "She make you good squaw. She young and strong and mountain-born like you. She be mother of strong boy, of girl like herself."

Dorn could not explain to Luke that in the white man's code there were inhibitions against killing an enemy save as a last resort, and against taking a girl for the mere primitive reason of wanting her.

Then one afternoon when he returned home, old Luke again was waiting for him with news—more ominous than the news of the battle plane. Luke reported that Joe Yoroslaf and two other of the 'breeds were no longer at the Dead Waters camp or anywhere about Titan Pass.

Startled, Dorn thought: "They've pitched off somewhere, on some purpose. Soft-Shoe has side-stepped me; he's got some new scheme in progress against Aurore." He went into action. "Luke, we must find out where Yoroslaf is, what he's doing. We use on enemies same medicine they used on us: catch one of them and make him talk! You go up on mountain, spot look-out 'breed, keep eye on him. Bimeby come owl dusk I come up along you. We hog-tie 'breed; make believe we going to burn him alive!"

Old Luke went. But at sundown, when Dorn had finished some minor repairs on the Silver Hawk and was just ready to start for the mountain slope, Luke came skirling back across from the mainland.

"What happened?" Dorn asked him sharply. "Why you come back?"

Reaching into a hidden fold of his medicine robe, Luke brought out a leather bottle and handed it to Dorn. It was nearly empty. Dorn smellef of it. Rotgut houtchini—a particularly vile drink of characteristic odour. The Jumping-Salmong Thlinkets and Bella Coolas over on the coast made it from sour molasses and frozen potatoes, and distilled it through coils of the snaky algæ washed ashore; and then, as though it were not atrocious enough already, they tinctured it heavily with plug tobacco. Compared with it, the ordinary pink-eye and forty-rod and day-and-a-half of the "permit" smugglers were mellow, bottled sunshine.

Luke had taken things into his own hands; he explained: "I go up on mountain, begin dig around; make look like I hunt roots. Bimeby 'breed see me. He point gun, walk up, say, 'What the damn' hell you do here, oleman son-of-she-dog?' I say hunt medicine roots; say old squaw sick, bones go creak-creak, belly hurt, can't eat. Bimeby he see neck of bottle. He say, 'Two damns and a hell, friend, what that?' I make look like try hide bottle. He grab, take away, tilt up. Bottle go glook-glook-glook-. Bimeby conversation-water loosen his tongue. Bimeby I begin ask questions. Bimeby he talk like whiskey-jack."

Then Luke reported how Yoroslaf and Charlo and Narcisse had been set off barely forty miles south of Aurore's lake. Two days ago, that was. "Much chance is," old Luke concluded, remembering the difficult mountain trail, "that they not reached lake yet. But tomorrow . . ."

Dorn shuddered at the thought of that Fort Liard murderer coming upon Aurore on her island. For all the fight he had put up, here Aurore's enemies had closed in upon her till they were only a few miles away. He thought again of a hunting eagle circling in ever-narrowing spirals; of its inevitable swoop and strike.

Planning a counter-stroke, he gazed thoughtfully at old Luke. With knife or gelt-axe Luke could kill any 'breed at Titan Pass in open battle. In ambush, with rifle and automative he was a match for any three or four of the lot. He was old and wrinkled and leathery as if he had been hanged for a month; but he had lived cleanly. In the bush he was a flitting shadow, a pair of glittering eyes, a steady hand and trigger-finger, a shrewd old brain of deadly cunning.

Dorn said tersely: "Luke, you remember mountain meadow up above that lake, where foolish-bears come to pasture. You remember trail lead across that mesa? 'Breeds have to follow trail, cross mesa. No other south pass to lake. I wawa correct, huh?" And when old Luke nodded: "Now s'pose I take you in roaring air-devil up to her lake. S'pose you climb up to mesa, build ambush, guard trail. S'pose Yoroslaf and two 'breeds come hyaaking along. What happen, huh?"

Old Luke made three clicking sounds with his bony jaws, and his eyes glinted as though he was sighting down a rifle barrel.

"Good!" Dorn said grimly. "Then go make up pack. We get into the air quick!"

Paddling out to the Silver Hawk, he changed the oil in it, pumped the tanks full of gas, ran back to his tent, climbed into flying togs, and gave old Luke a greatcoat.

Out at the plane the Indian stoically clambered into the rear seat and submitted to pack-chute harness without grunt or quiver; but Dorn knew that Luke would rather "fight a grizzly with a pine bough" than go aloft in that roaring air-devil.

Taking off, Dorn circled for altitude till he was looking down on the snowy poll of old Titan Major; then straightening out, he lined away north, full-throttle, to beat Yoroslaf to the Lake of the Dawn.

One hundred miles from his goal he swung west in a great semi-circle to avoid passing over the 'breeds and giving them a dead-certain direction clue. Dorn remembered that first night when he had taken Aurore north and how difficult it had been to find her lake then, but it was not difficult now; her refuge had become his orientation point, and he could have flown to it without compass, by starlight.

Coming in out of the northwest, he looked out and down and far ahead and saw the moon-glistening waters of Aurores lake and the silver of the huge octopus glacier. From his lofty height of twelve thousand feet, he cut off the engine, for the night was very still in the mountains and the 'breeds could hear that powerful roar ten miles; and coasting over the peaks of the horse-shoe range and on down at a long, fifteen-mile diagonal, Dorn skimmed silently over Aurore's island and lit in the far southwest corner of the lake, where the old Carrier trail led up to Goat Mesa.

In the canvas canoe he took Luke ashore with pack and rifle; and then taxied back across the lake.

As he started up the path, a light suddenly flickered in the cabin and then burned steadily, and Dorn saw Aurore's figure shadowed against a window. She had heard his plane.

When he knocked at the door, Aurore flung it open and stood in front of him, clad in nightgown, a blanket wrapped about her and her billowy hair streaming from her shoulders.

She cried, at sight of him, "Jim, what's happened—you coming at night—so suddenly?"

Dorn stepped upon the threshold and took Aurore's hand, and denied the impulsive longing to take her into his arms. He was shocked, he was dismayed, by the realization that all his prearranged programme to hold himself aloof was impossible, was absurd, now when Aurore's hand was warm in his again.

Aurore was frightened and quivering and her fright recalled him. He had foreseen just this question of hers; he had reasoned that if he denied any trouble whatsoever she would know he was lying in order to shield her from some harrowing truth. He answered her: "No calamity's happened, Aurore. I've merely found out something you ought to know about, and I've got a few suggestions to make; you'll understand then why I didn't want to come during the day. But 'Its nothing at all to . . . why, you're trembling, Aurore!"

His casual voice completely deceived Aurore. No longer frightened now, it suddenly occurred to her how she was dressed. She flushed and said, "If you'll excuse me, Jim . . . a few minutes," and ran into her room.

Dorn closed the door against the chill night breeze, and his glance then went around the cabin. He marvelled: "Aurore can work wonders with four log walls, a roof, and a fireplace!" For all its bareness, the room had the cozy air of a woman's touch; he compared it with his own bleak, austere tent. The cabin was scented with odours of several wildflowers. Aurore had made birchrind vases lined with moss and fringed with maidenhair fern, and had filled them with blossoms—with avalanche lilies and dwarf roses, with gorgeous clusters of purple heather and snow anemones which she could have gathered only across on the mainland high above tree line.

Tired and hungry, and with a day's cartographing ahead of him, Dorn stirred the embers in the stove and stuck in fresh wood to cook breakfast and put on a pan of water for coffee. Busy with this while Aurore was dressing, he thought out just what to tell her. With those 'breeds stopped, her danger lay in one of the enemy airplanes discovering her. The cabin was snugly hidden. He himself that first morning had searched the island with powerful glasses and had failed to spot it. But chimney-smoke or her white canoe on the lake or Aurore herself upon the jutting boulder would be easily seen from the air. He had to guard against her exposing herself, and yet he must keep her from suspecting the truth.

With bacon and trout frying and the coffee simmering, he turned to the table to set it. It was then he noticed that the table was already prepared. That was innocent enough, quite like a practical little soul; but what caught and held Dorn's eyes, what struck him hard—her table was set for two.

Dorn's breath was like a gasp. He could not be mistaken; there were the two tin plates, two cups, two knives and forkes, and even two chairs drawn up in readiness. A thought stabbed him: "She was expecting someone. She didn't know I was to come this morning. Someone is coming here to her." He remembered those words he had spoken to Aurore that first morning when he brought her to this wilderness lake: "You came here to meet somebody; he evidently hasn't arrived yet"; and as he stood there staring down at the table set for two, it seemed to Dorn that that old jealous suspicion was proved now; and something cold and hard and dagger-sharp pierced him and turned in the wound.

Aurore came out of the room, fixing the big bow tie at her throat and pinning a vivid scarlet orchid on her breast. He did not look around at her or speak. She saw him standing there stock-still and silent, and she came up, puzzled and alarmed, and faced him. She cried:

"Jim! There is something the matter!"

Dorn said, "Yes." He pointed at the table and his words came jerkily. "That extra place is set for somebody. Who?"

Aurore glanced once where he pointed, and then back to him, bewildered for a moment. She gasped, "Oo-oh," as though she had been struck. Dorn saw the anger that swept through her—a sudden, flaming anger that scorched him, and passed in an instant; and then Aurore turned away from him and burst into tears.

It came to Dorn that he might have made some terrible mistake, and that he had wounded Aurore cruelly. Hesitantly he went up to her, but he could not touch her; and he could only grope for an explanation of her anger and tears, until Aurore sobbed out the explanation, defending herself by throwing away all pride.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

A Thought

BALM IN SORROW.

When the pulse is almost paralyzed by anxiety half an hour's repose will cheer the circulation, restore tranquility to the perturbed spirit, and dissipate those heavy clouds of ennui which sometimes threaten to eclipse the brightest minds and the best hearted. Child of woe, lay thy head on thy pillow, and bless me for directing thee to the true source of Lethe and most sovereign nepenthe for the sorrows of human life. —Dr. Kitchener.

What To-day Means To You

"SCORPIO"

If November 13th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from noon to 3 p.m. and the danger periods are from 10 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.

The astrological signs denote that not much of a practical nature can be accomplished on this date, as the conditions are adverse. There are also indicated health worries, and troubles about trivialities, all contributing to an unsettled mind, but which, after all is said and done, will not amount to a row of pins.

Children born on this November 13th will have very positive ideas and opinions, although somewhat diffident in expressing them. They will be fond of sports, attentive to their studies, kind and affectionate, and, as a rule, good natured. They, when older, will love with constancy and strength.

Your nature is a mercurial one. You are restless, unsettled and shifting. Traveling will always make a strong appeal to you, as it is difficult for you to stay for very long in any one place. You soon get tired of the same surroundings, of the same people, and of the same work. "A rolling stone" aptly describes you. Whether you gather moss or not will depend on your ability to seize the many opportunities that Destiny holds in store for you.

Yours is a character of strong passions, and you need to keep this side of your disposition under control, as otherwise it may be provocative of great trouble for you and others. You are led by your feelings and emotions rather than by reason. This frame of mind frequently leads you to forget the consequences of a given course of action. If a woman, you, more than others of your sex, are always making changes in your home, and if possible, changing the home itself. You need excitement to feed your spirits, and if it be not forthcoming in the ordinary march of events, you create it—often to the discomfort of those around you. If a man, a nomadic existence would make a strong appeal to you. You abhor conventional ways, and you are always seeking adventure. An early marriage would "bottle up" these feelings, but later on there would be the inevitable explosion, with its attendant misery. Of all work, sedentary labor is the least suited to one of your temperament.

ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL REPLIES

The Daily Examiner, City.

Dear Sir,—Since in Tuesday's edition of your paper I have been misrepresented both by misstatements and omissions, and since my loyalty to the best Empire that ever existed has been attacked by one I never was acquainted with and whose name I did not know until I saw it in your valuable paper, I deem it a duty to myself and family to make a brief reply.

In the first place I never said nor thought that "Poppy Day" was England's disgrace, nor did I say that I would not wear one of those if he paid me, nor yet that England got the poppy from China. My words have been twisted and added to until they would not be recognized.

I have been practically called a German or said to have a German name. I might not be any the worse if I were of German extraction, but my forefathers on my father's side came from Holland and on my mother's side from England and Ireland, and settled in New England before the American Revolution, during which they all fought for England, and losing their homes for their loyalty, came to Canada and settled along the Bay of Quinte.

In the Fenion Raid, my father and uncle volunteered to protect Canada and in the late war, 1914-18, as I told my (friend?) I volunteered on three occasions to go with the "One Hundred and Fifty-third, Wellington Battalion" which I helped to recruit, but my Colonel, the late J. J. Craig said that my place as a married man with a family was at home. In acting as recruiting officer, without expense to the public, I had to sacrifice college work, I was taking at the time, but I did not regret it as my country needed all the help it could get just then. My only living brother enlisted during the second year of the war, saw service in France, twice received wounds and stayed on duty until the war was over, and he was no longer needed.

My pedigree may not be as good as that of my accuser, but I do not believe that anyone who knows me will accuse me of being disloyal, certainly not my pupils or ex-pupils, into whose hearts I have faithfully tried to sow the seeds of patriotism.

I do not remember ever saying anything disparagingly of any returned men. They all hold a high place in my esteem for the work they accomplished overseas. If I have ever said anything I should not have said I humbly beg their forgiveness.

Very truly yours,

Assistant Public School Principal.

UNEMPLOMENT AND RELIEF

To The Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—There is one class of the community who is apt to be overlooked in the allocation of this work which is paid for by public funds and I refer to the elderly single men.

These men are under serious handicaps. They are automatically and on sight turned down at the factories and I know from experience that it is merely a waste of time and shoe leather to make the rounds. They are the last men to be taken on and the first to be laid off in slack times. They are the last to get help from various charitable organizations, but they too, have need of food and clothing.

It has often amused me, when things were good, and very much annoyed me, when things otherwise, to have some good people say, 'Oh, you needn't worry, you're not married.' They seem to think that in some mysterious way manna is sent down for our sustenance and that by waving a magic wand, some good fairy comes along and replenishes our wardrobe. In many cases too, these men have no relatives or friends who are willing or able to 'carry' them.

I am not sure how fair investigations are made by the authorities, but I think the elderly single men are entitled to perhaps as much consideration as quite young vigorous men who are married and without children—who are not keeping house and whose wives are working and earning wages.

Then, too, upon registration, no enquiry is made as to age and anyone examining the information given has no means of knowing whether the the man is 20 or 60, nor whether he has previously and for how long been in regular work, or whether he has had either seasonal or casual employment.

I trust, sir, that those in authority will look with a consideration on this class of men and endeavor to give assistance to them which is sorely needed, in some cases.

Yours truly,

Fifty-Five.

THE ST. LAWRENCE WATERWAY

Editor of Examiner,

Dear Sir,—Mr. G. W. Stephens' book has just come to hand and both publisher and author are surely to be congratulated. Mr. Stephens is not only a well-known Montrealer, but was administrator of the Saar Valley under the League of Nations during practically the whole time of its occupation by the Allies and is evidently a man of the first class.

To begin with it may be stated that the St. Lawrence Waterway up so far as Cornwall is wholly within Canadian territory. From that on up the St. Lawrence the great lakes and the rivers connecting them to Port Arthur a line is run as nearly as possible in the middle of each watercourse to show the International boundary. So that from Cornwall the whole way up the waterway Americans have the territorial right on the south side and Canadians on the north. But more than that.

By the Treaty of Washington 1871 between the U.S.A. and Canada the U.S.A. has "equal rights" on the whole watercourse for all purposes of trading. The canalized part of the waterway originally 14 feet is now twenty and will be deepened to twenty-five. But this at present canalized part is work done by and owned by in some places the Nations themselves as at the "Soo" where the U.S.A. and Canada have locks of their own on their own sides of the river St. Mary, connecting Lake Superior and Lake Huron.

The new Twenty-five Million Dollar tunnel at Windsor and the huge new bridge across the river there and elsewhere are all International affairs. The St. Lawrence Waterway ought to be of the same sort. Mr. Stephens hopes that people who are usually party mad and can see only their own political and personal interests (for that is all political fury is) will keep out of it and let the good work go on of one of the most stupendous undertakings in the world which can be paid by its water powers if some government, party, or clique, does not grab them up on pretence of patriotism or partisanship.

J. H. Burnham.

While working in a field at Alterzhagenmin, Wesphalia, recently, a woman found a ten-mark piece which her child had lost while playing with it 18 years ago.

Scott Is Given Place In Taschereau Gov't

QUEBEC, Que., Nov 13. — Hon. Gordon Scott was named as a member of the Quebec Legislative Council for the seat of Wellington and also a minister without portfolio in the Cabinet of L. A. Taschereau, by an order in council to-day.

Premier Taschereau will himself act as Provincial Treasurer during the coming session of the Legislature, it was announced. Mr. Scott had been appointed to th Provincial Treasurership, but was defeated n a by-election in Huntingdon last week.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND BRIEFS

A SPECIAL SERVICE TO THE EXAMINER

At a time when a number of industrial corporations are finding it necessary to reduce or omit dividends, the Canadian banks have maintained their dividend and bonuses payments at the peak for all time. For a great many years the stockholders of these Canadian instiutions have been rewarded with an extra distribution in the closing months of each year and this action has already been taken for 1930 by four or five banking institutions and it is anticipated the others will declare extras equal to those paid in 1929 before the close of 1930. A new high mark for bonus distributors was set in 1929 by all classes of Canadian companies but in view of lower earnings for industrial corporations it is not to be expected that stockholders of such concerns will receive as liberal treatment as they did a year ago.

To-day is the 13th day of November and in itself recalls one of the worst collapses in the history of the stock markets on this day in 1929. A year ago all markets broke badly and liquidation poured into the market in a steady stream that carried security prices down drastically and the tide was only stemmed by extraordinary measures late that day when it was made known and order for 1,000,000 shares of Standard oil at 50 was in the market. Since that time the markets have had their ups and downs with the trend more or less consistently downward and a succession of new lows in recent weeks. Security prices for most issues to-day are selling at a level that permits of their outright purchase for the same amount of money required to carry them on margin in September, 1929, and the vast speculative holdings accumulated in the bull market of 1927, 1928 and the first nine months of 1929, have been pretty well liquidated. There have been rallies in more recent months but these have failed to turn the markets upward and have been followed by fresh outbursts of selling. Wednesday an increase in the price of copper metal changed the trend from downward to upward but early this morning the markets were acting none too favorably. The public that was paying fancy prices over a year ago is not very active in purchasing to-day at levels that represent a fraction of the highs of 1929. Earnings of Hunts, Limited, for the current year to date are reported to be in excess of the corresponding months of 1930, with the dollar value of sales up slightly in the same period. Total sales for the ten months to October 30, 1930, were valued at $939,480 compared with $931,930 for the first ten months of 1929, an increase of 81 per cent. October sales of $86,793, are down from $91,284 for October 1929 a drop of 4.92 per cent the total gain for the current year was experienced in the first six months with sales in July down 1.33 per cent, Aubust 3.71 and 5.17 per cent in September.

Doctor Up In Court For Firing At Negro

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 13. (CP)—Dr. R. H. Baker, Harrow, appeared before Magistrate H. A. Smith in Sandwich Police Court this morning on a charge of assaulting and attempting to wound Harry Smith, 30, colored, of Kingsville. He was remanded to Wednesday without pleading. Smith laid the charge with Provincial Police. It is alleged that Smith entered the doctor's property, which is next to the Miner sanctuary, wounded a goose with a shot gun and then attempted to catch the bird. Dr. Baker is said o have fired a gun several times into the air to scare the colored man away. Smith alleges the doctor attempted to shoot him.

MINING STOCKS RESPONDED TO IMPROVED FEELING IN METALS

General Opinion is That Whole Situation is in Good Condition For Distinct Movement.

Possible Copper Increase.

TORONTO, Nov. 13. (Special to Examiner.)—Mining stock prices responded to improved feeling in metal markets with more or less signifying recovery.

Though the extent of the advances is relatively unimportant general opinion is that the whole situation is in good condition for a distinct turn for the better. Lacl of markets for metal industry as the prevailing low prices and it is felt that possibility even high quotations for metals may provide the necessary stimulation for increased buying.

Some New York authorities feel that another increase of one half cent to 10½ cents per pound will be orderred for copper, while others are of the opinion that 11 cents may possibly be obtained in the near future. Copper cales for the week ending Wednesday for both domestic and foreign account totalled 75,000 tons. In early morning cables from abroad to-day it was estimated that 7,600,000 pounds were engaged for export at the new price of 10.30 cents Cif European base ports. Quotations on the London metal market showed even greater improvement. Higher priced gold stocks rallied to-day but are still somewhat below levels maintained for several months prior to the recent soft spell Dividend returns on some of the golds are now particularly attractive Dome at 8.10 returned 12.34 per cent, Hollinger at $5.65, 11.50 per cent: Teck Hughes at $5.30, 11.32 per cent; Sylvanite at $57.7 .01 per cent; Lake Shore at $20.70, 5.78 per cent (exclusive of bonuses); and McIntyre at $17.70, 5.65 per cent.

The index number of eleven gold stocks, according to the compilation of the Dominion Bureau of Statistic has declined from a high of 85.4 in 1929, shown in the first month of the year to an average of 57.7 in the week ended November 6, 1930. This level was the lowest in the past two years with three exceptions; months of November and December, 1929 and January, 1930, when the averages were 54.2, 54.3 and 57.4 respectively.

Since January, 1929, there has been a decline over 33 per cent in the index number. The first report to head office of Mining Corporation from the Ashley Garvey find in Bannockburn is considered satisfactory through it only covers one day's trenching effort. This work was done in the north exposure and the report intimates the vein is wider than was at first thought. Some high grade ore was found. Arrangements have been made for the bringing out of weekly reports, these being carried by Indian runner during the freeze up period.

Though no date has been officially set as yet it is understood Noranda directors will meet in about a fortnight to discuss the dividend due for payment around in the first of 1931.

Winnipeg Review

Special Service to The Examiner through the courtesy of E. J. Bawlf Company, Grain and Stock Brokers, of Toronto

The wheat market was a nervous, erratic affair yesterday the main feature being the local buying of Novemiber and December, while the offerings were light in these two months. Elevator companies were the chief buyers of these nearby months, but there was some export business drifting in from time to time, while at the same time there was a good shipping demand for cash wheat with mills also moderate buyers. The market was very steady at the start, but prices weakened around mid-session, sinking to 5-8 to 1 3-8 uhder the close Tuesday night, but these loses were all recovered the market advancing above the previous close. While there was a good demand for the cash wheat, offerings were somewhat more liberal, and spreads on one or two grades were fractionally better, but on others they were quarter to two cents off. Export sales were variously estimated at from 350,000 bushels to 1,250,000 bushels. There were reports that the Pool and others had withdrawn had all offers of wheat that is in East of the Lakes, while from Chicago came the report that Board would demand delivery of ten million bushels of December wheat, but the report did not state whether this demand was all in Chicago or scattered over the country. Liverpool closed 7-8 to 1 1-8 lower and Buenos Aires was 1 5-8 to 1 7-8 lower at mid-day. Winnipeg futures closed ½ higher to unchanged.

Coarse Grains.

Outside of a few odd lots of feed oats worked to Eastern Canada there was very little doing in the coarse grains. The futures were strong, but largely following the trend of wheat with no selling pressure in the pit. Oats closed ½ to ¾ higher, Barley 3-8 to ½ higher and Rye, 7-8 to 3-8 higher.

Flax.

This market was dull and featureless. A little buying of November against sales of May was in evidence, prices closed ¾ higher to ½ lower.

Liverpool due ½ to ¼ higher based on Winnipeg.

HON. A. TURGEO SINKING.

QUEBEC, Que., Nov. 13 (C.P.). — The physicians attending Hon. Adelard Turgeo, Speaker of the Quebec Legislative Council, announced him as slowly sinking at one o'clock this afternoon. They entertained grave doubts as to whether he would survive the day. Members of his family and his spiritual adviser were summoned to his bedside.

Saint John's Holds Practice At Oshawa

Peterborough hockey players had their first practice on ice last night when the St. John's club took eighteen junior players to Oshawa for a workout on artificial ice. Manager Bert Austin said that he was quite satisfied with the class the squad exhibited in their first go. Several of the lads skated as though they had been on blades all summer. Little hockey was indulged as the boys were told to skate in an effort to get their ice legs. Another practice will be held at Oshawa next week in preparation for the S.P.A. series.

REV. G. E. MORLEY MAIN SPEAKER

Thanksgiving Services and Fowl Supper Held By Mark Street United Church.

GOOD PROGRAM.

Rev. Geo. E. Morley of Dresden, Ont. well and favorably known in Peterborough as preacher and entertainer, was at his best both in the Sunday services and at the Monday night concert.

His morning sermon had for its text, "Oh give thanks unto the Lord, for He is good." Psalms 106:1, and in the evening his theme was "The Story of a Wedding" based on Matt. 25: 1-13. Special music was rendered by the choir with a solo by Mr. Charles Clarke and a selection by a mixed quartette in the morning and a solo by Mrs. G. Craig Bell and a selection by the male quartette in the evening.

On Monday evening the ladies of Mark Street served a chicken dinner to about 600 guests. The Coldsprings orchestra, under the leadership of Mr. Wilson, entertained the waiting guests in the church auditorium with excellent music.

The tables in the beautiful banqueting hall of the new church were tastefully decorated with marigolds and were filled with guests four times. The ladies of the church received many congratulations on the repast provided.

At 8:30 Rev. Mr. Morley, who is a professional elocutionist, was greeted by an audience that filled auditorium, gallery and narthex, with chairs in all the aisles. The numbers, with which he was very generous, were both humorous and dramatic and highly appreciated by the audience. He was assisted by Mrs. G. Craig Bell of Lakefield who rendered two very much appreciated solos and each time responded to the desire of the audience for an encore. Much appreciated numbers were also rendered by a mixed quartette composed of Mesdames Wand and Binks and Messrs Greenslade, Binks, Smith and Agnew. Mrs. W. A. Greenslade had charge of the music and presided at the organ at both the Sunday services and the Monday night concert. Rev. A. E. Tornley, the minister acted as chairman and after thanking all who had taken part in the program the concert was closed with the national anthem.

RANK AND FILE FOLLOWS LEAD

International Nickel and Noranda Two Outstanding Issues.

OIL SECTION FIRM.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 13. (C.P.)—Coppers were again the inspiration for the local market to-day. Another advance in price of domestic copper, New York provided the basis for speculative interest in shares of such large producers as International Nickel and Noranda.

With these two leaders pushing determinedly upward, the rank and file of stocks also looked better. Apart from the coppers the volume was not large; it was noticeable purchasers were more willing to take the initiative to-day.

Oils were slow but firm. Imperial was up approximately ½ point and International Petroleum recovered to 14, while B. A. oil was steady just above 15.

Practically all the utilities made fractional gain.

Brazilian was just short of 27. C.P.R. moved up to 42. Dominion Stores was stronger at 15, Ford of Canada held unchanged. Walkers softened again, off ¼ at 6¼.

Opening Prices.

AT WINNIPEG.

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 13.—(C.P.)—Wheat: Nov. unchanged at 66 1-8; Dec. 1-4 lower at 65 1-4 to 65 3-8, May 3-8 to 1-8 lower at 70 1-8 to 70 1-2. July 1-8 lower at 71 1-2.

Oats— Dec. unchanged at 27 1-4, May unchanged at 29 5-8. Barley, Nov. 1-8 lower at 22 5-8. Dec. 3-8 higher to 1-8 lower at 23 5-8 to 23 1-8. May 1-8 higher to unchanged at 28 5-8 to 28 1-2.

No Definite Date Set For Next Game

According to word received by Coach Legon of the P.C.I. rugby team the definite date for the first game of the Ontario playoffs will not be known until some time next week.

SELLING WAVE EASILY TAKEN EARLY TRADING

Copper Displays Conspicuous Strength Reflecting Advance in Red Metal Price.

TRADING MODERATE.

Prominent Issues Advance One to Seven Points in Early Afternoon.

NEW YORK, November 13 (C.P.). Share prices rallied for the third successive day in to-day's stock market—a phenomenon not witnessed in weeks—but the recovery was not continued until another flurry of selling had been absorbed in the morning.

The copper shares again displayed conspicuous strength, reflecting a further advance in the red metal price. These issues held firm during the morning, when numerous losses of 1 to 3 points were recorded elsewhere This decline was cancelled by early afternoon, however, and replaced by gains of 1 to 7 in prominent issues. Trading was moderately active.

American Smelting rose about 4 points, and issues advancing 2 to 3 included Kennecott, Calumet, and Arizona. Anaconda rose 1⅛. Cerro de Pasco was held back by reports of disturbances in its mines in Peru. Allied Chemical got back into the 200 class with a 5-point rise, and Norfolk and Western also returned to the blue chips class. Shares advancing 2 to 3 included Consolidated Gas, Dupont, American Tobacco B. American Power and Light Electric Power and Light, Woolworth, and St Louis South-Western. Union Pacific and Western Union advanced 7. American Telephone and Lowes fell off 3 points, then recovered. U S. Steel sold off a point, then rallied to show a remade gain.

Copper dealers reported sales at 10½ cents a pound, an increase of ¼ cent on top of yesterday's gain of ½. The Chambre Syndicate des Meteux Francais, which represents the French metallurgical interests, issued a complaint that United States producers were withholding copper to force prices up. It is said in copper trade circles, nevertheless, that a price of at least 14 cents would be viewed as reasonable here.

Call money was offered in the outside market as low as 1 per cent, while the official rate held at 2.

EXCELLENT MISSION REPORTS ARE READ

Large Attendance at W. M. S. Meeting of George Street United Church.

There was a splendid attendance at the November meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of George Street United Church yesterday afternoon in the Board Room of the Sunday School Hall.

The president Mrs. E. W. Coon occupied the chair and expressed her delight at the large attendance. The devotional exercises were in charge of Group H with Mrs. Stephens as leader. The scripture lesson was read by Miss Middleton and Mrs. J. Long led in prayer. Mrs. Coon thanked the members and church adherents for the very large thankoffering received on Sunday, Nov. 2 at the annual Women's Missionary Sunday Service.

Excellent reports of the missionary societies activities were given by the secretary, Mrs. W. H. Morton and the financial standing by the treasurer, Mrs. H. Dulmage. Mrs. P. Rutherford read a very interesting letter from Miss Marion Coon, missionary in China, expressing her hanks for the comforter and blankets sent to her.

Miss Might corresponding secretary read a number of letters of thanks for expressions of sympathy, during illness or bereavement.

Mrs. F. Mather convenor of the supply committee reported that the bale valued at $35 had been packed containing a fine assortment of new and second hand clothing.

A nominating committee, for the annual election of officers which will take place at the December meeting was appointed.

Mrs. Ford Turner delighted the audience with a beautiful Thanksgiving solo accompanied by Mrs. D. Howat.

Mrs. E. E. Harvey there took up the second chapter of the study book for the year, "Review of the Christmas work" being the theme of this chapter.

A number of readings on Armistice Day were given by Mrs. Coon, Mrs. J. E. Middleton and Mrs. J. C. Wood followed by prayer by Mrs. Coon, thanking our heavenly father for the peace we were enjoying and pleading that there might never be any more wars.

The meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. S. R. Armstrong.

IMPERIAL PARLEY

On the wheat quota, decision has still to be reached, but the forecast is authoritatively made that this conference will not definitely decide either way. The inference is that the matter will go over to some future conference.

The heads of delegations met again this afternoon to discuss foreign policy, and at another meeting to-night they expect to clear up the remaining business in readiness for a final plenary session of the conference tomorrow.

Two Further Decisions

On the constitutional side two further decisions were reached. These were:—

(1)—The proceedings of the conference when published will contain a declaration that appointment of Governors-General in the Dominions is a matter between the King himself and the Government of the Dominion concerned, that the King in this matter will act on the advice of his Dominion Ministers and that formal advice will be tendered to His Majesty after informal consultation. The question of the channel of communication, the declaration will further state, is a matter concerning the King and the Dominion. The British Government, however, has let it be known that it is ready to help in any way.

There will also be a change in the form of appointment of Governors-General. At present, the Governor-General is formally appointed by the British Government, after consultation with the Dominion Government concerned. The appointment itself bears the seal of the British Minister. Under the conference declaration it will be recognized that the form of document which appoints a Governor-General and in which he gets his instructions, will be a matter for the King and the Dominion Government concerned.

(2)—A further decision affects the status of Dominion High Commissioners in London. They will now follow in precedence any British Ministers present, but will not go higher than immediately-following principal Secretaries of State.

CRIMINAL TRIALS

last winter. The action by the Department also resulted in charges against I. W. Solloway and Harvey Mills, of Solloway, Mills Company, and who on October 29 were fined $200,000 and $50,000 respectively.

Three other members of the various firms were also arrested, but were acquitted on similar charges on which the brokers were sentenced today.

Not With Criminal Intent.

In each case defence counsel claimed it was not with criminal intent that their clients had carried on their respective businesses in such a way that they were liable to arrest. They pointed out it was a common practice for firms to sell short, and because brokers had contracted to buy or sell a certain quantity of stock demanded by their customers and because they could not produce that certain stock they found they were breaking the law. The majority of them were men who were familiar with many of the problems with which they were faced and had only attempted to overcome the difficulties. Everett Bliston, K.C., pleading for Paterson and Campbell, claimed his clients had never attempted to conceal their actions, and had only adopted a method of financing purchases demanded by their clients. They were convicted, he said, of having done wrong without knowing it.

Must Protect Public

Mr. Justice Jeffrey said he felt the jury should not have found Paterson and Campbell guilty on the second count, but apparently they felt justified in their decision. Both men, he said, held responsible positions and placed in a position of trust by the public. The public had to be protected he said, and though he regretted at having to do so, he must sentence them to penitentiary.

H. H. Davis, K.C., told the court the assignment of Stobie, Forlong Company had been made fully for the benefit of its creditors, who now had in hand all Stobie's and Forlong's possessions. They were both now without wealth, he said, and had done everything to aid the creditors in benefitting to the greatest extent. Forlong, he said, took no part in the actual business and was even seldom in the office.

In passing sentence on these two, Mr. Justice Jeffrey said, while there may have been no criminal intent they had not carried on the brokerage business the way they should have. He realized Forlong's inactive part in the business and discriminated in the sentence.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 (C.P.) — Prime mercantile paper 2¾ to 3 per cent.

Foreign exchange steady. Demand rates (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents: Great Britain 4.85 23-32; France, 3.92¾; Italy, 5.23¼; Germany, 23.81¼.

Canadian dollars at 3-32 of one per cent premium.

PANSIES IN NOVEMBER

W. Zeihr of 80 Victoria avenue has pansies blooming in his garden. They are tiny miniature specimens of the "thought" flowers, with little faces of purple and yellow. The first to appear in the spring in this garden, the pansies have had three bloomings this year and they are still pushing their friendly little faces above the ground.

DELEGATES APPOINTED FOR CONSERVATIVE CONVENTION

Regular Meeting Of St. John's W.A.

The November devotional and business meeting of St. John's W. A. was held on Tuesday.

Dr. Blagrave conducted the devotional exercises and spoke feelingly of the possibilities of W. A. workers, if the work is carried on in the right spirit—that of forgiveness and tolerance in all we do.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed and the treasurer's report showed a favorable balance, but all pledges must be met by the end of the month; all other branches gave satisfactory reports.

The 1931 calendars are ready for distribution and will be delivered during the month.

The annual corporate Communion service will be held as usual on St. Andrew's Day at the early service, to which all W. A. members are invited. Collection for the Bishop's Emergency Fund.

The meeting closed with the member's prayer and Benediction, after which the refreshment committee headed by Mrs. Lemmings served a delightful tea.

LITTLE HEADWAY ON DISARMAMENT MADE AT GENEVA

No Conclusion on How to Limit Land War Material is Reached.

CONFUSED SESSION.

Russian Delegate Differs With Lord Cecil on British Resolution.

GENEVA, Switzerland, November 13 (C.P.). — The preparatory Disarmament Commission struggled through a confused session to-day without reaching any conclusion on the problem of how to limit land war material.

The sitting was adjourned in the midst of consideration of a British resolution which sought to summarise conflicting attitudes in the Commission and after a rather sharp exchange between Lord Cecil, the British delegate, and Maxim Litvinoff, the Russian one.

The Resolution.

The British resolution, the first two sections of which were adopted almost unanimously, read:

"The Commission (1 approves the principle that there should be the fullest possible interchange of information respecting armaments between parties to the proposed convention; (2) Records the desire of most of the members of the Commission to find some method which will provide for limitation of war material in a more precise manner than can be achieved by publicity alone; (3) Recognizes that a majority of the Commission are of the opinion that as to land war material, the most practical method of securing this more precise limitation is by budgetary limitation, that other members of the Commission are of the opinion that the most practical method is by direct limitation by specific enumeration and that a certain number would desire to see some combination of the two methods."

Voting Postponed.

Voting on the third section was postponed in order to give Lord Cecil time to adjust details to several suggestions.

The British spokesman said the purpose of his resolution was to determine exactly where the Commission stood so that its opinions might be transferred to the text of the draft convention.

REFUGEES FLEE TO CITY OF LIMA

LIMA, Peru, November 13 (C.P.). — Three hundred foreign refugees from the Andean mining fields, jammed like cattle into a three-car railroad train, reached here to-day from Malpaso, where two United States mining men were killed in a labor riot yesterday.

They came into a city whose transportation facilities were paralyzed by a general strike, bringing a vivid story of armed clashes in which at least a dozen workmen were killed and more than a score injured.

Martial Law Declared.

Reports reaching the capital today from the Departments of Junin and Lima, where martial law has been established, indicated that fifteen hundred miners, aroused by radical organizers, participated in an attack upon dwellings and shops at Malpaso, where the Americans, John W. Chapman of Celcago and E. L. Tripary were killed.

When the police attempted to disperse the rioters twelve workers were killed by gunfire.

British and United States refugees from the Cerro de Pasco area hustled into trains and were bound for Lima to-day. The police also were bringing by rail several of the agitators who are accused of fomenting the disorder.

Local Liberal-Conservative Association Holds Regular Meeting.

J. F. STRICKLAND SPEAKS.

At the regular meeting of the Women's Liberal-Conservative Association held yesterday afternoon in Hooper's Palm Rooms, delegates were selected from the different wards for the forthcoming Conservative convention to be held in Toronto in December. The ward captains decided to pass around the honors, and decided to send new representatives, who were chosen as follows: North Ward, Mrs. J. C. Wood; West Ward, Mrs. A. Kent; Centre Ward, Mrs. A. Stinson; East Ward, Mrs. A. A. Fowler; Claraday, Mrs. T. Johnston; South Ward, Mrs. L. H. Deyman.

The meeting was in charge of the president, Mrs. H. T. Fallis, who warmly welcomed the members and friends of the Association.

As this was the first meeting held since the general election, Mrs. Fallis referred to the great victory of the Conservative party, saying that congratulations were in order, both as to party and leaders. Mrs. Fallis remarked on the anxiety felt that the viewpoint of the Conservative party should be put to the fore at the Imperial Conference by the Hon. Mr. Bennett, who was not only living fully up to his pre-election promises but was fulfilling every expectation as a leader and was receiving the highest commendation, not only from his own party but also from the Opposition and from other countries.

The record of the Prime Minister was also stressed by J. F. Strickland, M.P.P., who addressed the ladies during their meeting. Mr. Strickland spoke of his leader as a man of his word and of dauntless courage, who is thinking of the best for Canada and her destiny as well as for Great Britain.

Speaking of the coming convention in Toronto, Mr. Strickland said that he had reserved two tables for delegates from this city and hoped to see a large number present. The convention will be held on December 2nd at the Royal York Hotel.

Unemployment Issue

Referring to the unemployment situation, Mr. Strickland hoped that the next six months would see great changes in this regard. This could not be accomplished overnight, but the Federal, Provincial and municipal governments were doing all in their power to help.

A. E. Peck, M.P., came in to address the meeting very briefly. He thanked the women workers for their help on July 28th and said that the women's excellent organization was responsible in a large measure for the victory. Heurged the society to continue the good work and to keep the old flag flying.

The secretary, Mrs. J. Cridland, gave a report of the June meeting held at the home of Mrs. J. F. Strickland, and Miss Marjorie Hatton reported on the finances of the Association.

Mrs. Fallis requested the members to send her suggestions during the next two weeks, as to plans for next year's program which the executive will arrange. She announced the annual meeting for the middle of January.

It was decided to send the secretary, Mrs. J. Cridland, to Toronto, to the convention, as a small token of recognition of her services to the organization.

MINERS DEBATE ON WAGE SCALE

Railwaymen Seek Minimum of $3 Daily With Guarantee of Work.

GENERAL TRUCE ENDED.

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 13. (AP)—Representatives of fully 1,000,000 mining and railway workmen met to-day with employers' delegates to debate projected changes in wage scales. The railway and mining men met separately.

The railway group was the first to get into action. The employers' side was presented by Sir Ralph Wedgwood, chairman of the general managers group, who cited figures claiming that decreased revenues required a downward revision of wages or an upward revision of working hours. Union representatives will answer with counter claims seeking minimum wages of about $3 daily with guaranteed work for craftsmen.

A general truce signed between the roads and their employees guaranteeing not to change wages ended at midnight last night making to-day's sessions necessary.

The rail negotiations apparently are being carried on harmoniously, but observers see a chance of disputes arising in the miners' meeting of which E. Shinwell, mines secretary, is chairman.

The owners have proposed a reduction in wages or longer hours at the same wages spread over the working week, whereas the miners' chiefs have been ordered to argue for wage increases.

FOR FIVE YEARS CENTRAL ONTARIO SOUGHT HIGHWAY

City Will Greatly Benefit by Construction of New Roadway.

DIVERT TOURIST TRAFFIC

Peterborough's Eye Will Now Be Turned More and More Towards Hastings.

Five years ago The Examiner was urging the construction of a highway east of Peterborough. To-day the work actually begun.

This observation is not intended as a reflection on the rate of progress with which the highway project was approached and finally undertaken. It is merely a recollection of the early stages of a propaganda campaign that is now beginning to materialize.

By way of recollection it may be pointed out that The Examiner at that time interviewed various men in the city and district, adducing their unanimous opinion that the means of communication through these counties should be immediately improved by roads comparable with the Toronto-Kingston highway. But there was a divergence of opinion as to the route of the improved modern road that was then contemplated.

Highway to Belleville

Peterborough's thought was of a highway to Belleville, and citizens of Stirling and Campbellford and Hastings contended that its course should be through their towns. But, the towns of Madoc and Marmora were demanding better connection with the lake shore, and as the Hon. J. R. Cooke was, and still is, a power in this part of the province, it was felt that eventually the highway reaching Peterborough would be through Madoc and Marmora.

About that time, the public became aware of the broader program of an Ottawa-Sarnia highway, paralleling and relieving the main provincial highway. Gradually, too, a feeling of satisfaction developed as plans issued for the construction of links between the lakeshore and the Ottawa-Sarnia highways. Examples of these roads are from Port Hope to Peterborough, from Trenton and Belleville to Marmora, Madoc and Tweed. Undoubtedly the Brighton to Campbellford road will be carried through Havelock.

Eastern Ontario may have fancied at times that it was being neglected in the apportionment of provincial monies for permanent roads, but in the last few years the people of this district have seen the general system of eastern roads emerging, and increasing mileage being completed at an encouraging rate.

To-day the hopes of five years ago have taken another long stride toward fulfilment, and although the highway will not be completed for three or four years, according to the expectation of T. P. Lancaster, M.P.P. of Havelock, the work is now under way.

Motoring Limit Extended

One of the results of this road building east of the city will be the turning of Peterborough's eyes more and more towards Hastings county and beyond that to Ottawa. The motoring limit will be extended beyond Norwood to Havelock, Marmora, Madoc, Tweed and smaller places beyond the Hastings boundary. And conversely all that district will find a new interest in Peterborough. Since the Port Hope and Lindsay highways were opened there has been easy communication with Lindsay and Orillia, Oshawa and Cobourg and Trenton. When this new road is finished relations will be established with the many communities in Hastings county, nearby neighbors from which we have been cut off because of inadequate motor roads. The advantage will be mutual.

Tourist Traffic Diverted

The tourist traffic which will eventually be diverted to the Ottawa-Sarnia highway will benefit all the towns through which it passes, and as the accommodation for automobiles improves and increases throughout Central Ontario the total of this traffic will obviously be greater than ever. As the largest city on the new highway Peterborough should share proportionately in the heavier traffic which will be attracted over the completed road, and the summer revenue from tourists should steadily increase.

Five years ago the ambitions of this city in its hope for an improved highway outlet to the east were largely local, but the provincial government has gradually unfolded and is now gradually developing a road that is provincial in its extension, with easy access not only east and west, but also, as now, south, to the present main highway across the province.

REMEMBRANCE IS SUBJECT OF TALK

Rev. P. Gatley Reynolds Speaks at Armistice Day Service in Madoc Anglican Church.

(Examiner Correspondence)

MADOC, Nov. 13.—Armistice Day service was held in the Church of St. John the Baptist, (Anglican) in Madoc at Evensong, Rev. P. Gatley Reynolds choosing as his theme, "Remembrance." The hymns chosen were "Lord of Heaven, and Earth and Ocean," "O King of Kings, Whose Reign of Old," "God Save Our Gracious King," and "Holy Father, Cheer Our Way." The first and last being used as Processional and Recessional respectively. The altar was decorated by carnations presented for the purpose by Mr. William Soo. Psalm 46 was read responsibely and Scripture readings were from the third Chapter of the Book of the Wisdom of Solomon and the 21st chapter of the Revelation of St. John the Divine. Armistice Day prayers and Thanksgivings were used.

Rev. Mr. Reynolds took as his text Exodus 12:26. "It shall come to pass, when your children shall say unto you, What mean ye by this service? That ye shall say . . . The story of the nations is a story of Remembrance. The Jewish Race remembered and understood, therefore it has survived three thousand years and more. Other nations might and did destroy and ruin, but were themselves destroyed and the Jews survived.

They remembered the Passover; remembered the stones on Jordan's banks; remembered the days of old; remembered the captivity of Babylon; remembered the rock from which they were hewn. This remembrance could never be in vain.

The war has passed and twelve years have passed away. To these at that time under twenty-one years of age, those memories are becoming dim and indistinct. Now, the Armistice Day services seem to be but a pageant. When they ask, What mean ye? What shall be our answer? Distance gives perspective. Those sixty thousand men who gave their lives were nearly all young men, who might have lived many years with growing hopes, of prosperous careers, with homes and wives and families. They were asked to believe that there were greater things than physical life, worse things than physical death. Something greater and mightier than one's self called, and they answered. They said by life and action, I am ready to die for God and Country, for the sake of peace. They went to war without hate, and died for love of country. These men were not saints, but ordinary men. In each there was a deep Divine faith, and they testify to a belief in ideals, and also witness to the truth that the kingdom of God is within you. Everyone who served in the war gave witness to the universal belief in better things. That revelation was the great victory of the war The bugles rang out "cease fire," and woe to those who disregard the order.

As we look back, can we remember—do we show it by our faith and our willingness to live for the good of the community? Have we that vision? Have we been striving for the better things?

The speaker then urged all to stand in that silence and remember: pick up the torch they let fall; Can we break faith with them! Let their sacrifice lead us on to greater heights keep ever before us that lofty resolution that possessed us during the war. Once more we shall stand in those two great minutes of silence—we feel the touch of the larger life, the tokens of their sacrifice; the touch of their spirit, and we strive to recapture the spirit of their heroism They seem to call to us and say, We, ordinary men, died for this faith, can you not live for it, and by it? A great faith is hidden away in ordinary men, love of God, brotherhood of men. To show true love by death is trying, for God and country which they died for.

VETERAN TO GET MILITARY HONORS

Man who Died in Whitby was Buried in Lonely Cemetery Without Ceremony.

TO BE RE-INTERRED.

TORONTO Ont., Nov. 12 (CP)—That full military honors will be accorded the remains of Alfred Seago, Great War veteran who died at Whitby recently and was buried without ceremony in a lonely cemetery along the Whitby-Lindsay highway on Armistice Day was the information given out today by E. T. Scammell, Secretary of the Last Post Fund.

"Arrangements were made between our Toronto undertaker and another at Whitby" said Mr. Scammell, "but owing to unforeseen difficulties it was impossible to obtain either the services of a local clergyman or a representative body guard of soldiers to attend the funeral on Armistice Day.

"Upon hearing the details of the funeral to-day, Last Post officials immediately arranged to have the remains brought to Toronto and reinterred in Prospect Cemetery with military honors.

Armistice Day Is Observed In Apsley

APSLEY, Nov. 13. — (Examiner Correspondence).—Armistice Day was fittingly commemorated as in former years by a service held at the War Memorial, the Rev. C. A. G. Spence and Rev. W. H. Taylor, conducting the service.

The service opened with the hymn, "O God Our Help In Ages Past" followed by prayer and scriptural reading. Rev. Mr. Taylor offered a prayer and after singing of the hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee" the simple but impressive service concluded with a short address and the reading of the names inscribed on the monument by the Rev. C. A. G. Spence, benediction being pronounced by Rev. Mr. Taylor. A memorial wreath was placed on the Memorial on Sunday by members of the Women's Institutes.

MARIPOSA FARMER HAS BARN BURNED

Cause of Fire a Mystery—Threshing Had Just Been Completed That Day.

LINDSAY, Nov. 13. (Examiner Correspondence)—Another disastrous barn fire the seventh within a radius of twelve miles, occurred in Mariposa on Monday evening shortly after seven o'clock, when Irah Rodd lost two fine structures.

The cause of the fire is a mystery. The threshers were engaged on the farm during the day, and as the farm is unoccupied, there was no one about the property after threshing operations had ceased in the afternoon. Fortunately the grain had not been stored in the barns, but a quantity of hay and straw was consumed.

The brick residence is situated about one hundred feet from the barns and the neighbors succeeded in saving it, although sparks were blowing in its direction. Mr. Rodd's loss is estimated at $5,000. The two barns were constructed with steel roofing and were modern in every detail. Insurance was carried on both buildings.

The Netherlands now have 95 talkie theatres.

Ready--- as if by Magic

and Wonderfully Good

If Aladdin, by rubbing his magic lamp, conjured up some tempting repast, it couldn't be ready much sooner than you can prepare delicious pancakes with Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour.

"I'se in Town, Honey"

You simply stir this ready-mixed flour with equal quantities of milk or water and cook on a moderate fire. Presto! You have light, flavoury pancakes that just melt in your mouth.

Aunt Jemima's recipe was famous in the heyday of the Old South. Her flour that comes to you today is just what she used then, mixed in the same proportions so you get the same wonderful results.

Many other tasty things can be made with Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour...waffles, muffins or pancakes with jelly. Or, if you prefer the tang of buckwheat, it is just as easy to use Aunt Jemima prepared Buckwheat Flour. Keep both kinds of Aunt Jemima always in the pantry.

ONTARIO PRODUCTS TO BE DISPLAYED

In a recently inaugurated program sponsored by the Ontario Government and under the auspices of the Ontario Department of Agriculture an endeavour is being made to extend the demand in Ontario towns and cities for Ontario grown products.

By means of widespread publicity it is hoped to build a rapidly growing appreciation of the value to be had in our own Ontario farm products. It is strongly felt that the position of our farmers, our manufacturers and city workers can be largely bettered through greater buying co-operation.

A a new feature of this program, the Department of Agriculture, with the co-operation in Peterborough of His Worship Mayor Denne and the President of the Chamber of Commerce has planned a city retail merchants' window dressing competition featuring Ontario grown products. Prize money to the value of $50 to be raised by a committee of responsible citizens to look after the general details of the window dressing competition will augment the contribution of $50 by the Department.

There will be ten prizes. A first of $25, a second of $20, a third of $15, a fourth of $10 and six further prizes of $5 each. It is hoped that these prizes will provide sufficient inducement for retail grocers, butchers and fruit stores to enter in the competition. Contest regulations may be obtained from the Chamber of Commerce and entries may be forwarded to the offices of the Department of Agriculture, in this city.

Entries will close on the night of Wednesday, November 19th and windows are to be ready for judging not later than Saturday, November 22nd No entry fee is charged.

The displays may include fruit or vegetables, dairy products, eggs, honey, meat and poultry—all of Ontario origin.

Derry, Ireland, has started a campaign against watering buttermilk.

Don't neglect a COLD

DISTRESSING cold in chest or throat—that so often leads to something serious—generally responds to good old Musterole with the first application. Should be more effective if used once every hour for five hours.

This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other helpful ingredients brings relief naturally. Musterole gets action because it is a scientific "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation, helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses.

Keep Musterole handy—jars and tubes.

ANDREE FILMS ARE DEVELOPED

DIARY IS BLURRED.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Nov. 13 — (CP) — Much of the diary written by members of the Andree polar balloon expedition in 1897 has been obliterated by time and weather since they died, but the men left behind them twenty undeveloped films which supply some of the gaps in the story of their tragic end.

Dagblad to-day said that Professor Hertberg had developed 20 films found in among the expedition remains. A number of negatives showed the balloon after its forced landing on the ice, which appears to have been caused by loss of gas and ice on the envelope.

Another photograph shows Andree standing beside the carcass of a Polar bear he killed. Others show episodes in the march over the ice, and one is of the camp on Avitvoen which was the island of their death.

ODDFELLOWS HONOR GRAND PATRIARCH

The members of Hiawatha Encampment No. 66 attended in large numbers at their headquarters last evening in the Oddfellows Hall to honor Grand Patriarch Moore of Midland, who paid his first official visit to the city. The event was made more auspicious by the Grand Patriarch presenting a jewel each to Past District Deputy Patriarchs W. F. Green and Art Ringer as tokens of appreciation for the great work which these two members had done during their terms of office as District Deputies of District No. 19, of which Hiawatha Encampment is part of. P.D.D. Patriarch J. W. Butcher was unable to be present to receive his jewel at this time. The Grand Patriarch in presenting the jewels on behalf of Hiawatha Encampment, said it was a proud moment for him to officiate on such an occasion and reminded those present of the past records of recipients and the good work they had accomplished during their terms of office.

A large class of candidates from the local lodges of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows were admitted to membership during the evening, the degree staff, under the able direction of P.D.D. Patriarch R. R. Ford, were showered with congratulations on their efficiency in the work of the Order, by both the Grand Patriarch and the many visitors who witnessed this work. During the course of the evening a committee of ladies prepared a sumptuous banquet for which a large number of geese had laid down their lives. The Grand Patriarch's address to the members after the banquet was one which will be long remembered as one of inspiration and optimism.

After three lusty cheers the National Anthem brought to a close an evening which will go down in the local Odd Fellows records as one of the most successful in the history of Hiawatha Encampment.

that absorbs edge destroying shock

PROBAK—the famous double-edge blade with the built-in shock-absorber—dissipates the terrific bending stress that results when you tighten the handle of your razor. Distortion cannot damage or dull the finely honed edges of this revolutionary blade.

Probak is built with two radically new shock-absorbing features—butterfly channeling and duo-tempered steel. Safe from strain—the edges remain straight, keen and true—shave after shave. You feel the amazing difference the first time you draw a Probak across your face.

Try this convincing test. Buy a package of guaranteed Probaks and use two in your double-edge razor (old or new model). Shave alternately with Probak and your present blades. If every Probak shave isn't incomparably quicker, cooler, smoother—kinder to your face—return the package and your dealer will refund every cent you paid—$1 for 10, 50c for 5.

WAR VETERANS PAY TRIBUTE

CHILDREN PARADE.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 13. (Examiner Correspondent.)—The twelfth anniversary of Armistice Day was celebrated in Lakefield on Tuesday, with a short and very impressive service at the Cenotaph, held under the auspices of the Canadian Legion.

At about 10:30 a parade formed at the Public School grounds, marched south on Edward Street to Reid Street and west on Reid to Queen street, and then down to the Cenotaph. The parade was headed by the Public School children and their teachers and this parade was started a little ahead of the main body, to allow the little ones to take part without hindering the progress of their elders.

The main parade was headed by Comrade Thomas Cunningham, bearing the flag, then the High School cadets in uniform, the Veterans themselves, wearing their medals and with them marched Colonel T. J. Johnston, who is so well known to all ex-93rd men and their families and to every returned soldier in the County of Peterborough.

The company formed a hollow square around the handsome memorial which was erected within the year and is a credit to the Community. The school children assembled on the south side, the cadets at the north, the ex-service men at the west facing the Cenotaph and at the east the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Legion.

Comrade J. R. Hill, M.M., president of the Lakefield Post No. 77 of the Canadian Legion opened the program with a few remarks. Comrade Hill said, "This is the 12th anniversary of the signing of the Armistice, which terminated the last ghastly world war; the sacrifices made by those whose names we honor are inclined to be forgotten by those fortunate enough to return. At the unveiling of the Cenotaph in June, mention was made of the presence of the sole survivor of Lakefield's gallant company who marched out in '66 in defence of home and county, all of whom returned home safely, taking part in the community life until called by death."

Led by Rev. E. C. Moore, of Young's Point, Hon. Chaplain of Militia, the Lord's prayer was repeated by the entire company, followed by a recitation of the hymn, "O Valiant Hearts."

The honor roll of 52 names was read by Comrade T. W. Chaplin and the dedicatory address was given by Rev. Mr. Moore, who said, "We are gathered to pay honor to those who made the great sacrifice in the Great War," and as a prelude the speaker read a poem by Rupert Brooke, one of the younger British poets, who himself was killed in action. "Blow out your bugles over the rich dead."

"They gave their immortality. That is a fine tribute to those who gave their lives that we might live. It is almost impossible for man to express or appreciate the sacrifice but we can at least act our appreciation. There is a great rank and file gone out of our lives and after the emotional period of 1914-1918, we have forsaken our ideals and gotten down to business, with the result that we are inclined to worship prosperity and one can see the result. We must catch once more the spirit and ideal of our race to guard the Nations' honor and character, to care for the under dog and that although the Heavens fall the debts shall be paid, all this must be tackled and unless done in the proper spirit, it is useless."

To the children, the speaker addressed a special word, "Don't ever forget: learn all you can about the war and realize its awfulness and consecrate your lives to a better life for the Nation. In the presence of the Cross, which is the symbol of sacrifice, dedicate your lives to the service of God, the King and Country and to your fellowmen."

Comrade W. Chappell placed a wreath on the Cenotaph for the Legion and Mesdames J. R. Robinson and W. W. Leonard for the Ladies' Auxiliary. The two minutes' silence was observed and was followed by the singing of "Oh Canada." It was expected that Col. C. H. Ackerman would be present, but he was unable to attend, Col. T. J. Johnston saying a few words in the kindly manner which has endeared him to everyone. Col. Johnston denounced the sentiment one hears that the men fought a war to end war. The men enlisted for a far higher and nobler motive than that; they fought for the defence of the British Empire and the defence of their homes. He also spoke of the sacrifice of the wives and mothers of the men who served in the war.

Following the singing of the National Anthem, the gathering dispersed and another anniversary became history.

No Change Is Made In Land Assessments

COURT DISPOSES OF APPEALS MADE IN ASSESSMENTS

Confidence is Expressed in City Assessor by Court of Revision.

RECENT SALES VALUES.

Members Consider Forced Values Were Paid in Recent Sales.

This was the general decision last night of the Court of Revision, composed of W. F. Johnston, chairman, James Finnie and W. F. Morrow.

The assessments prepared by W. J. Henry, city assessor, were supported by references to sales values of properties, such as the Kresge building and the Richard Hall store, which changed hands last year.

Confidence in Assessor.

In announcing the court's decision on the land assessments, Mr. Johnston said: "We realize that Mr. Henry is an efficient, fair and impartial assessor, and that his only desire is to perform his duty. Put in this instance we regard the various sales that have been mentioned as abnormal. We consider that they represent forced values, and that they are not a true criterion of the values of the land. These properties were required by the companies that bought them, and they were determined to buy them at whatever price they could obtain. It is our unanimous opinion that the prices paid for the stores that have been mentioned did not represent the value of these properties. We shall reduce the land values of appellants to the 1929 assessment, and deal with them impartially as they come along."

Last year's assessment was prepared for this year's taxation, and in these appeals will remain the same for the purposes of the 1931 tax rate.

At last night's hearing of appeals Grafton Company, Limited, was represented by W. C. Hughes, manager of the local store, and J. A. O'Brien, the company's solicitor. Their assessment last year on land was $35,350 and this year $38,180, an increase of $2,830. This was an increase of approximately $50 a foot, or from $750 a foot last year to $800 this year.

Recent Sales Values.

Mr. Henry, who was assisted by City Solicitor Corkery, pointed out that the purchase price of the Woolworth store was $1,125 a foot; the Metropolitan store, $1,228 a foot; Canadian Department Store, $1,058.80 a foot; the Kresge building, $1,338.33 a foot, and the Richard Hall store, $1,037 a foot.

Mr. Hughes stated that the insurance on the Grafton store was based on a present-day replacement value of $40,000.

After a general discussion of the group of George street appeals, Mr. Johnston announced the court's opinion as to values and struck off the $2,830 increase in the Grafton land. There was no increase on the buildings.

Dickson store—Land, reduced from $14,070 to $13,150.

J. P. Bond, drug store—Reduced from $16,580 to $15,500.

T. Eaton Co., George and Simcoe streets—Land, $49,150; building, $60,000. Total, $109,150. Reduced to $100,000.

Richard Hall, Limited—Land, $36,750; building, $38,750. Total, $75,500. Reduced to $51,000.

W. Flannery, Charlotte street — Reduced from $4,450 to $3,800.

United Cigar Store—Reduced from $12,100 (including 2nd and 3rd flats) to $10,400.

Some Appeals Late.

A number of appeals were disallowed because they were not filed within the prescribed time. One of these was against the assessment of the Maple Leaf Milling Company property at George and Dalhousie streets. Emmett F. Sheehy represented the company.

"We can't take cognizance of this appeal because you did not give notice within the proper time," Mr. Johnston said.

Mr. Sheehy remarked that the property was not used as a mill, but only as a warehouse.

The assessment of the Grand Theatre was confirmed, as was also the Imperial Oil Company's.

Only M.P. Holding V.C.

MEMORIAL SERVICE IN OMEMEE CHURCH

Mr. Smith, Student Pastor, and Rev. J. T. E. Blanchard Conduct Service.

OMEMEE, Nov. 13. (Examiner Correspondence).—An Armistice Day service was held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Tuesday when the scholars of the High and Public Schools paraded to the Church and occupied the centre pews.

Mr. Smith, student pastor, assisted by Rev. J. T. E. Blanchard, of Trinity United Church, conducted the service. The returned soldiers occupied the front pews.

After two minutes' of silence had been observed, a veteran read the names of the ten fallen comrades of this district, followed by the Dead March, played by the organist.

Guild Meets.

The monthly meeting of the Women's Guild of Christ Church was held at the home of Mrs. W. R. Robinson on Thursday, the president, Mrs. Newman, occupying the chair.

Plans were made for the annual bazaar to be held in December in the basement of the Church, when hot supper will be served from 5 o'clock.

A.Y.P.A. Meets.

The members of the A.Y.P.A. held their regular meeting in the basement of Christ Church, H. Hill, president, being in charge. After a few items of business Miss H. Johnson, convenor of Missionary program, took charge of the meeting and the following program was given: Modern Christian History, J. Johnson; Changing Japan, Miss Audrey Weir; Modern Christianity in Japan, H. Hill; The Christian Movement, Miss Elsie Chatten and Articles on Japan, W. Stephenson.

Great Future Is Seen For Vancouver Port

VANCOUVER, B.C. Nov. 13. (CP) Duty of the Minister of Marine includes the development of transport facilities at Vancouver, "destined to become the great port in the world" stated Hon. Alfred Duranleau, Minister of Marine, in a speech to the Canadian Club.

"It requires no great imagination" he asserted "to visualize that within the next quarter of a century, Vancouver will be the center of a huge trade with the Orient. Vancouver is the gate of British North America for a commerce such as was never dreamed of by the merchants of ancient Asia."

London Parley Causes Objections In India

BOMBAY, Nov. 13 (C.P.).—Convening in London of the Indian Round-Table Conference resulted in repercussions throughout India culminating in a riot in this city in which twenty-five demonstrators were injured and the entire local "War Council" was arrested.

Hartals, or cessations of work, were observed in various degrees in Bombay, Calcutta and Karachi.

In Calcutta the city corporation adopted a resolution recording its "emphatic condemnation of the Round Table Conference, having regard to the circumstances in which it was constituted and its entirely unrepresentative character."

Many foreign traders in China claim that the low price of silver has had as adverse an effect as internal disorders on the country's imports and exports.

Makes $10,000 Raising Turkeys

Nine years ago Mrs. W. A. Freeman of Ardenode, Alberta, won a pair of bronze turkeys in a raffle. She now has the largest turkey farm in Canada and is acknowledged queen of turkey raising in the Dominion. Her turkeys will return a revenue of $10,000 this year.

Reductions Are Made In Chevrolet Prices

OSHAWA, Nov. 13.—Price reductions of $60 to $80 on the various models of the Chevrolet Six car were announced here to-day at the executive offices of General Motors of Canada, Limited, by William C. Herring, assistant general manager in charge of sales.

The models affected and the amount of the reduction in each case follow: Roadster delivery, $75; Roadster, $60; Sport Roadster, $60; Coupe, $60; Sport Coupe, $75; Coach, $60; Club Sedan, $75; Sedan, $75; Sport Sedan, $75; Utility Express Truck, $60; Utility Express Truck with cab, $80; Commercial Chassis, $60.

This latest move of the company brings the price range of the Chevrolet Six to less than the range of the four-cylinder car at the time of the change-over at the close of 1928. At that time the four was priced from $625 to $890, while the nine different models in the six-cylinder line to-day range from $575 to $865, at the factory, Oshawa, following this latest reduction.

AUTO CRASH FATAL.

WELLAND, Nov. 13 (C.P.).—Mrs. Rose Goldstick, aged 35, wife of a Detroit dentist, was fatally injured in an automobile accident on Highway Number 3A near Hewitt Road, a mile east of Beckett's Bridge, when an automobile driven by her father, Goodman Villick, of Detroit, aged 70, collided head-on with a truck from Guelph, driven by Fred Prior of that city. Villick suffered considerable shock and injury to the back, and his wife had her left leg broken.

OLD RESIDENT GIVES ADDRESS

Rev. Dr. P. B. Thornton Speaks at Thanksgiving Services in United Church.

ANNUAL FOWL SUPPER

OMEMEE, Nov. 13. (Examiner Correspondence).—Rev. Dr. P. B. Thornton, formerly of Winnipeg and now on a world lecturing tour, preached the Thanksgiving services at Trinity United Church on Sunday.

Rev. Dr. Thornton who is an old Omemee boy, was heard with rapt attention by the large congregations.

At the morning service, the text was taken from Matthews 7:3—"And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye".

Special music was contributed by the choir which sang two Thanksgiving anthems and Rev. J. T. E. Blanchard sang the solo, "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings."

In the evening, Dr. Thornton was again listened to with rapt attention, when the text was Acts 24-25, "And as he reasoned of righteousness temperance and judgment to come, Felix trembled and answered, 'Go thy way for this time when I have a more convenient season, I will call for thee."

The theme of this eloquent discourse was fear. The reason for fear and the facing of facts illustrated by experiences during his years of ministry, making them applicable to the various needs of the individual.

The music by the choir was in keeping with the Thanksgiving season and the choir was assisted by Rev. Mr. Blanchard and J. Day, of Toronto.

Fowl Supper.

The annual fowl supper in connection with the event was held in the basement of the Church which was prettily decorated for the occasion.

Following the supper, a splendid program was given in the auditorium of the church and was as follows: opening song, "The Maple Leaf"; chairman's remarks, Rev. J. T. E. Blanchard; choir, Kipling's Recessional, Rev. Mr. Blanchard taking the baritone solo; address, Rev. Mr. Rowland, of Stirling, a former pastor and an old Omemee boy, his subject being, "Why am I connected with the Church"; vocal duet, Miss Werry and Miss Lowe, "Springtime in the Rockies"; reading, Rev. Mr. Blanchard; vocal solo, with guitar accompaniment, Campbell Mackey; address, Dr. Thornton; quartette, "True till Death", Mrs. Laidley, Miss Parsons, Mr. Brown and Mr. Corneil; vocal duet, "Down the River of Golden Dreams, "the Misses Werry and Lowe; reading, 'Little Tim's Tobacco", Rev. Mr. Blanchard; vocal solo, Campbell Mackey.

Carmel United Church Celebrates Diamond Jubilee

SIXTY YEARS OF HISTORY REVIEWED BY THE SPEAKER TO CAPACITY CONGREGATION

Rev. Gordon S. Sisco, B.A., of Port Hope, Chairman, Cobourg Presbytery, Preaches Sermon.

REV. JONES ALSO SPEAKS

Members of Men's Bible Class From Millbrook Lead Song Service.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 13. (Examiner Correspondence)—Sixty years of history were revived, and the mercies vouchafed throughout that period of time remembered with many expressions of gratitude and praise before an All-Loving Father, in connection with the Diamond Jubilee of the Carmel United Church, observed on Sunday, November 9, the building being taxed to capacity to accommodate the congregation which gathered at 2.30 p.m., the Rev. Gordon S. Sisco, B.A., of Port Hope, Chairman of the Cobourg Presbytery, preaching the special sermon for the occasion.

The members of the Men's Bible Class, of Saint Andrew's Church, Millbrook, led in the service of song and Miss Estelle Hetherington presided at the organ.

The pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, B.A., B.D., who was born and brought up in the vicinity, and whose early religious training, outside his home was closely connected with the church at Carmel, was deeply moved as he rose to speak, previous to the sermon, urging the congregation to "give thanks to God as I do this day for His abundant mercies" and acknowledging his indebtedness to William Lunn, and other members of his family, faithful workers at the Carmel appointment, for help in securing the records covering the years.

Reviews History

Briefly covering the history particularly of the Sunday School with which Rev. Mr. Jones said he was more especially interested, the information was advanced that on March 9, 1868, it was decided to form a Sunday School to meet in Brown's school house, a log building west of the present church site, in which place church services were then being held. No knowledge could be obtained of when this log school was built, but some time afterward it was destroyed through adjoining bush fires. The passage of scripture connected with the organization of the Sunday School is found in Acts 20: 21-22: "Testifying both to the Jews, and also to the Greeks, repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ. And now, behold, I go bound in the spirit unto Jerusalem, not knowing the things that shall befall me there."

Later in the same year, November 22nd, 1868, sixty-two years ago, the decision was arrived as to organize Bible Class, the passage of scripture which evidently brought the inspiration being from I, Corinthians 9:16: "Woe is me if I preach not the gospel."

After the burning of Brown's school house, the people of the community decided to build a church, known as Mount Carmel, named by Mrs. Meadows, wife of the owner of the farm upon whose property the building was erected. William Liggett is the present owner of this farm property interested in the welfare of the Carmel church, and with his wife, a member of the congregation on Sunday. Later the church was moved to its present site, the exact date when this change was being somewhat in doubt.

S. S. Superintendents

The superintendents of the Carmel Sunday School, from its inception to the present date, were: Thomas Jones, 1868 to 1872; Noble Stewart, whose daughter, Mrs. Irwin Hatherly, was present on Sunday, 1872 to 1878; Robert Brown, father of Keegan Brown, who was also in the congregation, 1878 to 1882; 1882 to 1895 or '96, Mark Gardiner, "who is with us to-day, and whose prayers many in this congregation remember as having 'brought Heaven down our souls to greet' "; William Trenouth next held the office, and he was followed by Mr. Jones, then a young man attending High School at Millbrook, who was also president of the Epworth League; when his studies multiplied, he gave up the superintendency of the Sunday School, R. J. Strong being his successor; Fred Brown later took the position, and when he resigned Fred Hard carried on successfully for some years; William Lunn was the immediate predecessor of George Patterson, the superintendent of the present day.

Seventy-one names are recorded as being members of the Bible Class at Carmel during the years 1868-'69, and '70, and considerable interest was attached to the reading of these, the pastor indicating who were present on Sunday, taking part in the Diamond Jubilee, and who relatives in the congregation: Thursa Ward (Mrs. J. J. Russell); Mary J. Jones, a sister of the minister on the platform and now deceased; Francis Gilmour (Mrs. William Liggett); Sara T. Gilmour; Jane Ward; Adeline Thorne (Mrs. Mark Gardiner); George Jones, a brother of the Rev. Mr. Jones, and present on Sunday; Emily Ward, William Ward; Thomas Jones; Elias Jones; Emmeline Ward, (Mrs. Russell, of Peterborough); Sarah E. Ward; Letitia, Matilda, and Emily Evans; John Thorne; John Gilmour; Ellie and Elmer Jones; Elizabeth Thorne; Elizabeth Gardiner; Maria, Emma, and Mary Brown; Elizabeth Ann Stewart; Robert Brown; Sarah Jane Brown; William Gilmour; Margaret Jane Jones; Robert Gardiner; John Stewart; Edward Stewart.

In addition ,the pastor stated, four boys' names are recorded though they were present, but the one Sunday, the visit being apparently promoted by curiosity; these names were: William J. Mullen, Samuel Pethick, Martin Pethick, and William Trenouth.

Special Appeal

As a fitting climax to this part of the service, the congregation joined in singing, "When All Thy Mercies, O My God"; preceding the offering, and to mark the Diamond Jubilee in a fitting manner, the pastor made an appeal for sixty dollars, one for each year of the church's history, as a contribution to Christian missions. Before resuming his seat, Rev. Mr. Jones said he wished to pay tribute "to a mother living near here, Mrs. Richard Gilmour, Senior, who has brought up a large family, yet for fifty years never had a doctor in her home for one of her children; and what is true in this case, is true also of other families in the community, and we honor the courage and endurance of these mothers whose lives have been outstanding in sacrifice for their families' welfare."

Rev. Mr. Sisco preached an appropriate and inspiring sermon, prefacing his theme with congratulations to the congregation on its day of jubilee, and asserting his personal conviction "that a great work for the Kingdom is being accomplished in quiet and obscure places like this."

Choosing his text from Luke 15:17: "When he came to himself" the speaker drew a vivid picture of the prodigal in the far country, on the point of the contemptible "when this single sentence arrests us, as there flashed upon this wandering son's mind the fact that the real man was not the prodigal, the waster, but the penitent, facing home with a new resolve; from within the voice of God was telling him what he was, and what he might become."

This introduction gave the keynote for the triumphant ring of the sermon throughout as emphasis was laid upon the fact that Jesus never lost confidence in the potential worth of human personality. He saw the glory in human hearts, and always hoped for its liberation; this was why He saved Matthew, the publican, Zaccheus, another grasper; and the woman who was a sinner. This was why the Pharisees hated him. He never judged by achievement, but by potential worth.

"The great lack to-day is not faith in God, but faith in man. The need is to regard the universe as a family over which the Great Father presides, and there is no real faith in God except as it expresses itself in our attitude toward our fellow-man. If human nature has the capacity for mistakes and evils, it also has the capacity for kindness, love, and deeds of mercy. Your pastor has read to you this afternoon the record of those who served in this church, and stood for the right in this community, proving by self-sacrifice the essential nobility of human nature. So this day of jubilee is for you one of memory and hope".

"Jesus based His belief in the essential goodness and redeemability of human nature; the surety that we may be born again as was the prodigal; otherwise it were but cynical mockery to teach the prayer, 'Thy kingdom come; Thy will be done, as in heaven, so on earth'."

In closing the speaker made reference to Armistice Day, declaring we should never approach this occasion without penitence. Humanity caused the war; it might be traced back to the springs habitual in the minds and thoughts of the people, as the rivers rise from many springs and streams far back in the mountains. "We must change our thinking or we may again be swept into its awful vortex. As opposed to the jungle idea, which the war emphasized, we should have a co-operative community of free spirits developing devotion ,endurance, courage and self-sacrifice on an unprecedented scale."

Mr. Mark Gardiner, veteran worker in the church and for fourteen years superintendent of the Sunday School, at the request of the pastor, dismissed the congregation with prayer.

Face Covered With Blackheads and Pimples. Healed by Cuticura.

"My face was covered with blackheads and pimples. The pimples were hard, large and red, and itched and burned. When I scratched them they would fester and scale over. They were in blotches and lasted about three months.

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and was surprised to see the results. I continued using them and in about two months I was completely healed." (Signed) Theodore Stonehouse, Springhill, Nova Scotia.

FIRST SIGN OF HEART FAILURE.

It is unfortunate that heart failure, heart disease, is such a "quiet" ailment that great damage is done before the patient is aware of it.

With some ailments there is one or perhaps more than one sign that is noted by the patient and he is made aware of his condition. In tuberculosis there is a cough, and evening temperature; in ulcer of stomach there is definite pain in the stomach which disappears when baking soda or food is taken; in diabetes there is a great desire for water, and frequent urination. But in heart disease there is no pain, no outstanding symptom at first.

And it is at the beginning of heart failure that so much can be done.

However, when the heart begins to fail the blood in the veins does not move along quickly enough, there is slowness, or stasis as it is called. The veins are so enlarged that they seem to stand out in the neck and arms.

And where there is too much venous or impure blood, there is bound to be a great need for oxygen in the system to overcome this.

So what do we find? Patients who suffer from general congestion of the venous or vein system are, without exception, breathless either at complete rest, or on slight exertion.

Moreover, there is a clear relation between the degree of breathlessness and the pressure in the veins; the relation is so clear that if a patient has no congestion in the veins, and is yet breathless lying in bed, then the breathlessness is not due to a failing heart.

The thought then is that if you find yourself getting out of breath doing the things that formerly did not cause breathlessness then something is the matter, like a failing heart.

Of course, you may be getting overweight, which might cause the breathlessness, you may be weak from undernourishment, or you may have early symptoms of anæmia or even tuberculosis.

So let this little symptom of breathlessness, this "quiet" symptom be a warning to you.

See your family physician and have him give you a thorough examination.

Even if the heart is beginning to fail, with proper care, which includes rest and medicine, you may be able to go along to the allotted span of life.

HOW TO GET RELIEF FROM CATARRH

If you have catarrh, catarrhal deafness, or head noises, go to your druggist and get 1 oz. of Parmint (Double Strength); take this home, add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little sugar. Take a tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucous stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to make; tastes pleasant and costs little. Every one who has catarrh should give this treatment a trial. You will probably find it is just what you need.

One hundred people, led by the Honorable Rachel Kay-Shuttleworth, spent five hours recently at Clapham, England, clearing up rubbish left by picnic parties during the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. George Deyell announce the engagement of their daughter, Verna Marguerite, to Mr. Howard M. Clark, youngest son of Mr. W. J. and the late Mrs. Clarke. The marriage to take place the latter part of November.

Thirty-three members of the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E. gathered in Hooper's Palm Rooms last evening for the annual dinner of the Chapter. The arrangements for a very pleasant party were in charge of Mrs. J. A. McNabb, Mrs. N. C. Staples and Mrs. Gordon Hill, and the dinner, which was an excellent one and splendidly served, was followed by a brief program of contests that was much enjoyed. The room was brilliantly lighted, and the tables, arranged in T fashion, were decorated with tall glass vases on gold lace mats, filled with bronze and yellow dwarf 'mums. Silver candelabra held lighted pale green tapers and green and white mints echoed the same soft color scheme. Little whistles and noise-makers were at each plate, and 'white elephants' wrapped in gay paper and ribbon, distributed to each guest after dinner, added a note of interest. Miss Daisy Davidson captured a real white elephant in her magic parcel. The prize for the first contest, "Tea for Everyone," went to Miss Jessie Deyell. Mrs. Gordon Hill won the award for making the best hat of colored paper, a contest which aroused much interest, and Miss Cathleen McCarthy won the prize for the best poem in a contest in poetical writing, with some object in the room as a theme. Mrs. F. C. Webber, second vice regent, presided very gracefully over the dinner party and the brief business session which followed the program of entertainment. Those present included Mrs. F. C. Webber, Mrs. J. A. McNabb, Mrs. C. E. Graham, Mrs. J. K. Hughes, Mrs. F. Hooper, Mrs. N. C. Staples, Mrs. James Matthews, Mrs. Gordon Hill, Mrs. H. H. P. Johnston, Mrs. J. J. Just Between Us Women

Have you started your Christmas shopping yet? If not I think it is time you had for even now, on Saturday afternoons especially, the stores are becoming quite crowded with eager shoppers.

• • • • • • •

Have you ever stood in a store and watched the customers and the clerks for just a little while?

• • • • • • •

Now long ago a fine grey-haired gentleman came into a store crowded with shoppers. He was jostled as he paused and looked around for a moment and then with a smile turned to a saleswoman at the door counter and said:

• • • • • • •

"Don't you ever get bewildered here. I came into this store to buy something but I've forgotten entirely what it was,"—then as if suddenly remembering he started off down one of the thronged aisles, and was lost to my view.

• • • • • • •

The girl smiled as she looked a bit wistfully after him as he vanished. I thought that probably she had undergone a bewildered period when she first tried to wait upon customers with questions being asked her while she was trying to compute her sales, and snatches of conversation from other purchasers floating to her ears.

• • • • • • •

But she was used to it all now you could see. She had become competent in the stress of many such a morning's rush. The man was in a realm apart from his work and experience.

• • • • • • •

Now that the busy shopping days prior to Christmas are close at hand, many a tired woman who may or may not know just what she wishes to buy for some friends, will fully sympathize with the elderly gentleman, although she may not be so frank in voicing her predicament.

• • • • • • •

It is well, therefore, to see if such bewilderment cannot be avoided. And it may be that by a little careful planning we can spare ourselves a trifle, the confusion which baffles one's thoughts.

• • • • • • •

• • • • • • •

First and foremost among the preventative measures is to shop early. Both the customer's and the salesperson's minds are fresh, and this tends to clear thinking This is one reason why a shopper accomplishes doubly the amount of work in the same time that she does when her mind gets chaotic in a rush. It is not all because the salesperson cannot serve her promptly.

• • • • • • •

Another help is to concentrate on the items that are of prime importance, and let the things be secondary that one would like to do but which can go until another time.

• • • • • • •

When once the mind is weary chances are passed by, and like the bewildered gentleman, even the things one plans to get slip from the memory.

• • • • • • •

A well thought out list is another help to prevent mental confusion. Even if one's mind is tired, it can fasten on the items seen on a list, and proceed to buy them.

• • • • • • •

A list is stabilizing. Write it on some colored paper that is associated with your thoughts with shopping lists, and you will find yourself less liable to loose a list than when it is on ordinary white or cream paper.

"LITTLE BRIGHT EYES AT THE WINDOW."

(Contributed by Beatrice)

Little bright eyes at the window,
Every evening wait for me,
And my dainty, dimpled darling
Greets me with a merry glee;
Long before I reach the crossing,
He will spy me 'mong the rest,
And his lisping tongue will chatter
Till I take him to my breast.

CHORUS

Little bright eyes at the window,
Every evening wait for me,
And my dainty, dimpled darling
Greets me with a merry glee.

Little bright eyes at the window
Never tire if I am late,
But are always watching for me
Waiting till I shut the gate;
And when I have cross'd the threshold
They will beam with rays of joy,
And the rogue will try to tell me
That he is my darling boy.

Little bright eyes at the window,
Waiting for a father's smile,
Little do you know the feeling,
Or the hearts you may beguile;
In the future dim before you,
Care and trouble may be thine,
And the tears of woe may glisten
Where contentment used to shine.

MRS. EDWARDS ADDRESSES SCHOOL ASSOCIATION

At the regular meeting of the King George Home and School Association, held in the school's kindergarten room on Tuesday evening, Mrs. C. H. Edwards, president of the local Home and School Council, gave a comprehensive outline of the work of the Council, taking as the basis of her talk the creed of Home and School Associations.

Mrs. Edwards said that these societies were not organized as a critical body, but rather to be a help to the teacher, to learn conditions in the schools, and to educate people to procure the best possible school equipment, also to assist the mothers in studying their children during pre-school years.

The meeting was in charge of the president, Mrs. Ada Craig, and was enlivened by vocal solos by J. Trotter, accompanied by Cecil Lapp, piano selections by Phyllis Gardiner and Berenice Flynn, a dialogue by three girls, Laura Chartren, Yvette Rose, and Barbara Blade, and readings by Betty McLeod and Jean McLeod.

Breakfast is an important factor in success, nutritionists warn. For, according to recent surveys, 70% of the day's entire work, in schools, homes, factories and offices, must be done in the 4 short morning hours.

For energy to conquer the morning, children and adults alike eat Quaker Oats, because of its nutritive qualities as well as its zestful, real oat flavor which no other oatmeal can imitate.

Quaker Oats are different... better... because Quaker selects only the plump, firm, full-flavored oats. Of all pre-cooking processes at the mill Quaker has found that roasting alone gives a zestful, nutlike taste.

Most important of all, the famous Quaker milling process retains every valuable part of the oat—Nature's best balanced cereal. Quaker Oats contains 16% protein—the "growth element"; 65% carbohydrates — the "energy" food. Besides abundant body-building minerals and the important vitamins.

Your grocer has both the Regular and the Quick Quaker that cooks in 2½ minutes from the time the water boils. Please do not confuse Quick Quaker with ordinary quick oats. Great Junkers' Plane Touring Europe

While a freight car was being unloaded at Ontario Reformatory at Guelph, Ontario, "Flossie" as seen above, stepped out and gave herself up. As her past was under a cloud, she was promtly adopted as a mascot, but a telephone call from Albert Kerr, Toronto, terminated her "time" within 24 hours. Shipped in a comfortable crate she has returned home, satisfied that at last she has seen life with a capital "L".

REV. J. H. SUTCLIFFE CONDUCTS SERVICE

Special Thanksgiving Services Held in Cavan United Church.

CAVAN, Nov. 12.—(Examiner Correspondent)—Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, of Charles street Baptist Church, Peterborough, preached the Thanksgiving sermon at Cavan United Church on Sunday morning with Rev. William McDonald, of Knox Church, Peterborough, in the evening.

Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe took his scriptural text from Psalm 118 and his address was much appreciated. Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe has on several occasions delighted the Cavan people with his addresses and his singing, this time singing by request "Somebody Knows—'Tis Jesus."

Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe opened his address by saying that it has been said that the Easter celebration of the Resurrection sometimes makes people forget that every Lord's Day is, or should be, a Ressurrection festival. In the same way, our Thanksgiving should not be confined to one day in the year. It is only people whose spirits are small who do this. "We cannot too often thank God for His goodness and His wonderful love to the children of men. If thankfulness is not cultivated it is apt to drop out of our lives. It is a great thing to have the outward expression of gratitude but it would be a terrible thing if it becomes too mechanical and too easy.

"It is only when it is truly from the heart that it is the true spirit of thankfulness. We should think ourselves into the way of thankfulness. It is the profound fault of our modern day—not thanking God from our hearts or singing our praises from the heart. It enlarges our conception of God and man when we are thankful. To refuse to acknowledge our debt or refuse to pay is to rob the Heavenly Giver of the one thing which He desires. Thankfulness is a mark of holiness. Each person must sing his own song of Thanksgiving. If we cannot thank and worship Him while here, we will not be able to thank Him face to face."

Rev. W. McDonald.

Rev. William McDonald, in the evening, delighted his audience with his beautiful gospel sermon of praise and worship, taken from the text, "And forget not all his benefits", Psalm 103:2. His illustrations were interesting and appealing. The Reverend speaker stressed the fact that "It is all in the way we look on life which governs our actions. We should have a general note of joyousness in our praise and worship at all times.

This was Rev. Mr. McDonalds first visit to Cavan and he was well received. The choir opened the service with a Thanksgiving voluntary and during the service sang, "When My Soul Reaches Home" and "Love Divine." A. White, of Brantford, assisted the choir.

The pastor, Rev. J. E. Whitham was present for the evening service and introduced the visiting clergyman in words of warm appreciation.

DAILY ANNOYANCE TROUBLESOME NIGHTS

Caused By Bladder Weakness Are Wrecking Health of Thousands Who Should Be in Prime of Life

A big percentage of men and women of mature years are troubled with Bladder and Urinary Weakness, causing Backaches, Nervousness, frequent night risings and burning irritations throughout the day. These conditions not only make life miserable, but they sap vitality, undermine health and frequently lead to most painful operations.

In order to swiftly relieve even the most obstinate and distressing of these conditions, Dr. Southworth (a well known physician) offers you the value of a time-tested prescription called "Cratabs"—and you are invited to try it at once without slightest risk of cost unless pleased. At all druggists.

PILES GO QUICK

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands of Pile sufferers have learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves or cutting remove the cause.

Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To end Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation and strengthen the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients with the marvelous record of success in 900 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own druggist with a rigid money-back guarantee.

Dr. Leonhardt's prescription has a wonderful record of success right in this city and McDermid & Jury, Bond's Drug Store invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID and guarantees to refund the purchase price if it does not end all Pile misery.

VOCATION

THE spinning-wheel, whirring far into the night, provided the accompaniment to our grandmother's lullaby, for her work never ceased. In those days, people were born to work or they were born to play, and the dividing line was seldom crossed.

The new household servant—electricity—by performing much of the housework that was formerly done by the housewife, has made it possible for her to devote more and more hours of the day or night to social duties and even to political affairs. Nowadays, it is not only the Duchess who is a leader of community thought and activity—modern society is benefitting from the rich experience of individuals from all walks of life.

Certainly, to-day, woman's vocation is to wield an influence not only in her primary field, which is the home, but also in national and civic affairs. There she has the opportunity to weave into our social fabric those designs and patterns which benefit ourselves and our children.

P. C. I. Squad Wins At Belleville 17 To 10

LEGON'S GRIDDERS COP SECOND STRAIGHT WIN TO MAKE ROUND 29—18

Garnet and Grey Takes Possession of Dr. F. C. Neal Cup as Result of Victory.

And Central Ontario Title.

Ascending to great heights of skill and cleverness to overcome brawn and weight, the Peterborough Collegiate rugby team yesterday afternoon defeated the Belleville Collegiate squad right in the Quinte City, 17 to 10. The stiffly-fought victory was the second gained over Belleville and gives P.C.I. the championship of the Central Ontario Interscholastic O.R.F.U. League and possession of Dr. F. C. Neal's valuable trophy for the third consecutive year. It also marked the team's seventh consecutive win this season.

Coach Legon's squad will now enter the wider arena of the Provincial playdowns, and will likely be called upon to meet the Toronto or Eastern champions here on Saturday.

Trick Plays Win.

Against the battering-ram attacks of their opponents yesterday P.C.I. relied on trick plays and greater rugby training. The winners were out-weighed all along the line, but they tackled like demons and were waiting to take advantage of every misplay. They cashed in on every opportunity and completely outguessed their weighty opposition. On the day's play Belleville gained more yards and with greater consistency than did their conquerors, but the brilliance of the P.C.I. attack more than made up the difference.

Neither team hit their stride at the start and the first quarter passed scoreless. Early in the second quarter P.C.I. held Belleville for downs and a perfectly-executed fake placement kick allowed Gordie Young to make a big gain. Preston carrying the ball over on the next play for a touchdown, which was converted. In the following minutes the winners got a lot of bad rugby out of their system but not before Belleville had scored a touchdown.

In the third stanza P.C.I. showed to greatest advantage chalking up ten points on a touchdown, field goal and safety touch. They added their other point in the final quarter, which was followed by steamroller plunging by Belleville, which carried them to a touchdown and almost to another.

Both P.C.I.'s trys were directly due to a fake play, off the placement kick formation, which Coach Legon trained the boys in only the evening previous to the game. It is a product of the coach's own fertile mind and proved a winner on the only two occasions it was used. The play dragged the Belleville team in to the centre in preparation for an attempt to block the expected placement kick, which allowed Young to scamper almost unhindered around the end.

Credit to Team.

The light Garnet and Grey team stood up valiantly under the pounding they received and the work of every player aided in the win. Young stood out for his point-scoring activities, open-field running and general heady playing. Wilf Preston, at quarter, selected his plays like a general and was a titan on secondary defence. Under better protection Armstrong's kicking regained most of its former height and distance and proved a major weapon. He also was the team's chief plunger. Dinesen, who unloosed great speed, was also a consistent yard-gainer.

Wagar was again the outstanding tackler on the field and his flying tackles did much in slowing up the Belleville halves. Dunkerly, Ward and Macdonald also figured prominently in the work of hauling down ball carriers, and the former's speed in getting down under a kick paved the way for the second touchdown.

Belleville's wingline was their most powerful weapon, since the P.C.I. flying brigade early showed that their extends could not get clear. Twiddey, Graves and Byrnes gained them many yards with their heavy plunging.

No Luck on Pass.

Richardson had poor luck with his forward passing, which proved such a valuable offensive weapon on Saturday. He tried almost a dozen but Belleville was prepared for the play and intercepted them all. Likewise P.C.I. intercepted the Belleville forward tosses.

The teams:

Peterborough Collegiate — Snap, Macdonald; insides, Waddell and Clayton; middles, Armstrong and Lord; outsides, Ward and Wagar; quarter, Preston; flying wing, Dunkerly; halves, Fraser, Richardson and Young; subs, Dinesen, Breckenbridge Sloane, Robinson, Mesley, Reynolds and Mackey.

Belleville Collegiate—Snap, McCreary; insides, Weese and Rowsone; middles, Twiddey and Smith; outsides, Maraskas and Philip; quarter, C. Mott; flying wing, St. Denis; halves, Byrnes, Graves and Champagne; subs, Follwell, Rieby, Morgan, Murphy, Scobis and Bear.

Early in the first quarter P.C.I. proved dangerous. Belleville kicked off and right off the reel, Dunkerly and Armstrong plunged for yards. Armstrong kicked to Belleville's 30-yard inc. On the first Belleville extend a pass went wide and ward fell on the ball, gaining P.C.I. possession. It was lost a moment later on a fumble. Belleville carried play out of danger on plunges and kicked to centre. They swarmed in on Armstrong blocking his kick.

Another Belleville plunging attack was ended when Byrnes' kick was blocked. P.C.I. regained on a Belleville fumble and Armstrong kicked deep into Belleville territory.

Byrnes tried a fake kick to start the second quarter, but was thrown for a loss. P.C.I. being handed the ball in front of the goal posts on Belleville's 25-yard line. A placement kick was faked and Young romped around the end for twenty yards. Preston plunging over for a touchdown on the next play, which Clayton neatly converted.

Byrnes lifted a short kick from centre and running up fast grabbed it himself. He continued on for a forty-yard gain, being hauled down by Preston from behind on P.C.I.'s 15-yard line. Davis plunged for ten more yards and Smith went over for a touchdown.

A low bounding kick got away from Young at centre, Belleville gaining possession, but running interference cost Belleville the ball immediately after. Richardson's forward pass was snared by Twiddey and Byrnes' kick went out off Young at P.C.I. 20-yard line, giving Belleville possession. Half time came as Belleville was pressing for a score.

Belleville's running interference on the kick off gave P.C.I. the ball on Belleville's 20-yard line. Young's placement kick was a foot below the bar and Graves ran it out ten yards. Champagne's kick was short to his own 25-yard line. Armstrong, Dunkerly and Preston gained yards and then Young lifted a placement kick over the bar from a difficult angle for three points.

A fake kick was thrown for a loss and P.C.I. gained possession on Belleville's 35-yard line. Armstrong kicked to Belleville's 1-yard line. A bad snap forced Belleville to take a safety touch.

Plunges carried Belleville to centre where they fumbled the ball. Armstrong's punt was muffed by Graves and the ball bounced into Dunkerly's waiting arms. On another fake placement, Young ran clear of tacklers for a touchdown.

Richardson ran the kick-off back to centre, and Young took a long pass out for a twenty-yard gain. Armstrong booted for a rouge.

Play was at centre when Armstrong's kick was blocked, Belleville gaining the ball. A plunging attack carried them forty yards to a touchdown. St. Denis carrying the ball over.

Another fumbled kick gave Belleville possession at centre as darkness settled over the field and the game was drawing to within two minutes of the end. Plunges carried Belleville to P.C.I.'s 15-yard line where they fumbled and P.C.I. had the ball when the final whistle blew.

Summary:

Record Crowd Expected For Argo-Tiger Battle

Frank "King" Clancy made his first appearance in the opening exhibition game against the London Tecumsehs recently. Clancy is one of the most colorful and brilliant players in pro. hockey, a great player with a dynamic personality. He was the spark plug that inspired the Ottawa Senators and the "Hustlin' Leafs" of Toronto will find that he is just the man to give them punch that was lacking in the team the year before. The square-chinned star is one of the fastest skaters in pro. hockey. Many Toronto hockey fans doubted that "Connie" had made a wise move but it won't take long after they see him on the team. Clancy is a fighter—but not belligerent and is a clean sportsmanlike player, who will battle out the play to the last ditch. With Clancy and "Hap" Day, the Leaf's defence will be one of the fastest and most sensational combinations in the National Hockey League.

It was evident after the opening exhibition games this year that the Toronto N.H.L. entry will go a long way and unless something unforseen crops up they will be in the Stanley Cup play-offs.

CANADA CEMENT BEATS LAKEFIELD

Industrials Cop 9-7 Victory in Lakefield Indoor Softball Tangle.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 13 (Examiner Correspondence)—Two snappy games were played on Tuesday evening in the rink in the sofeball league. The first game was entirely local, as Lakefield and the Cement Co. clashed and the result was a matter of doubt till a few minutes before the end of the seventh innings. The crowd was not quite as large as usual, but even a ball game has tough work competing with the attractions of Amos 'n' Andy, and also the attendance was affected by the Legion dinner. However, those present got their money's worth and two good games were added to the season's records.

W. Elliott and "Curley" Northey handled the plate and bases respectively. Richmond, the doughty Lakefield pitcher, struck out nine men, while Elliott of the C.C.C. outfit fanned eight.

The following is the line-up:—

Canada Cement.—Elliott, p; White, c; Wannamaker, 1b; Wingett, 2b; J. Sabatino, 3b; L. Sabatino and Mott, ss; Morin and Junkin, field.

The score by innings was:—

Lakefield .. ..0016000—7
Canada Cement .. ..0300204—9

The second game was a hot one. Selwyn was short several players, but with the consent of the Sugar Bowl team they recruited from Lakefield and the Cement, who played valiantly for Selwyn, but Forsyth's pitching was too much and the Sugar Bowl won with a large and comfortable margin. Forsyth was in his best form and fanned eight. Dallin was the batting star, with four runs to his credit in the Sugar Bowl count, while Wannamaker made two of Selwyn's three counters.

"Teddy" Briant was a popular umpire, and while his decisions were sometimes criticized, nevertheless he was told by both teams that he was fair. The utmost good feeling prevailed and while the umpire was busy he was not unhappy. He was supported by Clare Chittick on the bases and no word of protest came from that quarter, so all was peace..

The line-up was as follows:

Sugar Bowl.—Forsyth, p; Mahood, c; Maudsley, 1b; Gillespie, 2b; Weese, 3b; H. Nicholls and G. Dormer, ss; Dallin and McWilliams, field; Simmons, sub.

Score by innings:—

Sugar Bowl.. .. ..3012226—16
Selwyn .. ..2000100— 3

On Friday evening Lakefield and the Sugar Bowl play at 7.30, and the Canada Cement and Harrisons at 9.

ST. LOUIS, November 13. — James "Rip" Collings, slugging young first baseman, has been purchased from Rochester, the St. Louis Cardinals' International League farm, it was announced to-day by Secretary Clarence Lloyd of the Redbirds.

CAMPBELLFORD WILL ENTER STRONG TEAM

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 13 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—With the opening of the Belleville rink on Monday, hockey should soon be to the fore, and the annual contests for supremacy in the different leagues started.

The Campbellford hockey team this year will have a good line-up as usual. The team will be intact with the exception of their spartan goalie, "Toots" Irwin. To take this position on the team there are Heptanstall, Saunders, and Owens to choose from besides a number of the young players who are now ready to take their place on the T.V.L. team.

The executive committee are working hard on the formation of the team. In regard to the matter of a coach, nothing definite has yet been settled.

London Returns Palangio To Montreal Canadiens

LONDON, Nov. 13.— Manager Roy Borthers of the London pro hockey team, known as "Deal-a-Day Brothers," was back in old-time form today. On Tuesday night he purchased Pete Palangio from the Montreal Canadiens. He played with London against the Canadiens, and last night hew as returned to Montreal. Pelangio was tendered a contract for $2,500 by the London manager. Palangio refused to accept. Brothers then communicated with the Canadiens, called the deal off and informed the Montreal owners that Palangio would reach Montreal to-day.

"There are plenty of players on the market and I will have no trouble in securing another forward in Palangio's place if I need one," said the London leader.

TIGERS DRAW ON CUBS FOR RELIEF MEN

Reed and McBride of O.R.F.U. Team to be Used Against Argos.

QUEEN'S OUT TO WIN.

Tri-color Will Take No Chances With Redmen in Saturday's Game.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 13.—(CP)—The six teams of eastern Canada's major football unions scheduled to go into action in the final scheduled fixtures of the season on Saturday indulged in lengthy workouts last night as they prepared for one last mighty lunge for the two championships at stake.

Hamilton Tigers, dominion and interprovincial union title holders, supremely confident of their ability to smother the Toronto Argonauts bid for the "big four" crown took several players from the Tiger cub team into their fold during the Hamiltonians workout. The Cubs won the western group of the Ontario Rugby Football Union senior series and have several smart gridiron warriors.

The addition of these players, "Buster" Reed and Cecil McBride, will give Tigers the much needed relief material they so sorely needed in some of their recent games.

However, the enlisting of these players is not bothering Argos very much. Taken by surprise by Coach Buck McKenna, the Scullers were placed aboard a bus last night and motored to Ulster Stadium where they enjoyed a thorough training session under the arc lights.

While Argos are confident of giving the champions a real battle, many Toronto fans are also of the opinion the Double Blue gladiators will give the Jungle Kings the stoutest opposition they have encountered this season, and indications point to another capacity crowd jamming its way into the enlarged Varsity stadium where the headliner will be played.

The four intercollegiate squads tuning up for their final matches had just about as busy a session as the interprovincial twelves, even though Saturday's games do not mean a great deal.

Coach Harry Batstone had his tricolor team working through their drills in snappy fashion. He has not allowed his charges to become overconfident and has imbued in them the spirit of determination necessary when playing with a team generally rated beneath them in ability. Their opponents at Kingston are McGill university, a dangerous squad that has been showing rapid improvement of late. Victory for the tricolor means another college crown and it will not be through lack of drilling if they fail to win.

ROCCO OUTPOINTS GOLD AT TORONTO

Semi-final Tussle Between Phillips and Burns is Feature of Program.

TORONTO, Ont., November 13 (C. P.). — Returning to the ring after a lengthy absence, Steve Rocco, local flyweight, decisively outpointed Marty Gold, veteran Philadelphia boxer, in the ten-round bout which featured the Queensbury Athletic Club's big program here last night. The winner weighed 113 and Gold 113½.

The semi-final tussle of six rounds proved the most exciting bout of the night, when Jackie Phillips, Canadian welterweight champion, rallied after an early knockdown to thoroughly whip Jimmy Burns, tough and hard-hitting Scotsman.

MARMORA

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Dowling and Miss Jean Reynolds of Ottawa were week-end visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Reynolds.

Misses Annie and Margaret Gaffney returned home on Saturday after visiting friends at Toronto and Belleville.

Miss Eugenia Gaffney visited friends in Belleville over the week end.

Mrs. W. Brown and son, Harry, spent Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. E. Horton at Deloro.

Marmora Council No. 279 C.O.F. met at the home of Mrs. W. Narrie on Tuesday evening. After the business section a very pleasing lunch was served by the hostess.

No O.H.A. Senior Team For Preston This Year

PRESTON, November 13. — Preston will not play senior O.H.A. this season, but it is probable that the Preston Athletic Association will foster intermediate and junior teams. Alvin H. Schlegel has again been nominated for an executive seat on the Ontario Hockey Association. A meeting of the P.A.A. and players will be held the early part of next week. W. H. Heise will represent the association at the annual meeting of the O.H.A. on Saturday at Toronto.

SEVEN TEAMS IN KING LOOP

All Seven Entries Will See Action By Next Saturday Night.

TWO CANUCK SQUADS.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 13 (By the Canadian Press)—The Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets and the London Tecumsehs open the International Hockey League season for 1930-31 to-night when they meet in the Smoky City arena, formerly used by the Pirates. Pittsburgh's entry in the National league, recently moved to Philadelphia to a more promising location.

There are but seven teams in the King loop this year, owing to the withdrawal of Hamilton Niagara Falls and Toronto. The franchise of the Niagara Club was moved to Pittsburgh with the pick of the Toronto and Niagara teams, and from this assortment of players, the Smoky City has rounded out a formidable looking aggregation.

While the Toronto franchise is idle this year, Syracuse bought the Hamilton rights and players, to round out an American flavored league, there being but two Canadian clubs left—Windsor and London. Last year Canada had a five to three representation. The other United States cities operating teams in the International are Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo.

The major league draft hit some of the teams hard during the trading season, Windsor having lost a complete set of forwards to New York Americans, while several other clubs lost leading players. In most cases, however, new players have been secured who give early promise of more than making up for the drafted stars.

While only one contest is scheduled to-night, another will be played at Windsor Friday while by Saturday night all seven teams will have seen action.

The referee question, made more than ordinarily difficult, when the N.H.L. signed its arbiters to exclusive contracts, has been settled more or less satisfactorily by the appointing of several American officials to assist Canadian referees.

MANUFACTURERS' LEAGUE

The Merchants Press battled their way to a 2-game win over the Brinton Carpet entry this week, to slide into a tie for first place with the Ontario Marble, whom they play next week. Eddie Williams hammered the bottles high and wide to calk up an outstanding triple score: 255, 287, 276 for a total of 718. O. Johnson was next in line with 215, 187, 261 while Boon for the Carpet-makers topped the 600 mark by hitting 239, 188, 176, a total of 603.

The Ontario Marble took the big half of the argument with the Quaker Oats, winning two games, although Jay for the Porridgemakers, took both high single and high three when he made 254 and 614. Dan Leonard was high for the winners with 195, 206, 199, a total of 600.

The Martin-Hewett brigade hit a decided slump in this week's fixture losing every game to the Searchlights. L. James set up a league record for high single by scoring 331, displacing Sedgwick with 292, and finished up with a 691 triple. P. Ellison was close behind his teammate with 650 and a single of 261.

K. OF C. ALLEYS

Bud Weese uncorked some of the heaviest hitting of the season this week, to win a pair of chickens at the K. of C. alleys for high three score. He knocked off 303, 333, 255, for a triple of 891. Fred Hickey's single of 305 was good for one chicken while Tom McCabe also collected a fowl dinner on the blind score of 114 pins in a single game.

A surprising reverse was registered on Tuesday night, when Sharpe's Invincibles were treated to a dab of kalsomine by Letellier's team, who had little difficulty in winning three games. Fallon came through with a nice 306 single and 695 triple for the winners.

McCabe's team continued their winning stampede, smothering Meagher for eight points in easy fashion. A. McDonald was zipping along to annex three nice scores, 220, 213, 231, for a triple of 665, and his team-mate, W. Sweetman, was tied with him with 191, 177, 297, a total of 665.

Heavy hitting by Strickland Dorris and Gilliece gave the latter named a seven-point victory over Crowley's crew, the losers being able to muster only three players.

26 TEAMS IN S.P.A. SERIES

First Games Will Be Played in Toronto Rink on Monday Next.

ST. JOHN'S ENTERED.

TORONTO, Nov. 13—With twenty-six teams entered, the annual series for the Sportsmen's Patriotic Association junior hockey trophy will get under way at the Arena Gardens on Monday, Nov. 17. Four teams are entered in the competition for the S.P.A. senior trophy, and they will begin play on Tuesday, Dec. 2.

Opening night games in the junior series will bring West Toronto, last season's O.H.A. junior champions, and Parkdale together, while Marlboros and Rangers will be opponents in the second half of the scheduled doubleheader.

Niagara Falls juniors and Windsor-Walkerville Tech juniors will not swing into action until the third round.

All players in the S.P.A. games must be eligible for O.H.A. competition.

In all S.P.A. games teams will be allowed four extra substitutes. This will allow each team to dress fourteen players, viz., two goal-tenders, four defensemen and eight forwards.

In all doubleheaders the first game will begin at 7.40 sharp. Teams are requested to be on hand promptly. All games played at the Arena Gardens.

The O.H.A. will supply all the officials for all games.

All clubs are requested to confirm the draw as published by letter or telephone to O.H.A. headquarters. The draw follows:

AMERKS MEET TORONTO LEAFS IN FIRST GAME

Gerdard's Ice Warriors Throw Surprise By Their Game With Bruising Bruins.

REAL CONTENDERS.

Other Canadian Clubs in Calder Loop Much Interested in First Toronto Game.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 13 (C.P.)—The Toronto Maple Leafs, "King" Clancy and all, open the current National Hockey League season here to-night with the New York Americans, who are apparently again out after the title of the "Amazing Amerks," if their splendid game against Boston on Tuesday night is any criterion.

While this is the only game on Canadian ice, New York Rangers, winners of their opening match with Philadelphia Quakers, meet Detroit, leaving Montreal Canadiens, Stanley Cup holders, and the Chicago Blackhawks, the only teams in either group, that have not tasted blood in the 1930-31 campaign.

Strengthened by the addition of Clancy, one of the most colorful and best defence men in the league, the Maple Leafs are being watched with interest by other clubs in the Calder loop, especially those of the Canadian section.

The former Ottawa star, who was purchased a few weeks ago for a large sum of money and two sterling players thrown in, is expected to add the necessary fighting spirit to the local N.H.L. entry to make them real contenders this season. Teaming up with Captain "Happy" Day, he will help form what appears the fastest rearguard duo in the league.

Up front the Leafs have six fast and tricky players who constitute the two main lines of attack. It will be a real surprise to the local fans if the well-balanced Leaf squad does not finish with a triumph to-night.

Surprises Fans

The Americans, coached by the great Eddie Gerard, somewhat startled the hockey world at Boston Tuesday when they fought the bruising Bruins to a standstill and only lost by a lone goal netted by the Bruin "Dynamite Trio" in the first period.

Little is known of the quality of this year's Detroit team, again coached by the genial Jack Adams. Last season the Falcons, then known as the Cougars, showed flashes of smart hockey, only to lapse for lengthy periods and finally finish out of the running.

The team has shown unusual spirit in pre-season exhibition games, soundly whipping the best in the International League. Several stars have been promoted from the Olympics, Detroit's International entry, and on paper the Falcons appear quite capable of extending their opponents.

Rangers appear to have garnered excellent relief material this year and the recruits played a prominent part in Lester Patrick's ice gladiators' opening win.

At both Toronto and Detroit, capacity crowds will witness the opening of the local schedules.

CANADIANS FAIL TO WIN POSITION

WIN OTHER CLASSES.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. — (By the Canadian Press.)— Four officers of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, Toronto, representing Canada in the military events of the National Horse Show last night failed to place in the last of the International military events, the individual championship, which was won by Germany.

Captain L. D. Hammond, on Sergeant Murphy, made the best showing for the Canadians with one and a half faults over the difficult course of jumps.

Elsewhere on the program, the Canadians fared better. The Canadian army team won fourth prize in the jumping feature, "The Random," with Major R. S. Timmins on Bucephalus, Captain Hammond on Mother Bertha, and Captain M. N. W. Drury on Bridget. The Irish Free State team won this competition and its only blue ribbon of the show.

Mr. McLaughlin's Michael, ridden by his daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Mann, took second place in the $2,000 stake for jumpers, after a jump-off with Miss Ruth Cowans, Montreal, on Red Tape.

Canadians won two more ribbons in the heavyweight class when the O'Connor horse, Limerick, took first place and Radiance, the property of Lieut.-Col. Eaton, second.

INTERMEDIATES IN LAKE SHORE

Will Apply For Grouping With Oshawa, Bowmanville and Port Hope.

P.H.C. ANNUAL MEETING.

The Peterborough Hockey Club held a largely attended and enthusiastic meeting in Chamber of Commerce last night at which plans for the coming season were discussed.

It was decided that the club apply for grouping in the Intermediate section of the O.H.A. with the Lakeshore group of Oshawa, Bowmanville and Port Hope, and the Junior club would apply for grouping with Lakefield, Havelock, and Peterborough St. John's.

The club is going in strongly for indoor training and arrangements have been made with the Y.M.C.A. for classes in physical training on Tuesday and Friday evenings at 7.00 o'clock, at which anyone trying out for either of the teams is expected to attend.

Intermediates—Maudsley, Gillespie, Hayden, Hatton, Creighton, Calladine, Frost, LeBarr, F. Cripps, W. Cripps, Rothwell of Havelock, and Duchene of the University of New Brunswick.

Jimmie Gillespie has been placed in charge of the Y.M.C.A. work and the boys will report to him as they go to the floor.

Joe Dwyer is again in charge of the Junior club, and is starting at once to get his men in shape for the S.P.A. games in Toronto.

Edythe Shuttleworth (above), Canadian dramatic soprano, who has won renown for herself on both sides of the Atlantic, who sang "The Lord is My Light" (Allison), and other numbers over the air on Sunday. Phillips H. Lord, also shown above, takes the role of Seth Parker, during the Seth Parker "githerings," on the air every Sunday evening.

Police Association Discuss Bishop Case

HAMILTON, Ont., Nov. 13. (CP)—Members of the Police Athletic Associations of Toronto, Montreal and Hamilton, will convene here on Monday, Nov. 24, and the case of Alfred Bishop, alleged "ringer" in the recent police games will be discussed, Sergt. John Duffy, president of the Hamilton Police Athletic Association announced, commenting on a despatch from Toronto which referred to participation of Bishop which, it is contended, was contrary to the rules.

"The regulations provide that a man must be a member of the police department for six months before he can compete" Sergt. Duffy said.

JOINS POST STAFF.

LINDSAY, November 13. — Completing five years of service in the employ of the Lindsay Daily Post as accountant, John Williams was recently presented with slight tokens of esteem from the proprietors, business and editorial staffs of the Post.

Replacing Mr. Williams is Milton Davies, an old Lindsay boy, who is being welcomed back to town after a couple of years' absence. Mr. Davies who took over his new duties this week, worked in Lindsay for a time, and then went to Peterborough. From the Lift Lock City he went to Toronto as accountant in the Bank of Commerce.

SIX HUNDRED PAY TRIBUTE

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY

STIRLING, Nov. 13.—(Examiner Correspondence).— More than six hundred people assembled at the Cenotaph to do honor to those who fell in the Great War on Tuesday morning, when promptly at 11.45 a procession of Boy Scouts, Girl Guides cadets and the students of the Public and High schools marched to the memorial plot.

Rev. B. Byers acted as master of ceermonies. The audience sang the hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee" led by Rev. Mr. Rowland, and followed by prayer by Father Farrell. The Last Post sounded by T. Furniss and a prayer was offered by Rev. F. Joblin.

Rev. A. N. Reid then addressed the audience saying, "Each year at the approach of Armistice Day the heart of the nation turns toward the Cenotaph and the grave of the unknown warriors

"Throughout the British Empire the minds of men and women go back thoughtfully to the great hour of Armistice, when we felt ourselves passing as in a dream out of the whirlpool of the war, into the calm waters of peace. Year by year we have bared our heads at the great silence, with thoughts to which no words can give adequate expression.

"Thoughts of the hosts of brave young lives who offered themselves a living sacrifice to purchase for the world a new era of freedom and fellowship. As we look over the countries of Europe, we still hear many echoes of unrest and warfare. There is only way for man to escape the present chaotic condition; that is to turn to God. Christ is the personification of love; He loved the world and gave himself a living sacrifice. Love will bring in the reign of universal peace.

QUEENSBORO CHURCH

QUEENSBORO, Nov. 13 (Examiner Correspondence). — Special Thanksgiving services were held in the United Church on Sunday evening, a large congregation being present. Special music was rendered by the choir. The minister, the Rev. J. F. Everson, spoke from 1 Thess. 5 and 18, and pointed out that under every circumstance there are many reasons for giving thanks to God. He also stated that the unsatisfactory conditions of the present are not a calamity, but a challenge. God is redemptive and not vindictive. He through the dispensation of nature does not recognize the right of one man to favorable conditions as against the right of his neighbor. The depression of the past three years tells us that the supremacy of our spirits over material things is being challenged. Where once men felt themselves masters of their environment they now feel themselves at the mercy of their environment and are sadly disappointed. God is trying to teach men that the freedom of their spirits is of more importance than the condition of their bank accounts. The greatest thing in life is an abiding friendship and fellowship with God, who is the giver of all good gifts. The trying situation of the present is a challenge to men to hold fast the freedom of their spirits and their intercourse with the God who is the Father of Jesus Christ.

In the last fiscal year Sweden reduced its national debty by $9,219,200.

EMMANUAL COLLEGE PRINCIPAL SPEAKS IN ROSENEATH CHURCH

Rev. Dr. Grandier Speaker at Anniversary Services of United Church.

SPECIAL MUSIC

ROSENEATH, Nov. 13 (Examiner Correspondence).—Rev. Dr. Gandier, principal of Emmanuel College, Toronto, was the special speaker for the annual anniversary and Thanksgiving services in the United Church, on Sunday

Rev. Dr. Gandier took his text from Ephesians, 1: 22-23: "And hath put all things under his feet and gave him to be the head over all things to the Church. Which is his body, the fulness of him that filleth all in all."

With his eloquence of speech, the reverend speaker reminded his hearers of the tendency on the part of many members to regard their church membership unseriously. He pointed out that to be a member of the Church is like being a member of the body of Christ. The statement "I can be as good a man out of the church as in the church" was referred to, the speaker saying it was not possible. Just as no member of the body can live apart from the body, neither can we live our spiritual life apart from Jesus Christ.

Rev. Dr. Gandier, during his address said: "If there is one message I want to leave with you this morning, it is this: 'Don't neglect to take your Church membership seriously'."

At the evening service, no text was given, but the speaker gave an address on Korea and his trip through the Orient. After describing briefly the country of Korea, he described the people, showing the great contrast between those inhabitants who have not received Christianity and those who have. The pagan people live in a world of superstition and in constant dread of what they believe to be evil spirits.

A brief history of the mission work which has been going on in China for the past thirty years, was given, and in concluding, Rev. Dr. Gandier added a word of encouragement to those interested in foreign mission work, by reminding them of how much it has meant to the people of Korea to have received the gospel of Jesus Christ.

Special music was given at both services, the anthems in the morning being: "The Lord is My Light" and "Rock of Ages." In the evening the choir sang a beautiful Thanksgiving anthem, Mrs. Varcoe taking the solo part and Mrs. Turner and Mrs. Varcoe the duet. The anthem by the choir, "Home at the End of the Road" was also given. Wilfred Davey sang a solo, "Building for Eternity," which was appreciated.

Collections for the day amounted to more than $500.

REV. WILSON SPEAKS ON ARMISTICE DAY

HAVELOCK, Nov. 13.—(Examiner Correspondence)—Armistice Day was duly observed in Havelock in the forenoon of Tuesday last. The very impressive exercises were conducted at the Memorial Archway entrance to the park, beginning at 10.45 o'clock.

The reeve, R. Sanderson, who always takes a loyal and hearty interest in such occasions, presided. After a few well chosen words he proceeded with the program. The hymns, Onward Christian Soldiers,' and 'Stand Up For Jesus,' were sung. Rev. M. E. Wilson led the devotional exercises. The Last Post was sounded and the two minutes silence observed. Rev. Mr. Wilson was then called upon to give the special address. He spoke of the meaning and value of Armistice Day. Its particular value to the community. Cadets, Girl Guides and all young peoples' organizations should be impressed with the dangers and horrors of war.

The millions who had made the supreme sacrifice for the heroic ideal of king and empire, should be remembered. Particularly in sacred memorial were the names of the twenty-eight noble men of Belmont and Havelock, whose friends remained to mourn their loss. These should be held in perpetual remembrance, and their example eulogized through the future history of the community.

Very much of the impressiveness and success of this occasion were due to the interest and arrangements taken in hand by Sergeant Major Kinnaird. Mr. Kinnaird is the bearer of four medals and other distinctions won in the Boer and European wars. And what is even a greater distinction, a man of Christian and public ideals and interest concerned in all which makes for the highest civil and moral interest of the community. A very impressive part of the exercises was the placing of beautiful and costly wreaths, by two returned comrades, in silence before the tablets bearing the names of deceased men of Belmont and Havelock.

Reveille and God Save the King, brought the impressive ceremony to a close. The absence through illness and absence from town of other clergymen was much to be regretted.

Children Confirmed In Havelock Church

HAVELOCK, Nov. 13.—(Examiner Correspondence)—On Sunday morning, November 10, after the regular parish Mass, His Lordship Bishop O'Connor administered the Sacrament of Confirmation to the children of Our Lady or Mount Carmel parish.

Bishop O'Connor celebrated the low Mass, assisted by Rev. Fathers Corkery of Peterborough and McCarthy of Norwood. Immediately afterwards, he addressed the children, setting them at ease at his first remark. A short review of the catechism followed, when the candidates for confirmation acquitted themselves most creditably, by their straightforward answers to the questions propounded. The regular morning and evening prayers were also reviewed, and after the singing of "Veni Creator" by the church choir, the candidates advanced to the altar rail, followed by their sponsors, who stood immediately behind them. Six girls and three boys were then confirmed as follows: Reta Voyer, Geraldine Moore, Agnes Carr, Eva Aboud, Helen Bedford, Marie Bedford, Jerome Voyer, Ernest Aboud, John Aboud. The sponsors were respectively: Mrs. McCann, Mrs. Aboud, Mrs. Voyer, Mrs. Kilalj, Mrs. Stott, Mrs. Board. Suitable music was sung during the Mass by the choir, all singing the Vivat Pastor Bonus as the Bishop advanced into the sanctuary. Mrs. Bedford and Mrs. Breen sang the Communion hymn. Mrs. Breen, organist, presiding at the organ.

Isolation Gone

There is no need for families to feel separated any more. Nor for anyone to be isolated—lonely. There is always nearby a telephone to take you "voice visiting" with friends and relatives. It is so simple—convenient—and the evening and night rates make it very inexpensive.

Why BOVRIL prevents that Sinking Feeling

Why is it that one has such a fine feeling of buoyancy after drinking a cup of Bovril? Modern research has shown that in addition to proteins of exceptionally high food value, beef has certain unique powers of stimulating cellular activity—that is to say of stimulating vitality.

Bovril is the concentrated essence of this "vitality power" of beef. That is why Bovril is such a powerful stimulant and sustainer, why, in fact, "Bovril prevents that sinking feeling."

THANKSGIVING SPIRIT FEATURES ST. JAMES' SOCIETY MEETING

Rev. Mr. Moorhouse, Pastor of Church, Gives Inspiring Address.

REPORTS READ.

The W.M.S. Thankoffering meeting of St. James' United Church was marked by a Thanksgiving spirit.

In the absence of Mrs. E. L. Woodley, the acting president, through illness, the chair was taken by Mrs. P. Sollitt, the second vice president, who opened the service in an impressive manner. Speaking of the many shut-in members, some in the hospital and some at home, among whom were Mrs. Woodley, Mrs. George Cuffe, Mrs. George Rowe, Mrs. S. Deyell and Mrs. Buckler, Mrs. Sollitt expressed the sympathy of the Auxiliary by asking that they rise in silent prayer for these members and friends, after which she offered prayer on their behalf. The Auxiliary then joined in repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison.

The meeting was under the supervisions of Mrs. H. Davidson and her group, and a very fine program resulted. The opening hymn was "Praise God from Whom all blessing flow." The scripture lesson read by Mrs. Emery, was the 47th Psalm, and prayers of thanksgiving were offered by Mrs. Ingham and Mrs. Moorhouse.

"We've a story to tell to the nations" was the prelude to the short but inspiring address given by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Moorhouse, who said that the words just sung were a fitting introduction to his message.

He spoke of the conditions in Russia as outlined by Dr. Poole a few days ago, and of the tremendous changes taking place at present in China. Of the revolution in Argentine caused by the tariff put on by the United States. India, Japan and Africa with their problems. Through these overshadowing clouds, which are ours at the best of times and the worst of times, we have heard one clear resounding call: "Go ye into all the world."

"Do you realize" the speaker asked "what it means to be a member of Woman's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada? Have you the enthusiasm, the earnestness that this business demands? The mothers, whose children are healed through our missionary hospitals, the girl whose first real touch with things spiritual, gained perhaps in one of our schools or hospitals, goes out with a new heart, to start life again with a brighter vision than she has ever known before.

It is the work being done all over Canada by members of Auxiliaries which makes all this possible over there. You take them by the hand, you put your arm about their shoulder and give them encouragement, health and the blessed Gospel, through the missionary whom you support.

Quoting from the annual report Mr. Moorhouse cited instances of the great work being accomplished by the W.M.S. In one hospital alone, in Africa, 22,000 treatments were given. Just one little episode chosen at random. But for your hand making it possible for some one to take your place, this could never have been done.

If you could only catch a glimpse of the work and if you had the interest in your hearts, it would surely be heartening to watch the dawn of light come to these people. You start your little children at mother's knee, while in India and Africa, China and Japan, they hear the glad tidings for the first time from the missionaries. The missionary has had great handicaps in his work. In Africa it is sail that they worked for over twenty years with no evidence of any change. Why? Because they are influenced by our part in the slave trade.

The speaker said he had just touched the fringe of the needs of some of our fields, and shown how some of these needs may be reached. Will this challenge to enter more fully into the efforts of your own Auxiliary, carry you through another year? If I have given you one glimpse that will add to the impetus of your local understandings, your interest, your givings, your love for these lost brothers and sisters, I am satisfied.

There are women enough in the United Church of Canada to double the work at present being done. Sacrifice is needed. Do you ask yourself, "Can I do without this, or that, to help in this great cause."

As an Auxiliary you are clothing the naked, feeding the hungry and giving drink to the thirsty, and Christ has said "In as much as ye have done it unto one of these, ye have done it unto Me."

Mrs. English then read a very interesting story on Christian Stewardship. The duett "When I look in my dear Saviour's face" was very sympathetically rendered by Mesdames Kitney and Monk.

Mrs. J. H. Dudgeon of London was a welcome visitor at this thanksgiving meeting, and as immediate past president of the society, spoke of the pleasure it gave her to be present, and of the pleasant associations it recalled. She wished St. James' Auxiliary continued success in their work and thanked them for this privilege of voicing her good wishes.

On behalf of the W.M.S. Mrs. Davidson tendered a hearty vote of thanks to the pastor, Mr. Moorhouse, to the singers and to all who had contributed to the success of the meeting. Mrs. Sollit added the thanks of the Society to Mrs. Davidson and her group for the efficient way they had planned and carried out their excellent program.

The prayer-hymn "Breath on me Breath of God" was followed by earnest prayer offered by Miss Margaret Kidd and brought the meeting to a conclusion.

Sir R. Borden To Open Royal Winter Fair

TORONTO, Ont., November 13 (C. P.). — Sir Robert Borden will open the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto on November 19. Sir Robert and Hon. Robert Weir, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, will be the principal speakers at the banquet preceding the ceremonial opening of the fair.

The first performance of the Horse Show will inaugurate the Fair this year and six international officers' riding teams, representing the Irish Free State, Hungary, Sweden, Germany, the United States, and Canada will compete for the trophy, presented in 1925 by Hon. G. Howard Ferguson.

CHAPTER HOLDS ANNUAL DINNER

Mrs. F. Hooper is Appointed Acting Regent of Peter Robinson Chapter.

SALE OF GIFTS.

At the regular meeting of the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E., held last evening in Hooper's Palm Rooms, following the annual dinner of the Chapter, held there, Mrs. F. Hooper was appointed acting regent for the next three months, in place of Mrs. R. C. Cummings.

The meeting was presided over by the second vice regent, Mrs. F. C. Webber. Mrs. C. E. Graham gave the secretary's report and Miss Ethel Cooper the report of finances. Mrs. N. C. Staples reported on the progress of a Badminton Club recently organized by the chapter, with a limit of sixteen members, and playing at the Armories.

It was decided to abandon the previously mooted idea of holding a tea room for a week preceding Christmas, and to have instead a tea and sale of gifts. Mrs. F. Hooper, Mrs. N. C. Staples and Miss Daisy Davidson will be in charge, and will make arrangements for the date and place.

Reference was made to the presence in town at the present time of Miss Jean Harstone, organizer of the Peter Robinson Chapter.

In place of Mrs. F. Hooper, one of the councillors who is now acting regent, Miss Helen Anderson was appointed as a councillor for the next three months.

A sincere expression of thanks to Mrs. J. McNabb for the use of her home for the recent tea, following a community bridge party, met with the unanimous approval of the meeting.

THE RETURN OF TARZAN No. 52 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

For the first time in months a smile of peace and happiness lighted Jane's face. "I was in time after all!" cried the ape-man, coming to the ground in a little grassy clearing. The girl, still dazed from her terrible experience, could not believe her senses. Were they not in Heaven? "No dear, we are both very much alive," laughed Tarzan.

"How can I convince you that I am no spirit? Yes, it was I whom the delightful 'Monsieur Thuran' pushed overboard, but I did not drown, and here I am very much the same wild man you first knew." The girl rose slowly to her feet and came toward him. "I cannot even yet believe it," she murmured. "Such happiness must be unreal after all these hideous months!"

She came close to him and laid a hand, soft and trembling, upon his arm. "It must be that I am dreaming, and I shall awaken to see that awful knife descending toward my heart. Kiss me, just once, before I lose my dream forever." Tarzan of the Apes needed no second invitation. He took the girl he loved in his strong arms and kissed her, not once but a hundred times.

Yet when he stopped she put her arms about his neck and drew his lips down to hers once more. For a while both were silent with the wonderful happiness that had come to them. The past forgotten—the future did not belong to them. But the present, ah, it was theirs; none could take it from them. It was the girl who first broke the sweet silence.

IN MEMORIAM.

MILES. — In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. John Miles, who passed away on November 13, 1929.

We loved her; ah, no tongue could tell
How we did love her, and how well;
God loved her, too, and thought it best
To call her to her heavenly rest.
Yet since you could no longer stay
To cheer us with your love,
We hope to meet with you again
In yon bright world above.

—Ever remembered by her Daughter, Edith.

WEDDING BELLS

DAVEY—GOLLOHER

A pretty Autumn wedding was solemnized at St. Andrew's Manse, Norwood, on Monday afternoon, November 10th, at three o'clock, when the Rev. Mr. Reeves united in the holy bonds of matrimony, Roxie Helen, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Golloher, to Arthur J. Davey, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Davey, Warkworth.

The bride, who looked charming in a gown of steel grey crepe, with hat, shoes and hose to match, was attended by her sister, Miss Viola, who looked lovely in a frock of olive green crepe.

The bridegroom was supported by his brother, Clifford.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, when about sixty relatives and friends partook of a sumptuous dinner. The decorations were carried out in pink and white. The table was prettily decorated with candles and 'mums.

The bride's mother wore a gown of black brocaded satin, while the bridegroom's mother was attired in an ensemble of powder blue crepe.

Guests were present from Trenton, Roseneath, Campbellford, Norham, Toronto, Peterborough and Norwood.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Davey left by motor for a short honeymoon, the bride travelling in an ensemble of brown. On their return they will reside on the bridegroom's farm near Brickley.

HILL—GEARY

The marriage was solemnized yesterday at St. Peter's rectory, of Mrs. Martha Geary and Thomas Hill. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. K. Corkery.

Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. William Emery, Park street.

The bride was frocked in sandalwood crepe de chine, trimmed with grey and brilliant ornaments. She wore brown shoes and hose, a coat of midnight blue and matching hat.

Mrs. Emery wore honeydew satin trimmed with ecru lace, and matching shoes and hose.

After the ceremony, a dainty luncheon was served at the home of the bride's nephew, Charles Fitzgerald of Bethune street. A program of music and singing was enjoyed and Mr. and Mrs. Hill left later by motor for a trip to points east. They will reside in Hastings.

A large number of useful and handsome gifts were received. The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a pearl necklace and to the bridesmaid a pearl dinner ring.

SPECIAL ARMISTICE SERVICE

St. Paul's Presbyterian church was filled to capacity on Sunday night when a special Armistice Day service was held. Rev. William Allan, the minister, delivered a sermon suitable for the occasion. The Caledonian band was present and at the close of the sermon while the congregation stood the minister read the names of those from St. Paul's who gave their lives in the Great War. The band played "Lord Lovat's Lament" and "The Retreat" and as Lieut. W. H. Peryer sounded the "Last Post" the lights were dimmed. Then followed the Reveille with the lights shining forth again. Bandmaster Jack Smith was the guest soloist and members of the band took up the offering.

IMPERIAL CONFERENCE DRAWS TO CLOSE

Gang of Burglars Working in District

VILLAGE STORES ARE BROKEN INTO AND GOODS TAKEN

Six Stores in Norwood, Hastings, Stirling and Warsaw Entered.

WORK OF GANG.

Valuable Merchandise Has Been Stolen at All Entries.

Six stores in villages east of the city have been burglarized in the past five nights and much valuable merchandize stolen. Provincial Police who are working on the cases are of the opinion that one gang is doing all the robberies.

The first descent was made on Stirling where three stores were entered and hunting equipment including rifles, shotguns, ammunition and clothing was stolen. On Tuesday night Thompson's Drug Store in Hastings were burglarized. Thefts from the Norwood store included four cameras, three cigarette lighters and several compacts. Darling and Payne's store in Warsaw was entered on Wednesday night and hunting supplies were carried away.

Cut Hole in Door

In every case but at Warsaw the thieves gained entrance by cutting a hole in the glass of the door and, putting their hands through the door, slipped the lock. A very high grade glass cutter was found on the floor of the Norwood store, which is thought to have been used by the burglars. Gas pumps outside the stores were also unlocked and much gasoline stolen.

At the Warsaw store the lock on the rear door was picked. Returning to the store about 10 o'clock in the evening, one of the clerks discovered the rear door unlocked. He found nothing disturbed in the store; he re-locked the door and went home. In the morning it was found that the door had again been opened and a large quantity of hunters' supplies stolen.

CHATHAM YOUTHS ATTACK OLD MAN THEN ROB STORE

Pair Caught Several Hours Later Plead Guilty to Two Charges.

REMANDED TILL MONDAY.

Crown Attorney to Urge Penitentiary Terms and Lash For Each.

CHATHAM, Ont., November 14 (C.P.).— Arrested by the city police several hours after a brutal attack on T. W. McLean, aged 77, in his grocery store at 69 St. Clair Street, two Chatham youths to-day pleaded guilty to charges of assault and robbery, and were remanded until Monday for sentence.

The prisoners are George Cunningham, 17, and Kenneth Stover, 16. Both men have records.

Will Urge Lash.

Crown Attorney H. D. Smith said he would urge penitentiary terms, and that each received a lashing. The two entered McLean's grocery about 6.30 last night, according to the police. Stover ordered potatoes, but asked to see them before buying. McLean took him to a store room at the rear of the shop, where he attacked the old man. He escaped with Cunningham after locking him in the room.

Lacerations to the left ear which required five stitches, and the cuts and bruises to his face, had aroused a suspicion that McLean was struck with a knuckle duster.

LIMA WORKERS RETURN TO JOBS

STRIKE CALLED OFF.

LIMA, Peru, November 14 (C.P.). Lima's workers trooped back to their jobs to-day as the general workers' conference called off the 24-hour general strike which almost paralyzed the city yesterday.

In the Cerro de Pasco copper mining regions, however, martial law was still in force. Particularly at Malpaso, where two Americans and more than a dozen other persons were slain in labor riots on Wednesday.

Lima's transportations facilities resumed operation this morning after a day in which trolley cars, trains and buses were at a standstill. Factory wheels turned again and at Callao, the port of Lima, business returned to normal.

RUMOR DENIED.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 14 (C.P.).—Canadian National Railways officials to-day declined to comment on a Brockville despatch which intimated that Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, K.C., might be appointed chairman of the board of directors of the railways. Such a rumor had been previously published, it was pointed out, but no indication was available as to the Government's plans.

BAGS BIG WOLF NORTH COUNTRY

Vincent Eastwood, Jr., Returns With Wolf Shot By Charles Jones, Buckhorn.

DEER VERY SCARCE.

Bringing with him a large wolf as the sole trophy of the chase, Vincent Eastwood, member of the Pencil Lake Hunt Club has just returned to town, from the backwoods of the north country.

He reports a great scarcity of deer this season—a scarcity which is doubtless due to the ravages of wolves, which are apparently becoming more numerous, and are now constituting a menace to the settlers.

The wolf, which Mr. Eastwood brought into The Examiner office this morning, was shot by Charles Jones of Buckhorn, at a range of 30 yards and with a shot gun. This is an unusual occurrence, but Jones who spotted the wolf on the edge of a swamp, was at the time out on the lake in his canoe, and favoured by the wind was able to approach the unsuspecting animal, at such a close range.

Moose tracks were plentiful, says Mr. Eastwood, although it is a hard job tracking in the woods this season on account of the abnormal dryness of the ground.

Other members of the club who have spent a few days in the north, next to nature included: Messrs. Dr. Pentland, W. M. Lang, Dr. Kent of Akron, Ohio, Harry Dulmage and J. Brown. The party was billeted at Cochrane's on the shores of the lake from which the Club derives its name.

Bootlegger Taken Near Brockville

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Nov. 14 (C.P.)—A detachment of Brockville police early this morning overtook a truck driven by Isaac Zunder, 255 Cumberland street, Ottawa, on Highway No. 2, five miles west of here and arrested him after they had discovered 55 bags of Quebec beer, aggregating 1,320 quart bottles, in his charge. The shipment was en route to the western part of the Province and passed through here under cover of a heavy fog. The suspicion of two officers being aroused.

DECIDE TO HALT SINGAPORE BASE FOR FIVE YEARS

CONFERENCE'S DECISION.

Great Yard Costing $38,000,000 Be Used By Merchantmen and Liners.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—(C. P. Cable.)—The Royal Air Force Works in connection with the great naval base scheme at Singapore will be completed, and existing work on the great new Singapore dock yard will be continued, but new work on the naval aspects of the base will be postponed for five years.

This was the decision approved by the Imperial Conference before adjournment to-day.

To Finish Jackson Contract.

The work being continued is known as the Jackson contract, which calls for expenditure of roughly $38,000,000 upon the new dock yard, which may be used by merchant vessels and liners. The great floating dock built in England and towed out to Singapore has been in use for some time.

The Malay States has contributed $10,000,000 towards the cost of the base;; New Zealand $5,000,000 and Hong Kong $1,250,000, much of which has aureadv been disbursed.

While the southern Dominions and Malay States had hoped the base would be pressed to completion, it is considered generally satisfactory that no general stoppage of work has been decided upon, such as resulted when the first Labor Government went into office in 1924, in which case considerable loss would have resulted on account of compensation to contractors.

Work Slowed Down.

The Labor Government of 1924 decided not to proceed with the base, but under the Conservative regime of 1924-29 the new floating dock had been provided and the Jackson contract signed. Consequently in Novembe, 1929, the new Labor administration slowed down the work contracted for, pending the naval conference early this year. Since that decision the position had been one of uncertainty which on many accounts it was desirable to end as soon as possible. The Imperial Conference decision goes a long way towards removing this uncertainty.

Out of an estimated total expenditure of $43,000,000, a total of $12,500,000 had been expended up to July of this year, Rt. Hon. A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, announced in the House of Commons some months ago.

BALLANTYNE IS RESIGNING TODAY

APPOINTED OCTOBER 1921.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 14. (CP)—James H. H. Ballantyne, suspended Deputy Minister of Labor for Ontario will hand in his resignation to Hon. J. D. Monteith, Minister of Labor, this morning.

Ballantyne appeared in Police Court yesterday, and being a first offender, was put on suspended sentence by Judge Denton, following his conviction Tuesday on a charge of taking a $15 dress from a store here.

Afterward he visited Mr. Monteith personally and informed the Minister his resignation will be handed in to-day.

Commenting on his case in court His Honor said the only difference between Ballantyne's case and the average was that the Deputy Minister did not have the temptation to steal that faced ordinary offenders, being in receipt of a comfortable salary. But though he had not the same temptation, continued Judge Denton, it was felt he had been considerably punished in the fact that his position was jeopardized.

Ballantyne was appointed Deputy to the Ontario Minister of Labor in October, 1921, at a salary of $2,200 each year.

Proposals in the Glasgow, Scotland, municipal elections program of the Scottish Workers' Republican party include establishment of a Soviet, no interest on money, free houses for the unemployed and recognition of the Red Flag as the city emblem.

Four of Eight Brokers Sentenced Yesterday

Above are shown four of eight brokers convicted of conspiracy at Toronto, and who appeared before Justice Jeffrey in assize court for sentence. (1) Malcolm Stobie; (2) Austin R. Campbell; (3) D. S. Patterson and (4) Chas. James Forlong, set to be sentenced of eight were: W. J. Smart, three years, and Maurice Young, two years and six months.

ACTION UNFAIR SMART CLAIMS OF SENTENCES

Can't Understand Why They Were Not Given Option of Fine.

PRICE MAY GIVE STATEMENT.

TORONTO, Ont., Nv. 14. (CP)—"We feel that we haven't been treated fairly, of course," said William J. Smart to-day after being sentenced to three years for conspiracy to defraud and one year for conspiracy to affect the market price of stocks, sentences to run concurrently.

No Option of Fine

"Solloway and Mills were fined, without the option of imprisonment here" he said. "We have been given a penitentiary sentence without the option of paying a fine. I understand some of the others are not in a position to pay a fine, but we are, and we can't understand why the same judge should not have given us the treatment he gave Solloway and Mills who have only sentences of four months and one month to serve in Alberta.

"Naturally, we were terribly surprised at our sentences. We will appeal but that can't be heard until next January."

Smart was head of the Homer L. Gibson Company.

Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General for Ontario, indicated to-day that he is about to issue a considered statement dealing with the sentences imposed on eight Toronto brokers yesterday and those meted out to Solloway and Mills.

Nothing to Say

"I have nothing to say at this time" he said, when questioned on criticism voiced at the comparatively light sentences for Solloway and Mills and the two and three year terms for fellow brokers.

He declined to go into the question of whether the Government would take an action along the line of appealing the sentence on Solloway and Mills.

HON. A. TURGEON DIES IN QUEBEC

Speaker of Quebec Legislative Council Been Important Figure Past 33 Years.

ILLNESS VERY SHORT.

QUEBEC, Que., Nov. 14 (C.P.)—Unable to rally from the serious illness that finally sent him to his bed only a few days ago, Hon. Adelard Turgeon, Speaker of the Quebec Legislative Council, died at 5.25 o'clock this morning with members of his family about him.

Hon. Mr. Turgeon, an important figure in the Provincial Liberal party since before they ascended to power 33 years ago, was Speaker of the Upper House since his appointment to that Chamber in 1909. Since that time he has remained in political retirement except for an occasional sortie, when extraordinary legislation called forth his acumen and energy in defence of party and policy.

APSLEY YOUTH HIT IN KNEE BY .22 SHELL

Guy James and Companions Playing With Bullets in School Yard.

BROUGHT TO LOCAL CLINIC.

Boys Place Cartridges Between Two Stones, Hitting Cap With Another For Explosion.

APSLEY, Nov. 14 (Examiner Correspondence).—Guy James, the 11-year-old son of Hubert James, had an unique experience on Wednesday afternoon, when he was shot in the leg with a .22 calibre bullet without the aid of a rifle.

His companion, a 9-year-old lad, had some .22 cartridges which he placed between two stones, striking the cap with another, thus firing the cartridge, with the result that the lad James received the shell in his knee.

Rev. C. A. G. Spence conveyed him and Dr. Shepherd to Dr. Moore at Lakefield. After examination, he was taken on to the Clinic at Peterborough, where Dr. Moir was successful in locating the piece of shell and extracted it.

Enquiry has elicited the fact that the boys are in the habit of taking cartridges to school and playing with them in this manner and on one occasion several were put in the school stove, the resultant explosion happily doing no injury.

It is likely that drastic steps will be taken now to stop this practice.

Battalion History Published Saturday

On Saturday The Examiner will reproduce, through the courtesy of Captain W. W. Murray, historian of the Second Battalion, the first authentic account of the ill-fated attack in which No. 1 Company (Peterborough), under the command of Major George W. Bennett were literally mown down under heavy musketry fire at the Second Battle of Ypres on the morning of April 23, 1915. The Examiner is also publishing, in honor of the Second Battalion's re-union in this city, a brief history of the achievements of that famous organization, which enlisted a few days after war was declared.

ANXIETY FELT AS DO-X SENDS NO MESSAGES

Great Seaplane Unreported Over Rochefort as Darkness Comes On.

HEADED FOR BORDEAUX.

German Craft Forced to Make Five Attempts in Take-off at Calshot.

BORDEAUX, November 14 (C. P.). — The Chief Harbourmaster at Bordeaux told the Associated Press to-night that the German seaplane DO-X had alighted at St. Nazaire.

BORDEAUX, France, Nov. 14 (CP) The slow progress of the German seaplane DO-X down the French Atlantic seaboard toward Bordeaux caused officials here some anxiety as darkness and fog came on and the giant plane had not yet reported over Rochefort.

It was believed that the DO-X would would probably be forced to alight in Hourtin Pond just off the Atlantic shore and separated only from the sea by a narrow tongue of land. This would preclude the plane's journey up the Gironde Estuary to Bordeaux which is 30 miles inland.

None of the French radio stations along the coast had heard the DO-X's signals and it was thought that her wireless must be out of order.

CALSHOT, England, Nov. 14. — (C.P.).—The DO-X, giant German flying boat, took off from here at 11.45 a.m. (6.45 a.m., E.S.T.) to-day for Bordeaux, France, 420 miles away, in continuation of its trans-oceanic flight to New York.

The flying-boat, which is the largest heavier than air flying craft in the world, made three or four unsuccessful attempts to get into the air before it succeeded in breaking away from the calm, smooth surface of the Channel.

From Bordeaux the plane will take off for Lisbon, and from there for the Azores.

There were in all aboard 27 passengers, officers and crew.

MENTION HOMUTH FOR LABOR POST

Vacancy Left in Deputy Minister's Office By J. H. H. Ballantyne's Resignation.

ACTION FOLLOWS THEFT.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 14 (C.P.)—Announcement was made at noon today by Hon. J .D. Montieth, Ontario Minister of Labor, that James H. H. Ballantyne, Deputy Minister of the Department, had handed in his resignation. Mr. Ballantyne was suspended recently pending the outcome of a charge of theft against the Deputy Minister. The charge laid in connection with the theft of a dress valued at $15 resulted in the conviction of Ballantyne, who was released on suspended sentence.

The name of Karl K. Homuth, former Conservative member for South Waterloo in the Ontario Legislature, is mentioned in Queen's Park circles as a possible successor to Mr. Ballantyne.

Will Meet Again Within 12 Months In City of Ottawa

Great Britain Guarantees She Will Not For Three Years at Least Cancel the Tariff Preferences She Now Grants to Dominions.

DATE OF CANADIAN PARLEY BE MUTUALLY AGREED ON; IN INTERVAL VARIOUS GOV'TS WILL CONFER FURTHER

Bennett in Closing Speech Lays Credit of Canada's Prosperity to Protection—Ready to Consider Wheat Quota Purchasing as Alternative to Tariff Preference.

LONDON, November 14 (By George Hambleton, C.P., Staff Correspondent). — The Imperial Conference of 1930 ended to-day, to meet again in Ottawa within 12 months upon a date "to be mutually agreed upon." The Ottawa Conference will continue negotiations for the development of Empire trade where they have been left by the London Conference.

In the interval, the British and Dominion Governments will further confer and the British Government gives an undertaking that "the existing preferential margins accorded by the United Kingdom to other parts of the Empire will not be reduced for a period of three years, or pending the outcome of the Ottawa Conference, subject to the rights of the United Kingdom to fix its budget from year to year."

No Change For 3 Years.

The effect of this guarantee is that Great Britain will not, for three years at least, cancel the tariff preferences she now grants to the Dominions. If any tariff is reduced, the present margin of preference, roughly one-third of the duty, will be retained.

South Africa gives a similar undertaking. No specific undertaking is given by the other Dominions, but the general idea, it is understood, was that offers to maintain preference should be voluntary rather than in the nature of a quid pro quo.

The resolutions winding up the conference were moved by Premier R. B. Bennett of Canada, who reaffirmed very strongly the position he took at the opening of the Imperial Conerence, when he declared his belief that reciprocal tariff preferences were the surest means of increasing Empire trade.

Premier Bennett expressed confidence that at the Ottawa meeting every unit of the Empire would subscribe to th doctrine of closer economic co-operation. Protection, in his opinion, had produced Canada's prosperity and had maintained the Dominion's present position. And protection was, and always had been, the policy of the party he represented in Canada, he said.

Bennett's Resolutions.

His resolutions, which were adopted, were as follows:

(1) That this Imperial Conference record its beliefs that the further development of the inter-Imperial market is of the utmost importance to the various parts of the Commonwealth.

(2) That inasmuch as the Conference has not been able within the time limit of these deliberations, to examine fully the various means whereby inter-Imperial trade may best be maintained and extended, it is resolved that the economic section of the Conference be adjourned to meet in Ottawa on a date within the next 12 months to be mutually agreed upon, when that examination will be resumed with a view to adopting the means and methods most likely to achieve the common aim, provided this reference is not to be construed as modifying the policy expressed on behalf of any Governments represented at this Conference.

(3) That the agenda for the meet-

MORNING BLAZE STRIKES VILLAGE

LOSS OVER $10,000.

STRATFORD, Ont., Nov. 14 (C.P.)—The village of Auburn in Huron County was threatened with destruction by fire early this morning when the hardware store of Nelson Hill and a stable owned by E. Lawson were completely gutted and the Bank of Commerce Building, next door, considerably damaged. The loss will be about $10,000. The first started in Hill's harware store at 1.30 o'clock from an undetermined cause, though it is stated that a furnace in the building was used yesterday for the first time in several years and may have been defective. This is the first fire in the village in 28 years.

GAS REDUCTION OF TEN PER CENT LIKELY IN CITY

Increased Consumption Will Probably Result in Cheaper Gas.

OPTIMISTIC OUTLOOK.

Utilities Commission to Aid in Giving Work to Unemployed.

A probably 10 per cent. reduction in Peterborough's gas rates to take effect on January 1 was announced to-day at the meeting of the Utilities Commission. Increased consumption as a result of the material reductions given early this year was given as the reason for another decrease in the rates.

"The gas consumption has greatly increased, and the revenue has held up since we made the reduction of 22½ cents per thousand cubic feet on commercial and industrial gas and a 10 cent reduction per thousand feet on domestic gas," stated Chairman G. S. Matthews. "The Gas Department is doing splendidly, and the outlook is most optimistic. Our users received the other reductions so favorably and the gas consumption enjoyed such an increase that I think another reduction is certain. If the revenue continues to mount a further increase later next year will also be considered."

The Utilities Commission will assist in the city's unemployment relief scheme and at the same time increase the water service in many sections of the city. The request that a water main be sunk on Monaghan road for 1,100 feet north of Chamberlain street at an estimated cost of $5,500 has been added by J. A. Ellis, secretary of the Provincial Unemployment Relief Committee, to the city's relief scheme. Monday, a gang of fifteen men will start the work. These men will be hired by City Engineer Parsons, but will be working for the Utilities Commission.

Laying New Water Main

Already a gang of ten extra men along with the Utilities' steady gang is at work laying a water main on Dunlop street, near Auburn. If the city is unable to do the paving in the relief scheme in the time limit required by the governments, the Utilities Commission will ask that certain water mains on Armour road,

Well-Thrown Rock Death of Red Fox

HAVELOCK, Nov. 14. (Examiner Correspondence)—When Mr. Sam Davies, a resident of the Stoney Lake district, north of South Lake, went to get his cows one evening early this week, he did not expect to do any hunting, consequently did not carry a gun. However when he saw a red fox in the meadow near the cattle, he thought he would try and get it. He told his little dog Tray to fetch him, which the dog proceeded to do.

He ran around behind Reynard, just as he would the cows, and drove him towards his master. Mr. Davis drew in behind a tree and when the fox approached, took a long shot and hurled a rock at him, stunning him. Tray promptly grabbed him by the leg, and held him until his master dispatched him with a club. The pelt is a beatiful specimen.

Armed Troops Patrol Havana Streets

STUDENTS SLAIN DURING CLASHES; CITIZENS HIDING

CABLES CENSORED.

Newspapers Suspend Publication as Result of Gov't Orders.

HAVANA, Nov. 14.—(AP)—The mailed fist of the Cuban military was poised today above Havana and its environs, prepared to strike hard in defense of the administration of President Gerardo Machado, threatened with a growing island-wide unrest. A tense atmosphere prevailed.

Troops Patrol Streets

Troops carrying rifles patrolled the city's streets, with mounted details here and there. Student assemblies were forbidden and householders remained in their homes, afraid to go out on the streets which, aside from the troops, were largely deserted.

A censorship was imposed by the Government in the course of the night on all outgoing cable dispatches, and upon the capital's newspapers, two of which, El Pais and Diario de la Marina, suspended publication rather than submit to Governmental supervision.

Desultory minor rioting by unorganized bands of students lasted into the night, with one student reported dead and a small number wounded in clashes with troops. Two others were killed and a number wounded in earlier clashes yesterday. The military summarily surprised later attempts of the students to gather for demonstrations.

Suspension Only In Havana

Suspension of constitutional guarantees, at first thought to extend over all the island, now is understood to be effective only in Havana and environs, and President Machado, who yesterday took this extraordinary action after weeks of unrest and rioting in which an aggregate of six persons were killed and many wounded, told the Associated Press that it was "only temporary."

BRIAND, TARDIEU VICTORS IN VOTE

French Chamber of Deputies Shows Confidence in Leaders By 53 Majority.

ALL NIGHT SESSION.

PARIS, Nov. 14 (C.P.).—The Chamber of Deputies an hour before dawn to-day voted confidence in Premier Tardieu and his Foreign Minister, Aristide Briand, with a poll of 323 to 270, a majority of 53.

The vote marked the culmination of months of attack by B. Briand's political enemies on his international policies, and climaxed a fight yesterday in the Chamber in which the Foreign Minister veteran of Locarno and Geneva had taken the rostrum himself to defend his actions.

The debate dragged on through the night and it was after 4 a.m. before the issue reached the House and was voted on. Applause greeted the announcement of the outcome.

The Government will face interpellation on the national economic status this afternoon.

WEMP'S MOTION IS VOTED DOWN

Only Fingerprinting and Meter Clauses in Taxi By-law Suspended.

POWERS TO BE TESTED.

TORONTO, Ont., November 14 (C.P.). — Once again Mayor Bert S Wemp has been outvoted by the Board of Police Commissioners Meeting yesterday the Board decided on indefinite suspension of only the meter and finger print clauses in the much-talked-of new taxi by-law. Mayor Wemp's amendment that the entire by-law be abolished and the former by-law restored being voted down by Judge Emerson Coatsworth and Judge Morson.

These two provisions are suspended "until after July 1, 1931," under the resolution which carried, but for how long after July 1 is not specified. The balance of the by-law, calling for drastic regulations affecting taxi drivers and owners, including police censorship of taxi advertising, etc., will come into force on January 1 as originally planned.

Mayor Wemp declared he would consult City Solicitor C M. Colquhoun to learn what action, if any the city should take to test the validity of the by-law

It is in order to give time for the court test of the Commission's power to enforce these two provisions that they have been hoisted, the statement given out by the Board says.

Hamilton Man Injured In Side Street Attack

GUELPH, Ont., Nov. 14 (C.P.) — Peter Raso, 52-year-old new Canadian, lies in a hospital here in a critical condition following an attack upon him by an unknown man, believed to be a fellow-countryman from Hamilton.

Suffering from severe knife wounds Raso rallied sufficiently in the hospital to state he had been attacked by a man who jumped from a car and attacked him while he stood on the street here.

MANSLAUGHTER VERDICT

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 14 (C.P.)—After five hours' consideration the jury in Fall Assizes last night brought in a verdict of manslaughter against Mrs. Helena Bednarski. She had been charged with the murder of Albert Mallett on June 9 last. Sentence will be passed later.

CRISIS IN BRITAIN LIKELY FOLLOW WAGE DEADLOCK

Union Leader Claims No Case Can Be Made Out For Reductions.

DEMANDS TO BE RESISTED.

Railway Situation Likely to Come to Head First—Mining Outlook Grave.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—Already staggering under a burden of unemployment and industrial depression, Britain is faced with prospects of a grave crisis in two of her leading industries—railways and coal mining.

The railway situation, in which a deadlock over wage reduction appears probable, seems likely to come to a head first, but developments in the mining situation, which is much more complicated, may surpass it in gravity.

Propose $1.50 Cut a Week.

Discussions of railway problems began yesterday when employers put forward proposals for a general wage reduction of about $1.50 a week, with a minimum wage of $9.50 a week, instead of the present $10.

The proposals are now to be considered by the unions, and it is likely the process will take several weeks.

C. T. Cramb, general secretary of the Railway Unions, made a gloomy prediction, however, regarding the possibility of arbitration.

"In our opinion," said he, "no case can be made out for wage reductions of any kind, or for any sort of change the railways have proposed. These demands are going to be resisted."

CORONER'S JURY BLAMES PILOT

Urge Gov't Rules Be Strictly Enforced as Result of Triple Death.

TEGART STUNT FLYING.

TORONTO, Ont., November 14 (C.P.). — Faulty judgment on the part of the pilot, Harry Tegart, was responsible for the plane crash here on November 2, which cost three lives, was the gist of a verdict returned last night by a coroner's jury investigating the tragedy.

The verdict read: "We find that Harry Tegart and his passengers came to their deaths while stunt flying and through a misjudgment on the part of the pilot, causing the plane to crash and burst the gasoline tank, which resulted in the plane catching fire and its occupants being cremated. We strongly recommend that Government rules and regulations be more strictly enforced regarding aviation."

The two passengers with Tegart were Misses Kathleen and Jean McColl, former residents of Inglewood.

Interruptions on the part of Mrs. H. Woodford and Mrs. John Barrett, sisters of Tegart, who demanded that the presence and testimony of Henry Watson and Pilot McLean, owner and pilot of the ill-fated plane, be secured before the inquest proceeded, market developments.

BURNT RIVER MAN STRUCK BY AUTO

RUSHED TO HOSPITAL.

LINDSAY, Nov. 14. (Examiner Correspondence).—Mr. James Cavanagh, of Burnt River is in the Ross Memorial Hospital here suffering serious injuries as a result of an automobile accident on the Lindsay-Toronto highway. He was motoring from Toronto and while going from one car to another was run down by a passing automobile. He was thrown some distance and sustained serious cuts and bruises about the face and body. His escape from fatal injuries was miraculous.

DENTON'S REPORT TO BE FOLLOWED BY PROSECUTIONS

Six in York Township Council Scored as Result of Probe.

FOUR ABSOLVED.

Entire Engineering Department To Be Asked To Resign At Once.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 14 (C.P.)—Criminal action will be taken against some of those mentioned in Judge J. H. Denton's report on the investigation he conducted into the affairs of York Township, Crown Attorney Eric Armour has stated. The report was tabled before York Township Council yesterday.

Until he had an opportunity to study the 2,000-odd pages of evidence, Mr. Armour was not in a position to say under what section of the Criminal Code charges would be laid.

Six Pointed Out

In the report read at the Council meeting, His Honor named Deputy-Reeves Woolner, J. J. Little, and ex-Reeve Ernest G. Westbury, ex-Deputy-Reeves W. Glen Armstrong, A. E. Baker and ex-Councillor W. MacQueen as being either "of dull moral perception" or "actually and consciously dishonest."

Reeve W. J. Gilbert, Deputy Reeve Ralph Russell and Councillors A. J. B. Gray and W. A. Toogood were absolved and commended for their action. His Honor reported that Councillor W. H. Lumley's actions were indiscreet in regard to his connection with a sand and gravel business, but not such as to warrant wholesale condemnation or to be placed in the same category as the six members who accepted $500 Victory Bonds.

Council to Act Quickly

The Council intends to act quickly on the numerous recommendations contained in Judge Denton's report. A special meeting will be convened this afternoon and the reorganization of the Engineering Department as suggested in the report, will be proceeded with.

Resignations of the entire Engineering Department will be requested tomorrow, a member of the Council stated.

C. BALDWIN FINED IN LINDSAY COURT

SON GIVEN JAIL TERM.

LINDSAY, Nov. 14. (Examiner Correspondence)—William "Chicago" Baldwin, of Laxton Township, and formerly of Chicago, was fined $25.00 and costs on the charge of consuming liquor illegally, by Police Magistrate Jordan yesterday. His son, William was sentenced to two months in the county jail on the charge of keeping liquor for sale.

Special Excise Officer T. R. James was granted a remand until Nov. 22 on the charge against both Baldwins of having a still suitable for the manufacture of spirits.

"Chicago" Baldwin was quite outspoken in the court in making comparisons on the manner in which justice is meted out in Canada and in the United States. This brought a stinging rebuke from Police Magistrate Jordan, who warned the prisinor not to be so indiscreet in case he ever again appeared in a Canadian court. "You are before a court," the Magistrate stated, "in which British justice is given. Please remember that our courts under the British flag are the fairest in the world."

PLAN ATLANTIC MAIL SERVICE

American Company Operate to Bermuda, Meeting British Planes.

FLY VIA AZORES.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (C.P.).—Plans for a trans-Atlantic air mail service between Great Britain and the United States via Bermuda and the Azores were described in several New York newspapers to-day.

Pan-American Airways, Inc., which operates through the West Indies, Mexico, Central America and South America, will conduct the leg from the Atlantic coast to Bermuda, the papers said, and Imperial Airways, Ltd., which runs through Europe, India and Africa, will continue the service from Bermuda to England.

The line will be inaugurated with mail, but eventually express and passenger service will be added. The United States company will use single motored speed planes, while the British concern has designed a giant four-engined flying boat especially for the project.

SPEAKER DIES

QUEBEC, Que., Nov. 14. (CP) — Adelard Turgeon, speaker of the Legislative council, died this morning at five twenty o'clock.

U. S. ALONE DECLINES TO ACCEPT BUDGETARY RESTRICTION METHOD UPON ALL MATERIAL IN LAND WAR

Sixteen Nations, Including Canada, France, Japan Support Resolution.

SIX NATIONS DO NOT VOTE.

Russian Declaration Turned Down By Five to Twelve Decision.

GENEVA, November 14 (C.P.). — The Preparatory Disarmament Commission to-day accepted the principle of limitation of land war material by the budgetary method. The United States alone declined to accept the principle.

The principle was embodied in a resolution presented by Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, for Great Britain.

Sixteen nations supported the resolution, including Canada, France and Japan. Three nations opposed it, Russia, Germany and Italy. The United States, Sweden, Turkey, Venezuela, Bulgaria and China abstained from voting.

The vote was taken a few minutes after the Commission had rejected the Russian declaration that simultaneous application of both the direct and budgetary method was the only effective means of limiting and reducing land war material.

The vote on the Russian resolution, which in effect embodied some of the features of a proposal of Hugh Gibson, United States delegate, several days ago before the Commission, was five votes for, to twelve against. Its supporters were Russia, Italy, Germany, Turkey and Holland. The United States voted against it.

WINDSOR LIBERALS WANT NEW LEADER.

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 14 (C.P.).—Windsor East and Windsor West Provincial Liberal Associations, in joint public meeting here last night, decided unanimously to seek the appointment of a new party leader at the Provincial Liberal Convention to be held in Toronto December 16 and 17. It was felt that while Hon. E. N. Sinclair, K.C., the present leader, had done his best in a difficult situation, that the convention should choose a new leader.

Rev. Robert J. Patterson, founder of the "Catch My Pal" movement in Armagh, Northern Ireland, 20 years ago, and saw it spread to many parts of Europe and America, died recently at Belfast.

BULLET WOUNDS JAPAN PREMIER

Premier Hamaguchi Shot Down By Assassin at Tokio Railway Station.

WILL RECOVER.

TOKIO, Japan, November 14.—(C.P.) — Premier Hamaguchi was shot and seriously wounded at the Tokio railway station yesterday. The bullet penetrated the Premier's abdomen. He was carried to the stationmaster's office and physicians were called.

After examination, they said the Premier's chances for recovery were good.

The assailant was identified as Tomeo Sagoya, aged 23, a member of the Aikokusha, translated "Love of Country Association," a reactionary patriotic organization. He was arrested.

Motive for the attack was not clear to officials.

London has a new $2,500,000 motion picture theatre.

MUSHER WOUNDED IN AMBUSH ATTACK

Youthful Northland Traveller Taken to Hospital—Expected to Recover.

THE PAS, Man., Nov. 14. (CP) Fired on from ambush, Lawrence Kane 28-year-old dog musher was seriously wounded while travelling with a trapper's supply team on the trail north of Cranberry Portage, Man. He was brought to hospital here, and his condition was reported as only fair.

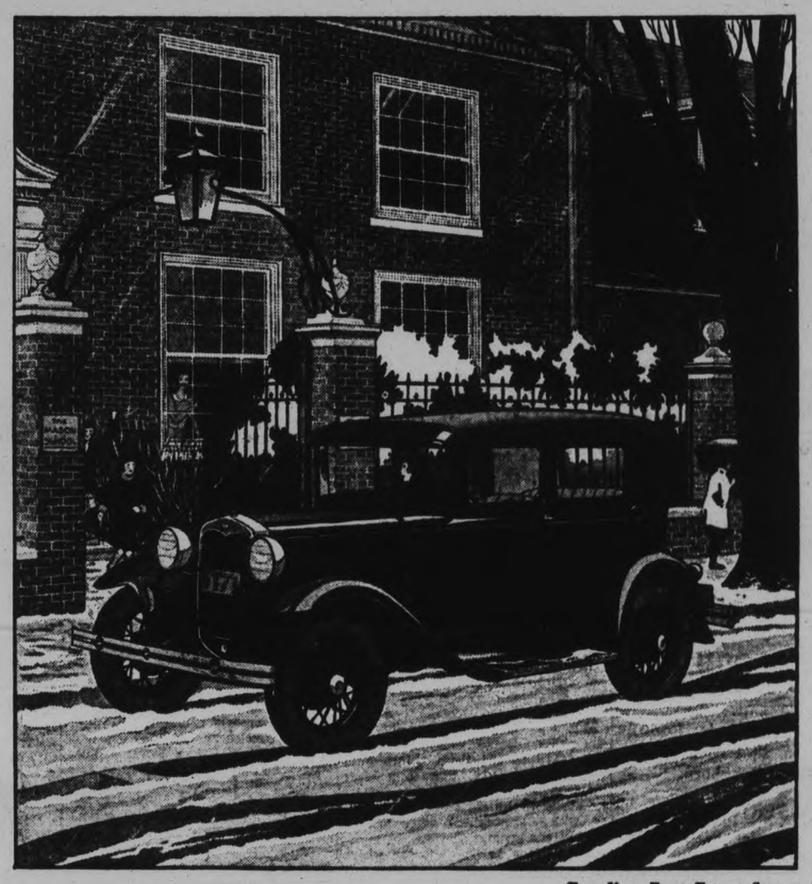
Travelling with his partner, Fred McNichol, the musher was breaking trail through a snow-drifted woods country, when a shot rang out and he fell, with a wound in the groin. McNichol rendered first aid, and then searched the surrounding woods, but found nothing.

ROBBERS MAKE GETAWAY

CHATHAM, Ont., Nov. 14 (C.P.) — City police were hunting to-day for two men, one of whom beat up Thomas William McLean, aged 77, in his grocery store before taking the contents of his cash till. The grocer is at home receiving treatment for severe cuts and bruises about the face and a bad laceration of the left ear, which required several stitches.

WHEN WINTER SWEEPS DOWN FROM THE NORTH

Extra demands of cold-weather driving emphasize the reliability of the new Ford



THE NEW FORD TUDOR SEDAN

THROUGHOUT this country — in the United States and in Europe — the new Ford has made an unusual record for endurance and reliability. Cold weather emphasizes the value of its simplicity of design and dependable performance.

The 1930 Automobile Winter Race, arranged by the Royal Automobile Club of Sweden, resulted in a sweeping victory for the Ford cars. This run was made over slippery mountainous roads. At times, the cars were half hidden by snow. During the night the temperature was twenty degrees below zero.

At Fernan Lake, just over the border in Idaho, a Ford car went through the ice and was submerged in fifteen feet of water. It was finally raised after twelve days and found to be in good condition. After a new battery and carburetor bowl were installed it was driven away under its own power. Even the exterior finish showed no serious harm.

Here in Canada there have been countless examples of the way the Ford stands up under the added strain of winter driving.

Through swirling sleet and drifting snow it has fought its way on missions of business and of urgent need. Lives have been saved by its ability to "get through." Materials have been moved with greater speed and with less interruption for a longer period each year. Thousands of Ford owners have found that it is no longer necessary to lay up the car when winter sweeps down from the north.

Because of its good performance in all weather, the new Ford is outselling every other car in Canada by a large and increasing margin. In many sections, between 50% and 70% of all cars sold are Model A Fords.

Winter-time Features of the New Ford

STARTING — The Ford starts easily in cold weather. The heavy duty starting motor is unusually reliable, exerting a torque of 15 pounds. Its extra power equips it to meet the added strain of zero temperatures.

RELIABILITY — All working parts in the Ford that might be affected by snow or water are fully enclosed. This includes the engine, transmission, clutch, propeller shaft, and all rear-end parts.

SAFETY — The brakes on the new Ford are also enclosed to insure reliable performance. Combined with the balance of the car and the low center of gravity, they lessen the dangers of skidding on slippery roads. The liberal road clearance enables the car to negotiate deeply rutted roads impassable to many cars. Other safety features are the shatterless glass windshield which reduces the dangers of flying glass in collisions and the sturdy steel construction of the car.

IGNITION — The Ford distributor is waterproof and there are no wires from the distributor to the spark plugs. These connections are made by thin bronze strips which will not short-circuit or cause trouble in cold, wet weather.

CARBURETOR — The choke on the dash of the new Ford is a convenient carburetor adjustment control. It enables you to adjust the mixture for different temperatures and different road conditions. The hot-spot manifold warms incoming gases quickly by using heat from the exhaust.

FUEL SYSTEM — Here again you see the value of Ford simplicity of design. The fuel line is only 18 inches long. There is no pump or vacuum tank to condense moisture and freeze.

LUBRICATION — The Ford lubrication system is designed to work efficiently at all temperatures. All oil passages are ample in size. There are no small pipes through which congealed oil must be forced. Just select the right kind of oil, have it changed regularly, and you will have no lubrication troubles with a Ford.

FINISH—All Ford cars are finished in pyroxylin lacquer — the finest and most enduring finish for automobile bodies. It is not affected by cold or heat and will retain its original shimmering luster for a long period. A further assurance of permanent beauty is the Rustless Steel on the new Ford. It is used for the radiator shell, head lamps, hub caps and other bright exterior metal parts.

$163 REALIZED BY FOWL SUPPER

Treasurer's Report Read at W. M.S. Meeting of Keene United Church.

PLAN MEN'S LAY BANQUET.

KEENE, Nov. 14—The meeting of the W.M.S. of the United Church was held on Wednesday afternoon, when the treasurer's report showed the proceeds of the fowl supper to be $163.

After the usual opening excercises, the business of the meeting was transacted, it being the giving of dinner for a men's Lay banquet of the church on Monday, November 17 and a fowl supper to a social club from the Peterborough C.G.E. on the following evening. A committee of twelve was chosen to take charge each night, making a total of twenty-four ladies in all.

A letter was read from Mrs. Moir, stating she would come for the Thankoffering service on November 23, at 7.30 p.m. It was decided to charge 25 and 15 cents for the entertainment to be given by Miss Siegal in the Town Hall.

Miss Brough opened the devotional part of the meeting with prayer, followed by a leaflet "Thinking Peace" by Mrs. Taylor. The speakers on this subject were Mrs. W. Drummond, Mrs. M. Stewart, Mrs. Weir and Mrs. McFee; responsive reading was "Thy Kingdom Come" followed by study on the "Historical Return of Christian Work in Japan" by Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Gall, Mrs. S. Comrie, Mrs. Shearer and Mrs. Rennie.

The meeting closed in the usual way.

Mrs. Harper Addresses Norham Church W.M.S.

NORHAM, Nov. 14.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Mrs. Harper of Warkworth addressed the members of the Norham W.M.S. at the Thanksgiving meeting held at the parsonage on Tuesday, basing her remarks on the story of Mary annointing the Saviour's feet as given in the different gospels. "She hath done what she could" was the first thought.

Mrs. Curtis, leader of Group B was in charge of the program and the devotional leaflet, "Thinking Peace" was read in sections by Mrs. Curtis, Mrs. Gummer, Mrs. G. Palmateer and Mrs. Mitchell.

There were three main points in Mrs. Harper's address, 1: She told of the boy who took his mother's sentence in prison so she could be free, as an illustration of what Jesus did; 2: In speaking of Armistice day, our thoughts are of what the boys at the front did, and 3: What Mary did. She had a great desire to use her precious ointment for some big thing.

Any great desire can be accomplished through fervent prayer. Our givings, if given in the right spirit and with the right motive, will be blessed.

Mesdames Wilson and D. Knight sang very effectively, "What Shall the Harvest Be" and Mrs. W. Campbell contributed the solo, "Bridge the Road to Heaven With a Smile" which was very much appreciated.

A reading, "Why Persia Green could bring an offering" was read by Mrs. Wesley Newman and Mrs. Richard Knight followed with the solo, "He Understands." A reading, "A boy's thankoffering" was given by Miss Ida Clare and Mrs. David Evans and daughter, Edna, sang a duet, "Saviour, Lead Me All the Way."

The autumn thankoffering was received and the meeting closed with prayer.

Archduke to Guide

A dramatic decline of fortunes from those of an archduke to the humble status of a tourist guide is the life history of the Archduke Leopold. He recently went bankrupt and has now been reduced to guiding tourists through the castle of his imperial ancestors.

BRIDGENORTH.

Miss Irene Mann spent the holiday with her mother, Mrs. A. Mann.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Wheeler spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. E. Sisson.

The many friends of Rev. J. O. Totten will be pleased to see him around again after his recent illness.

The annual Thanksgiving re-union of the Robinson family was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. Nicholls, of Smith, on Monday evening. Among those present were Mrs. A. Robinson, Mr. M. Robinson, Mr. T. Edmison, Mrs. F. McIlmoyle, Mr. Wood Mr. and Mrs. G. Robinson and family, Mr. and Mrs. B. Nicholls and family, and Miss Graham.

Mrs. S. Hartshorn, Mrs. Pope, and Mr. Sullivan are among the last residents to occupy their summer homes at the Park.

The many friends of Miss E. Mills will be pleased to learn that she is convalescing after her recent illness.

MADOC

The university students of Madoc and vicinity left early Tuesday to resume their duties at Queen's University, Kingston.

Mr. Campbell Wallbridge left for Toronto University on Tuesday morning after spending the week-end with his parents in Madoc.

Miss Margaret Nickle was able to leave for Hybla to take up her teacher's duties, though suffering severely from an injury to her knee which she sustained on Saturday.

MISS MARION LOVE PRINCIPAL SPEAKER

Young People of Queensboro United Church Hold Regular Meeting.

QUEENSBORO, Nov. 14 (Examiner Correspondence).—The Young People of the United Church held their meeting in the church on Friday evening with a good attendance. The president, Miss Marion Carrie, opened the meeting by singing "What a Friend we have in Jesus," prayer was offered by the pastor. The scripture lesson was read from Ephesians, chapter six and the first seven verses. Miss Carrie enlarged upon the lesson pointing out the importance of obedience to one's parents and noting that the highest form of obedience is found in recognition of the will of God. She also drew attention to the relation of the passage chosen to the subject for the evening, "Problems of Home and Society" among the Japanese and told the great importance attached to the place and function of the Japanese "Family Council" or "Home Board of Control."

Miss Marion Love, Missionary vice-president took the topic and gave a paper entitled "Gardens" in which the attention of the hearers was drawn to the idea that each life is a garden, entrusted by God to the individual, which should be tilled and cultivated with care and earnestness that results may be achieved. This found application in representing the Young People's Society as a garden in which each membershould be interested and assume responsibility for helping the work. Each member was urged to put himself and herself into the hands of Christ that the Master might use them in his service.

Miss Margery Delyea gave a talk in which she told of the Japanese home arrangements, pointing out that the younger people must take care of and provide for the parents. This was arranged through the "Family Council" which made marriage arrangements and settled difficulties arising out of lack of family discipline. The young people always have a high esteem for their parents as a result of the training given them.

Miss G. M. Harper gave a paper entitled, "How Missions are Blessing the World" in which it was pointed out that the gospel is the light of homes, because of its influence family life is changed. The new truth gives men new purposes, the tastes become different, the individual is transformed and the nations are enlightened.

The meeting was closed with the Mizpah benediction.

OBITUARY

MRS. T. J. McNEIL

LINDSAY, Nov. 14. (Examiner Correspondence).—The death occurred in Toronto on Tuesday of Agnes Doran, wife of T. J. McNeil, of that city, and sister of Mr. James Doran, C.N.R. ticket agent at Peterborough.

The late Mrs. McNeil was a former resident of Lindsay, and is survived by her mother and brother. Interment took place in Mount Hope cemetery on Friday morning.

GEORGE ALBERT WRIGHT

MARMORA, Nov. 14 (Examiner Correspondence).—In the peaceful passing to rest at 1.15 a.m. on Thursday, Marmora has been bereaved of its oldest resident, George Albert Wright, better known as "Al" Wright. Deceased was born 94 years ago at Adolphustown, of United Empire Loyalist stock. When a boy, he moved with his parents to Rawdon Township. As he grew up, like most of the youths of that time, he made farming his pursuit. "Al" farmed both in Rawdon and Sidney townships but twenty-four years ago moved to Marmora village to lead a less energetic life than formerly.

For three years, however, his wife whose maiden name was Sarah Danford and who was of pioneer stock of Rawdon, kept the old Central Hotel. She predeceased him in February, 1923. The late Mr. Wright was of a sunny disposition throughout life and maintained his cheeriness when overtaken with failing eyesight three years ago.

Of a large family born to Mr. and Mrs. Al Wright, nine reached maturity. Five sons and one daughter are living to-day: George, Samuel, Robert and Jesse of Marmora, and Milton of Detroit and Mrs. Mabel Sinclair of Sarnia. Two sons, Fred and Arthur and one daughter, Mrs. David Bowen, passed away in recent years. Seven years ago, he married Mrs. Betsy Wright who survives him.

In religion the late Mr. Wright was Methodist, later United Church. He was for many years a member of Linn's Orange Lodge in Rawdon Township, and also a member of the Belleview Council of the Canadian Order of Chosen Friends.

The funeral leaves the residence of his son Robert, on Saturday, at 1 p.m., for service at Marmora United Church followed by interment in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

3 Prairie Premiers Meet In Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 13.—Heads of the three Prairie Governments were in conference here to-day discussing recent developments in the grain marketing situation as affecting the Western Provinces.

Premier J. T. M. Anderson of Saskatchewan, and Premier J. E. Brownlee of Alberta, arrived here from the west this morning and immediately conferred with Premier John Bracken of Manitoba.

Matters discussed at the conference of Premiers at Edmonton some two weeks ago, it is understood, will be given further consideration. The three Premiers will leave for Ottawa next week to discuss the natural resources question with Hon. R. B. Bennett, upon the Dominion Prime Ministers return from the Imperial Conference meet at London.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, November 14—Prices were generally unchanged on the produce and dairy markets here yesterday. The butter market was slightly higher. Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized creamery butter was quoted at 29½ to 29¾ cents a pound. To retailers, solids were 32 cents and prints 33 cents, while receipts totalled 201 boxes.

On the cheese market Ontario was 13¾ cents and Quebec 13¼ to 13⅜ cents a pound. Receipts were 3,085 boxes.

Prices on the egg market were unchanged. Less than carlot prices for new laid eggs were 8 cents a dozen. Receipts were 610 cases, of which 400 were American eggs going through here for export.

The potato market was unchanged. New Brunswick Green Mountains in 80-pound bags were 85 cents. Prince Edward Island potatoes were 85 cents for Cobblers and 90 cents for Mountains, per 90-pound bag.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, November 14 — Stronger values prevailed on the Winnipeg wheat market here yesterday and closing quotations were ⅝c to 1c higher than Wednesday's figures. Local traders made fair purchases and export demand showed improvement.

November and May futures each advanced ¾c, while July made the greatest jump, climbing upward 1c above Wednesday. December closed ⅝c higher.

Cash wheat also followed the advance in the futures, gaining about ½c. Dull trading marked the coarse grain section and values were unchanged to fractionally higher.

Futures:

Wheat—	Open	High	Low	Close	Prev. Close
Nov.	0.66⅛	0.67¼	0.65⅝	0.67⅛	0.66⅛
Dec.	0.65¼	0.66⅝	0.64⅞	0.66⅛	0.65⅛
May	0.70⅛	0.71⅝	0.69⅞	0.71⅝	0.70½
July	0.71½	0.72¾	0.71	0.72⅝	0.71⅝
Oats—
Nov.	0.28⅞	0.29⅝	0.28⅜	0.29¾	0.28⅝

CHICAGO, Nov. 14— Purchasing on a big scale developed in the wheat market yesterday, and prices went as much as 5 cents a bushel higher than Monday's bottom figures. Improvement of stock exchange quotations gave help to the buying side of the wheat market, and there was active closing of so-called "spread" transactions in wheat between Chicago and other markets, largely as a result of notice that Government-sponsored bodies would take delivery of 10,000,000 bushels on December wheat contracts. Reports of heavy rains in Argentina renewing fears of widespread damage from rust tended also to lift wheat values here.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 5-8 to 1¾ cents a bushel higher than Wednesday's finish. Corn closed at 1 1-8 to 1 7-8 cents advance; oats, 1-4c to 7-8c up, and provisions unchanged to 15c down.

Presentation Made Miss Mary Sweeney

A suitable address was read by Miss Margaret Whitoos, while the presentation was made by Miss Mabelle Allen.

The address was as follows: "Having learned of your retiring from service, Mary Agnes, we your fellow members would not allow you to do so without assembling here to show you that we deeply regret your leaving us. As a slight appreciation of your generosity and good work in the past, and in remembrance of us members, we ask you to accept this gift as a slight token. We also wish to take advantage today of wishing you who have been such a faithful and valued member, every success and much happiness in your future life."

MONTREAL, 100 YEARS AGO.

The Montreal of one hundred years ago was most interestingly portrayed by the Montreal Gazette on Tuesday, November 11, when it published a facsimile of the Gazette of the same date in 1830, along with a map of the town and a very entertaining article on conditions a century ago.

As the Gazette points out, a hundred years ago the "city" of Montreal did not exist; the place was a mere outport of Quebec, governed from the capital city and with its local administration in the hands of a commission of the place whose names were published from the Provincial Secretary's office.

Its population was about the same as that of Peterborough to-day, and in extent it covered an area of 1,000 acres.

The contrast between the town of 1830 and the metropolis of one hundred years later is most striking; Montreal has now become one of the greatest ports on the continent and one of the most progressive and most interesting cities of the new world.

The enterprise of the Gazette in calling attention in this most appealing manner to the progress that has been made is doubtless thoroughly appreciated by Montrealers in particular, although the issue is of interest to Canadians generally.

ONTARIO PRODUCTS.

The Examiner's reference to Ontario Products Week the other night was a trifle premature, inasmuch as the window-dressing contest in which Peterborough merchants will compete is not to be held until the latter part of next week.

Mayor Donne and the City Council, the Chamber of Commerce and the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Board are all co-operating with the Ontario Department of Agriculture in this effort to impress upon the people of this city the desirability of buying Ontario farm products, not only because by so doing they will help to add to the general prosperity, but because those products are the best to be found anywhere.

It is to be hoped that the importance of this campaign will impress itself upon local retailers, and that whether or not they compete for the window-dressing prizes they will at least do their part to make the drive a success by featuring Ontario products.

In fact, that should be made a permanent policy.

The bigger home market created for Ontario farm products, the greater will be the spending power of Ontario farmers, and, as The Examiner has already pointed out, when the farmer is able to buy business and industry soon feel the beneficial effects, and these in turn are shared by the workers for whom jobs are opened or kept secure.

FLY THE FLAGS TO-MORROW.

To-morrow Peterborough will entertain many of the officers and men of the famous 2nd Battalion, Canadian Expeditionary Force, who are honoring the city which contributed so generously toward the strength of the battalion by holding a reunion here.

This community has always been interested in the 2nd Battalion because incorporated in its original composition was Peterborough's first gallant quota of infantry, and to the 2nd Battalion went many of the recruits from this district who followed that first contingent overseas.

This is the first occasion on which Peterborough has had an opportunity to pay fitting tribute to the splendid Eastern Ontario unit which won for itself a most enviable war record, and the community's welcome to to-morrow's visitors should lack nothing in warmth and color.

There is one effective way in which the city can show its appreciation of the presence of the 2nd Battalion members, and that is by flying the flag on every available standard.

The Examiner especially appeals to the merchants to do their share in extending a welcome by seeing to it that their flags are flying to-morrow in honor of the Iron Seconds.

PENITENTIARY SENTENCES.

Penitentiary sentences inflicted on stock brokers who have been convicted of conspiracy will do much to restore confidence in the administration of justice in this country, confidence that had been rather badly shaken by what was generally regarded as unjustified leniency in the case of other brokers found guilty of similar offences.

The impression was being created that there was one law for the rich and another for the poor, the spectacle of wealthy brokers being allowed to escape imprisonment by giving up part of their loot causing general resentment.

The fact that the Attorney-General of Ontario failed to appeal against the failure to inflict jail sentences in these earlier cases and that the Attorney-General of Alberta, who had appealed against the light sentences imposed in the courts in that Province, withdrew his appeal, had strengthened the feeling that somewhere or other justice had slipped.

The sentences passed yesterday are more in line with public opinion as to what the punishment should be in cases of this kind where the investing public has suffered because of the wrong doing of those supposed to look after its interests.

THE DOLE.

The presence on the British unemployment registers of more than 2,100,000 persons has sharpened the edge of criticism of the unemployment insurance system now in operation. Cyril Martin in the Saturday Review calls it the "modern Upas tree," but from the picture which he presents of the gradual changes since 1911 he would have done better to draw his comparison with a tree that kills by growth.

The first system, that of 1911, was intended to be contributory and self-supporting. Nobody could get more than one week of benefit for every five contributions paid; those in distress who could not establish eligibility had to seek relief from the poor law. Modifications of the unemployment insurance law were made in 1918 and 1919 but the most fundamental change was made in 1921 to permit those who had exhausted their right to benefit to draw from the insurance fund. The Socialist Government of 1924 removed existing restrictions on the "extended benefit" and made it unlimited in time.

As Mr. Martin points out in his article, no one party is responsible for the present state of the unemployment insurance scheme. The Conservative Government of 1927 introduced what are known as the "transitional provisions." Until then unemployed men or women seeking relief had to prove the payment of thirty weekly contributions during the two years preceding the application. This provision was modified so that only eight contributions in two years or thirty in all were required; the applicant had to establish that he was normally employed in an insurable industry and would seek employment there. Another provision then established, that the applicant must prove that "for the two previous years he has been in insurable employment to such an extent as was reasonable," has been eliminated by the present Labor Government, which has also done away with the rule that applicants for the dole must be "genuinely seeking work." No such proof of willingness to work need now be offered.

It is Mr. Martin's contention that unemployment insurance has become disguised poor relief and that none of the political parties has the courage to face the situation. Benefits have long since ceased to have any true relation to contributions; the unemployment fund is nearly $300,000,000 in debt to the State. Yet anachronistic distinctions, such as those between insurable and uninsurable occupations, are still a part of the scheme. The tree that smothers and strangles does not grow in even or normal fashion.—St. Catharines Standard.

PLEASANT, BUT—

(Border Cities Star)

Speaking in the British House of Commons recently, and referring to the Dominions, Premier MacDonald is quoted as saying:

"We are all going out for a program of mutual help. Preference is not our formula; ours is a program for interchange of trade."

Mr. MacDonald's words sound promising and helpful and all that sort of thing. But how, may we ask, is this program of mutual help to be worked out? The British Premier has, so far, produced no fairy formula by which it can be accomplished. And he and his Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Snowden, have made it clear, beyond all doubt, that there is no possibility of Premier Bennett's trade offer being accepted as long as a Socialist administration remains in power in Great Britain.

The Canadian Premier subscribes heartily to the "interchange of trade" idea and so do the other overseas representatives at the Imperial Conference. At the same time, free trade does not prevail and probably never will prevail in Canada or the other nations (Australia raised her tariff again, only last week), so it is difficult to know how Mr. MacDonald hopes to bring about the interchange to which he refers. Mr. Bennett made a clean-cut offer to the British authorities; the British authorities have refused. "Only over my dead body," said Mr. Snowden, in effect, "will this country adopt a preferential tariff scheme." And only over Mr. Bennett's dead body, we fancy, will Canada go in for free trade.

So there—or here—you are.

FIRST TEN YEARS OF RADIO.

A few days ago the tenth anniversary of broadcasting was attained, the pioneer station of America, KDKA, Pittsburgh, having, in the first week of November, 1920, transmitted its first program over the air. The broadcasting equipment was crude, the "studio" was an upper room in a shack, reached by an iron ladder, and the program was furnished by a few gramophone records.

To-day, there are some six hundred stations in the United States, a large number in Canada, and palatial buildings are owned by broadcasting companies, with studios fit for a king's palace. The greatest artists in the realm of music, even direct from the operatic stage itself, the voices of kings, prime ministers, statesmen and men distinguished in the arts and sciences, are heard over the air, not only transmitted to their immediate neighborhoods, but across the universe. It was only some ten days ago that the world heard President Hoover in Washington, Premier Ramsay MacDonald in London, and a statesman in Tokyo discussing a great treaty. So marvelous is radio that their voices were heard ten thousand miles away, sooner than their voices were heard by those near by. For radio sends a sound round the world in one-seventh part of a second. It is an almost uncanny fact that when an officer gave a word of command to the troops at the cenotaph ceremony in London, Tuesday morning, the sharp click of their heels on the pavement of Whitehall echoed in the homes of people in every part of the British Empire.

The progress of broadcasting almost stuns the imagination. A few years ago it was a novelty, and neighbors entered the home of enterprising friends to listen-in to the new wonder. To-day, it might be said that no home is complete without one. There are twenty million radio sets in the United States and Canada. The events of the world, the music of the concert halls of New York and London are carried to the remotest corners of the globe. The Mounted Police officer, in the sub-Arctic regions, is no longer alone. He has neighbors speaking to him, playing for him from the big cities.

If radio has accomplished so much in the first ten years, what will the next ten bring? Engineers know a great deal more than they did ten years ago, and with their added knowledge what may they not do by 1940? The prospects are beyond conception.

Television will be here without a doubt. We may listen-in and look-in at great events all over this continent and in Europe.

Radio is, probably, the greatest discovery within the lifetime of any person living—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

THE SILVER HAWK

By

WILLIAM BYRON MOWERY

"Jim, that extra place . . . ever since your last visit . . I've kept it. . . . I watched for your airplane. . . . I wanted you to . . . that place was for—for you!"

Later, when they were sitting together at that table set for two, Dorn realized that it had not been his abject apology which caused Aurore to forgive him, but his stumbling confession of how he had felt when he saw that extra place and thought some other man was to come here. For after that confession Aurore did not reproach him at all.

Meeting her brown eyes now across the bouquet of avalanche lilies, he remembered the business which had forced him to come here, and he spun his lie to Aurore:

"Thirty miles south of here there's three or four metis prospecting around, looking up good fur paths for next winter. They're not likely to get this far north, but you shouldn't take chances, Aurore. That's why I came at night—so they wouldn't see me whip over the mesa and set down on this lake. They mustn't get a glimpse of you. Moccasin telegraph—the news would be out to the railroad in no time."

He added, swirling the sugar in his coffee-cup: "I think you ought to take a few simple precautions. Don't do any cooking in the daytime. At night shield the windows with paper. You mustn't go over to the mainland any more—"

All unaware of the avalanche hanging over her, Aurore objected to being a prisoner on her island. "But, Jim, I haven't climbed mountains for so long, and there's several wonderful neves over there, and the gloomiest canyons—"

Dorn came down hard. "I said you mustn't go over there, Aurore. That's my plain request.!"

It was not a request but an order, flat and final. Dorn had never before been dominating with Aurore, and he saw a flash of fire in those imperious brown eyes now. He had a sudden, irrelevant thought: "I'd hate to ever quarrel with her!"

But Aurore's rebellion lasted only a moment; perhaps she felt the steel in Dorn, or remembered all he had done for her.

She said presently, with a simplicity that made him sorry for his abruptness, "Then, Jim, I won't go to those wood any more."

They were silent for a little while. Once when their eyes met, Dorn knew Auror was thinking about the evening when they sat at the fireplace and listened to the rain; that was the cause of her restraint, of her aloofness so manifestly forced that even he could see through it. He knew he ought to leave Aurore, now that he had brought old Luke and warned her. But he had a presentiment that his breakfast with her and this visit would be his last: visits were too dangerous, his every move would be watched; and he had a vague feeling that before he left her that day she was going to ask him for her sake and his own, not to come again.

"What? Kansas? When? How did he know?—I never told him about you, Aurore!"

He thought hat Bergelot had confused instructions and had delivered the map and letter. Aurore set him right. "It was last week, Jim. He said he was t ailing you down from Lost River and saw you dip low into this valley and then saw me on the boulder."

Dorn asked quickly, "You made him understand, Aurore, that he shouldn't drop the least hin about you being here?"

"Yes, he understands." Aurore debated with herself whether or not to tell Dorn that she and Kansas had sat all night on the boulder, talking. She decided not to, for then she would have to explain what they had talked about, and she could not bring herself to reopen that with Dorn; and besides, Kansas had agreed with her that if he could be kept from knowing the truth, it would be the best for Jim Dorn.

So Aurore mad appear that Kansas had merely dropped down and talked a little while and then flown away, with no great interest in her affair at all.

Dorn thought: "Well, if Kansas has been here, I can get that map and letter from Bergelot and destroy them They've served their purpose.' He knew that if Aurore had asked Kansas to respect her secret, then her secret was entirely safe. He was thinking, with bitterness and rebellion, that Kansas, because he had no great interest in Aurore, would be seeing her, talking to her, being human company to her, while he himself who loved her must not come again because of that very fact.

After those days of loneliness this half an hour with Aurore seemed no more than a glance and a hand-clasp; and coming out of the night into her cabin, after a dark, long flight. Dorn was nearly maddened by the light and warmth and flower-fragrance. He was looking steadily at Aurore and she had turned her glance away, and neither of them spoke till Dorn, rising abruptly, said:

"I've got to leave, Aurore."

She rose up too, not daring to ask him to stay, but objecting, the words forced from her in a cry: "But, Jim, you've been here—only a few minute—after all"

"I can't stay," he said doggedly. Then, to gloss over the real reason, which both of them were quiveringly aware of, he added: "I mustn't be seen climbing out of this lake. It's nearly the dawn now."

He saw a sudden, swift thought flit across Aurore's pretty face; saw her fighting against this thought, then yielding to it. She looked away, looked down at a button on his jacket: "Jim, couldn't we . . . if you don't dare stay here . . . you said you're doing cartography work to-day . . . couldn't I . . . we could come back after dark to-night. . . ." And then she came to the proposal, "Couldn't I go along with you, Jim?"

Dorn caught his breath sharply. He tried to reason: "I musn't take her. . . . She'll be safer here than in my plane. And all day . . . with her. . . ."

Aurore came up very near to him; her hand crept up to his shoulder; she was all unconscious that the scarlet orchid on her breast was crushed against him. She said: "Jim, please, if I won't be a bother . . . if you don't think it too dangerous . . . just for to-day . . ."

He realized she was telling him that to-day would be their last together; and to broke his will to refuse. Dorn bent and his lips touched Aurorel's hair, and he said impetuously: "Dear, it seems unreal . . . . a precious, unexpected gift . . . your mere asking . . ."

They were running down the path together, paddling out to the Silver Hawk, laughing as they turned it and clambered in; and while the first shafts of pearl-gray were touching the neighbouring pinnacles, they taxied out upon the bosom of Aurore's lake and leaped exultantly into the air.

CHAPTER XXII

THE "SILVER HAWK"

Flying westward at leisurely speed toward his mapping territory, Dorn kept glancing back at the passenger he carried. It was hard to believe that Aurore was actually there in his plane; an hour ago he had never remotely dreamed of this situation coming to pass. Aurore's suggestion had been sudden, unthinking, and so had been his reaction to it. He knew he had done wrong, but the right was sometimes an intolerable tyrant, and this would be a day to remember all the rest of his life.

The keen wind had brought frost roses into Aurore's cheeks. A wisp of her hair, escaped from her helmet, was wavy in the slip-stream of the propeller For her this flight and this initiation into the wonders of Dorn's cloud-land domain were an enchanting adventure. He thought: "That morning when she showed me all around her island—that was Aurore's inning; to-day is mine!"

The gray dawn gradually changed to a roseate glow in the east. With the sun inching up over a blue-hazy range, the wild country beneath them stirred and woke to a new-born day. Looking under keel they saw the gray smoke mist curl up from cold lake-waters, and watched the marvel of sun-shafts creeping down and down the pinnacles, to strike in sudden splendour on some upland flower meadow.

Dorn could never look down at this virgin wilderness without a feeling of shame at the work he was doing; and since Carter-Snowdon had become his enemy, that feeling had grown acute and personal. He felt that this region, unknown and untrodden, was one corner of the world where a man could still find a retreat and peace. But he was betraying it. Where he pioneered in his plane, charting with aerial camera, there the timber outfits and mining companies and railroad tap-spurs would eventually follow, and at no distant day. It was all very well to talk glibly about the "illimitable resources of the north," but down through the Kootenays he had seen how illimitable those resources could become in a few short years, and he knew how long these slow-growing forests of his province would last when steamer lines were carrying them to four timber-hungry continents.

Dorn understood the forces behind this desolation creeping steadily northward toward the wilderness which had been his home. The press of population would have meant homesteads and ranches nestling in the valleys, and permanent towns instead of ghost villages. The cause of it was the greed of a small number of men, and Carter-Snowdon was one of the chief of them. He had never yet replanted a seedling where he had cut a giant. For him this virgin wilderness was something to strip and deflower and bend to his own use; and Dorn felt he was playing directly into Carter-Snowdon's hand; and his work had become anathema to him.

A little after sunrise he reached his "block" and began mapping. His job that day was to finish off a cluster of thirty-odd peaks. Precipitous along their easter slopes, they all faced a huge cloud-gatherer, and they seemed like an assembly of hoary old giants at council, with smoke clouds drifting above their heads, talking to one another in the rumble of their avalanches.

By steeply banking his plane at a low altitude Dorn snapped several "obliques" of rugged mountain scenery which the Bureau wanted for publicity purposes. Then he climbed to fourteen thousand feet to begin his wide-angle vertical mapping. He set the intervalometer to make an exposure every fifty seconds; clipped in an orange filter to screen out the aerial haze; and reloading the magazine, he started his routine flights back and forth across the "block."

At first that morning he was able to keep a lookout on the horizon for those enemy planes; his camera, wonderfully intricate and completely automaticized, left him free to pilot the Silver Hawk and watch the overlap of his strips. He did not even have to jot down instrument records, for at every exposure a small auxiliary lens on top of the huge camera, took a picture of his instrument board, so that on the main picture itself, appeared a small oval insert, showing his altitude, speed, direction, and all data which the Bureau would need in making a perfect mosaic of the region he was charting.

He had no reason to expect his enemies; but they knew where he was mapping, and Dorn thought: "They're going to come after me some time; that's what they brought in that fighting plane for—to knock me out of the air and make sure I won't bother when they close in on Aurore; and it would be just my luck this morning when . . ." and he glanced at Aurore in the observer's seat.

A Thought

CHILDREN.

That which I have often blamed as an indiscreet and dangerous practice in many fathers is, to be very indulgent to their children whilst they are little, and as they come to ripe years to lay great restraint upon them and live with greater reserve towards them; which usually produces an ill-understanding between father and son, which cannot but be of bad consequence. And I think fathers would generally do better, as the sons grow up, to take them into a nearer familiarity, and live with them with as much freedom of friendship as their age and temper will allow.—Locke.

What To-day Means To You

"SCORPIO."

If November 14th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:30 a.m. to 10 a.m., from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. and from 8:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. The danger period is from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.

There may be anticipated on this date family dissension, which can only be averted by patience and reasonableness. There may also occur some business complications. If these should arise, no drastic efforts should be made to unravel them. Think them over to-day and act to-morrow.

Children born on this November 14th will possess natural ability joined to merry and affectionate dispositions. Whilst entering with zest into sports, they will be studious and have retentive memories. They will shine at school, and the Fates have in store for them a great measure of material success.

You possess the greatest essential to success—Character. You cannot be persuaded by any one or by any means to swerve from the path that you have mapped out for yourself, which is the Path of Conscience. It is immaterial to you if success or failure await you, so long as you have done your best and have not forfeited any of your ingrained principles. This creates within you the glow of Contentment. You never grouse bu greet the present and the future with a smile, whilst your memories of the past bring no tinge of regret.

You also are gifted with self-control and will power, and you always keep your hand on the emergency brake, and always keep a little bit of power in hand, so that when accidents threaten you can avoid them. Your "sportsmanship" instincts are strongly developed, and you accept defeat with a smile, and bear victory with modesty.

The one virtue lacking in your make-up is Enterprise. In spite of your many outstanding virtues, no great material rewards await your efforts. You are an ardent apostle of "Safety First," and always afraid to take a chance. A cock sparrow in the hand is, in your opinion, worth more than two pheasants in the bush. You are not a "go-getter." Your life will ensure both respect and affection, but it will not be very productive along the lines of money making.

3 WINDSOR BOYS FOUND BY POLICE

Left Grandmother's Home For Adventure—Mother Dead. Father in Jail.

SENT TO CHILDREN'S AID.

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 13 (C.P.) — Raymond, Bernard and Gerald Haggerty, aged twelve, ten and eight respectively, who had been reported missing from the home of their grandmother since Sunday last, were found this morning by Windsor police and are now in custody of the Children's Aid Society.

The boys just decided they wanted some adventure and they had plenty. Food was secured by pilfering milk bottles; they slept under verandahs and in a vacant house. When stopped by police to-day they had part of a loaf of bread and part of a bottle of jam as their provisions. The mother of the boys is dead and the father is a prisoner in Leavenworth Penitentiary, where he was sent on an alien smuggling charge.

HONOR TO THE COLORS

To The Editor of The Examiner.

Dear sir:

There is no reason to doubt that most of our citizens recognize the King's colors (more often called the Union Jack) as an emblem of the United British Commonwealth. As such, too, they realize that proper respect is due to it.

Why then, do they not show that respect? Those whose hearts beat with patriotism indeed must have been grieved to see that, as the various groups passed in the parade on Sunday carrying the colors, only a small minority of the men looking on were respectful enough to remove their hats. As a matter of courtesy and friendliness this honor should be given the colors of foreign countries friendly to us but to the King's colors this honor is not a matter of courtesy but of loyalty and patriotism.

Indeed, sir, at a time when all parts of the Empire are talking loyalty to the Empire, an editorial in your paper might wake up the citizens of Peterborough to the duty they owe to their flag.

It is certainly no credit to us that our flag is so lightly considered.

Hoping, sir, to see a change of attitude the next time the King's colors appear, I wish to remain,

Sincerely yours,

SAM

STEADY TONE AT NEW YORK

Early Morning Selling Due to Profit-taking and Some Short Selling.

3 POINT ADVANCES.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (C.P.).—The stock market maintained its more cheerful temper to-day, although it had been wearied by the exertions of a three-day advance.

Profit-taking and short selling by bears trying for a secondary reaction sent the market a little lower during the morning, but the list looked up again before midday.

A slow but broad advance carried a long list of shares 1 to 3 points above yesterday's final prices. Such shares as U.S. Steel, American Telephone, General Electric and American Can, sold off about a point in the early trading but these losses were converted into net gains of a point or more. Shares advancing 2 to 3 points included American Waterworks, American Tobacco B, Union Pacific, Consolidated Gas, Granby Copper, Woolworth, New York Central, Goodyear, Firestone Preferred, Air Reduction, Eastman and Liggett and Myers B.

COLLIERY STRIKE SETTLED IN N.S.

GLACE BAY, N.S., Nov. 14. (CP)—The strike at No. 2 colliery was settled yesterday, and to-day Cape Breton's largest coal producer was back in operation. Settlement was reached yesterday afternoon, when Premier G. S. Harrington met H. J. Kelley, General Manager of the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, President D. W. Morrison of the United Mine Workers of America, iDstrict 26, and Clarie Gillis, President of Phelan local.

Edward Kennedy, miner expelled from the Union some days ago for raising the rental on a house he purchased from the company, is no longer in the employ of the Dominion Coal Company, it was announced. He will be notified that his services are no longer required, and that he will not be employed in any colliery while a non-union member.

Toronto Woman Given 7 Years

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 14 (C.P.) Mrs. Hegen Bednarski, who was yesterday found guilty of manslaughter by a jury under Mr. Justice Jeffrey in Criminal Assizes Court, was to-day sentenced to seven years in Portsmouth Penitentiary. Mrs. Bednarski was charged with the murder of Albert Mallet, former boarder at her home, but after five hours' deliberation by the jury, the count was reduced to manslaughter.

HIGHER-PRICED BASE METALS TURN REACTIONARY IN EARLY TRADING ON MINING MARKET

But Balance of Standard List Holds Up During To-day's Session.

NICKEL DROPS HALF.

Sudbury Basin Declines 15 Points But Other Lindsley Stocks Firm.

TORONTO, Nov. 14 (CP).—Higher-priced base metal stocks were reactionary from the opening on the mining market to-day but the remainder of the list gave a fair account of itself.

International Nickel dropped a half from last night's close and Noranda was down three-quarters at $18. Sudbury Basin declined 15 to 55, but other Lindsleys were strong. Sherritt Gordon advancing another 4 and Ventures 3. Hudson Bay moved up a quarter to $5 and Waite-Ackerman 5 to $2.55. Abana eased a cent.

Wright-Hargreaves, following declaration of a 5-cent dividend payable Jan. 2 to shareholders of record Nov. 29, gained 5 to $1.70. Mining Corp. advanced another 10 to $1.10 and Premier and Siscoe showed gains of 5 and 3, respectively. Teck Hughes and Dome turned slightly easier, former dropping 5 to $5.60 and latter 10 to $8.10.

Oils were quiet and practically unchanged. Ajax Oil sold off 4 to $1.35 and Wainwell lost a fraction to 3.

Pair Are Injured In Knife Battle

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 14 (C.P.) — Suffering from severe knife wounds, apparently received during an early morning quarrel, a man and a woman were taken to hospital here to-day. The victims were Wilfrid Masson, 39, and Germaine Bachon, 24. The quarrel broke out in a Labelle street apartment.

Detroiter Discharged On Negligence Charge

BRANTFORD, Ont., Nov. 14 (C.P.). — Albert Ayling, Detroit, was discharged when he appeared before Magistrate Blake here to-day on a charge of Criminal negligence. This followed an accident at the Ava Road bridge when his car somersaulted and his sister, Mrs. Jennie Ayling Harvey, formerly of Belleville, and Ward Richardson, both of Detroit, were instantly killed. He had been in jail for a week on the charge, but the coroner's jury found that the accident was unavoidable.

SCATTERED INDIVIDUAL ISSUES SHOW ADVANCES AT TORONTO

Steels Fractionally Higher Following Page-Hersey Tubes and Steel of Canada.

COPPERS EASIER.

TORONTO, Nov. 14 (CP).—Despite light trading and an apparent lack of interest, the rank and file of stocks on Toronto Stock Exchange was firm this morning with scattered individual issues showing strength.

The coppers were somewhat easier but in view of the sizeable advance the past couple of days and the fact that International Nickel to-day made known that third quarter earnings amounted to only 10½ cents share compared with dividend requirements of 25 cents share, the group did remarkably well. Nickel met fresh support around 19 and steadied at that figure while Noranda firmed after slipping back to 18. Smelters moved up a fraction to 14. Buying into this stock yesterday was said to be from a strong group but the floor placed little credence in the report, Consolidated Smelters and Nickel might be merged through the efforts of a third party, quite patently C.P.R.

Steels were higher with Page-Hersey tubes up more than a point when it crossed 80 and Steel of Canada fractionally higher. Ford of Canada added over a point following declaration of the regular dividend for this half. In the oil group, McColl-Frontenac was more active, scoring an advance of between one and two points. The stock went ex-dividend to-day. Imperial was firmer above 18, International Petroleum and B. A. oil unchanged.

GREAT SAVINGS DRIVE NOW ON

BACK TO PRE WAR DAYS.

To-morrow morning, at 9 o'clock, McBride & Franks, 224 Charlotte street, are starting a "Big Sayings Drive" in which opportunity for shoppers to buy at before the war prices is the feature of the occasion. Furniture and Housefurnishings have suffered a "general" price reducing greater than ever before presented by this super-value giving House—reductions down to half price, less than half, and cost at factory.

Of course, everything on sale is of that high grade quality so characteristic of McBride & Franks' regular stock. And in their extremely easy credit terms—$10 down for immediate delivery of Furniture Suites and Kitchen Cabinets, with a year to pay the balance—McBride & Franks are practically declaring confidence in Peterborough's future; they are smoothing out the rough spots for many who could and would buy were a generous line of credit extended. Inspection invited without obligation to buy.

McMaster University Opened At Hamilton

HAMILTON, Ont., Nov. 14 (C.P.).—Brilliant scenes marked the official opening of McMaster University at Westdale this afternoon, when persons distinguished in the world of education were present to pay their tributes to the new Baptist seat of learning. His Honor W. D. Ross, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, declared the building open, and the dream of a decade of ambition was realized.

Features of the ceremony were the procession comprised of members of the faculty and the distinguished guests. Following Mr. Ross' address, Dr. P. R. Glover spoke. W. L. Somerville formally presented the keys, which were received by E. C. Fox, chairman of the building committee, who in turn presented them to Albert Matthews, chairman of the Board of Governors of the University.

Rev. W. A. Cameron of Yorkminster Church, Toronto, offered the dedicatory prayer, after which the congratulatory messages were read.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

FINANCIAL NEWS AND BRIEFS

A SPECIAL SERVICE TO THE EXAMINER

Those looking for action the early hours of trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day were disappointed. Such is the public attitude of mind at the present that any advance is viewed with scepticism and it will remain for the market to prove itself by consolidating its position before further gains are recorded. Nevertheless, in spite of a certain hesitancy stocks were steady and firm this morning. The oils, utilities showed no important variations from last night. Steels were stronger and issues which were affected by news which could be interpreted in a favorable light were headed upward. Buyers were not reaching for stocks, though more lenient in meeting the market instead of waiting for their own price as they have been lately.

The market responded favorably to the announcement of the declaration of a semi annual dividend of 60 cents a share on the class "A" and "B" stock of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, payable December 22 to shareholders of record December 1. This marks the second distribution on the new split stock and is in line with the announced policy of the company of payment of $1.20 annually. In June last, directors declared a dividend for the year of $1.20 a share and, in addition, a bonus of 30 cents, this being the first dividend distribution since 1927. Payment of a dividend by Ford a few days before Christmas will be welcomed by the many thousands of Canadian shareholders and will help to swell the total distributions by Canadian corporations for the month of December, which was given a substantial boost by the declaration of a 50 cent bonus by Imperial Oil. Distribution of 60 cents a share on the "A" and "B" stock of the Ford company will mean cash payment of close to a million dollars, or exactly $995,374.

Public Optimistic.

Despite the current scepticism towards the market, the public at heart is optimistically inclined. Reports coming to hand which indicate better things for the future receive a good reception even if current affairs are not all that could be desired basemetal stocks took better since copper prices strengthened and this indication for the future has been stressed rather than conditions as they now exist. Nickel held its gain practically intact despite the fact earnings are considerably below dividend requirements: Ford strengthened on dividend announcement: steels have firmed on the strength of additional construction contracts.

A much greater percentage of purchases on the stock market to-day are on a straight cash basis, reversing the position of the markets over a year ago when most people were buying on margin. There is no better evidence of this changed condition than the stockholders lists of Canadian corporations with officials of many companies finding the number of their shareholders substantially higher in recent months. Contributing factories in the increase in shareholders and outright purchase of securities have been the reduction that has taken place in market values in the past year. The fact that most brokers are adverse to carrying stocks selling below $10 on margin and the general attitude of the public which has changed from taking on commitments for a quick speculative profit to the acquisition of securities or a long pull. It is possible to buy a large number of securities outright to-day for the same outlay of capital required to carry margin accounts about fifteen months ago. In New York there is a rule that securities selling for less than $10 have to be purchased for cash and numerous Canadian brokers have applied this ruling to local stocks. At the moment the Canadian boards present very little in the way of opportunity for quick trading profit and the general public realize this.

Reduction in earnings experienced by International Nickel in the third quarter of 1930 appears to have been discounted before hand as the price of the stock was down a fraction only in the first hour on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. Taking the company's printed report for the period, an apparent contradiction in regard to share earnings is noted, but only apparent. The official statement for the first quarter of 1930 showed 30 cents per share earned, and for the second quarter 30 cents per shares earned, a total of 50 cents, or the exact amount of the dividend disbursement. This was on 13 758,208 shares for both quarters. The new stock issue increased the common outstanding to 14,584,025 shares, and on the larger number, 10½ cents was earned in the third quarter. This would make the total for the current year to date 60½ cents taking the present increased capital this year to date. It is the 58 cents that the company gives as its estimate for the first three quarters.

Disposition Shown to Withhold Criticism in View of Matter Before Parley.

"NO NEED FOR ANXIETY."

LONDON, Nov. 14.—(CP)—British press comment today is not highly enthusiastic about the viceroy's report but there are signs of a disposition to withhold criticism in view of the matter being before the Round Table Conference.

The Daily News points out the Simon report was issued in June and the Viceroy's despatch was prepared in September, suggesting it possible that both speak of an India which may be vanishing even before the words are printed. "There are signs the Princes and representatives of British India may come together in a manner of which the authors of both reports never dreamed," the News adds.

Dissipate Wild Predictions

The times reflects it is surely asking too much for the delegates to master upwards of 250 pages of the despatch and check it with the Simon document, and thus it was not surprising the Round Table Conference has been postponed to Monday. The despatch will dissipate a good many wild predictions as to its contents. The Times said. "If in some respects it goes further than the Simon report, in others it is palpably more cautious.

"For the rest it is a running commentary conveyed in language which is official to the point of dullness, and need excite neither anxiety nor enthusiasm. In the light of modern thought its outlook is altogether too narrow to help the Conference in its main decision. It is a little depressing at this moment, when the whole destiny of India is in review, that the authors should have almost gone out of their way to discourage the hopes of a new and larger experience of constitutional progress."

Two Connected Objectives

While declaring that no summary of the despatch can do it justice, The Manchester Guardian says its main effort is towards two connected objectives. The Simon report refused to make the central executive immediately responsible to the Legislature, and left the question of future responsibility undecided. The Government of India is aware that India demands immediate responsibility at the centre and is especially set on obtaining control of financial and commercial policy, the Guardian added. The Government however is convinced nothing like complete satisfaction is immediately attainable. The Government is especially impressed by the alarming consequence if the responsibility for India's financial policy were at once transferred to an authority responsible to a British-Indian Legislature. "It is noteworthy that this despatch might be willing to come at once into an all-India Federation," the Guardian said, "but there now appears that such a chance is far from negligible. Such a Federation would evidently form a better basis for India's credit than a British India suspicious of and suspected by the native state.

Conference Results

LONDON, Nov. 14 (C. P. Cable) Results of the 1930 Imperial Conference summarized roughly, are as follows:—

Britain will maintain preferences for at least three years.
Trade proposals will be considered at Ottawa next year.
Voluntary Empire judicial tribunal will be established.
Colonial Laws Validity Act will be repealed.
Dominions may act through British Ambassadors abroad.
Position of Privy Council appeals remains unchanged.
British married women's nationality safeguarded.
King, through Dominion Governments, appoints Governor-General.
Dominions must approve changes in succession to throne.
Status of High Commissioners in London improved.

GAS REDUCTION

Rogers and Maria streets and Wolfe street be laid and be included in the relief scheme. The total cost of this work will be in the neighborhood of $5,000 and will increase the service to St. Joseph's Hospital, Westclox factory, and more than a dozen homes, while eliminating three dead ends.

The city is not suffering from shortage of power. Manager Ross Dobbin admitted that the power houses in this district had had their output reduced one-third by the low water, but the city is having the shortage supplied by the Gatineau power system. Lack of rain was said by Mr. Dobbin to be the cause for the low water and resultant low output of power in this district.

The Commission will as usual install colored lights on George, Charlotte and Hunter streets during the Christmas season. The stringing of the lights will be done by the Utilities Commission and the cost of the lights will be borne by the Commission.

GREATEST OCTOBER IN YEARS ON CANADIAN BOND MARKET

Financing is Well Over $15,000,000—Insurance Purchases High.

MONEY IS EASY.

(Special to Examiner, Copyright, 1930.)

TORONTO, Nov. 14.—Flotation of Canadian bonds during the month of October was the heaviest not only for any month this year but for years past. Financing amounted to well over $150,000,000 while the nearest approach the past three years was in the month of June, 1929, when new issues totalled $115,399,617.

Institutions, especially insurance companies, have been consistent purchasers. Despite the large amount brought out in the four weeks, there is an astonishingly small amount of undigested securities on the shelves, those in close touch with market assert. One evidence supporting this statement is the market itself. Prices of issues recently brought out are from a fraction to over one point above the original offering price.

Savings and demand deposits of Canadian banks are now on the upswing; commodity prices while showing some signs of stabilizing are still at a low level; money is easy the world over—these are constructive factors behind the bond market. The continued decline of the stock markets, especially Wall Street, of course has a reactionary effect upon the high grades in that it forces a measure of liquidation to protect margined accounts. It is the action of the stock market which has been retarding force on bonds this month. New financing has fallen off, no issues of importance having been brought out in Canada this week. Yet prices are holding steady, the average being practically unchanged from a week ago. The average of foreigns also remained about the same. Demand for Canadian high grades improved the last couple of days, but this was mostly covering for orders previously placed.

ing referred to in the previous resolution will be agreed upon between the several Governments.

Accepts Wheat Quota Plan

Premier Bennett remarked that in his opinion the report of the Graham committee on wheat quota purchasing was of great value. A quota allotment on Britain's wheat purchases would be of considerable help to the Dominion wheat growers, he said. He was ready to consider it as an alternative to tariff preference. He closed his address with a warm invitation to the delegates to visit Ottawa next year.

Premier James Scullin of Australia said he felt the conference had not had time to get a proper grip on its subject. He, too, thought the quota on wheat might be of great value to the wheat-growing Dominions.

Premier G. W. Forbes of New Zealand observed that while New Zealand's belief in tariff preferences was not shared by the Government of the United Kingdom, New Zealand had no quarrel about it. She recognized that each Government in the Commonwealth had to look after its own people's interests first, and those of other peoples of the Commonwealtn second.

Premier J. B. Hertzog of South Africa said he would not be honest if he did not say that the conference, on the economic side, had not borne the fruit he hoped for and he emphasized the word hoped. He did not mean South Africa was disappointed. Before coming to London, the South African delegation had realized the United Kingdom had particular views on the tariff question and these views had been reached after consideration of what the British Government believed to be in the best interests of their own country.

Hon. Patrick McGilligan, Irish Free State Minister for External Affairs, said the full effect of the Conference would not be seen for some time. Many things might happen before the conference re-assembled at Ottawa, and, he jokingly added, if for any reason the Irish Free State could not go to Ottawa, then they would watch the climax there.

Sir Muhammad Shafi, Indian delegate, expressed the hope that India would have the status of a Dominion within a few years. He pointed out that just as the League of Nations had become so pressing that annual sessions at Geneva were necessary, so the British Imperial Conferences must occur more frequently.

MacDonald Last Speaker.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald closed the discussion with words of general appreciation. He moved, and Premier Bennett seconded, an address to the King, and with the adoption of a resolution observing "the conference met at a time of great stress and difficulty, but its members trust that the work accomplished during the past few weeks may prove of lasting value to all the nations of the British Commonwealth," the Conference came to an end.

Radial Car Hits Auto Farmer Loses His Life

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., November 14 (C.P.). — Arthur Bessey, 53, a farmer of Grantham Township, was instantly killed on the Queenston Road last evening when his car collided with the Cemetery Line car of the Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto Railway. At the time of the accident Bessey was endeavoring to pass a car parked on the side of the highway. The car was completely wrecked and when Bessey was removed from the remains he was dead. The deceased was born in Homer and returned here to purchase a farm a few years ago after spending 18 years in Chicago.

BOYS' CHOIR LEADS SERVICE AT MILLBROOK GATHERING

Platform Meeting Held Under Auspices of East Durham Boys' Work Board.

SEVERAL SPEAKERS.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 14. (Examiner Correspondence)—A platform meeting, under the auspices of the East Durham Boys' Work Board, was held in Saint Andrew's United Church on Sunday, November 9, at 7 p.m., the regular worship service being replaced by this special, and most impressive gathering.

A boys' choir of twenty-five voices, representative of the Trail Rangers and Tuxis Square members of the community, occupied the choir loft and led in the worship of song. Besides the number by the full choir, "Father in Heaven Who Lovest All", a quartette, "Trust and Obey", was sung by W. Byam, Oliver Brock, E. Powell, and W. Sayles. Mrs. H. W. Johnston trained the boys for the occasion and Miss Estelle Hetherington presided at the organ.

Associated with the pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, B.D., on the pulpit platform were Reeve P. Stinson, a member of the County Boys' Work Board, who acted as chairman for the gathering; Gordon Armstrong, who represented East Durham in the Older Boys' Parliament for 1929; and Kenneth Fallis, who will have the honor, in all likelihood, of being returned by acclamation and representing this constituency when the Boys' Parliament convenes at Queen's Park in December of this year.

Following the opening devotional service conducted by the pastor, Reeve Stinson welcomed the large congregation on behalf of the Session of St. Andrew's Church, and also on behalf of the Boys' Work Board for East Durham.

Believing it advisable to give some details of the organization of the East Durham Board, which does not include the town of Port Hope, the chairman named the officers which for 1930 are: Chairman, E. H. Barnes, Millbrook, who was unavoidably absent on Sunday evening because of taking a service for Rev. Mr. Weir, of Omemee; vice-chairman, Joe Waddell, Garden Hill; recording secretary, J. Archie Deyell, South Monaghan; corresponding secretary, J. Gordon Armstrong, Millbrook; treasurer, Cameron Vance, Millbrook, who is also returning officer for East Durham in the election for the current year.

For committees the chairmen are: Elections, A. Dawson, Bailieboro; Sports P. Stinson, Millbrook; Sunday Services, Rev. W. W. Jones, Millbrook; Debating, Elmer Scott, Garden Hill; Boys' Camps, E. H. Barnes, Millbrook.

In an interesting manner, Mr. Stinson described the origin of the boys' work program, gave an outline of the provincial board, and its activities, with the seventy auxiliary county boards of the province, and spoke also of the interrelated work of the Older Boys' Parliament, emphasizing the ideal "this is a co-operative work for boys, to help them to do for themselves and for others". It was also pointed out that boys who began their training in Trail Rangers' Camps, and in Tuxis Squares, are now filling outstanding positions in the church, business, and professional life of the province.

The extent of the work was indicated by the fact that there are 12,000 boys in Ontario being looked after under the C.S.E.T. program, and that 3,224 badges were distributed in the past year having been earned in healthy competition, and through study; 1,100 boys wrote on the papers on Bible study, and approximately 1,000 certificates were issued. As the boys' work is financed through the selling of bonds, and as this annial campaign will shortly be under way, the chairman appealed for a generous response locally, declaring that no better investment of one dollar, or of five dollars, could be made than in developing "better boy life".

Kenneth Fallis, introduced as the prospective member for the Older Boys' Parliament at its next session, read the scripture lesson, and Gordon Armstrong gave some impressions of the parliament of 1929, bringing a clear picture of the gathering at Hart House, as the boys assembled and gained acquaintance prior to the opening of the sessions at Queen's Park, friendliness and good fellowship being very pronounced, while the spirit of true sportsmanship and fun was also much in evidence.

Some of the advantages emphasized were the opportunity of enriching oneself, and of bringing help to the home constituency; the chance to have help with unsolved problems and to learn the various phases of Tuxis work thoroughly; to learn also to distinguish between good and bad; to make choice of the decent, and shun the indecent; to discover how to make correct decisions at the correct time, and to have the character moulded like that of Jesus. In closing the speaker asked for the complete, whole-hearted co-operation of every member of the community as the boys, with their leaders, endeavor to "put the Tuxis program over".

Keith Barnard, of South Monaghan, ex-member of the Boys' Parliament was to have been among those addressing the gathering on Sunday evening, but owing to being obliged to walk with crutches because of a sprained ankle, he was excused from appearing on the platform. Keith, however, was present, with a large number of the other members from the Tuxis Square at Bailieboro.

The Rev. Mr. Jones, who made a fitting and inspiring address, was the closing speaker, choosing his text from Genesis 49-22-26, with special regard to the words, "Joseph is a fruitful bough, even a fruitful bough by the wall; whose branches run over the wall."

The theme was "What is the best thing to seek in life?" and the picture was made clear of the vine growing over the wall, with plenty of fruit inside for the family, and outside for the passing traveller. Urging the boys to make confidants of their fathers, especially before final decision as to their life work, the speaker spoke of Jacob, now ready to pass on and giving his last blessing to his sons, coming to Joseph and he, who had been a 'getter', elbowing everyone off the platform to make room for himself, urges this, forgetfulness of self, and the understanding that the biggest thing is not to get, but to give something worth while like the overhanging vine.

"He does not pray for ease or luxury for his son, but warns him that hate, suspicion and envy may come, yet the God of his fathers will sustain him. The challenge to seek a useful life was here, and it is before you to-day—to help make every other boy's life of more value. Storms will come, but stand firm, and God will be your guide and Saviour."

"A vine needs to be cultivated to secure fruitage, and the Older Boys' Parliament, the provincial and county Boys' Work Boards, I believe, are just such vines, rich in fruitage which increasingly is manifesting itself in the boy life of our country. They help to come to the Fountain of Life, link up with Christ and find for their souls refreshing drink. I urge you, like the fruitful vine, to avoid being self-centred, and rather to help others to be stronger, happier, braver, and better because you have lived."

GET WASTE OUT OF YOUR SYSTEM

Banish Constipation at the Start with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Look out when you wake up tired and stay tired. Beware of headaches, unpleasant breath. These are usually the first symptoms of constipation.

The trouble is that your intestinal system is clogged. You have eaten too many bulkless foods. But you can clean your system safely, if you start at once to eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a cereal that you can eat naturally. It sweeps the intestines clean of poisonous wastes. Far better than habit-forming pills and drugs.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—recurring cases, with every meal. You'll like its crispness and flavor. Your system will benefit by its rich store of iron and healthful elements as well as by its roughage.

BOARD APPROVES LIGHTING PLAN

Ladies' Aid to Instal Lights in Trent River United Church.

FINANCING SAME.

TRENT RIVER, Nov. 14.—(Examiner Correspondence).—A meeting of the Board of Managers was held at the United Church on Monday evening, when the installation of electricity in the church was discussed, the majority being in favor. Rev Mr. Archer acted as chairman.

The Board gave the privilege of installing the lights to the Ladies' Aid and financing same, being willing to sign the necessary papers.

Members of the Ladies' Aid were present and after the Board meeting, Rev. Mr. Archer called a joint meeting to decide the number of lights necessary. A committee of six was appointed, three from the Ladies' Aid, Mesdames Preston, Shearer and Wood and three from the Board of Managers, Messrs. Isaac Lawson, Shearer, and H. B. Wood. Rev. Mr. Archer nominated George Vanvolkenburg to act in his place. This committee will call a meeting with the electrician from Campbellford and make all the necessary arrangements with him, and also have the church wires for the lights as soon as possible.

Annual Fowl Supper Proves Big Success

MARMORA, Nov. 14 (Examiner Corrrespondence)—The annual fowl supper and bazaar under the auspices of the Ladies' Guild and the Anglican parish, of Marmora, took place at the Town Hall on Wednesday afternoon and evening and received good patronage.

Over four hundred sat down to the delicious supper served upstairs. The four tables were presided over by Mesdames O. Leonard, G. Kerr, W. Kerr, S. B. Cheeseman, F. Leal, C. Nichol, H. Melville, J. A. Rice and Miss Annie Bailey.

These were assisted by a number of young men and young ladies and the service left nothing to be desired. The meal more resembled a banquet than anything else, the tables having been artistically arranged. Five booths constituted a very fashionable and attractive bazaar. These were in charge of fancy work, Mrs. S. B. Wright and Mrs. S. C. Boyd; kitchen, Mrs. W. R. Reynolds and Mrs. A. Milliken; white elephant, Mrs. W. Linn and Mrs. E. Brady; careful gleaners, Misses Mary Lumsden, Kathleen Rice and Grace Burridge; candy, Misses Hilda and Clara Phillips. As on former occasions, the spirit of good will was very much in evidence, and the promoters feel the event was most successful considering the leanness of the present year.

WEDDING BELLS

SULLIVAN—SWEENEY

DOURO, Nov. 14—(Examiner Correspondence)—A pretty wedding was solemnized on Tuesday morning at 8.30 at St. Joseph's church, when Mary Agnes, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Sweeney of Douro, was united in marriage to Patrick Francis Sullivan, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Sullivan, also of Douro, Rev. Father M. J. McGuire, officiating.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Mary Allen. She wore a lovely gown of cocoa brown, with hat, shoes and hose to match and carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses.

Miss Rose-Abelle Sullivan, of Toronto, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, and wore a green flowered georgette gown with shoes, hat and hose to match and carried a bouquet of roses.

After the ceremony, a wedding dinner was served to about seventy guests, the dining room being prettily decorated with white streamers and white bells. The toast was given by J. E. Sullivan of Peterborough, brother of the groom, followed by a program of cards and dancing.

The young couple left on a honeymoon to Toronto and other points, the bride travelling in a green silk crepe frock with green velvet hat and cloth coat with wolf trimmings. On their return they will reside in Douro.

The young couple were the recipients of many beautiful gifts.

OBITUARY

SAMUEL ORR.

HASTINGS, Nov. 14 (Examiner Correspondence).—The death occurred recently at Stockdale, Ontario, of a former well known and respected citizen of Hastings in Samuel Orr at the age of 71 years.

The late Mr. Orr was born in Hastings in May, 1859. When a young man he learned the trade of a wagon maker from the late Mr. Bailey at Hastings, which trade he followed all his life. His widow, formerly Miss Emma Blair, of Trenton and eight daughters and four sons are left to mourn his loss. The family are: William B. of Toronto, Henry Gordon and James Arthur of Stockdale, Mrs. Steele of North Bay, Mamie of Picton, Mable of Rochester, Mrs. Wilkinson of Toronto, Mrs. Wilson of Murray township, Mrs. Johnson and Bessie at home, and Annie of Hoards. There are also left to mourn his loss four brothers and two sisters, William of Hastings, Harry of Percy township, John of Peterborough and Joseph of Winnipeg, Mrs. James Johnson, Hastings, and Mrs. Thomas Stevenson, Saskatchewan.

The funeral was held at the United church, Stockdale, under the Orange Order and was very largely attended.

MRS. R. N. WEIR.

At her late residence, 99 Dawes Road, Toronto, on Thursday of last week, Jeanette, beloved wife of R. N. Weir, passed away. It was a great shock to the community, as she was hale and hearty, and had taken part in a birthday party held at Dentonia Park United Church just before she passed away. At the time of her death she was president of the W. M.S., president of the Mission Band, a member of the Women's Association, and superintendent of the Junior Department of the Sunday School. She was always an active worker in the church, having started under the able leadership of Rev. Dr. Thomson of Hastings in her early days. In 1900 she married R. N. Weir, who was principal of Hastings Public School, after which they moved to the West, and remained there for a few years. They were blessed with four children — Ellen, one of the teachers of the Eastern High School of Commerce of Toronto, William, an optician of Meaford, Ont., Mary, a teacher at Regent Park School, Toronto, and Donald having pased away five years ago, and her sorrowing husband, who is principal of the Oakridge School No. 12. She is also survived by three brothers and three sisters, Alexander Wilson of Hastings, J. K. Wilson of Regina, Thomas Wilson of North Dakota, Mrs. William Fleming of Hastings, Mrs. William Sweet of Trenton, and Mrs. J. B. Harper of Edmonton, Alta.

The funeral was held from Dentonia Park United Church on Saturday, Rev. A. M. Dallas, B.A., B.D., conducting the service, assisted by Rev. Mr. Lawrence. The body was interred in Scarboro Lawn Cemetery.

MARY E. HARRINGTON.

DOWNEYVILLE, November 14 (Examiner Correspondence) — The funeral of the late Mary E. Harrington was held on Tuesday morning from the residence of her father, Michael Harrington, King's Wharf, to St. Luke's Church, Downeyville, where Requiem High Mass was said by Rev. Father Galvin, who afterwards said the prayers at the grave. The funeral was very large, showing the high esteem in which deceased was held.

The late Mary E. Harrington was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Harrington and was born and raised at King's Wharf, where she resided until about five years ago, when she went to Toronto, where she held a responsible position in the office of Weldon & Lacy, barristers.

Deceased was was only sick a few hours, death following an operation in St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, and the news was a great shock to her family and friends here. She was 21 years af age, and endeared herself to many friends in this district and in Toronto.

She leaves to mourn her loss, her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Harrington, one brother Frank, and two sisters, Miss Nora, who is at present in Toronto, and Stella at home.

The pall-bearers were: Messrs. Joseph O'Leary, Gerald O'Neill, John Harrington, Martin J. Devine, Austin O'Neill, and Robert Sullivan.

Among those who attended the funeral from a distance were: Mr. and Mrs. John O'Leary, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brady, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gally, Mrs. St. Thomas, Miss B. Traynor, and Miss Lillian Herlihey, all of Lindsay; Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Cadigan, Mr. and Mrs. John Cadigan, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sullivan, Mrs. Thomas Flood, Mrs. Maurice Twomey, Miss Mary Twomey, and Mrs. Hubert Flood from Ennismore, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Alldredge, Mr. and Mrs. George Melsom, Mr. and Mrs. Sandy Millage, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart, and Mrs. George Ranson all of Bobcaygeon; and Mr. I. E. Weldon of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Perdue and family and Mr. Simon Perdue of Peterborough.

5 Years' Ulcerated Leg Yields to Famous Remedy

A Sure Healer of all Damaged or Diseased Skin

Sufferers from leg ulcers, old wounds, poisoned sores, etc., will find in Zam-Buk a truly remarkable healer. Hundreds of such cases have yielded to Zam-Buk after defying weeks and months of ordinary treatment. Zam-Buk stops the awful irritation and pain, and drives out corruption and disease. Zam-Buk succeeds simply because its great soothing and antiseptic powers are backed by remarkable healing properties.

Mr. E. Bretts

Zam-Buk helps Nature to build up the new tissue-cells and once-diseased parts soon become strong and healthy again.

HAD TRIED ALMOST EVERYTHING

"For five years a lady working for us suffered with a terrible ulcerated leg. She had tried almost everything without getting relief. I gave her some Zam-Buk and in a very short time the bad matter was cleared right out. Further use of Zam-Buk caused the place to heal firmly with new skin. Also a neighbor, 70 years old, had inflammatory rheumatism. Doctors could do nothing for her, but my wife soon got her better by massaging with Zam-Buk. When I used Zam-Buk for blood-poison in my foot, it soon put me right."—Mr. E. Bretts, Clandeboye, Manitoba.

The unparalled success of Zam-Buk as a healer of skin troubles lies in its original and valuable formula. Zam-Buk is compounded from certain extracts of herbal origin. These, scientifically blended, attain the maximum of soothing, healing and antiseptic power.

Zam-Buk is so refined that it soaks through the tiny pores into underlying tissues. It kills poisonous germs, stops pain and itching, and grows new skin. Zam-Buk gets at the root of such troubles as eczema, salt rheum, bad legs, ulcers, scalp disease, poisoned sores, etc. It is also a splendid remedy for piles, and a fine all-round first-aid for injuries. Zam-Buk Ointment 50c. box, Zam-Buk Medicinal Soap 25c. cake.

NO TRAIL OF NINETY-EIGHT IS MATACHEWAN GOLD STRIKE

Old Prospectors Come Silently From Remote Points and Settle for Long Winter.

A ROUGH COUNTRY

This is the third and last article by C. D. Greenaway, special correspondent of the Examiner, who was the first newspaperman to get the inside story of the Bannockburn Gold strike. Mr. Greenaway tells below of the wild country, and the coming of veteran prospectors to Matachewan district, in hopes of an Eldorado.

(Special to Examiner. Copyr. by 1930.)

NEW LISKEARD, No. 14.—The new Bannockburn gold strike is in no sense a gold stampede. No swelling, cursing line of thousands clutch at the lifeline of a blizzard-swept Chilkoot Pass.

Bannockburn is probably not even going to be another Red Lake dog sled trail if men listen to the old timers.

Neither stampede nor rush, Bannockburn and Argyle in the Temagami Forest Reserve can be described rather as an infusion that, until the Spring, is almost over. Quietly, almost unperceptibly for months, from all points of the compass, the old timers have been seeping into Matachewan.

In this detailed account of our dash to the Ashley-Garvey-Mining Corporation strike, if there seems to be one thing more emphatic than others, it is the fact that by far the majority of the veteran prospectors were on their way out to comfortable winter quarters. Around the Ashley claims, to the extent of two hundred, they have marked out their own lines, and are content to wait for the results of Ashley's exploratory trenches; perhaps, for his diamond drilling.

For in Bannockburn and Argyle townships there are scarcely any rock exposures. Sand and gravel cover them. Winding streams twist through cosy cranberry swamps. Seven miles south east in Cairo Township are far more outcroppings. But Bannockburn, where it is not burnt over, is an evergreen forest. Where fire has been a tangle of upturned trunks form criss-crossed abbatis in which even a kangaroo would fear rheumatism or heart failure.

So digging for gold in Bannockburn resembles pretty much going out at random with a spade to find the buried charcoal beds of an ancient Indian village or any arm in southern Ontario.

The Montreal River is the great waterway of the Matachewan country. Seven miles of a land hop from Liskeard brings a plane directly over that powerful stream twisting through its deep hilly gorge, yet ever pointing northwest, almost straight as the line of a compass towards the new Bannockburn gold strike. Far below, road, hydro towers, and railway seemed to be running with the river towards Elk Lake. As Kelly predicted, we were catching up with the daily train that runs only as far as the town and had left long before us. By its white smoke, we could trace its progress.

The atmosphere was visible even before we jumped ashore from the pontoons. Three or four prospectors, in new winter outfits, were standing on the board sidewalk outside a general store, swapping information. That night at Col. McKee's surprising, tall stone house, sitting down to a dinner that would have made a New York millionbire envious, sleeping in a room heated ay hot water and lighted by electric light, we prematurely decided that the Matachewan bush was more civilized than others.

That night, too, at the same table, sat C. D. Stevenson, an engineer for the Consolidated Smelting and Mining Co. of Canada, Ltd., who had just come out from the Ashley-Garvey strike. He, too frankly confessed that he had been impressed with what he had seen, and indicated that his company would be sending some field men into the area early in the Spring.

Stevenson looked tired. But it didn't mean as much to me then as it does now. If his legs were aching, he didn't say anything about it. "It's pretty rough in there," was all he said, when he learnt our plans. The old township lines, cut many years before, he told us were almost indistinguishable. What did we know about township lines? Later on, we decided that township lines in the Matachewan bush, until we saw any better, were faded blazes on trees that you found after you didn't need them.

The result of our next two days, from this peaceful distance, leaves the impression that all tenderfoots ought to be warned that there are about as many roads into Ashley's gold strike as there are varieties of poisons.

Only one is pleasant. From Elk Lake you fly between thirty and forty miles further on, up the Montreal River, to Whitefish Lake, a small body of water only four miles from the camp. Here, Ashley's powder and supplies had been hurriedly landed from the planes. From here his men have packed in their tents and camp equipment, leaving a fairly well marked trail as a result, except the first mile and a half which is through a cranberry swamp where the dry hummocks entice you to the oozy trans below. It is an old deserted lumbering trail—this mile and a half—through a winding swampy valley. And it leads to a little sheet of water, called Moccasein Lake, where the via dolorosa from Mistinikon Lake, the long road that we took, links up to the last two and a half miles of the new Ashley camp path at a spot marked by the only signpost. Where the trunk has been exposed and flattened by an axe-stroke, they have written in lead pencil: "trail to Whitefish Lake." When planes are equipped with skis this winter this will be most logical and nearest way to the stroke.

Six miles further away to the east Kelley brought us down on Mistinikon Lake, an enlargement of the west branch of the Montreal River, a larger body of water not so likely to freeze up before we could get back to the plane. At an old delapidated log boat house near the mouth of Powell Creek, Kelley waved good-bye with the promise that he would be waiting next day at noon if weather conditions were at all favorable.

The first lap was to be plain sailing over an old lumber road. Three and a half miles straight west on Figure Eight lake, so named because it looks like that numeral, is one of the J. R. Booth lumber camps, now temporarily deserted except for a caretaker.

Half way into the camp we met two hardened prospectors coming out from the camp. Their faces were covered with several days' beard. The caretaker of the Booth camp, Mr. Wynn, in light blue overalls and smock, was packing out one of their eiderdowns for them. It was some consolation to see that he, also, was steaming with sweat in the chilly air.

"Ashley has struck it rich," both men assured us, and the best directions for the way to the new camp they could give us was to keep to the west around the lake.

Here, at the real jumping off place, I succeeded in persuading Tobin that it would be best to follow Napoleon's advice and live off the country Because it worked once doesn't say that it ever would again. So we left our packs and eiderdown outside the front door of the caretaker's log cabin, and plunged west.

Plunged' is the right word for it. In ten minutes we were into the obstacle race of a life-time. There was underbrush that clutched you like the tentacles of a devil fish. There was an abbattis of fallen trees that would have suited Montcalm for the protection of Ticonderoga from the English in the days of the old French wars.

Three miles and a half it shows on the map. After two miles of it, the unused front upper leg muscles of a tenderfoot became almost paralyzed and turned into an area of balky pain at every step for the rest of the way in and out.

Just at the moment when things seemed blackest, we caught sight first of all of a prospector's claim post, and, a few minutes later, of the figure of a man on the other side of the swamp.

"Are you going into the discovery?" called Tobin.

The man in the distance called back in the affrmative.

"Wait a minute and you'll have some company" Tobin shouted.

We had left Booth's camp a few minutes after eight, and it was now almost two o'clock in the afternoon—and McDonough—for it was Pete McDonough, the veteran prospector who has been even in Ungava—told us that he was on the road back through Ashley's camp to his own claims a mile and a half further west.

By a series of discreet questions he discovered that we had neither food nor an axe, much to his amazement. "I never go into the bush, no matter how far," he said, "without carrying my axe."

Leather boots that were sopping up water ten minutes after we had started on the trail also met with his sensible disapproval. "It's rubber boots for the bush at this time of the year," he said," and when it gets colder you need the elk skin or moose skin moccasins the Indians make."

Ashley, McDonough, thought, had a camp at Wilkinson Lake about a mile away where the supplies had been landed. He decided that it would be best to go the mile out of the way for a meal and, if we were disappointed, we should likely find the camp moved on to Moccasin Lake.

The galling walk, step by step, cursing at every move of a muscle, was unavailing. Ashley's men had gone on. Near Mocessin Lake, McDonough, who had gone on, sent word back with Tobin that he had caught sight of them around the lake.

The first sight of the cache showed that Apsley foresaw the winter. There was a heap of snow shoes. Under a tarpaulin were canned goods and assorted camp material, as well as boxes of explosives for blasting the exploratory trenches across the vein.

It was about two o'clock that we had lunch with McDonough at Mocassin Lake. He shared a big cake of bannock with chunks of butter, cheese and bacon folded between two slices. A package of seeded raisins was the piece de resistance that fondest hopes had not dared to expect.

"I figure that I have ten good years left yet," McDonough confessed, along the last part of the trail. 'And I'm going to stake one more mine yet or you'll probably find my carcass at last over a wheelbarrow in a trench up in this part of the country."

For up in this part of the country, McDonough meant, is the place he figures he is going to find the mine. A mile and a half on from Ashley's he and his brother, he confided, have found promises and indications

WORLD NATIONS INTERESTED IN AUSTRALIA LABOR MOVE

Battle End Either in Financial Crisis or Put Country Back to Economic Recovery.

SCULLIN AGAIN LEADING.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., Nov. 14 (By The Canadian Press).—The demands of the Australian Labor movement, always aggressive and at the moment dominant in federal and state politics, against the drastic measures of economy which Australia will sooner or later have to put into effect, are the forces in an intense battle which will end either in a serious financial crisis, or will put Australia back on the road to economic recovery. The outcome is awaited with interest and sympathy in the sister nations of the British Empire and indeed throughout the world.

Prime Minister James Scullin, whose hair turned white within the first year he held office; who was a sick man when he left Canberra for the Imperial Conference in London, has taken a fresh lot of burdens on his already heavily-taxed shoulders with the new tone adopted by Australian Labor following the victory of the Labor party in New South Wales at the end of October. Mr. Scullin has been balancing the duties of prime minister and treasurer since Hon. E. G. Theodore was forced to resign office as federal treasurer some months ago, following charges connected with purchase of mines by the Queensland government which he headed from 1919 to 1925.

There was talk, in the New South Wales campaign, of repudiating debts. From London, Premier Scullin gave this assurance: "Since the election," he said, in reference to the victory of Premier-elect J. T. Lang, "he has emphatically announced that all obligations will be met. That principle is generally accepted by all the Australian governments." But the fact that Prime Minister Scullin thought it advisable to give this assurance indicates the extent to which the depression had spread.

The victory of Labor in New South Wales, where Mr. Lang was stoutly opposed to the economy measures recommended by Sir Otto Neimeyer, Bank of England expert, gave a strong fillip to the whole trades-union movement, which thought it saw a threat of a reduced standard of living if the proposals were carried out. Sir Otto, famous public finance expert, was charged in the campaign with being the emissary of overseas bondholders. He pointed out after the election that the Bank of England had no interest in Australian finances other than a desire to serve the public interest by averting serious financial difficulties. He was invited by the Australian government; and all Australian premiers in conference substantially accepted his findings.

The Australian parliamentary Labor party, following the New South Wales result, openly expressed its opposition to the Neimeyer proposals and the government's allied economic reform program. With Premier Scullin away in London, the acting prime minister and acting treasurer, Hon. J. E. Fenton and Hon. J. A. Lyons, bore the brunt of an aggressive attack by the Labor backbenchers and trades union supporters. At the moment there is every prospect that the house of representatives will be adjourned until Premier Scullin can get back from London and take the reins in his hands.

Little more than a year ago the house listened to the fiery oratory of Mr. Scullin, leader of the Opposition. But since the Labor party defeated the Nationalist-Country Party coalition in October, 1929, Mr. Scullin has been a different man. Fate took away the federal treasurer, Mr. Theodore, at a difficult time. Worried by the increasing army of unemployed, disillusioned by persistent attacks from within his own party, harassed by endless deputations demanding radical moves, criticised on all sides, Mr. Scullin took up the treasurer's work where Mr. Theodore had left off.

Within a few days he had mastered the details of the most sensational budget in Australian history. It meant working for 15 and 16 hours a day. Long sittings in the House demanded his presence almost continually. In his few spare hours he had to meet deputations by the dozen, and hold interviews with business men and political leaders who were objecting to the budget proposals. During the all-night sittings on the Sales Tax Bills, Mr. Scullin ate his supper without leaving his seat at the table.

Now it is apparently up to Mr. Scullin to bring Labor into line and impress the "high standard of living" faction that drastic economy, governmental, industrial and personal, must be carried out if Australia is ever to get back on a sound financial footing. What success will he have?

ERNIE RITCHIE VISITS KINSMEN

INSPIRING ADDRESS.

Ernie Ritchie, governor of the Ontario and Quebec district of Associated Kinsmen Clubs, was the guest speaker at the regular dinner meeting of the Peterborough Club held last evening in the Empress Hotel. Governor Ritchie gave to his hearers a most inspiring address in Kinsmanship, urging them to put forth new efforts in developing Canada and to build on a solid foundation whereby in days to come the Great British Empire when it has reached the zenith of its power will still go on to greater and higher achievements. He asked members first to be faithful to their club and in thus being faithful and living up to the best ideals of Kinsmanship they will be become faithful citizens of Canada and loyal subjects of the British Empire.

Canada, the speaker declared, gained her Canadian consciousness at the time of the Riel rebellion after which east and west were knit together in one great Dominion. At the time of the Boer War Canada gained her Empire consciousness and showed to the rest of he world that the British Empire was a great commonwealth of nations welded together into one great unit; then at the time of the Great War Canada made further progress and gained her world consciousness rallying to the support of the weak and oppressed. Ever since then, said the speaker, Canada has taken her place amongst the nations of the world working for peace.

These steps were only gained through service and today Canada is calling her young men and women into still greater service so that they might develop and help her become the greatest country in the world.

"It is your duty to give your support to your fellow members. Be regular in your attendance. You are either an asset or a liability to your club and all of you have talents. Some run along one line and some along others, but don't make the mistake and measure the service you render in dollars and cents for their is a personal service which everyone of you as Canadians owe to your club and owe to your country," concluded the speaker.

Henry Toole, commercial master at the Collegiate Institute and Vocation Training school was initiated into the club, and William Steer rendered two fine piano solos.

The guests of the evening were C. Burgener, district treasurer, Ernie Ritchie, district governor, J. Wallace and William Steer.

Match-making Negotiations Under Way to Supply Hippopotamus Mate

NEW YORK, Nov.14 (By The Canadian Press).—Tiny, Central Park's most pronounced bachelor, is to have a mate. Tiny weighs over two tons, and is the pride of the zoo because he is one of the few hippopotami born there. The hero of this story is 22 years old. For quite nome time Zoo-keeper Bob Hurton soticed that Tiny was morose and glum. Mr. Hurton came to the conclusion Tiny needed a mate. But feeding and transporting a mate isn't so easy. There are no feminine hippose in any zoo in this country of suitable age for Tiny.

Tiny's attorney, the zoo-keeper, has just about persuaded the park board that a mate should be provided or hippo's happiness will be affected detrimentally. So, negotiations are under way for provision of Tiny's happiness from the Hamburg zoo in Germany, where the nearest eligible hippopotamus is available.

The difficulty is that it costs quite a bit to send a full-grown hippo half way around the globe. It is not like shipping a lion or tiger—simply caging it till it arrives. Wherever hippo goes, its bathtub goes too. Otherwise, he's likely to sicken and die. And to provide a bath for a hippo on tour is no mean task.

But Mr. Hurton just can't stand the idea of Tiny being unhappy, so a room and private bath will be engaged for Mrs. Hippo.

. . . a Hundred Times a Day

A HUNDRED times a day he suffered the agonies of embarrassment as his conversation was interrupted by "Pardon Me's." No matter what he ate, it caused gas and discomfort. His stomach constantly caused him pain. He could hardly bear the idea of food. He was irritable and nervous—couldn't sleep. A friend suggested Tanlac. He tried it. In a few days the gaseous condition left him. His appetite returned. He began to feel loads better in every way. He slept like a boy.

If gas causes you trouble and you suffer distress after eating, why don't you try Tanlac? Made from roots, barks and herbs—over 52 million bottles have been sold on a positive guarantee of money back if not satisfied. Ask your druggist.

SOCIETY PROGRAM IS MUCH ENJOYED AT FOWL SUPPER

Anniversary and Thanksgiving Services Held in St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Madoc.

MADOC, Nov. 14 (Examiner Correspondence). — Anniversary and Thanksgiving services were held at St. Peter's Presbyterian Church on Sunday, November 9, and were a success spiritually, socially and financially. The splendid weather added to the charm and enjoyment of the occasion and contributed to the Thanksgiving spirit.

The morning service found a large congregation present which listened with rapt attention to the special music and sermon. Rev. D. A. McKenzie of Burnbrae was the special preacher of the day. Mr. McKenzie is a forceful preacher and his sermon on Sunday morning was intellectually and spiritually enriching. The choir under the leadership of Mr. A. E. Bedford, gave three splendid special numbers.

The evening service was in charge of Rev. C. K. Nicoll, of Trenton. He was assisted by Rev. G. W. Rivers, of Trinity United Church. The congregation was large, being augmented by friends from the other churches. The choir presented seven special numbers, and by this special effort gave the large audience a real feast of sacred music. Printed programs were distributed to the congregation.

On Monday evening the ladies of the church again did themselves honor in providing another bounteous Thanksgiving supper. Following the supper the choir entertained the large audience to a program of sacred music, Rev. T. G. Marshall presiding as chairman.

Program

Doxology, invocation, hymn, Come, Ye Thankful People Come; Prayer of Thanksgiving, and for blessing on King and Empire; male quartette, Messrs. Wellman, Ross, Bedford, and Hawthorne; anthem, by the choir, "Hark, Harkk, my Soul"; greetings from Kingston Presbytery, Rev. N. Reid; solo, Miss Henderson; greetings from the Anglican Church, Rev. P. G. Reynolds; sacred instrumental trio, Mrs. Ludbrook and the Misses Ludbrook; greetings from the United Church, Rev. G. W. Rivers; reading, Rev. G. W. Rivers; solo, Mr. William Hawthorne; violin solo, Mr. William Scrutton; greetings from Foxboro pastoral charge, Rev. H. Reid; solo, Miss Lenore Vandervoort; anthem, "March On," by the choir; duet by Mr. and Mrs. Bedford; hymn, "O God of Love, O King of Peace;" The National Anthem and benediction.

Spiritual Conference

A Spiritual Conference for ministers and people of the Madoc section of Belleville Presbytery was held in Trinity United Church on Tuesday. In the afternoon the ministers met to discuss the spiritual conditions of these days and to pray for a deep work of grace in their own hearts and in the hearts of the people. In the evening an open meeting was held when representatives of neighboring charges met with prayerful Christian people of Madoc to consider their spiritual interests.

During the evening Mr. F. McKercher of Toronto contributed two wonderful solos, using Gospel hymns, one of them being, "I've tried in Vain."

Rev. Melvin Tayler, of Wellington, Rev. C. S. Reddick, chairman of Belleville Presbytery, Mr. F. McKercher of Toronto, and the Chairman of the Conference Committee on Evangelism, Rev. G. W. Rivers, were the leaders in this spiritual movement.

Armistice Services

At Trinity United Church, Armistice day services were held on Sunday morning, with a large attendance, the evening service being withdrawn on account of anniversary services in St. Peter's Presbyterian Church.

Suitable hymns were chosen, and Miss M. Henderson and Miss Ramsay sang a beautiful duet, "Still with Thee." Miss Henderson also gave a splendid solo, "O voice out of the wilderness," both of which added much to the impressiveness of the service.

Mr. George White gave a most impressive and instructive address on the meaning of Armistice Day. As this was taken from the soldier's view point it was very interesting to the audience. Rev. G. W. Rivers, the minister, took as his subject, "Forgetting to be thankful," and the concluding anthem by the choir was a most appropriate one, "It shall not be in Vain" with the duet beautifully taken by Mrs. George White and Mrs. C. N. Whytock. The service as a whole was one of the most impressive held for some time.

Phillips, work on street dragging and gravel $19.50; George Partridge, 120 yards of gravel, $12; C. E. Meiklejohn, 55c.

The following letter was forwarded to P. S. Ewing and family by the members of the Council:

"We, the members of Percy Township council, learn with deep regret of your great loss in the death of a kind and loving wife and mother, who has borne her suffering patiently through many years and whose courage and fortitude should be an example to all of us.

Now in His Infinite wisdom He has taken her unto Himself, we therefore commend you and the family to Him who alone can heal every aching heart. We can only extend our heartfelt sympathy in this, your sad bereavement." The letter was signed by W. H. Nelson, reeve, C. H. Curtis, deputy reeve, James Lamey, Adam Campbell and Alfred Merrill, councillors.

The council adjourned to meet on Tuesday, Dec. 2, at 10 o'clock a.m.

HEAVY SEED POTATO CROP

Vermont Has Record Growth With Practically No Rot.

SOME LESS FORTUNATE.

MONTPELIER, VT., Nov. 14 (C.P.)—The harvesting of the certified seed potato crop in Vermont was completed under particularly favorable conditions, according to information from the Department of Agriculture here.

Observations recently made by H. L. Bailer, inspector in charge, showed the larger seed-growing sections of the State would yield the heaviest crop per acre since the bureau was formed in 1914. Over 500 bushels per acre have been reported by several growers and a large number have been reported over 400. It is probable that the average of field run potatoes will be well over 300 bushels per acre for the 436 acres certified. Last year's figure was 284 bushels per acre.

There has been practically no rot this year, the department reports, and the condition of the tubers was found to be unusually good. The extra long and favorable growing season provided not only unusual growth but in most sections maturity.

The conditions in Vermont as reported by the department, contrast sharply with the conditions in some of the other potato seed raising states. Drought in many sections and excessive rains in Maine have made for a crop estimated at 11 per cent below the five year average and of 2 per cent below that of last year for potatoes as a whole. There has also been considerable shrinkage in certified seed production as a whole as the result of these conditions.

The market for seed as well as table stock has not, however, been active, and prices have been far below those which the general crop would indicate. Sales reported to October 25, range from $1.25 to $1.65 per bushel, with the average around $1.40. A year ago with a larger crop in the country, prices were about 50 cents a bushel more. A large number of orders from New Jersey growers have been received this year, the Department says.

RED PATCH CLUB HOLDS ANNUAL DINNER

VICEROY DEPICTS IDEAL OF UNIFIED FEDERAL INDIA

Message to London Emphasizes Need of Strong Central Gov't.

CONSIDER NATIVE FEELING.

Urges Provinces Should Be Given Maximum of Autonomous Control.

LONDON, Nov. 14 (C.P.)—The eagerly awaited despatch from the Government of India on the best form of Government for the country was issued last night, and it outlines the ideal of a unified Federal India—a United States of India, as a co-partner in the British Commonwealth of Nations.

"The Viceroy's despatch," as the report has already come to be named, constitutes a considerable part of the raw material on which the Round-Table Conference delegates will base their initial discussions of Indian status and political reform. The report makes a definite advance on the Simon Commission recommendations, in that it outlines plans for a strong central Government.

At the outset the despatch admits a large degree of national consciousness among the educated classes of India, and says it would be a great mistake to underestimate the force or depreciate the value of this sentiment.

Nationalist Strength Shown

The civil disobedience movement exhibits both the strength and the manifest limitations of the Nationalist forces, says the Government's statement. There is little doubt the minority communities share to a large extent in these broad Nationalist aspirations; but, generally speaking they display a keen apprehension of their position, as it would be in a self-governing India over which the restraining hand of Britain had no control. They are pardonably concentrating their attention on the protection of their rights and interest in the community.

The Indian Government agrees with the Simon Commission, that the aim of the reformers must be to establish a constitution containing due provision for its own development and expansion. Meanwhile the main problem is declared by the Government to be the means by which British India may be developed in a manner not only consistent with the wide revision, but appropriate to its own immediate requirements. The Government admits that the provinces should be given the maximum of autonomous control consistent with the interests of India as a whole, but emphasis is laid on the fact that there is a great need of a strong, vigorous central authority.

If you buy out of town, and I buy out of town, and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think about it?

FERGUSON HEADS FOR HOME

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 14. (C. C. Cable).—Premier G. H. Ferguson of Ontario left London to-day to return to Canada, sailing later on the Empress of Australia from Southampton.

Also sailing on the Empress of Australia to-day were Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Canadian Minister of Justice, a delegate to the Imperial Conference, and Hon. C. H. Cahan, Canadian Secretary of State who has been in England and Europe for some weeks.

Various advisers and Canadian statistical experts also started back for the Dominion to-day.

5 BODIES FOUND IN LYONS RUINS

Fear Mounts That Further Landslides May Follow—Wide Area Evacuated.

CATHEDRAL THREATENED.

LYONS, France, November 14 (C. P.). — Fear of further landslides down the sides of the picturesque Fourviere Hill led to-day to evacuation of awide area about the section where yesterday upwards of 100 persons were buried as they slept when their houses collapsed about them.

The foundations of the entire district are believed by Lyons authorities to have been undermined by recent extended rains, and the Antiquaille Hospital and even the famous old Cathedral of St. Jean itself are threatened with collapse. It is not believed that much can be done by reinforcing the weakened area, since the undermining appears to be too widespread.

Crews of firement, police and volunteers at dawn resumed their excavation of the ruins of the ten or twelve houses which were caught in the landslides yesterday morning for the bodies of those who were buried beneath the tons of masonry and dirt Only five bodies thus far have been recovered, and only three of these have been identified. Of fifteen persons taken alive from the debris several are seriously injured and probably will not live.

FUNERAL HOME RE-DECORATED

Many New Improvements Made in Premises Occupied By M. McFadden and Son.

LIGHTING SYSTEM.

Gerald McFadden, funeral director and general house furnisher, in business at 178 Hunter street, has recently had his premises thoroughly re-decorated and has completed certain alterations to the interior which provide courteous and up-to-date funeral service day or night.

The business was established almost three score years ago by the late Martin McFadden, who formerly occupied the premises now owned by Lane and Eano. The business is still known under the old name of M. McFadden and Son. Since his father's death Gerald McFadden has carried on the business, with which he has been so closely associated during the entire period of his business life.

The alterations include the installation of new lighting equipment, which comprise eight powerful electric lights, disposed down the centre of the ceiling and in the show windows; the construction of a more spacious office at the rear of the store, and the entire redecoration of the exterior and interior. The walls are painted a serviceable golden-yellow, while the ceiling and floor has been stained to match.

Further alterations are anticipated and when completed will provide a separate department for the showing of religious pictures and other religious goods, while a small but amply spacious portion has been set aside for the funeral parlor.

Mr. McFadden has secured the services of Patrick Clancy, and assures his patrons new and old that they can be certain of the usual unfailing courtesy and service, on which the firm has lased its policy in the past.

GENERAL MOTORS HEAD OPTIMISTIC

H. A. Brown States Business in 1931 Likely to Exceed 1930.

WHEAT MOVES TO ORIENT.

OSHAWA, Ont., Nov. 14.—Returning from a Dominion-wide tour, H. A. Brown, vice-president and general manager of the General Motors of Canada, Limited, declared here that he found conditions which tend to give everyone a good reason for optimism that economic conditions will soon improve.

There are large sections of the country, he said, where business recession has been psychological and where purchasing power is unimpaired. Already a summar of indices shows business in 1931 will be better than for 1930. The mettle of Canadians under the trials of a business slump has been admirable all across the country, Mr. Brown stated.

The unquenchable optmism of Western Canada even with wheat conditions as they are is a revelation, he proceeded. At Vancouver there is even a silver lining to the wheat cloud, shipping to the Orient increasing almost daily as the result of the low grain prices.

Halifax, he maintained, is a bright spot on the Canadian commercial map right now. In Prince Edward Island business is rapidly increasing and in his opinion, Mr. Brown said, the little island province rated first from a business standpoint among the provinces.

MEMORIES OF DAYS OF GREAT WAR YEARS OF TRIAL AND HARDSHIPS RECALLED AT ANNUAL GATHERING

Members of the First Canadian Division Residing in District Meet.

FRIENDSHIPS CEMENTED.

Quickening of Interest in Welfare of Ex-Service Men is Noticed.

The "Red Patch" Club—members of the First Division Canadian Expeditionary Force, fittingly observed the twelfth anniversary of Armistice last evening at the Armouries, when they gathered around the banquet board under the chairmanship of Sergt. Robert Hendry.

Friendship cemented in the trenches and which have endured throughout the years, placed each member of the club, were he officer or 'other rank', on a common footing. It was a splendid example of the wonderful comradeship so well fostered in the British Army, and was an occasion on which doubtless the minds of those old soldiers went back over the years with fingled feelings of joy and sadness.

Welfare of Needy

Memories of those early days at Valcartier; of the crossing of the Atlantic by that great Armada of transports; the subsequent period of training under gruelling conditions on Salisbury Plain, and those four long years of active service in France, not without their moments of happiness, but crammed with tragedy and pain, were vividly recalled.

Underlying the speeches one could detect a certain, quickening of interest for the welfare of the needy ex-serviceman, and a vehement protest at the attitude of certain people who have recently been agitating against militarism, and the services of rememberance.

A striking feature of the evenings proceedings was the observance of the toast to "Fallen Comrades". The room was plunged into darkness during the period of silence, while the gloom was pierced by the light of an illuminated Cross, bearing the legend "Lest We Forget". The "Last Post" was sounded by Lieut. W. Peryer, and on the first notes of the "reveille", the lights were again switched on. In the interval a solemn hush fell over the entire assembly—a hush which conveyed something of the great depth of feeling, and of the united thought of the assembly for their many brave comrades who were not destined to return, and who ventured into the great unknown.

Sergeant Hendry in proposing the toast to the "First Division", after the toast to the King had been honoured, said, "We meet here tonight on the 12th Anniversary of Armistice, but in the midst of the celebration we must not forget those brave comrades less fortunate than us, who did not come back and the other class who are now waging a war against wounds and disease."

Lieut-Colonel T. D. Johnston, V.D., in responding to the toast expressed his pleasure at being present. It made him think of old times, he said. Speaking of the calibre of the Canadian soldier, he thought that the First Division had played their part to the limit, and had done well. Certain people will always criticise. They will declare that the militia is of no use, and will try to make light of the great services which were rendered during the war. They do not see the reason for maintaining the militia of men who do not forget. An organization of soldiers, he contended, was stronger than any other organization he knew of, as a means of fostering good companions and enjoying the full measure of genuine friendships, and he was glad to be associated, at all times, with the soldier".

In calling upon Captain James Abraham to propose the toast to "Fallen Comrades", Sergeant Hendry, said that as President of the Canadian Legion no one has done more in this city for the cause of the returned soldier than our own 'Jimmy'.

"I know many of the boys here are taken back in memory with the old comrades, with whom they ate and slept, and went through difficulties and privations and fought with", said Captain Abraham, "to memories of the boys who now lie in Flanders fields and in scattered cemeteries in England, and in our own beloved Canada. They threw to us the torch, to carry high".

It is a sacred trust, he proceeded, so let us all remember to step off with the right foot to fulfill this purpose. Let us not break faith.

Alderman G. A. Macdonald proposing the toast to "Our City", speaking on behalf of His Worship Mayor Denne and the members of the City Council, explained that the only reason he was present was because of the invitation extended to him on the assumption that the City Council is interested in the returned men and their problems. I assure you, that you judged rightly, said Alderman Macdonald, and if in the past the citizens of Peterborough were able to do anything for the returned soldier I can confidently state that in the future they will ever be ready and willing to aid returned men. The people have never forgotten and I trust never shall forget, not only the men who went from this city, but those other men who represented the British Empire.

"Our Province" proposed by Major Fred Hills, reserve of officers 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons, was responded to by Captain J. F. Strickland, M.P.P. who was afforded a rousing reception, averred that we in Canada and in Ontario in particular have much to be proud of in the fact that we live in such an invigorating environment; proud also of the traditions also which we have handed down through the race from which we sprung. He thought that so long as we in the Banner Province maintain those traditions we have nothing to fear for the future.

Proudest Moment

In speaking of the proudest moment of his life Captain Strickland, explained that it was before he joined the army sixteen years ago, when one cold day at this period of the year he witnessed the first contingent leave Toronto for Valcartier. He felt sure that if they felt anything as he did about the matter, they would be proud to be British subjects and to be residents of the Province of Ontario—a Province covering a greater area than the country in which they fought the War—a Province which in a few years time will not only be a factor in the Western hemisphere but of the whole world.

Lieut. E. Scott, R.N.A.S. responding to the toast to the visitors, expressed his pleasure at being present at the gathering, explaining that the greatest difficulty he had was in getting to reunions of his own unit, which are not held so far inland.

"Our Guests" proposed by Major H. K. Clifton, M.C., Medaille Militaire; now, contending that the last War was a 'War to end War'. "That is not right", said Colonel Johnston. "You men went to defend the British Empire".

Poor Type of Man

The speaker pointed out a slogan which scoffers had adopted which was, "Let us forget." He was glad to think he was not surrounded by that type of man, but was in the presence Croix de Guerre, said one thing that always impressed him was the sporting spirit of the war, which was more or less of a game; although it was tough in spots. The whole army life however, was based on "playing the game".

Lieut.-Colonel D. J. Lawrie, vice-president of the "Red Patch" Club, made a suitable but short response.

An enjoyable program was contributed to by the chairman, and by Lieut. W. Peryer; Captain H. Cutmore, Royal Marines now of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons; Walter Parr, C.S.M.E.G, Abraham, M. M., D.C.M. (bar); Art Edwards and Sergt. Major J. Playford.

Among those present was Captain H. Dinsdale; Captain Dr. Murray Fraser; Lieut. Norman Hatton and A. B. Cutting, editor of Farm and Dairy, ex-service member of the 48th Highlanders, whose brother was killed in action while with the 2nd Battalion at Ypres on June 5th, 1916. An apology for absence was received from Lieut.-Col. G. Hall, V.D.

The committee in charge of the arrangements consisted of Major Clifton, chairman; Robert Hendry, V. Stewart, C. Williams, N. Fallon, Wm. McPherson and Art Ringer.

PLANS COMPLETE FOR BIG RE-UNION OF 'IRON SECONDS'

Merchants Are Asked to Display Their Flags in Honor of Occasion.

WELL ORGANIZED.

Parade Headed By Rangers Band is Being Planned For Saturday Night.

Peterborough which is to be the scene of the big re-union of old members of the Second Battalion tomorrow, has planned to extend a warm and rousing welcome to some 250 men who are expected to be in our midst, for the auspicious occasion. The request is earnestly made that merchants and storekeepers display their flags and bunting, and so convey some of that warmth of feeling and respect which is proudly fostered by all.

The Battalion which earned the proud distinction of the "Iron Second", due to the fact that during the whole period of the war, they never lost an inch of ground, was recruited in Central Ontario, and Peterborough added her full quota, in the first contingent which left here under the command of Lt.-Col. F. B. Clegg.

Col. Ackerman Chairman.

The veterans will arrive throughout Saturday by automobile from all quarters of the compass, and in the evening will gather in the Canadian Legion Hall under the chairmanship of Lieut.-Colonel Charles Ackerman, at six o'clock. Following the dinner the men will parade on Murray street at eight o'clock, and will then march through the principal thoroughfares of the city, headed by the Peterborough Ranger's band, under Lieut. W. Peryer and by permision of Lieut.-Col. M. H. Park, V.D. A pause will be made in Confederation Square, where a wreath will be placed on the War Memorial, to the memory of those heroic members of the Battalion who paid the supreme sacrifice, and who found their last resting place in the fields of France and Flanders.

Among the many prominent officers of the Battalion who have signified their intention of being present are Major-General Garnett-Hughes, C.B., C.M.G., Colonel L. T. McLaughlin, C.M.G., D.S.O., Colonel R. Vanderwater, D.S.O., Warden of Hastings County.

The city will be represented by His Worship Mayor Roland Denne, who will tender a civic reception to the men of the "Iron Second", while E. A. Peck, M.P. and J. F. Strickland, M.P.P., have also accepted invitations.

As a sign of welcome and to notify visitors to the re-union that they are approaching Peterborough, a large sign is to be strung up across King's Highway 28, somewhere in the vicinity of Springville.

The sign will consist of a large red square surmounted by a large half circle or green—the red patch being the Divisional sign and the half circle of green the Battalion sign—which will convey a wealth of meaning to the "boys."

Their arrival in the city will doubtless be marked by the lavish display of bunting, which will be in evidence on all the public and mercantile buildings.

Well Organized.

NEW MEMBERS JOIN MADOC INSTITUTE

Mrs. C. N. Whytock Pleasing Hostess at Regular Meeting of Society.

MADOC, November 14 (Examiner Correspondence). — Madoc Women's Institute held their October meeting on the last Friday of the month at the home of Mrs. C. N. Whytock with an attendance of fifty, several names being added to the membership list. Mrs. E. West presided, and after a short time spent in community singing, which was closed with the Institute Ode, the minutes of last meeting were read and approved. Roll call was answered by Thanksgiving thoughts. Letters of thanks were read from Mrs. Henderson, Mrs. Wellman, and the Madoc Public School Board. Report was given of the fair lunch booth, also the amount collected for special fair prizes. Bill was presented for the school lighting, $190.25, which was ordered paid. It was moved by Mrs. Wellman, and seconded by Mrs. Smith that $100.00 be paid on Reid's bill at once. This was carried.

On motion of Mrs. W. Whytock and Mrs. G. Hill, it was decided to purchase a wreath for Armistice Day. Mrs. Ross and Mrs. Parks suggested that the Institute hold a euchre some time in November, which was carried, and the following committee placed in charge: Mesdames A. Smith, G. Hill, W. Parks, and W. Ross to decide the time, place, and other details, Mrs. Charles Whytock, president, taking the chair for the business meeting.

Mrs. Rupert was then called on for current events, mentioning among other items the great loss of life in the destruction of the R-101, and the honors won by two Madoc boys, Dr. W. Dafoe and Dr. A. Whytock.

Mrs. James Whytock gave a reading, "Thanksgiving in the Country", and a pleasing piano duet was given by Mrs. W. Hulin and Mrs. L. Ashley, which was much enjoyed, and a hearty vote of thanks was extended to the pianists. The meeting closed with the National Anthem and a social half hour.

Furs and Fabrics Form Chic Alliance This Season

(1) A modish coat of dark green tweed cut along princess lines with the scarf and underneath cuffs and the wide flare at the bottom of the skirt, all of black baby caracul. (2) A slim, demurely simple frock, yet one which is very elaborate as to sleeves, which are of net appliqued with the material which fashions the dress, in smart puff effect. (3) Turbans are the height of style and this one is beguilingly draped to the head, using a saucy bow against the cheek for witchery. (4) An interesting tunic blouse of turquoise blue silk crepe worn with a black skirt of wool or velvet, thus completing a charming costume.

LAKEFIELD COUPLE GUESTS OF HONOR

Mr. and Mrs. Milford Hampton Presented With Handsome Floor Lamp.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 14.—(Examiner Correspondence)—Mr. and Mrs. Milford Hampton were guests of honor at a gathering held on Wednesday last at their home, when members of the local volunteer fire brigade presented the young couple with a handsome floor lamp on the occasion of their recent marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Hampton replied in fitting terms and expressed their appreciation of the remembrance. Mr. Hampton has assisted in similar events many times, but this is the first time he has played the stellar role.

Present Play.

The ladies of Knox United Church W.M.S. gave their "Peace" pageant and missionary play "Two Masters" in St. Andrew's church hall, Peterborough, on Tuesday evening, with great success. The ladies report a delightful time.

Card Party.

Fifteen tables were played at the A.Y.P.A. euchre on Thursday evening when prizes were won by Miss Dorothy Turner and Mr. Morgan Abrams. Mrs. Francis McFadden and Mr. Marshall Hamblin won the consolation prizes.

WARSAW

Mr. and Mrs. Ogestan and Miss McClennan of Toronto visited friends in Warsaw over the holiday week end.

Mr. Joseph Miles and family moved to a farm near Bethany on Tuesday.

Mr. H. Gallagher has taken the mail route formerly taken by J. Miles, and is also caring for the Town Hall until the end of the year.

Mr. J. A. Sargent gave his postponed talk on temperance in the South Dummer Sunday School on Sunday afternoon. The Sunday school is being held at 2 o'clock p.m. during the winter months.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Clements arrived home on Tuesday evening.

LARGE ATTENDANCE CAVAN FOWL SUPPER

Entertainment Under Auspices of United Church W. A. is Unprecedented Success.

CAVAN, Nov. 14 (Examiner Correspondence)—The fowl supper and entertainment in Cavan Community Hall, under the auspices of Cavan United Church W.A. was an unprecedented success, more than six hundred people sitting down to supper.

The three tables were attractively decorated with yellow runners, yellow candles in silver holders and vases containing bright red autumn flowers.

The supper was a bounteous one and greatly enjoyed while the waiters were quick and attentive.

After supper all adjourned to the large auditorium of the hall when the comedy drama, "The Road Back" was presented by members of the Cavan Dramatic Club. While the hall was being filled, Mrs. L. H. Winslow provided music, and also between acts. Mrs. Winslow was assisted in duets by three of her pupils, the Misses Mary Tinney, Audrey Nill and Dorothy Cobbley.

The characters for the play were: Ma Fowler, Mrs. A. Tinney; Pa Fowler, R. A. Sutton; Jenny Fowler, Mrs. J. E. Whitham; Milly Fowler, Miss Helen Kennedy; Mrs. Blinders, the gossipy neighbor, Mrs. James Douglas; George Fowler, the son of the household, Stanley Theobald; Arthur McLeod, a friend of Jenny's, Bob Sutton; Blake Chester, in love with Milly, Clifford Elliott; Mr. Harrison, Jenny's employer, Ralph Staples; Ben Fowler, Pa's brother from Arizona, Ralph Staples; Mrs. Chester, Blake's mother, Miss V. McKim.

The play takes place in the living room of the Fowler home in a small eastern city and is presented in three acts. The various characters were well portrayed, each person being adapted to the part assigned to them.

As the play proceeded and the plot unfolded, there were many bright cryptic sayings and situations, so ridiculous as to call forth continued laughter.

Pa Fowler in his listless seeking for work, Ma Fowler in her endeavor to escape work and attend the movies, Mrs. Blinders, who desires to know all that concerns her neighbors and her faculty for stating plain facts, however disagreeable, with Millie's decided opinions express in very pointed, if rather slangy language, all combine to bring about ridiculous and amusing situations.

Jenny, the wage earner of the family, through the shifty, dishonest character of her brother, finds herself in the tragic position of being falsely accused of stealing, almost loses her lover and left without work.

The appearance on the scene of Pa Fowler's brother, Uncle Ben from Arizona, adds humor and interest. Mrs. Chester, Blake's mother, a haughty person, much opposed to her son's attachment for Milly, changes her attitude toward Uncle Ben and the Fowler family in general, when she discovers that Uncle Ben was very wealthy.

The play, while humorous, contained a good moral. The proceeds for the evening amounted to $265. A quilt, the property of the W.A. was sold by auction for $5.25.

Rev. J. E. Whitham, pastor of the church, acted as chairman for the program and James Douglas was the auctioneer for the quilt.

CHILDREN ATTEND CENOTAPH SERVICE

Dr. Munro Speaks at Armistice Day Ceremony in Warsaw.

WARSAW, Nov. 14.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Armistice Day was celebrated in Warsaw on Tuesday when the school children marched in fours to the cenotaph at fifteen minutes to eleven, led by Mr. Sloan. The front row of pupils and the rear row carried Union Jacks.

Rev. J. W. Wilkinson offered prayer and the children sang "The Maple Leaf" followed by Kenneth Jakins who recited "In Flanders' Fields". Prayer was again offered by Rev. Mr. Wilkinson and Reeve Hawthorne read the names of the fifty-three men who lost their lives in the Great War. Two minutes' silence was observed and Dr. Munro gave a talk on conditions caused by the war and the result. The pictures of the war and the result have nothing bright. They are all black. Economic conditions the world over today are bad because of the war.

"We meet in sorrow to think of the splendid men of all nations who gave their lives. Those who have returned are not as fit as they would have been had they not gone through it." Dr. Munro spoke to enable those present to do all in their power to prevent another such war. So long as selfishness abounds, there is danger. "Love your neighbor as yourself."

"The greatest asset of a country is not its mines, nor its product, but the people and the minds of people control the people. If the mind is for peace, the people must be. People were very enthusiastic when the men returned, but they have forgotten. They should be honored and people have not fulfilled the pledges then made."

Dr. Munro encouraged the children to strive to grow up good and noble, to make Canada a great country—great because it is good, and strives for peace.

Rev. Mr. Wilkinson gave a short but impressive appeal for peace. He said he knew something of the horrors of war. All his chums went over the top on that terrible day of April 9, 1917, at Vimy Ridge, and he, alone, was sent back. There are green hills and green valleys with crosses. It is a black Golgotha.

Jesus said, "Blessed are the peacemakers for they shall be called the children of God." Rev. Mr. Wilkinson [illegible] through every phase of life. Thank God for it. Work for it with all your might. Not one of the boys who signed up and put on the khaki wanted war. They wanted peace. They went over the top for the love of humanity, for universal peace. Some were afraid, but they bravely faced it. Jesus did not want the death, he dreaded it, but He did it. Thank God for the stand that Britain has taken."

His prayer at the end was a benediction of peace.

DEAD WHITE

Many Palm Beach things prefer dead white to off-whites. It is an indication of the general appreciation of dead white with suntanned skins.

Some New Creations in Suit and Coat Dresses

(1) An interesting Beaucraft suit inspired by Delong, in hunter's green wool jersey with luxurious beaver trimming. The frock achieves a two-piece effect, while conveniently one-piece. The jacket wraps around and buttons. (2) Two new and striking coat dresses, the first a frock of gray and white, with a white collar and belt to accentuate its smartness. The second frock in the Marie Marot sketch is made of sage-green tweed of very fine quality. It has the successful dolman sleeve that is one of the new notes of the mode. (3) Brown wool crepe fashions this smart frock with soft angora at the throat and wrists. The moulded lines and wide patent leather belt are good details.

Suit In Toronto Court Is Won By Boston Lady

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 13.— Mrs. Elizabeth Bethune Campbell of Boston won another legal victory today in her long and highly involved case against W. E. Hogg, K. C., Ottawa, her uncle, in connection with the estate of her mother, the late Lady Elizabeth Howland of Toronto.

Mrs. Campbell was the first woman to successfully argue a case before the Privy Council when that august body allowed an accounting of the estate and found that after proper disbursements there remained in the hands of Mr. Hogg, as trustee $7,027.

Today Chief Justice Rose gave judgment for this exact amount against Mr. Hogg, in favor of the Toronto General Trusts Corporation, administrators of the estate.

In Muffets...more delicious whole-wheat flavour

YOU will enjoy the better natural flavour of Muffets. It will show you how delicious whole wheat can be when it is baked through and through and toasted to a tempting crispness.

Enticing to your appetite. Serve Muffets alone or with milk or cream, or with berries or fruit... fresh or cooked.

You get all the health values of the whole wheat in Muffets because made from the entire kernel of the grain... nothing removed. They provide protein, carbohydrates, minerals, vitamins, bran. Study the Health Facts printed here.

SUN VITAMIN added

Now by irradiation with ultra violet rays, Muffets are imbued with the vitamin of sunshine which scientists say is so necessary to health. Children need the sun vitamin to have strong, straight bones... sound hard teeth. Adults, too, need it to restore wastage of teeth and bones.

In fall and winter the ultra violet rays of sunshine are only 1/9 as strong in health benefit as in summer. At any meal, by eating Muffets, you may replenish the needed supply of Vitamin "D", and sustain the good health you got from summer sunshine.

Health Facts about Muffets

1. For growth—The proteins in Muffets are far more efficient than the proteins of ordinary fine cereals.
2. For bones and teeth—3 times as much phosphorus in Muffets as in white flour. 20% more lime than even in ordinary whole wheat bread!
3. For your blood—3 times as much iron in Muffets as in cornmeal or rice.
4. For well-being—Roughage—in the exact proportion intended by nature in every Muffet.
5. Vitamins—4 important vitamins, one being the new "Sunshine" vitamin never before obtainable in cereal.

Muffets are irradiated under the Steenbock process of which The Quaker Oats Company is sole licensee for cereals.

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. McBain of Fairmount were hosts on Wednesday evening at a jolly party, when a large number of their friends and neighbors, numbering about sixty, assembled at their home for an evening of fun and music. Mr. George Hooten, superintendent of the Fairmount Sunday School, presided. During the evening, double presentations were made to young people of the neighborhood who were married in September. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Earle (formerly Miss Stella Sanderson of Lindsay), were recipients of a wicker chair and fernery, the presentation being made, on behalf of the assemblage, by Mr. Harry McArthur and Mr. Edward Johnson, and the accompanying address being read by Mr. Carman Seymour. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick McIndoo (formerly Miss Mary Sanderson of Cavan), were presented, by Mr. Edward Johnson, on behalf of their friends, with a four-hundred day clock, and the address was read by Mr. Lloyd Hooten. Suitable acknowledgments were made by the bridegrooms, and the company sang, "For They are Jolly Good Fellows." During the evening, the Rev. Mr. Moyer of Fairmount and Springville, spoke briefly; Miss Helen Staples of Springville gave several readings, and Mrs. Marie McBain Hamilton of Palmerston assisted in entertaining, with instrumental and vocal numbers. Later, dainty refreshments were served and a hearty vote of thanks to the hosts was voiced by Mr. J. H. Sanderson and seconded by Mr. J. O. Ball. Mr. McBain, in replying, spoke of the memories of happy times of his earlier days, which the evening's merriment had evoked.

Hamilton's group of the Women's Association of St. Andrew's United Church. The ladies were received by Mrs. Roper; Mrs. F. L. Robinson, president of the Women's Association, and Mrs. Hamilton. The rooms were very attractively arranged with quantities of bronze and russet chrysanthemums and the table was pretty with a lace cloth, a silver basket filled with rose pink 'mums and rose candles in silver candlesticks. Tea was poured by Mrs. J. Stanger and Mrs. C. E. Clements, assisted by Mrs. V. S. Foster, Mrs. R. Cotton and Mrs J. W. A. Patoine, who were in charge of refreshments, and Mrs. L. M. Brooks, Mrs. H. Wightman, Mrs. J. S. Boyd, Mrs. M. T. Breckenridge. Mrs. G Evans acted as treasurer.

The choir members of Trinity United Church had a delightful evening in Millbrook, when they were entertained by the choir leader and organist, Miss Mabel Clarry, who was assisted by her sister, Miss Gertrude Clarry of New York City, now visiting her home in Millbrook. About fifty guests were present, including a number of new choir members, who were initiated at a novel and amusing ceremony devised by Mr. M. H. Park, after they had been formally approved by Miss Clarry and welcomed by Mr. W. F. Skitch. Arrangements were in the hands of Mrs. R. A. Wainman, assisted by Mrs. G. A. Richmond, Mrs. O. Nichols and Mrs. A. Barton. An entertaining program of music, dancing and games was enjoyed, followed by the service of delicious refreshments in buffet style from a table attractively arranged with baby 'mums and yellow candles in silver holders. Ices were cut by Mrs. A. Fife and Mrs. J. E. Clegg. During the evening, Mr. Smith of Nashua, N.Y., a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Richmond, played several banjo selections. Prizes for contests were won by Mrs. D. Wren, Mrs. A. Barton, Mr. J. A. Robinson and Mr. James Ridyard. The appreciation of the guests was fittingly tendered by Mr J. Kennett.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

You have often heard it said that "one gets out of a thing what he puts into it."

• • • • • • •

Or perhaps the saying is changed a little to "A person gets out of a thing what he brings to it" and this is well worth thinking about once in a while.

• • • • • • •

And it is especially true of people who are working for others and who desire promotions and a position of responsibility.

• • • • • • •

The sum substance of the phrase is that the sincerity with which one goes into a thing, the eagerness to know more about a subject, the determination to make a success of an undertaking, determines what one absorbs of benefit

• • • • • • •

Of course if one takes the expression in a literal way, it can be meaningless. One would not need to spend one's energy to acquire what one already has, or to quote the saying, "What one brings to it."

• • • • • • •

Something more is needed and this is the spirit which one takes to the thing It is that elusive quality that brings success, that urge to know and to put to use what one does know, that is the motive power.

• • • • • • •

Such a power is needed to tide one over the hard places, to carry one through the tedious parts, to keep the vision of accomplishment fulfilled steadfastly before one.

• • • • • • •

Every worthwhile success has to be backed by such power. If this is weak and unsteady, the person trying for the success will make a failure of it.

• • • • • • •

No one who works half-heartedly can make a success of an undertaking, no matter what it may be. Something of one's self has to put into it one it to take anything out.

• • • • • • •

There must be ingredients of success put into it, just as much as there have to be correct ingredients for making a cake put into the batter if a good cake is to be the result.

• • • • • • •

Every process of making the cake must be followed carefully such as good materials, light beating, correct oven heat and time limit for baking, etc. You as housewives, will appreciate this.

• • • • • • •

Homemaking is no exception to this rule that one gets out of a thing what one brings to it.

• • • • • • •

Many a young bride and groom of today enter into homemaking half heartedly. If they do not get along well together there is the remedy of the divorce court to bring relief.

• • • • • • •

Such a remedy should be the last one to be sought. If instead of putting a tentative hint of failure into the enterprise, each had put the spirit of success into it, this power would bring them what they put into it.

• • • • • • •

A home is such a beautiful thing and it is worth putting one's concentrated energy into making a real success of that blessing to the family and to the community—a happy home.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D

AS IS YOUR LIVER, SO ARE YOU.

I have written so often about the liver—sometimes two or three times a month—that I find myself keeping away from it when I would greatly like to say more about this "king" of the organs.

You recognize the importance of the heart because it has long been known as the force that keeps the blood circulating, and life continues just as long as the heart continues to pump blood, and no longer.

And yet the liver, in a way, is equally as important because your degree of health, your enjoyment of life, your ability to work or play, depends to a great extent upon your liver.

Now this is not only because the liver stores up sugar, manufactures bile and does other work, but because of its job of taking harmful things out of the food we eat and after making part of them useful to the body, renders the other part harmless.

The liver is the largest organ in the body and holds one quarter of your blood at one time.

Just think what this means. One quarter of all your blood in the liver, all the time, having various things done to it during its stay.

And not the least important, as above mentioned, is getting its harmful products-poison from bad food, poison from wastes of intestine or elsewhere removed from it. No wonder the liver has been called the "washwoman" of the blood.

Nature made the liver large to do all this work but often from unwise eating or drinking, from infection from various parts of the body, from accumulation of too much waste matter in intestine, constipation, the liver begins to fail in its work.

What happens?

Just as clothes that do not receive the amount of boiling, rubbing, and soaping show it, so also does the blood.

In testing the liver's ability, a substance is injected into the blood which should be removed by the liver; the liver should wash it out or remove it from the blood. If the liver fails to do so, it is ample evidence that the liver is not doing its work properly and the trouble should be investigated.

The thought then is that constipation, which means a tremendous amount of extra work put on the liver in removing poisons from the large intestine, is one of the main causes of the failure of the liver to clean the blood, and keep you free from illness.

So either by proper food or exercise, try and avoid constipation.

PLANS COMPLETED FOR BIG RE-UNION

Major W. O. White, D.S.O., former adjutant of the Second Battalion, who has had the assistance of Captain P. Band, M.C. in the work of arranging transportation and other details. Similar good service has been performed in Ottawa by Major G. Scott and Capt. "Jock" Murray, M.C.

It is interesting to note that six officers now on the strength of the Peterborough Rangers, are all former members of the "Iron Seconds." They are: Lieut.-Col. C. H. Ackerman, O.C. 2nd Reserve Battalion (Peterborough Rangers); Major G. G. Winterbottom, M.C. D.C.M. (bar), second-in-command; Major A. B Mills, V.D., O.C. D Company; Capt. E. E. Nicholls, M.C., D.C.M., O.C. C. Company; Captain J. Dunkerley, O.C. A Company, and Lieut. Al. Sharpe.

In tribute to the survivors, and in revered memory of those members of the Battalion who did not return The Examiner proposes to publish a special section tomorrow, which has endeavoured to trace the exploits of the "Iron Second" throughout the four years of the War, and up to the time of the Battalion's demobilization at Kingston.

For the first time a complete and authentic account will be given of the ill-fated but heroic encounter on the morning of April 23, 1915, when Major G. W. Bennett and almost the entire complement of No 1 Company were killed in the second battle at Ypres. This chapter provides a gripping drama of heroic sacrifice and is from the pen of Capt. W. W. Murray, M.C., the Second Battalion regimental historian, who is now in the Press Gallery at Ottawa.

DARE ATLANTIC IN SMALL BOAT

Youthful German Trio Plan to Return to Homeland in 30-foot Motor Launch.

BUILT OF STEEL.

HALIFAX, N.S., Nov. 14 (C.P.) — St. John's, Newfoundland, is the point from which three young Germans in a small, steel boat intend to sart a trans-Atlantic crossing to Hamburg, Germany, with the expectation of being with relatives there at Christmas. Joseph Leppich is in charge of the Karf A. 3514, a four-ton craft measuring thirty feet in length, and has as companions August Kubatco and Christian Brato.

The trio left for St. John's after arriving here from Bronsing, Michigan, taking seven weeks to make the trip by way of the Great Lakes, New York State barge canal, and Atlantic ports. Heavy seas in the Bay of Fundy damaged the gasoline engine and forced a delay at Yarmouth, N.S.

Galway, Ireland, 1,773 miles from here, is the first stop planned after the three mariners leave St. John's. Previous to undertaking this trip, their chief sea experience was an immigrant voyage to the United States.

The cruise was being made entirely for pleasure, said Leppich, who, like his companions, is an artisan. "The boat, while frail looking, is very substantial and will weather the trip all right," he declared.

The Karf A. 3514 is named after Karf, a suburb of Hamburg and Leppich's home town. Steel-plated and carrying an 80 horsepower engine, the craft is 30 feet long and 6½ feet deep, with a beam of 7 feet. The cabin is enclosed in steel. Eight hundred gallons of gas are carried on the boat, which has a speed of 11 knots when fully loaded. The consumption is 3¼ gallons per hour.

DR. BUCHANAN GIVES TALK ON BERMUDAS

Illustrated Travel Address Sponsored By W.C.T.U. in Y.W.C.A.

MUSICAL PROGRAM.

Speaker Fully Describes Scenic Beauties of West India Islands.

A delightful scenic trip to one of the beauty spots of the world was afforded last evening to those who were privileged to enjoy Dr. N. D. Buchanan's lecture on the Bermudas and West Indies, given in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A.

This illustrated travel talk was sponsored by the W.C.T.U., the president, Mrs. C. H. Edwards, presiding.

A brief musical program preceded the lecture. Miss Alma Blanchard sang charmingly, "When Honey Sings an Old-Time Song", accompanied by Miss Musa Cox, who also rendered a piano solo "Esprit du Soir" with her usual brilliant technique.

Mrs. Edwards introduced the speaker, who modestly disclaimed his talk as a "lecture" and assured his audience that the pictures were all taken by himself and entirely amateur in character.

Bermuda is really a collection of 350 Islands, six hundred miles south east of New York. These islands are mostly rock with ten or twelve principal ones connected by bridges or causeways, and taking the form of a huge hand and arm, extended as some people say for the American dollar, since the tourist trade forms their main livelihood.

Weather is Warm.

In February the weather is very delightful, averaging about seventy degrees. The vegetation is luxuriant with oleanders from ten to twenty feet high The population is not large, Hamilton, one of the chief cities, having about three or four thousand people. There are no autos, but three trucks take charge of the transportation. It requires but two days to see the whole Island, about which one travels in a victoria drawn by one or two horses, over beautiful coral roads.

The houses, built of dazzling coral rock, with whitewashed roofs, showed in strong contrast to the dark foliage about them.

The soil is two or three feet deep and is red in color and very fertile. The bulbs for Easter lilies are grown here in large quantites as well as potatoes and onions. The large white hotels for the accommodation of tourists, are picturesquely situated and were very expensive in rates.

A causeway two and one half miles, leads from Hamilton to the harbour of St. George, where we see a tall wireless station, beautiful hotel grounds and golf course. Here too are large dry docks.

Next we journey to Porto Rico, about 900 miles south. It is an island of sixty miles east to west and forty miles north to south. It is extremely hilly at the north, the elevation being from seventeen hundred to four thousand feet. The land is cultivated directly to the top of these hills. The homes are one-room shacks, built of packing boxes, for the people are poor. This was the land discovered by Columbus in 1492. Views of stately palms and typical huts made quite real this historic country. Prohibition is in force and no liquor is sold here.

San Juan, the capital, with sixty-five thousand of a population, has fortifications of from 60 to 100 feet thick. It has been attacked by Dutch, British and French, but has never been taken.

Narrow Streets.

The movies demonstrated a new way of diving in the large swimming pool built here on account of the sharks. The streets are rather narrow, with mostly one-way traffic.

Three hundred and fifty miles from Porto Rico we stop at the Island of Martinique, where Mount Pelee raises its head four thousand four hundred feet. In the last great eruption in 1902, it completely destroyed the city of St. Pierre, which has never been rebuilt and is now covered with vegetation.

At Porto France we see people on their way to market. It is the sugar cane season and the cane is marketed in sticks four to six feet long, cut down with an axe or knife, and hauled to factories in carts drawn by oxen or donkeys.

One interesting picture shows a primitive way of cutting wood where you see a native working at a mahogany log on an elevated platform, while the long saw was manipulated by another native on the ground.

The buildings are not very substantial on account of the frequent earthquakes. Barbadoes with its capital of Bridgetown, is the most easterly of the group. Here four out of five of the people are negroes and the population if very dense. This is a more prosperous country where we again see sugar cane growing like corn and follow the coral road to the rum factory.

Another quite distinctive view was taken from an elevation of 400 feet, looking toward the ocean while yet another showed a lion carved from coral rock and white washed. Trinidad, opposite to Venezuelo, was the port for the asphalt lake which consists of 110 acres of pitch or asphalt. This has been mined for 38 years with little impression and is owned by an American firm. It is dug by hand with a pick axe, thrown on trucks, refined and placed in barrels for shipping. As shown the barrels were being carried out to steamers by cables. In these waters, which are yellow with jelly fish, we see no diving boys. In Porto Spain, we see many East. Indians in their white flowing robes beside their quaint thatched houses.

Another scene shows a bare-footed man turning cocoa beans with his feet, so that they may dry.

Tall blooming trees called immortels, protect the cocoa plants beneath them from the sun

Thirty miles over South American mountains which are arid, except for the rain brings us to Caracas.

Bolivar Memorial

A monument to Bolivar, the George Washington of South America, stands here amid many beautiful buildings, including the university and Congress Hall.

Recalling ancient times, is the huge bull ring seating thirteen thousand. As we leave this city we see natives playing a game somewhat like bowls.

The Dutch Island of Curacao has become prosperous since the discovery of oil in South America, and boasts an ostrich farm, a wonderful harbour and a floating bridge.

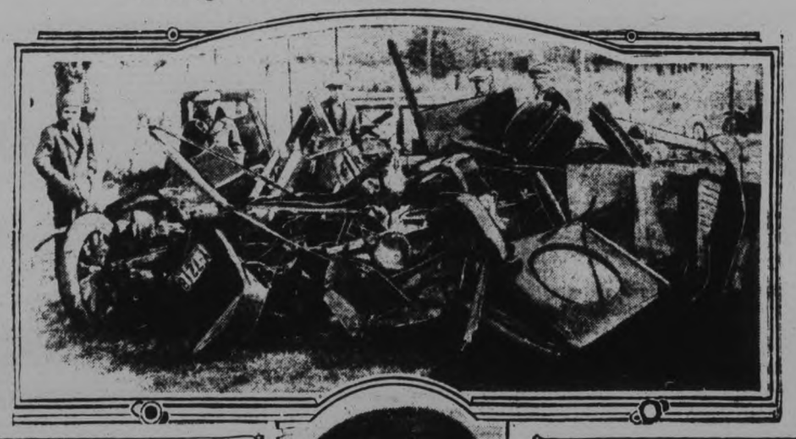
Perfumes are bought very cheaply here since there is no duty on it.

Views of the houses in beautiful pastel colours, closed this highly instructive and interesting lecture.

The appreciation of the audience was voiced by A. B. Cunningham who from personal experience, endorsed this trip to Bermuda, as being one of transcendant beauty.

God save the King brought the program to a successful conclusion.

Wreckage of Fatal Crash at West Hill



Frederick Flaxman, Jr., Toronto, died in the East General Hospital without regaining consciousness, as a result of a motor crash at West Hill, Ont., when two girls and another youth were also injured. Top—Flaxman's car after the crash, and bottom—Frederick Flaxman, Jr., who is dead.

SIXTH TROOP

The meeting of the Sixth Peterborough Troop of Boy Scouts was held at 7.30 on Tuesday evening, opening with flag break, followed by inspection and a short review of Scout work. The boys then returned to their corners to prepare recruits for Tenderfoot investure.

The Chickadee patrol is still leading in the competition under the splendid guidance of Thomas Hickson. Patrol corners were inspected and a few things put in order.

Following this work a splendid number of games were enjoyed, among these being "Lighting Candles at Sea", "Scout Baseball" and "Hand Wrestling". Much fun was extracted from these after which the boys prepared for the Council meeting.

At the Council an interesting story of English Scouting was read to the Scouts, Scoutmaster Wolff following with a few words about the Convention which he attended in Toronto on Thanksgiving. He spoke of the great scouting spirit which the boys must possess before they are real Scouts. The singing of the National Anthem and Scout Silence brought the meeting to a close.

Czechoslovakia is exporting this year, more than 17 times as many pairs of rubber footwear as in 1929.

BARK FOUNDERS OVER 17 DROWN

SHIP BUFFETED 2 DAYS.

PUERTO MONTE, Chile, Nov. 14. (AP)—Belated reports reaching here from Chonchi, on the west of the Island of Chiloe, south of here, to-day revealed the loss of more than 17 lives when the Chilean bark Laura foundered near there Monday.

The captain, 16 members of the crew, and several passengers, their number unknown, went down with the sailing vessel. The storm which has raged along the coast since last Saturday buffeted the ship about for two days before the disaster occurred.

Two small steamers have been sent to the scene to search for survivors.

SUDBURY, Ont., Nov. 14. (CP)—Stanley Thompson, of Coldwater was accidentally killed by a shot in the back, it is alleged from the gun of M. Coone, of Niagara Falls, while on a hunting trip near Espanola. Four men, the deceased, Coone, Sheriff Davidson of Welland and Bonne Andrews, of Lee Valley were in the party, encamped in the bush seven miles north of West River on a deer hunt. On Thursday they were walking through the dense bush single file. It is believed the hammer of Coone's Winchester rifle, which was half-cocked when the safety lock is on, caught on a twig or a branch of a tree causing it to discharge the bullet. Thompson who was walking in front of Coone, received the full charge of the bullet in the back. He lived for about half an hour but could not talk coherently. Coroner Arthurs of Espanola where the body was taken, is conducting an inquiry this afternoon.

FALLING MASONRY INJURES RESCUERS

Volunteers Aiding to Dig Out Bodies of Persons Killed in Fourviere Hill Landslide.

LYONS, France, Nov. 14. (CP)—Three workmen were injured to-day by falling masonry as they labored on Fourviere Hill in an effort to dig out the bodies of upwards of 100 persons buried under the debris of an overwhelming landslide early yesterday morning.

The authorities decided to use dynamite to demolish the shaky walls of buildings still standing in the zone and menacing the rescue work.

A wide area about the section has been evacuated in fear of further landslides.

The space under the great dome of the Hospital Hotel Dieu has been transformed into a mortuary chapel to receive the bodies as they are recovered. only five bodies thus far have been recovered but it is known that between 60 and 100 person are buried under the ruins.

Trent River

Reeve George Vanvolkenburg has gone back to the north country for the deer hunt, and is expected to return on Saturday.

Messrs. Jack Liberty and Francis Ruttan have been successful in the northern woods, the former securing a fine big deer, while the latter succeeded in bringing down a small doe.

A miscellaneous shower was given Mr. and Mrs. George Gardner, formerly Marion Glenn, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. K. Glenn, of West Seymour, on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Christie and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Don Christie, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gain and daughter, of Toronto, were at the Christie cottage for Thanksgiving.

Mrs. E. Clarke, who has been critically ill at her home on Havelock Road, was taken to Nicholls Hospital for further treatment, her husband and her brother, Mr. Charles Seguire, accompanying her.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson and son, of Toronto, spent the holiday with Mr. and Mrs. James Mann.

RISE OF DUTCH AND FLEMISH ART DESCRIBED IN INTERESTING PAPER

Mrs. J. E. R. Munro Addresses Members of Art Study Club.

THE BARBAROUS GOTH.

"The Rise of Dutch and Flemish Art in the 14th and 15th Centuries" was the title of a very interesting paper read by Mrs. J. E. R. Munro at the recent meeting of the Art Study Club of the Women's Art Association, held at the home of Mrs. Blackwell and presided over by Mrs. R. J. Kidd, convenor of the Study Club.

"In the 13th century," said Mrs. Munro, "Christian countries were ruled by large commercial cities. The towns of Flanders were engaged especially in the manufacture of cloth and other textile industries. Arras, the capital of Artois, gave its name to tapestry hangings famed in the Middle Ages; Oambrai gave its name to cambric, which was invented during the 15th century; Lille was originally L'Isle, and gave its name to lisle thread; and Valenciennes was noted for its lace. These cities, now in France, were then part of Flanders, where trade and commerce developed much earlier than in Holland. Before long, a flourishing trade was carried on with England, France, Spain and Portugal. Bruges was the Venice of the north, resembling that city in appearance as well as in its growing commerce. One of its canals connected it with the sea, and a 13th century writer says: "Goods come to Bruges from Venice, China the Cyclades, Hungary, Gascony and England." Its population was three times that of London, and the municipal governments of Bruges and Ghent appropriated money for paving the streets. The leading Guild of Bruges was the House of London. Its members were very rich and were engaged in the wool trade with England from which Flanders now get most of the raw material for its cloth manufacture."

Then, when wealth and power came to the burghers, they decided to beautify their cities and homes and scholastic guilds were formed which were the beginning of our Universities. Cathedrals, destined not only to glorify God but to be a credit to their cities, were built in the large centres of Northern France and Flanders.

The Barbarous Goth

"The style of architecture used for these cathedrals which we know as Gothic, was peculiar to the countries of the North. The word Gothic means "barbarous" and was probably given to the new Northern style by the Italian Romanesque and Renaissance zealots. It marked, in the Northern countries, a sudden turning from the old monastic era of Romanesque architecture to a new, popular and civic style.—The pointed arch which is a symbol of Gothic architecture had been found occasionally in the Romanesque style and was frequently used in Arabian architecture, but it was the discovery and realization of its constructive possibilities, especially in combination with ogival vaulting (intersecting diagonal ribs in a groined vault) that brought Gothic architecture to the fore. This type of vaulting allowed of the construction of buildings with great domes held in mid-air by a system of balance that required a much less massive structure than was necessary to support the barrel domes of Romanesque churches. And with its ogival vaulting the interior height of a cathedral could be greatly increased.

"From the middle of the 13th century, the sculpture of Northern France and Flanders moved steadily onward, away from such things as are suggested by the words medievalism, monasticism and mysticism, toward the expression of ideals not unlike those that inspired the finest Greek art.

"And churches were not the only example of Gothic art, though the cathedral is its most perfect expression. Among the monuments of its later period are the beautiful town halls of Flemish cities and the abbeys and private houses.

"All the elements of medieval art, which was Gothic in the Northern countries, were combined and reached their highest fruition in the Flemish School of Burgundy during the last quarter of the 14th century. Many Flemish artists came to work at Dijon and there founded the School of Burgundy.

"About 1390, one Melchoir Braederlam painted the shutters of a carved reredos preserved at Dijon. Previous to that time, the only painting we read about was that of the illuminators, who adorned the pages of manuscripts with brilliant hues rivalling the Byzantine mosaics, but primitive in style."

Mrs. Munro then sketched briefly the career of the Flemish school of painters, including Roger van der Weyden, who was a religious painter and loved the depict the sufferings of the Saviour; Van Ou Water, who acquired a reputation by his manner of drawing feet and hands; Hugo van du Goes of Ghent and Bruges, who commenced life as a wild pleasure lover and then retired to a monastery where he devoted his talent to the painting of religious pictures; Quentin Masseys, who became a painter, it is said, because his sweetheart would not marry him while he followed his trade of a blacksmith, and who disliked smallness in all things so much that he would paint nothing but lifesize subjects preferring, when the size of his pictures forbade full length treatment, to paint half length figures rather than reduce his scale to miniature proportions; Dirck Bouts or Thierry Bouts, who was official painter for Louvain, and Jan Gossart, who took the name of Mabuse from Maubeuge, where he was born, and who, in later years, excelled in Itallanized work as a painter of portraits, after he visited Italy and came under the influence of Leonardo da Vinci.

CHRISTMAS will be different this year if you do this

THE WAY to make your Christmas shopping easy is to look at the advertisements in the daily newspapers. You will find in them a host of helpful suggestions.

Instead of tramping aimlessly from—shop to shop — and from counter to counter — inspecting thousands of articles displayed for the holiday trade, turn to the advertising columns of your favourite newspaper and be guided by the most direct route to the desired purchase.

Wasted time and wearied steps are thus eliminated and your shopping is done to much greater advantage.

You are puzzled about what to give Father or Mother; it is hard to decide what to buy for seven-year old Betty; you find it difficult to select a present for the best friend and the older folks. No matter what your gift problems, and we all have the same problems at Christmas time, the advertisements in the daily newspapers will help you solve them. Reading the Christmas sales messages in your daily newspaper will save you time, energy and money. Read them every day.

Turn to them now and benefit by the assistance which retailers and manufacturers offer to solve all the puzzles that arise out of your Christmas shopping. The best and choicest wares of all the world are available in the shops today.

Leafs Battle To Scoreless Tie With Amerks

FANS ARE MUCH DISAPPOINTED IN OPENING N.H.L. FIXTURE

Poor Hockey By Players and Frequent Bell Ringing Makes Game Unsatisfactory.

TWENTY-ONE PENALTIES.

TORONTO, Sept. 14. — If last night's opening game in the National Hockey League played at Arena Gardens between the New York Americans and the Toronto Maple Leafs is a sample of what local fans can expect from major league hockey teams this season, they will soon be advertising it as the flattest sport in the world instead of the fastest.

A capacity crowd looked on and saw the teams play three 20-minute periods and a 10-minute overtime session without scoring a goal. They heard the officials stop play 8 times during the evening and hand out 21 penalties, most of them for infractions of the rules which the fans knew little about. It was not a rough game; in fact, it was remarkably clean, but the list of penalties, including one to Irvin Bailey for ten minutes and one to George Patterson for five minutes, gave it the appearance of a Donnybrook of the old days. The penalties to Bailey and Patterson were both for the same offense, their sticks coming in contact with an opposing player's head. In Bailey's case, the officials did not notice the incident. It was only when Joe Simpson, who was cut on the nose by Bailey's stick, sat down on the ice, and his teammates directed the officials' attention to his condition, and told how it happened that the penalty was handed out.

No Brilliance

The game did not produce anything brilliant in the way of speed or clever hockey. There was little of systematic teamplay, and individual brilliance was at a premium. It was little better than a puck-chasing scramble, and neither team impressed the onlookers. The New Yorkers drew 14 of the 21 penalties. Five of them went to George Patterson. The fans did not take kindly to the bell-ringing, and booed occasionally. It was probably the most disappointing display of major league hockey ever given here, and President Frank Calder was one of the spectators.

As a game there is little that can be said for it. The Americans missed more good scoring chances than did the Leafs. In the first period, Billy Burch and Norman Himes worked their way through the Toronto defense in one of the best combination efforts of the game, but Himes bungled the scoring opportunity by making one pass too many, Burch being too far in at the time. On two occasions Himes worked his way around the Toronto rearguard, only to be robbed of what looked like certain goals by sensational stopping on the part of Lorne Chabot, who gave a finished performance all through. Himes was the Amerks' biggest threat, and the Galt boy was dangerous whenever he sallied netward with the rubber in his possession.

The Leafs looked better when the "kid" forward line was in action. Charlie Conacher and Harvey Jackson worked hard and were unfortunate in not registering a goal or two. Joe Primeau fed them well and also looked good on one or two attempts of his own to beat the star-spangled defense. The more experienced forward line of Blair at center and Bailey and Cotton on the flanks did not perform with the smoothness expected of them, although they gave a fairly satisfying display.

Clancy's Debut

Frank Clancy, making his first league appearance in a Toronto uniform, was the same dashing King Clancy of old, but he was so closely watched by the visitors that he seldom got more than a long-range drive at Worter's citadel. Defensively, he did all that was expected of him, and teamed well with "Happy" Day and "Red" Horner. The Toronto defense looked good no matter what combination was functioning, but there seemed to be room for considerable improvement in organized attacking on the part of the Leafs. Their drives on the New York net lacked effectiveness, because there was too little method or system in their attack. Perhaps the whole performance can be excused because of it being the opening game of a long campaign. There was no evidence of midseason form on the part of any of the players, and during the third period and overtime session they were all plainly tired and calling for relief frequently.

BOXING IN N.S. MAKES COMEBACK

Professional and Amateur Bouts Reviving in Nova Scotia Centres.

HALIFAX, N.S., Nov. 14—Boxing in Halifax, the Garrison City of the Maritime Provinces, seems to be on the comeback trail. Professional boxing is being revived to such an extent that two or three bouts are staged each month.

Amateur boxing is also scheduled to look up hereabouts. Several years ago boxing was a weekly sport and attracted thousands of boxing fans. Two or three years ago the game flourished for a while then dropped back into the discard.

The Firefighters, who have made a name for themselves for the quality of their simon pure shows, are making deady to hold more bouts, in the near future.

Such fistic luminaries as Johnny Roberts, Huntingdon, West Virginia; Jack McKenna, idol of Cape Breton; Roy Mitchell, Halifax colored light-heavyweight, a few years ago Canadian lightheavyweight champion through his three round knockout victory over Jack Reddick; Homer Robertson, Pittsburgh, and Joe Hartnett, of Halifax are doing their part to make Halifax a fistic centre.

Roberts, with two convincing victories over McKenna in the last few months, is now anxious to mix with the lightheavyweights and is said to be eager for a match with Homer Robertson, who outscored Mitchell here a few nights ago.

McKenna plans to drop out for a while but will be back in the spring. Mitchell may be idle for a while, although promoters are talking of featuring him in a bout before Christmas.

New Glasgow promoters, who have staged a few fights during the summer, are ready to hold a few more ring battles, featuring Johnny Nemis, Maritime welterweight champion, Joe Hartnett, Billy Holm and others.

Springhill, where a few bouts were staged last winter, may break into the game again, while Moncton, N.B. is devoting most of the boxing season to wrestling, where the grappling game is drawing large crowds. However, boxing will be mingled with wrestling, Jerry White, of Halifax, is to be the first Nova Scotian to fight in the Railway City this year. His opponent is, as yet unknown.

LONDON BLANKS YELLOW JACKETS

FINAL COUNT 3-0.

PITTSBURG, November 14. — International League hockey made its debut in Pittsburg last night and the locals took a trimming from London 3 to 0. Pittsburg was in the National League last year, but was transferred ot Philadelphia by the owner, Benny Leonard. An International circuit franchise was secured from Niagara Falls, with the club taking the name of the "Yellow Jackets," once famous ice men of Pittsburg.

Last night's game was a thriller from the outset, and the score in no way indicates the closeness of the joust. Both clubs batfled in hammer-and-tongs fashion without a score during the first period then "Curley" Goldsworthy uncorked a wild swing from a scrimmage and dented the local cage for the first counter after eleven minutes of play in the second period.

Going into the last period the Yellow Jackets found themselves trailing by one point. They fought furiously to even the count, but just at a time when they appeared to have the situation under their control a penalty foiled them. However, London also was punished several times in the final period for rough tactics, but they were more fortunate and managed to snare two more goals. Grosvenor scored both, 1. seconds separating his thrusts into the scoring zone. Goldsworthy assisted him on the second counter.

JUNIOR TEAM TO ENTER O.H.A.

DATE SET DECEMBER 5.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 14 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Hockey is coming to the fore in Campbellford with the approach of winter. This is seen in the decision on the part of the Campbellford Hockey Club to enter a junior team in the O.H.A.

This action was decided upon at an executive meeting of the club held Wednesday evening, after discussion by those present of prospects for the senior team. There were many of the younger group of hockey players who were not quite in line for the senior team and it was thought that by entering a team in the junior league these boys could gain experience on the ice until the time came for them to take their place in the senior line-up. This team will be sponsored by the Campbellford champions, and C. Holmes was given authority to make the necessary arrangements with the O.H.A., Toronto. It is expected that the junior team will be linked up for play with Lakefield and St. John's, Peterborough.

In regard to the raising of funds for the club this year, it was agreed upon to stage a dance and free draw on the evening of December 5th, to take place in the Campbellford High School. Arrangements have already started for the holding of this function. G. A. Ironside and J. M. Ferris, supported by the executive committee, being in charge of the affair.

Although not definitely settled, it is expected that the free draw will be for a valuable watch. This matter, however, is in the hands of the finance committee.

FALCONS SCORE ONLY GOAL OF GAME TO BEAT RANGERS

GOODFELLOW SCORES.

DETROIT, Nov. 14.—Detroit's Falcons opened the National Hockey League season here last night with a 1 to 0 victory over the New York Rangers, and 11,000 spectators saw one of the fastest exhibitions of skating in many a day.

Johnny Sorrell, new Falcon wingman, teamed up with Ebbie Goodfellow, centre, to score the lone tally. Sorrell caught the Ranger defence napping late in the second period, broke through, and laid a pass to Goodfellow, who beat John Ross Roach, in the Ranger net, with a hard, slanting shot.

The Falcons showed little in the way of a passing combination, but revealed surprising speed and a strong defence. The Cook brothers, Bun and Bill, aided by Frank Boucher, offered sparkling passes, but "Dolly" Dolson, Detroit goalkeeper, stopped everything they had to offer.

Two memorials, one on the town hall and the other in All Saints Church, are to be erected at Walthamstow, England, where he attended school, to Lieut.-Col. V. C. Richmond, R-101's designer, who perished in the craft.

RODDEN'S RESERVES MAY BE CUT DOWN UNDER LOOP RULE

Secretary Robinson Rules That Reed and McBride of Cubs Not Eligible.

TRI-COLOR READY.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 14 (C.P.) — Rivals in sport for years, the cities of Hamilton and Toronto are going themselves one better in connection with the Tiger-Argo football game here tomorrow, which will decide the Interprovincial Union championship for another season.

Charges and counter charges are being hurled back and forth between the respective club members and the annual clash of these two fine teams on the Varsity Stadium promises to excel in rivalry and bitter competition any other clash that has gone before.

Looking ahead to possible participation in the Canadian Rugby Union playdowns, officials of the Jungle Kings decided it would be a wise policy to promote two players from the Tiger Cubs, Ontario Rugby Football Union, western group champions, to the reserve list of the senior team. The players selected were Buster Reed and Cecil McBride. There is a catch in this seemingly innocent move, however, as Tigers planned to qualify the pair by injecting them into the game against Argos. There is a clause in the Big Four rule book, which states, "All applications for playing certificates must be in the hands of the Secretary of the Union on Monday preceding the match in which the applicant is likely to take part."

As the applications were only mailed from Hamilton last night it looks as though Coach Mike Rodden's hope of additional substitute strength has been blasted and no one more than the canny Tiger coach knows the need he will have of plenty of substitutes against the scullers, who will battle to their last ounce to halt the rampaging Bengals.

Both teams have completed their training, outside of light signal drills to-day, and all the regulars of both squads are fit and eager for the fray.

While Tigers may not be able to use the Cub players, they intend using Frank "Pep" Leadley, their splendid drop-kicking half-back, for relief on the backfield and thus qualify him for the play-downs, providing Tigers win.

It is likely a crowd of similar proportions as that which saw the Varsity-Queen's game here last week—20,000—will watch the Big Four gridiron warriors perform. The final batch of tickets went on sale to-day.

Queen's who appear to have the Intercollegiate Union title firmly within their grasp, held a strenuous workout yesterday in concluding their training for the game with McGill University. The end of the drill marked the first time this season that the Tricolor has come through a week of training without suffering several casualties, so that the Kingstonians will line up against the Montreal Red Men at full strength. Victory for Queen's will give them the championship for another year and the right to meet the winner of the Tiger-Argo game in the Eastern Canada semi-finals. The players, however, in the event they will, have not yet decided whether they will don football togs again.

Have One Hope

University of Toronto, pinning their hope on a surprise win by McGill over Queen's, leave to-day for London where they play the University of Western Ontario Mustangs tomorrow. Coach Les Blackwell has his charges in splendid shape for the tussle and on form the Blue and White should win. Being but one point behind Queen's in the standing, Varsity will win the championship should Queen's lose, while even a tie at Kingston would give them another chance to redeem themselves providing they beat the Mustangs, which is no easy task at any time.

The quills which Lord Dunsanay, of England, uses instead of steel pens to write his books and plays, come from his estate in Ireland.

ARSENAL MEETS SHEFFIELD NEXT

First Division Soccer Leaders Have Tough Fight on Their Hands.

WEEK-END REVIEW.

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 14 (C. P. Cable).—Last Saturday, Arsenal had to fight off the challenge of Aston Villa to retain their lead in the championship table of the English Soccer League, First Division. That match was played at Highbourv, the home grounds of Arsenal. Next Saturday the Londoners must again struggle to keep their lead, but this time they must travel. Their opponents will be Sheffield Wednesday, the league champions, who have steadily climbed up to the runners-up position. To fill up the cup for soccer fans in England, as Aston Villa will have to meet Derby County and the third position in the standing is involved in this game.

Everton, leading the second division, have an easy task on Saturday, as they meet Millwall, who should not given them much of a battle. The second club, Preston North End, though at home, will get a much more severe test as their opponents are West Bromwich Albion, who are in fourth position i nthe table. fourth position in the table. club this season in league football in the British Isles, and leaders in the Southern Section, Third Division, must travel to Torquay and may lose their proud record, as Torquay are a tough team to beat at home. They are third in the championship table.

In the Northern Section, Lincoln City, pace setters, have also been provided with stiff opposition in Wrexham, third in the table.

KEEN WORK IN DETROIT.

Pretty Combination Plays and Fine Goal-keeping Keeps Falcon Supporters on Toes.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 14. (By the Canadian Press).—Goals continued few and far between in the National Hockey League. Last night two games were played and the sum total of some 35 forwards' goal scoring efforts was one solitary counter. This was tallied by Abby Goodfellow, when the Detroit Falcons opened the season in the Motor City and sent some 13,000 fans home happy by beating New York Rangers, one to nothing.

In the other game played at Toronto, the home club and New York Americans played a scoreless deadlock after ten minutes overtime. This game, unlike that at Detroit, was devoid of anything which could be termed good hockey, unless it was Lorne Chabot's splendid goalkeeping for the Leafs.

Constant bell ringing by the officials in charge for infractions of the rules, especially the one specifying the puck carrier must be the first to cross the line into the defending team goal area, spoiled every chance there was of the players making an interesting contest out of it.

On the night's play the Americans should have won. On eight different occasions, New York marksmen beat the local defence, only to find a stumbling block in Chabot who played one of the smartest games in his career.

In decided contrast to the game here, Rangers and Falcons served Detroit fans with a sparkling exhibition of hockey. Blinding speed, pretty combination plays and fine goalkeeping by the rival netminders kept the fans in an excited state throughout.

The opening period was scoreless, mainly due to "Dolly" Dolson's great work in the Falcon cage. The well-known Cook, Bill and Bunny aided by Frankie Boucher had the former Stratford boy at their mercy several times, but simply could not beat him.

Detroit took the lead in the middle frame when the London graduate to big time hockey, Johnny Sorrell, slapped a perfect pass across to Goodfellow, who easily beat Roach.

Some hectic competition developed in the final frame, but once again Dolson stood between the Rangers and a tie if not possible victory, when he turned aside shot after shot during a late rally by the Gothamites.

No games are scheduled to-night.

Triple Title Chance For Northwesterns

CHICAGO, Nov. 14. — Northwestern's football team has been placed "on the spot"—to bring a gangland phrase to the gridiron.

One of the nation's nine undefeated and untied teams, Northwestern has only two games left to play—Wisconsin and Notre Dame—but both opponents are pointing for the Wildcats.

Northwestern has a chance at three championships: Big Ten, Western and National.

If Northwestern defeats Wisconsin Saturday, the Wildcats will at least tie for the Big Ten title and can win it if Michigan loses to either Minnesota or Chicago.

Northwestern's chances at Western and National honors will be determined a week from Saturday against Notre Dame.

Wisconsin had an easy game last week, and so does Notre Dame this week. Northwestern has had only one breather since the opening of the season—that in October against Centre.

BULLDOGS MEET HERD TO-NIGHT

First Game on Canadian Soil is Second of International Schedule.

FIELD GOOD TEAMS.

To-night's Hockey Schedule
International League
Buffalo at Windsor.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 14 (C.P.)—Windsor Bulldogs open the International Hockey League season on Canadian soil to-night, when they meet the Buffalo Bisons at the border city. It is the second game on the schedule, as the Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets and the London Tecumsehs combined to officially pry the lid off in the Smoky City last night. London won, three to nothing.

Both Windsor and Buffalo have rounded out teams which seem capable of providing real contention for the championship. The Bulldogs lost one complete forward line of last season to New York Americans, but have in this trio's place, players who give promise of being equally as good. The Bisons will rely on last season's squad with the addition of several recruits.

In the game at Pittsburgh Curley Goldsworthy and Len Grosvenor played the hero roles. The former scored the opening marker half way through the second frame after a scoreless opening period. Grosvenor then rapped two smart goals into the Yellow Jacket cage in the third period to clinch victory for the visiting team. Goldsworthy gave the former Ottawa youth a pass for one of the counters.

RUMMAGE

When the Leader and her cohorts arrived at the store where Rummage was wont to be sold, they found willing buyers already clamouring for entrance at the door and pointing accusing fingers at the sign which read "Opens at 9.30". That it was yet only a minute or two after nine did not count.

Most of the girls' stock in trade was already in the store, but not marked. This did not matter either. One of the bargain seekers stepped blithely in, in advance of the manager, and in a trice had her arms full of the best of the articles. When timidly questioned as to her intentions the lady said "Oh I may take more but I want to get these settled first. She began in a business-like manner at the top of the pile. "What's this?" When told a ridiculously low price for a practically new garment she became quite angry. When she had been given prices on the lot, she disdainfully dropped the whole of them in a heap on the floor.

This was, to say the least, discouraging, so a council of war was held and the prices marked down. "I just wish I had a swell "lamb" coat just now," said shivering Cora. "I'll wager she never got that at a Rummage sale. At this rate we might better have given this stuff away."

The five girls huddled together. The store was unheated. There was not even a chair, but they managed to find a box to sit on in turn.

Our friend of the buxom figure swathed in Persian Lamb, came back. This time for shoes. There was a classy pair of brown sports, which father took her fancy. "May I try them on?" she asked and without further ado, sat down on the improvised seat. "I'll give you ten cents for them"she said, "though they're a poor fit".

"No, seventy-five cents or nothing for that pair." "All right, keep them. What are you here for anyway? You have these sales to help poor people and then put on fancy prices." In her ire she let her coat fall open disclosing her poverty in a pretty and natty silk frock and a string of pearls. The girls' sympathy was strongly stirred. "Pearls" they gasped. If we had them we wouldn't be allowed to wear them in the morning.

"What about these shoes," said the buyer to the forelady. I'll give you fifty for 'em. It sounded like an auction. Fussing about, she ecclaimed "Where did you put the other shoe?" There was a worn black slipper on the shelf where the black ones had been, but sure enough, only one Oxford. Madam forelady looked about and the Persian Lamb lady stepped back. All at once the shoe was discovered. Where? On the Persian Lamb Lady's foot. This was not stealing, for had she not placed her own shoe in the place of the one she was wearing. It would have been interesting to watch how the exchange of the other shoe would be accomplished, but time was passing and other importuning customers were filling the store.

An old gentleman, shivering but frankly bleary-eyed, said he not only had no work but was unable to work. He had no home and no friends and said he depended upon these sales for clothing to keep him alive. This story actually got across and procured for him a perfectly whole and clean suit of clothes for seventy-five cents. They couldn't take away the poor old man's self-respect by giving him the suit outright. Ah, but here's the rub. When his poor trembling hands opened his well-worn purse, he disclosed a good sized wad of bills. Sympathy oozed away once more, though they had been impressed with the fact that here was one of the city's deserving but down-trodden poor.

During the barter, the old gentleman, who found it difficult to speak clearly with the quid of tobacco he jealously guarded, started for the door. "I'll be back," I'm just going to spit" he whispered. Good man. He refrained from sullying the store floor at any rate. So much to his credit.

He returned in an incredibly short time, bringing as he said "another good customer". This lady too, had a long "Lamb" coat, which made the rummage shop-keepers wary. The man carried an ugly looking axe this time and a pair of shoe pacs. The lady really bought several articles amounting in all to twenty-five cents. Stowing them in a capacious bag, she carelessly dropped a red sweater-coat on top of the lot, and was vastly surprised when it was drawn to her attention and charged with the other things.

All this didn't tend to lessen an "allocation" with any great speed, nor to appreciably aid Foreign Missions. Rummage sales are said to be a means of reaching the poor without making them feel that charity is being given. In reality it is nothing of the sort. Church organizations, desiring to augment their funds, receive donations, often things which are scarcely used, in the name of the church or missionary work represented. A committee gives much time in renovating things where necessary and attending the selling of them. Most of the people who buy are not those who really need cheap clothing, and some of these goods have been known to find their way into the second-hand shops through the buyers.

Missionary Supply secretaries have recently met with this same problem. One apparently needy lady sent to several secretaries for supplies, enumerating her many needs. She was found to own a flourishing second-hand store. (This was not in Peterborough).

It has been discovered that the really good and new articles are not quick sellers, excepting where it is the property of the salespeople who found it difficult to keep their belongings out of the sale.

The money derived from these sales is dearly earned, but the education gained in the study of human nature and showing "the one half how the other half lives", is invaluable—perhaps to both sides.

Allan Cup Holders Open Season With 2-1 Win

MONTREAL, Nov. 14.—A crowd of some 3,000 fans watched the double-header which featured the opening of the 1930-31 Montreal senior hockey group of the Quebec A.H.A. here last evening.

In the first game Columbus succeeded in downing Canadiens 2 to 1, while in the second the revamped Montreal Amateur Athletic Association team, last year's winners of the Allan Cup, defeated Victorias 2 to 1.

Easy Win For Providence Philadelphia Beaten 5-1

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14 (A.P.) — The Providence Reds, deefnding champions, opened the Canadian-American Hockey League season at the Arena last night, with a 5 to 1 victory over the Philadelphia Arrows.

The first two periods were bitterly fought, but in the last period the home team showed the effects of the grilling contest and was completely outclassed by the sturdy New England players.

Cormier and Hart, two veterans of last year's team, bore the brunt of the attack for Providence.

REGINA ROUGHRIDERS ARE AGAIN PLANNING AN EASTERN INVASION

Have More Formidable Combination Than in Other Rugby Trips.

CRACK JUNIORS

(Special to Examiner, Copyright 1930.)

REGINA, Sask., Nov. 12.—Probably the best balanced squad that ever sailed forth to find a championship pot of gold at the end of the rugby rainbow is the 1930 edition of the Regina Roughriders. Changing in its personnel from year to year, and practically a brand new team as compared with the aggregation of five seasons ago, the present Rider chain is noticeably strong in every link, and well fortified against any possible mishaps.

Coached by the peer of all western strategists, Alvin H. Ritchie; managed by Fred Wilson, who for a decade and a half was the kicking ace of Regina rugby; and backed by a powerful executive headed by president Emmett McCusker, the Roughriders are a formidable combination of thoroughly experienced gridders, the majority of whom are dyed-in-the-wool home brews, while a few others obtained their "larnin'" in Winnipeg, in the east, and in the United States.

Supporting the old-time members of the squad are a bunch of hustling junior graduates, six of whom starred for the Pats when they cleaned up the Canadian junior championship in 1928, defeating St. Thomas, Ont., in the final game in the Flower City.

Outstanding Ex-Pats.

Among this half-dozen ex-Pats, two are particularly outstanding — Saul Bloomfield and Angie Mitchell, versatile athletes par excellence. Of much the same build, and unusually light for senior rugby, "Solly" and "Deepstuff" have been carrying on right where they left off in that memorable joust in St. Thomas. Bloomfield does most of the kicking with his trusty left foot, and is a deadly broken field runner who can withstand the most severe kind of tacking and come up asking for more. Mitchell holds down the quarterback post formerly filled by Frit Sanstrom and is a canny leader with a clear, astute and fast-thinking head on his shoulders. He calls his plays with an abundance of gray matter, has the complete confidence of all his men, and is the pride of Coach Ritchie. As a ball carrier and exponent of team-work on the run, Mitchell is a force to be reckoned with.

Just about the same class as Bloomfield and Mitchell is another ex-Pat, "Red" Currie. This powerfully built youngster, who still is eligible for junior football, is a former linesman who has been made over into a backfield star. He shares the punting with "Solly" and kicks 'em high, wide and handsome. As a line plunger, he is one of the best bets on the team.

Ken Traynor, Fred Brown and Pete Williams constitute the other three members from the old junior championship outfit. Traynor is a sub backfielder with a mean tackel, and can replace Mitchell at quarter if necessary. Brown a former back division stalwart, is going great guns at outside wing, and Williams, a hard hitting end man, is able to do duty as snapback, if needed.

Good Ground Gainers.

As shifty and volatile as they make 'em, Greg Grassick and Desmond Grubb lend many years of senior rugby experience to the backfield. They are both sure ground gainers, and of late "Grubby" has been developing a penchant for placement kicks that gives a strong team another potent weapon.

Bob Ellis, a former Moose Jaw rugby star, new to the Rider camp this year, has been slowed up by injuries. When hitting his stride, Ellis is a valuable and versatile performer.

With scarcely an exception, the line is composed of older, highly seasoned and husky performers. "Jersey" Campbell, whose forward passing dismayed the Hamilton Tigers at many stages of last year's final, has no peer in the west at snapback. He was injured in the play-off with Winnipeg but is a tough hombre and can be depended upon to resume his post before the season ends.

Gordon Barber and "Tiny" Thompson are the burly inside wings, and "Herk" Meyer and Al Urness the regular middles. When these four athletes start sandwiching opposing plungers, it's too bad, that's all. Jack Patrick, Johnny Garuik, and Bob Jackson, a colored recruit, are just as proficient as the starting huskies, and Nick Busch, Brown and Williams on the ends are fast on their feet and possess sure and deadly pairs of hands. George Gilhooly, Harold Urness, Jim Carswell, Charlie Reinhorn, Alf Wood, Jack Lapoint and Fred Harding round out a stellar roster of utility talent, and manager Fred Wilson, having qualified for the playoffs is available for kicking duty if a crisis should arise. This old fox is in splendid condition and has been doing considerable booting at recent workouts.

Though Campbell's forward passing featured Regina's fine stand against Hamilton last year, other members of the squad, including Mitchell and Currie, have been doing a lot of the tossing this year, and Busch has shown considerable ability as receiver. The aerial threat, however, is not greatly employed by the Riders, who make the great majority of their gains by playing straight Canadian rugby.

Few injuries have hit the squad this year, and the boys are all pepped up over the fine battle they gave Hamilton here on October 4. If they go down east again this year, they are determined not merely to give a good account of themselves, but to beat the opposition this time.

Sonnenberg Retains Disputed Mat Title

BOSTON, Nov. 14. (CP) — Gus Sonnenberg retained his disputed wrestling title to-day by virtue of an accident, which gave him the deciding fall over Jack Sherry of Ohio in last night's match.

Sherry was trying to give Sonnenberg an airplane whirl when Referee Leon Burbank suddenly broke Sonnenberg's clutch on the ropes. Sherry fell backwards toward the mat, landing under Sonnenberg, who managed to pin his rival's shoulders to the mat for the required three seconds.

After the match, one of the roughest ever staged here, Sherry struck the referee several times before his handlers pulled him from the ring. Sherry appeared to have Sonnenberg in distress when the accidental fall was scored.

AL SINGER FAVORED TO BEAT CANZONERI

Lightweight Champion Expected to Emerge Victor To-night By Knockout Route.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Al Singer, lightweight champion, will defend his title in meeting Tony Canzoneri at Madison Square Garden to-night, and has been installed as the betting favorite.

This will be the first lightweight championship bout to have been held indoors in this city in nine years.

The last one was held in the old Madison Square Garden. Benny Leonard and Ritchie Mitchell fought that one, and Leonard won on a sixth round knockout.

Singer is expected to win the same way, but maybe not so early. Professional bettors have established odds at 8 to 5, but are expected to lengthen two by one by fight time.

DECISIVE VICTORY SCORED BY REGINA

Roughriders Beat Vancouver Football Team By 17 to 0.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Nov. 14.—Regina Roughriders, bidding for their fifth consecutive Western Canada football championship, last night scored a 17 to 0 triumph over Vancouver Meralomas, British Columbia champions, in the first of the scheduled three games final series.

Playing under floodlights for the first time, Al Ritchie's Maroon huskies smashed Meralomas with a brilliant offensive drive in the first half, Bloomfield, Grubb and Currie making large gains. Bloomfield's long-distance kicking prevented Vancouver's attacks from showing much advantage.

SOCCER NOTES.

A special meeting of the Peterborough and District Football Association will be held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, on Monday evening, at eight o'clock. All club representatives and members of the executive are requested to attend. A financial statement will be given by the secretary-treasurer and business completed for the year.

On Thursday evening, November 20th, 1930, the Caledonians will hold a banquet in the Paragon Hall, at 7.30 prompt. A special invitation has been sent to the president, vice-president and secretary of the local association.

The sweaters that are to be presented to the Canadian Packing as souvenirs in winning the local league, have arrived and are at present in the possession of the secretary.

In all probability the C.P.C. will announce the date of their banquet next week when they expect to get their pictures taken and spend the usual night of enjoyment.

Fred Sutcliffe has received communication from the entertainers in Toronto that they will be open to come to Peterborough for the smoker on November 20 or December 13th. The date has not been definitely fixed.

BRIDGENORTH.

The members of the Ladies' Aid of Bridgenorth United Church held their regular meeting and Pot Luck Tea at the home of Mrs. Marcus Fowler, the ladies gathering at six o'clock for supper.

After all had partaken of a delightful supper the meeting was conducted by the president, Miss Pauline Udy and following the meeting, a social hour was spent in games, music, and contests.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SHAVING SOAP.

"Well, my dear, I'm all ready!" called Uncle Wiggily to his wife as he slid down the banister stair railing one morning and bumped into Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy who was carrying a pitcher of water to give the geranium flower a drink.

"Oh, my goodness!" screamed the muskrat lady housekeeper as she fell down. The pitcher flew out of her paw as if it were a funny little airship and the water splattered all over Mrs. Longears. Some got on Uncle Wiggily's pink nose and stopped the twinkling.

"What do you mean you are all ready?" asked Mrs. Longears as she helped Nurse Jane pick herself up. "If you mean you are ready to do more tricks like that you needn't bother."

"Oh, that wasn't a trick, honestly it wasn't!" protested Mr. Longears. "I slid down the banister because I was in a hurry. I didn't see Nurse Jane. It's a good thing the pitcher didn't break," went on Uncle Wiggily as he picked it up and handed it with a polite bow to the muskrat lady.

"It's a good thing you didn't break Nurse Jane's tail!" exclaimed the rabbit lady.

"Yes, it is," agreed the bunny uncle. "And I beg her pardon!"

"Oh, it doesn't matter—really!" squeaked Nurse Jane. "There is plenty more water," and she crept away to fill the pitcher again.

"Well, as I was saying," resumed Uncle Wiggily. "I am all ready to go with you to the movies, my dear. I was telling you that when I slipped."

"A funny slip!" said Mrs. Longears. "But you don't call yourself ready I hope?" and she looked sharply at her husband.

"Why, what's the matter with me?" he asked. "Have I forgotten my shoes, as I sometimes do? No, I have them on. I have my coat, my nose, my ears—why I can't see but what I'm all ready to go to the movies with you, my dear."

"You haven't shaved!" exclaimed Mrs. Longears. "I'm not going to the movies with any rabbit who hasn't shaved in two days."

"That's so, my dear. I haven't shaved," admitted Uncl Wiggily, rubbing one paw around his chin. "But I thought as long as it's dark in the movies nobody would see me."

"What about when the lights go up?" asked his wife.

"Oh, they'd see me then, of course."

"And I'm not going to have Mrs. Twistyail or Aunt Lettie saying you are so careless as not to look neat," spoke the rabbit lady. "If you please now slide up the banister rail and shave your whiskers."

But sliding up a banister rail was something Uncle Wiggily couldn't do, so he hopped up the stairs. It's easy enough to slide down a banister rail but very hard to slide up as you know if you have tried.

Going into the bath room Uncle Wiggily got out his safety razor, his brush and turned on the hot water.

"It won't take me long to shave," he said. "But where's my shaving soap? 'It isn't here?" He looked all around the bath room but saw no shaving soap or foamy cream in a soft tube. "Nurse Jane!" called Uncle Wiggily down the back stairs. "Have you seen my shaving cream?"

"Oh, I meant to tell you," squeaked the muskrat lady, "I took it to make a suds for washing the windows yesterday. I didn't mean to use it all, but it squeezed out so nice and was lovely for cleaning the windows. I meant to tell you so you could get more."

"And now I haven't any shaving soap and my wife is in a hurry for me to shave so I'll look nice going to the movies," murmured Mr. Longears. "What am I to do? I can't use common soap for its smarts my face."

He happened to look out the bath room window just as a peddler dog was shuffling along barking:

"Charlotte russe! Charlotte russe! Nice fresh charlotte russe with whipped cream! Oh, yoi! Oh, yoi!" Uncle Wiggily looked and saw that the dog had a tray of charlotte russe cakes each one with a lot of white, creamy foam on top.

"The very thing!" cried the rabbit. "I'll use some whipped cream for shaving soap and eat what is left of the cake. Hi there!" he called to the bakery dog! "Throw me up three charlottes! Here's the money!"

Uncle Wiggily tossed down the money. The bakery dog tossed to the bath room room three charlottes which Uncle Wiggily easily caught. He squeezed one cake too hard and a lot of the whipped cream squirted on his nose, but he wiped it off with his tongue.

Then, putting the charlotte russe cream on his face for shaving soap, Uncle Wiggily soon lathered himself and shaved. Soon he was nice and clean and smooth. He ate the cake part of the charlottes, slid down the banister again and went to the movies with his wife. So everything was all right.

A. BROWN & SON

DUMPING OF SALMON BY SOVIET THREATENS CANADIAN INDUSTRY

Canning Officials Say Situation Alarming—Japanese, British Markets Flooded.

BIG YEAR FOR 1934.

(Special to Examiner, Copyright, 1930.)

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., Nov 14.—Four years hence, British Columbia promises to harvest the largest catch of sockeye salmon since the palmy days of 1912. But this is no cause of satisfaction to present holders of stock in the packing companies. The shadow of the Russian bear has been cast over the present situation which, claim Coast officials, is a serious one.

Not only is the Japanese market being supplied by the Soviet government, through its Kamchatka catch, but a more serious threat has been made to flood the British market, dumping the lower grade fish at a price approximately 75 cents below the Canadian figure.

British regulations do not compel importers to label their product with the country of origin so that the consumers in the United Kingdom are likely to be in the dark as to Russian salmon, believing it to be of Canadian origin.

H. Bell Irving, one of the leaders in the salmon canning industry in British Columbia, is at present in London. His report indicates large buying of Soviet salmon by the British Co-operative Society, an organization which has been much in the limelight of late in respect to Russian wheat purchases.

With the British smarket stagnant as far as British Columbia orders are concerned, the Coast packers find themselves with every warehouse and cannery filled to capacity with the 1930 catch has exceeded two million cases, the largest in years. The fishermen themselves have enjoyed a successful season. Their catches in Northern B.C. waters exceeded the average with the result that the men are in fairly good circumstances, a matter of relief to communities where unemployment is rife.

Referring back to the 1934 catch, the federal fisheries officials stepped in at a time when the Gulf of Georgia was teeming with late sockeye and ordered operations to cease. There was a loud howl from the fishermen themselves, but the packers were satisfied. The latter had too much stock on their hands and as if to strengthen the closed season order of the chief fisheries commissioner, the canneries announced they would accept no more sockeye this season.

As a result of this closed season, millions of sockeye passed up the Fraser River unmolested and are reported to have made their way to the upper reaches of the river and the various lakes, there to spawn and die. Four years hence the fry of these mature fish will have passed out to sea and returned to the Fraser River, there to try their luck of evading the hundreds of nets spread out between New Westminster and the Gulf of Georgia.

Whether the international sockeye treaty will have been ratified and placed in operation before 1934 is to be seen. There is likelihood of the treaty being given a hoist at Ottawa now that it has been amended to suit the British Columbia Conservative members. The stumbling block appears to be in Washington state where powerful interests are fighting the measure through fear that fish traps may be abolished on the American side. The situation below the line threatens to become more complicated on account of possible retaliation at Washington, D.C., on account of the recent tariff bill passed by the Bennett government at Ottawa.

WHAT OF GREAT FUTURE? RADIO TEN YEARS HENCE

Instead of 600 Broadcasting Stations Now There Will Be 5,000.

10,000 WATT STATIONS.

Sound and sight are destined to be the Siamese twins of home entertainment in the future—radio vision or television, which ever term you may prefer, is the next great development promised by the science of radio. Corporations and independent investigators are bending their efforts to insure radio appeal to the eye as well as ear in millions of homes. Dr. Lee de Forest, inventor of the radio tube used in broadcast reception, believes that television is coming but that it will reach our homes by the wire rather than the ether route. He is going to Hollywood to devote his untiring energies in research laboratories to bring about the realization of the dream of seeing as well as hearing by radio or wired radio, perhaps.

The allowable power unit of all broadcasting stations may increase from the present average of 2,000 watts to 10,000 watts and the maximum allowance may jump from 50,000 to 500,000 watts within ten years. Already nine broadcasting stations are employing 50,000 watts each and other stations desire to step-up their power to that wattage. WGY is experimentally using 200,000 watts and KDKA wants to employ 400,000 watts experimentally. Even these super-power stations have been compared to the energy exercised by a fly in crawling up a wall. Other high-power enthusiasts have unbridled their imagination and they envision broadcasting systems utilizing 1,000,000 watts of power.

5,000 Stations Then.

Instead of only 600 broadcasting stations, as now licensed, ten years hence 5,000 stations may be operating without mutual interference. If the ban on a further increase of broadcasting stations were lifted at least 3,000 new-comers would seek licenses in 30 days—thus making a total of nearly 4,000 broadcasting stations. At least another 1,000 construction permits would be sought. Successful synchronization of many stations on one wave-length is a possibility that gives this forecast something more than a figment of the imagination. Two stations in Iowa are already operating on one wave-length, and the results thus accomplished may lead to widespread application of synchronization.

The hurling of electric power through space may be an accomplished fact of the next decade. Nikola Tesla has long dreamed of the transmission of radio power, and now this prediction is shared by H. P. Davis, the so-called "Father of Broadcasting." Other leaders of scientific thought admit of the feasibility of shooting energy through space to operate factories and other power plants, but they contend that the cost would be prohibitive, requiring the wealth of a modern Croesus like Henry Ford. Hugo Gernsback fancies a future when we may send a carload of coal from Pittsburgh to Paris by radio, because he insists that "There seems to be nothing impossible that radio cannot accomplish in the future."

Airplanes, ships, trains and automobiles have already been propelled by radio, or, more accurately speaking, radio impulses have actuated the controls of such mechanism. Ten years hence an airplane may fly without a pilot, employing the recently designed "automatic mechanical pilot," and this would be actuated and guided by radio waves emanating from directive radio beacons located along the airways. Similarly, ships, automobiles, and trains may move along their appointed course in response to radio impulses—remote control of machinery by radio.

Trains, ships, and airplanes of the future may never be out of touch with homes and offices. Great passenger liners already are equipped with radio-telephones for communication with folks back home as the steamers speed across the Atlantic Ocean, airplanes in flight have established communication with homes and offices, and passengers on a Canadian National between Montreal and Toronto are enabled to converse by radio-telephone with their homes and offices while the train is speeding at 60 miles an hour.

Television Program.

Photographs, motion pictures and talking pictures may be flashed into homes as commonplace procedure ten years hence. The "Television Program" is already being printed in at least one newspaper, and silhouettes, such as dancing dolls, are riding on radio waves into homes of radio amateurs almost nightly. Facsimile transmission by radio and wire may displace the present dot-hads system of communication, and then messages, bank checks, valuable papers, and even entire newspapers may be sent by radio. In at least one instance, radio has vouched for the authenticity of a signature sent from New York to South America, although the validity of the procedure was attacked in the courts.

Two Frenchmen have patented a scheme for electrocuting a murderer with radio waves from a distance: for fertilizing plants from afar; for bleaching cloth by spraying short waves on the fabric; and destroying opposing armies by powerful radio waves shot from a gun carried in an airplane. These are fanciful uses of radio, I will admit, but so was broadcasting ten years ago.

England and New Zealand, 13,500 miles apart, have just been connected by radio telephone service.

AUTOMOBILE SETS

Radio has joined hands in earnest with the automobile this year to spread entertainment to the highways of the country.

While the idea of installing a receiver in the motor car is about as old as broadcasting itself, the plan is attracting wider attention now that better receivers are being built to function out where the tall structures of the city blend into a horizon that is broken only by waving trees and fields of grain.

In the past, difficulty was encountered in building a receiver that would operate properly when bumping along any kind of a country road. Now such receivers, which are battery supplied, have been improved in design to the point where vibration of the tubes has been practically overcome.

Radio in an automobile does much to ease the strain of a long drive, according to Lieut. Donald S. Leonard of the Michigan State Police, who has just returned to Detroit from a long tour to Washington, D.C., New York and Philadelphia in a police patrol car equipped with radio. "Passengers are less inclined to talk to the driver while listening to a radio program," he says.

THE RETURN OF TARZAN No. 53 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Jane asked him many questions. Tarzan told her in detail of his life since he had returned to the jungle. How from a civilized Parisian he had dropped to a savage Waziri warrior and from that back to the brute that he had been raised. When he had finished, he sat looking at her long, as though waiting for her judgment.

Then in a low voice he said: "We have forgotten your husband." Jane looked up at him. "I am not married, Tarzan of the Apes, nor can I now keep the wicked promise I made." Then she related all that had happened since the day Tarzan bade her farewell in America. And Tarzan, kissing her again, no longer doubted her love for him.

That night Tarzan built a snug little bower high among the swaying branches. There the weary girl slept. Beneath it, the apeman curled, ready even in sleep to protect her. It took them many days to make the long journey to the coast. When the way was easy they walked hand in hand beneath the forest's arching boughs.

More often he took her in his great arms and bore her lightly through the trees. The days were all too short, for they were very happy. On the last day before they reached the coast, Tarzan caught the scent of man ahead of them. He told the girl and cautioned her to remain silent, remarking dryly: "There are few friends in the jungle."

Knox Church W.A. Sets Bazaar Date

The November meeting of the Women's Association of Knox United Church was held in the Ladies' Parlor yesterday afternoon.

The President, Mrs. J. F. Londerville, presided and welcomed the large number of members present. Excellent reports of the activities of the association and its financial standing were given by the Secretary, Mrs. George Davis and the Treasurer, Mrs. Roy Laing. The devotional exercises were in charge of Mrs. J. Foster, who read the scripture lesson followed by prayer by Mrs. Laing.

A strenuous business session followed when arrangements were made to hold a social evening and shower of bazaar gifts at the home of Rev. and Mrs. W. McDonald on Tuesday evening, Nov 25. The date of the annual bazaar and church supper was set for Dec. 2 and committees were appointed for the different departments of the work. The canvassers appointed reported splendid success in their calls upon the church members and adherents. The election of officers took place, most of the officers being returned by acclamation. The following will direct affairs for the coming year's activities:

President, Mrs. J. F. Londerville; 1st Vice President, Mrs. J. Foster; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. J. McCurdy; Secretary, Mrs. George Davis; Treasurer, Mrs. Roy Laing; Treasurer for Building Fund, Mrs. T. Johnston; Convenor of Program Committee, Mrs. J. J. Pollock; Convenor of Flower Committee, Mrs. W. Lockie.

The additional members of the executive will be appointed at the December meeting.

The meeting closed by repeating the Lord's prayer in unison.

Mrs. Cooney Entertains St. George's Society

Mrs. E. Cooney, Lansdowne Street, entertained the members of St. George's Ladies' Guild at her home yesterday afternoon. Mrs. H. Wood, president, occupied the chair, and conducted the opening prayers. There was a good attendance of the members and several visitors. The business of the afternoon was in connection with the forthcoming sale of work to be held on November 27. A number of finished garments were brought in, and sale of work cards and orders for work were discussed. After the meeting was closed by the rector, dainty afternoon tea was served by the hostess.

Ashburnham Park Is All Ready For Winter

The city's miniature park at the Ashburnham approach to the Hunter Street Bridge has been prepared for winter. Ald. Stocker this morning completed supervision of the work. The flower beds have been fenced in against thoughtless pedestrians who may stray from the sidewalk, and as chairman of the Park Committee, Ald. Stocker appeals to the public to co-operate with the Council by refraining from walking across the grass. A few days ago he found an Iris bulb uprooted and the short stocks twisted off, evidently a deliberate act that will be discouraged if the offender's identity can be obtained.

WEDDING BELLS

COLTER—ELLIOTT

TWEED, Nov. 14 (Examiner Correspondence).—A wedding of much local interest was solemnized at the home of Mrs. C. W. Colter, Cayuga, Saturday, when Gladys, daughter of Mrs. Elliott, and the late Mr. S. S. Elliot of Tweed, became the bride of H. A. Colter, postmaster at Cayuga, and son of Mrs. C. W. Colter and the late Judge Colter of St. Thomas.

Rev. W. J. P. Baugh, rector of St. John's Church, Cayuga, conducted the ceremony in the presence of a few relatives, the wedding being private, because of bereavement in the bridegroom's family. The bride was unattended and looked charming in a handsome imported gown of egg-shell wool lace. Her corsage was of Ophelia roses.

Breakfast table decorations were carried out with carnations and chrysanthemums. Later in the morning, Mr. and Mrs. Colter left for a motor trip.

IN MEMORIAM.
TELFORD—In memory of Mrs. Bruce Telford (nee Irene Delahey), who died November 13, 1921.

"To-day we are thinking of someone,
Who was gentle, kind and true,
Whose smile was so bright as the sunshine,
That somebody, dear Irene, is you.
November will always bring memories
Of a loved one laid to rest,
She will always be remembered
By those who loved her best."

—Remembered by Father, Mother, Brothers and Sisters.

IN MEMORIAM.
ROBINSON — In loving memory of Gilbert, our dear son and brother, who died November 14, 1928.
There is someone who misses you sadly,
And found the years long since you went;
There is someone who misses you daily,
Though we try to be brave and content.

Time moves on and we are reminded
Of a day our hearts were crushed,
When God took you, oh, so quickly,
And we all in our gloom were thrust.

Times may come and bring many changes,
Fresh with every coming year;
But your memory we will cherish
In the hearts that loved you here.

Our life cannot speak how we loved him,
Our hearts cannot tell what to say;
God only knows how we miss him,
In a home that is lonesome today.

The flowers we place upon your grave
May wither and decay,
But the love and memory that you left
Will never fade away.

—Sadly missed by mother, father and family.

POLICE COURT CLEANED UP.
Business being slow at Police Court these days because Peterborough citizens seem to have developed the knack of keeping out of trouble or have become most law abiding, the opportunity was taken to give the court room a thorough cleaning. The dirt and grime on the walls and ceilings, which had collected since their last bath more than two years ago, was washed off. The paint now shines forth in full lustre and railbirds at the court will doubtless be favorably impressed with the improvement.

Arsenal Retains League Leadership

TITLE HOLDERS ARE DOWNED BY LEADERS 2 TO 1

Derby County Defeats Aston Villa to Threaten Arsenal Lead.

PORTSMOUTH WINS 7-4.

Everton Wins From Millwall to Hold Lead in Second Division.

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 15 (C. P. Cable).—Arsenal showed they had a right to the top position in the championship table of the English Soccer League, First Division, when they went to Sheffield and beat the Wednesday team after a tense struggle by two goals to one. The Wednesday are the League champions. While the challenge of the Wednesday for the pace-setters' position was turned back another club is preparing for an assault on the Arsenal in Derby County, who beat Aston Villa in a game in which ten goals were scored, the County getting six. This defeat ends for the time being the Villa's aspirations to get into first place. In another heavy scoring match Portsmouth won at Newcastle by seven goals to four, and went into a three-cornered tie with Derby County and the Wednesday for seven place in the standing.

Everton held their lead in the Second Division when they beat Millwall. Preston North-End, runners-up, and Burnley, third team, both lost ground when they were beaten to-day, while West Bromwich Albion, who trimmed Preston, gained points and displaced Burnley.

Torquay United disappointed their followers when they lost by one goal to four to Notts County, who have not been beaten this season in Southern Section, Third Division, games. Lincoln City lost a little of their lead in the Northern Section when they got no better than a draw at Wrexham.

In the Scottish League First Division standing, Partick Thistle, who beat St. Mirren, are once more back in the lead. Celtic, Motherwell, and Dundee, who were tied at the top of the table with Partick, failed to win.

TOURIST IS HELD AFTER SMASH-UP

Man in Wagon Instantly Killed in Collision Near Delhi.

LIQUOR CHARGE LAID.

SIMCOE, Ont., Nov. 15. (CP)—A nominal charge of having liquor in an illegal place has been laid against Albert T. Y. Smith, Detroit, driver of the motorcar which crashed into the wagon of John Stirtenser of Delhi, Ont., instantly killing the latter.

An inquest will be held in Delhi this afternoon at which it is expected the driver and passengers in the United States car will testify.

According to information obtainable here the charge against Smith is laid on technical grounds as none of the occupants of the car were under the influence of liquor, and the only evidence that there had been any was an empty bottle in the car.

Telling the Policeman From Afar

Irate motorists can dispute what appears to be an unfair decision of the traffic cop, and can tell him what they think of him with impunity by means of this newly-developed microphone attached to the steering wheel of certain British motor cars. The fair motorist can not only address the policeman from several feet away, but can issue directions for safety to erring pedestrians. Traffic tangles should be exciting for "mike" drivers.

PARLEY RESULTS DISAPPOINTMENT

Times Pleased Sufficient Saved From Wreckage to Warrant Another Meet.

MANY DIFFICULTIES IN WAY.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—(C. P. Cable).—Disappointment was expressed by the Times to-day that the Imperial Conference had failed to make tangible contributions to the need for closer co-operation between trade and industry, but found it satisfying "that sufficient was saved from the wreckage to make it worth while to resume the conference next year."

The Telegraph declared the British Government went into the Conference without any definite policy, while the Morning Post, another Conservative organ, expressed regret that the "friendly offers of the Dominions to get us out of our economic slough of despondment with the implacable fanaticism of free trade."

The Laborite Daily Herald conceded that although many real difficulties have been overcome, many others have not been. The paper contended that the Conference as a whole had achieved results on which the delegtaions might congratulate themselves.

The Daily Mail and Daily Express, Rothermere and Beaverbrook organs, were confident that the free traders would soon be swept away and a triumph for Empire free trade— a term which seems to have assumed a chaned meaning—would triumph at the next conference.

Free trade journals were not highly enthusiastic over the results. The News attributed the result to Conservative anti-free trade attacks which nearly torpedoed the conference, it said. The paper paid tribute to the Government for "keeping its head."

George M. McGregor Is Greatly Improved

George M. McGregor, the man who terrorized motorists and residents on the Peterborough-Port Hope highhighway on November 4 when he went mad, has almost completely recovered from his insanity.

Still frothing at the mouth and robed only in blankets, McGregor was taken to the Whitby asylum by two provincial constables on the evening of November 4. The first few days it took seven attendants to manage him. Later his condition improved rapidly, and it was reported yesterday that he is acting now quite sanely.

McGregor served with the C.E.F. in France. Returning to Canada, he took up land in Saskatchewan on the Soldiers' Settlement scheme. He worked hard and now owns two large homesteads. The loneliness of the prairies is thought to have affected his mind and caused his madness when he returned to this district for a visit with relatives.

The Finn who went mad in the local county jail last week is also reported to have recovered from his insanity. At least he is acting quieter now.

Japanese Premier's Condition Serious

TOKYO, Nov. 15. (AP)—A bulletin issued at 10 o'clock last night warned the nation that Premier Hamaguchi is not yet out of danger in his fight for life against the pistol wound inflicted yesterday by a young Extremist.

Nevertheless, Dr. Shioda, chief physician attending the statesman, said this need not cause undue alarm. "Thus far the patient is progressing satisfactorily," he said, although gases were forming in the abdomen and causing pain, showing Hamaguchi's condition required the most careful watching.

CIVIL SERVANTS MAY FACE PROBE

Rumor Royal Commissioner May Investigate Actions During July Election.

WAIT BENNETT'S RETURN.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 15.—The Evening Citizen in its news columns today carries the following:

'Not a few Ottawa civil servants were too active in the interests of the King government at the general election on July 20 last to suit the victorious Bennett Government, it is reported. Appointment of a Royal Commissioner to officially investigate the matter is mooted.

"Because of the obvious unsettling effect on the service, serious consideration will be given by the Government before definite action is taken and it is probable that no appointment will be made until the return of the Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister, in December.'

AFTER LOVE IS REJECTED GIRL ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

SUDBURY, Ont., Nov. 15.—(CP)—Because her love was rejected, it is alleged Mary Christie, aged 21, of Chapleau, attempted suicide by taking iodine after she had been motoring with the young man of her affections, Victor Newman, aged 22. As the young girl stepped out of Newman's car after they had been driving together all afternoon, according to police report, she placed a bottle of iodine to her lips and swallowed a quantity of the poison, before Newman could stop her. He succeeded in taking the bottle away from her and called for help.

Dr. Burgess was called. A stomach pump was used by the doctor and she was removed to the Lady Minto hospital by Provincial Constable P. Pol and Chief of Police Scott where a guard was placed over her during the night. It is believed that she will suffer no ill effects from her rash act.

FEDERAL AGENTS MOVE TO SMASH GREAT RUM RING

Fifteen Men, One Woman Captured and $116,000 Liquor Confiscated.

APPEAR IN COURT MONDAY.

Syndicate Believed to Own Fleet of Steamers and String of Wireless Stations.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Nov. 15. (CP) With 15 men and a woman under high bond and liquor valued at $116,000 confiscated, Federal authorities moved forward to-day to smash a radio-directed ship-to-shore, rum-running syndicate.

Arrests were made yesterday in Manhattan, Brooklyn and New Jersey under a secret indictment handed down by a Federal Grand Jury on Thursday, and the liquor was seized in two warehouses in the lower part of the city. The prisoners will be arraigned Monday in Brooklyn Federal Court.

Charges Secret

While assistant United States Attorney J. Bertram Wegman announced the raids, he declined to reveal the number of persons named in the indictment or the exact counts against them. It was understood, however, that warrants were issued for more than fifty persons and that additional arrests would be made.

Sam Levine, 42, of Brooklyn was placed under $25,000 bond as the leader of the conspiracy. Bail for the others varied from $25 000 to $3,000.

The ring is understood to own a fleet of ocean-going steamers, numerous motor craft, a string of wireless stations at strategic points along the Long Island and New Jersey coasts and a large number of warehouses in New York and New Jersey.

POINT SYSTEM FOR PLAYOFFS

Amendment Adopted By O.H.A. at Toronto Meeting This Afternoon.

ELIMINATE TIE GAMES.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 15. (CP)—Adoption of three amendments to the playing rules, change of the date of the annual meeting, two minor changes in the regulations and the election of the executive for the ensuing year was the total business transacted at the 41st annual meeting of the Ontario Hockey Association held here to-day.

The most important amendment to the playing rules was that to clause ten, dealing with the declaration of group winners. In future, in groups of three or more clubs, "the point system of scoring will prevail with two points for a win and one for a tie" instead of the present system where a majority of matches decides the winner.

Eliminate Tie Games.

This amendment will eliminate the necessity of replaying many tie games in the various groups and lessen the number of games played before a group winner is declared for the playoffs.

It was decided the annual meeting would be held hereafter on the Saturday following November 20 at a time and place designated by the executive. It was felt this change would be more convenient to the delegates.

The other amendmetns to the playing rules concerned the rules defining a goal and the offside rule in the former case, and addition was made, reading: "A goal cannot be scored off the skate or any part of the body of an attacking player."

The addition to the offside rule reads: "Player must be behind or even with the player last playing the puck or in possession of same before it crosses the 60-foot line. If not, and the puck has gone out of the 60-foot area before he touches it, he has committed an offside, and play must be stopped and puck faced on the 60-foot line."

FATHER TESTIFIES AGAINST HIS SON

Luther Township Youth Fined and Given One Month For Chicken Stealing.

ACCUSED PLEADS GUILTY.

ORANGEVILLE, Ont., Nov. 15.—Wilson Cunningham, 20, appeared before Magistrate Hugh Falconer in police court yesterday charged with the theft of chickens from Lloyd Mournaham, East Luther township. He pleaded guilty. Two neighbors had just finished testifying to his good qualities when W. C. Cunningham, former Reeve of the township and father of accused, stepped forward and said: "I am glad the boy was cought, since he was guilty, and hope it will be a lesson to him the longest day he lives.' A fine of $25 and costs and one month in jail was the sentence imposed on the youth.

FIGHT OVER GIRL ENDS IN PRISON

Ottawa Youth Held on Attempted Murder Count For Firing Gun at His Opponent.

LOSER GETS BLACK EYE.

HULL, Que., Nov. 15.—Following a shooting affray in the rear yard of a Hull cafe late last night, Harold Thomas, 20, of Ottawa, is held by police here on a charge of attempted murder. Two shots were fired when Thomas and another Ottawa youth, Joseph Lynch, went to the yard to fight following an argument over a girl frequenter of the grill.

Lynch told police the shots were fired at him as he sought to escape from the yard. Thomas affirms he merely shot into the air to frighten a crowd of hoodlums he believed were going to gang-beat him.

Lynch was not struck by the bullets but to-day has a badly swollen eye, suffered in the hand-to-hand scuffle which preceded firing of the revolver. The gun-toter did not, however, escape uninjured. After police had arrived at the scene, Thomas was laid low by a bystander who swung an automobile crank at his head and inflicted a scalp wound that necessitated two stitches to close.

The incident occurred less than a block from the spot where Bert Marshall, well known Ottawa athlete, was shot to death in an argument over a trifling motor car smash some weeks ago.

Husband and Bride End Lives Together

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 15.—Leaving a note saying they wanted to die together, Joseph Lubrecki, 48, Polish nobleman and editor of the Amerityka Echo, and his young bride of six months turned on the gas and lay down on a mattress in the kitchen of their home last night. Lubecki died and his wife was not expected to live today.

Lubecki, former Polish Consul at Buenos Aires, married Marie Paryski, 24, daughter of the publisher of the Echo, Polish newspaper, last May. Mrs. Lubecki continued her study of medicine at the University of Michigan and returned to Toledo with her husband Thursday.

PARLIAMENT TO SPEAK.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough County Liberal Association will be held at Norwood on Monday, November 24, for the election of officers and the appointment of delegates to the provincial convention in Toronto, December 16 and 17.

Monday's meeting has been called for 2 p.m. by Dr. Donald Munro of Warsaw. It is understood that the chief speaker for this meeting will be the Hon. Nelson Parliament.

FARMERS LOSE MILK LICENSES

Lindsay Board of Health Takes Action After Regulations Are Not Obeyed.

HAD AMPLE WARNING.

LINDSAY, Nov. 15 (Examiner Correspondence).—The local Board of Health has taken drastic action against several farmers in this district by cutting off their licenses for supplying milk and cream to dealers in town. These farmers failed to comply with the regulations which stipulate that those supplying milk in this manner must have milk houses built. Those who have been thus treated have had several months' grace in which to conform with the regulations.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS FAVORABLE MONEY AT LEAST IS NOT SCARCE GOVERNMENT CIRCLES INDICATE

$69,059,000 Paid in Income Taxes to Federal Treasury Since April 1.

SETS NEW RECORD.

Total to Date is Approximately $2,300,000 Ahead of That of Last Year.

OTTAWA, Ont., November 15 (C.P.). — A new all-time record for income tax collections has been set since April 4, 1930, up to the present, $69,059,000 having been deposited with the Federal Treasury in that perod by Canada's taxpayers. According to announcement to-day at the Department of National Revenue, this total is approximately $2,300,000 ahead of the like period last year.

Money Not Scarce.

The record-breaking mark set by the income tax collections is interpreted in Government circles as indicating business conditions in the Dominion are favorable. Money, at least, cannot be extremely scarce with the taxpayers paying up so promptly.

Other financial returns for the period under review are not, however, so favorable. The customs revenues have dropped 30,000,000, while excise revenues are down $45,000,000. The drop in the latter is attributed largely to the prohibition of liquor exports to the United States.

King Carol Opens First Parliament

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Nov. 15.—(AP)—King Carol opened Parliament today for the first time in his reign.

He received an ovation lasting several minutes as he stood with his son Michael in the uniform of his military school.

A number of distinguished persons, including members of the diplomatic corps filled the Parliament Hall to over-flowing.

BOYD IS PLANNING COAST TO COAST TRIP IN COLUMBIA

Probably Hop Off From St. John's, Newfoundland, For Vancouver.

3,500 MILES AIRLINE.

Connors Act As Navigator — Fliers Head For Home Aboard Liner.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 15 (C.P.)—Captain J. Erroll Boyd of Toronto, smiling Canadian airman who flew the Atlantic a few weeks ago with Lieut. Harry Connors in the veteran Bellanca monoplane Columbia, will attempt a Canadian transcontinental flight from the Atlantic to the Pacific when he gets back to Canadian soil, John A. O'Brien, promoter of their ocean flight, told the press in a long distance telephone conversation from New York.

Connors to Navigate

Harry P. Connor, who navigated the Columbia on her second ocean crossing, will lay the course on this newest flight, a projected hop from some point on the East coast, to Vancouver, a distance of approximately 3,500 miles, airline.

Captain Boyd, one of the first Canadians in the Royal Air Force and the first of his countrymen to span the Atlantic, is enthusiastic about the Canadian flight. The Dominion of Canada has been crossed by airplane from Montreal and Ottawa several times, flying in easy stages. This will be the first attempt at a non-stop flight from Atlantic to Pacific oceans.

The Columbia can carry sufficient fuel for about 36 hours' flight at normal cruising speed, around 100 miles an hour. The old plane has been dismantled and stowed away on the Canadian Pacific liner Duchess of Bedford which is bringing Boyd and Connor back to Canada. The Columbia will be re-assembled at Montreal and her old motor overhauled by Canadian- Wright,Limited. Her motor an old J-5 Whirlwind, will be more closely cowled for cold weather on the trans-Canada flight, and special insulating and heating apparatus placed about the oil tanks.

Airmail Route Lighted

By the time Boyd and Connor reach the Rockies, their fuel load will have been decreased enough to enable them to lift the plane above the peaks without difficulty. The lighted route of the night airmail across the Prairie Provinces from Winnipeg will aid the fliers in their long flight.

The exact date of the start of the trans-Canada flight has not been announced. The fliers are due to arrive at Montreal at the end of next week on the Duchess of Bedford, and after a reception here, will probably rest a few days before going to Toronto for a visit to Boyd's wife and family.

No More Hunchbacks Doctor's Prediction

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Nov. 15. (CP) Belief that the hunchback will be a person of the past within one or two generations was expressed here last night by Dr. F. N. Routley, secretary of the Ontario Division of the Canadian Red Cross Society, speaking at a dinner opening a local campaign in behalf of that organization. He suggested that as a result of the treatment now available for tuberculosis, disease of the spine, the underlying cause of the deformity and the number of agencies devoted to the care and treatment of children who may be suffering from that crippling disease, the hunchback will have virtually disappeared in civilized countries within a comparatively short space of time.

SIX ARE INJURED IN AUTO CRASHES

Regular Pea Soup Mist Over Ottawa District Makes Driving Bad.

LAD EXPECTED TO DIE.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 15. — In a heavy fog which enshrouded this district last night six persons suffered injuries in a trio of automobile mishaps. It was a regular "pea soup" mist, which forced motorists to proceed at a snails pace and resulted in late train arrivals.

An eight-year-old boy, Homer Villeneuve, was the only one of those injured on the danger list today. Internal hurts suffered when the motor car of William Stuart passed over his body after knocking him down, were expected to end the boy's life.

Percy Kerwin and John Behan suffered abdominal injuries that required hospital treatment. Their cars collided head-on at a street intersection.

Mathias Leblanc of Cyrville, sustained scalp wounds when an auto ran into a roadside ditch. Injuries to the other two occupants were less serious.

Unemployment Fund Is Given Big Boost

LONDON, Nov. 15.—(A.P.)— The increase in unemployment is responsible for an additional £10,500,000 for the unemployment fund and £750,000 for extra salaries and wages in a supplementary estimate of nearly £11,000,000 issued to-day.

A memorandum published with the estimtae said that the administration of unemployment insurance involved additional work. Owing to the depression in industry there is more unemployment than when the budget estimate said that the administration

The estimate also calls for money to assist the present crisis in the sugar industry in the West Indies which is responsible for advances of £5,000 to Antigua, £112,000 to British Guiana and £7,000 to St. Kitts.

LABORITE GOV'T FOR PRINCIPLE OF PROTECTION

Belief in Preferences Need Not Necessarily Be For Tariffs Says Thomas.

UNCERTAINTY CLEARED UP.

MacDonald Upholds Gov't Attitude Taken at Imperial Conference.

(By George Hambleton C. P. Staff Writer)

LONDON, Nov. 15.—The British Labor Government has declared its belief in Empire preferences—though the preferences need not necessarily be tariff preferences. Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Secretary of State for the Dominions, was unequivocal on this point when interviewed by a brigade of newspaper correspondents who sought his impressions of the Imperial Conference.

Choses Words Carefully

In carefully chosen words, Mr. Thomas said, "For the first time the British Labor Party, through the Government, has placed on record and declares that, in its opinion, preferences with the Empire have been of mutual advantage to all parts of the Empire. That is the clear and definite declaration of the British Government.

"The Government realizes the force of the Dominions view that uncertainty and doubt will harm trade and relations unless the present preference situation is stabilized. In order to remove that doubt and uncertainty we have given without reciprocal bargaining of any kind, nor asking return in any shape or form, a free and unfettered pledge that existing preference margins shall continue for a period of three years unless altered by mutual agreement at a further conference.

"That is to say, that whatever benefits the existing margins confer, those benefits, so far as this Labor Government is concerned, will continue for three years. Some of the Dominions have already responded that they intend to furnish a similar guarantee.

BEDFORD, Eng., Nov. 15—Premier Ramsay MacDonald told an audience here last night that it would be impossible for any British Government to promise the Prime Ministers of the Dominions to tax the English people's food and raw materials for their factories.

His remarks were in reply to criticisms that his Government failed to get economic benefits out of the recents Imperial Conference.

"I see it is said this evening that we failed to get Dominion markets because we believe in dogmas," said the Premier. "I don't care about dogmas, I'm for facing the facts. We say it is absolutely impossible for any Government of this country—Labor, Conservative or Liberal—honestly to tell the Prime Ministers of the Dominions that the people of this country, faced with a fiscal policy that diminishes their foreign trade, will agree to impose taxation upon the food of the people or the raw materials of our factories."

Mr. MacDonald then disclosed that the Government intends to restore the unemployment insurance "dole" to an insurable basis. He said the Labor Government did not take the dole off that basis.

"It's one of our inheritances," he charged.

Hunters in Ontario Forfeit 200 Guns

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 15 (C.P.)—Since October 1, more than 200 rifles and shotguns have been seized by the Ontario Department of Guns and Fisheries for breaches of the game laws. This makes one of the largest in point of seizures and confiscations in the history of the Department.

While these confiscations show that wardens and overseers of the Department "are on the job," said Donald McDonald, Deputy Minister, "it also indicates a rather unfortunate situation."

"For," he said, "if our officers can seize firearms in this wholesale fashion, how many other offenders must be getting away with their law-breaking in this big province?"

GOV'T EXTENDS RELIEF GRANTS

Campbellford Gets $10,000 Extra Out of Total $66,436 Additional Expenditures.

FENELON FALLS $10,000.

OTTAWA, Ont., November 15 (C.P.) — Additional expenditures on unemployment relief works in the Province of Ontario, as approved by the Dominion Government, were announced by Hon. G. D. Robertson, Minister of Labor. The figures announced cover the total outlay on public works, cost of which is being shared jointly by the Dominion, Provincial and Municipal authorities. The total expenditures authorized is $63,436.

Works authorized cover a wide range of construction and improvement jobs, mostly on roads and sewers. There is provision made, however, in some places for such things as trimming trees, clearing river beds, building water mains and waterworks, cutting brush and breaking stones.

The List.

The new work authorized is distributed as follows: Carleton Place, $25,000; St. Mary's, $7,693; Cochrane, $10,000; Winchester, $5,000; North York, $30,000; Neebean Township, $25,000; Killaloe Station, $1,000; Haileybury, $14,200; Orillia, $45,000; Frankford, $2,000; McIrvine Township, $6,000; Latchford, $1,000; Stamford Township, $25,000; Newmarket, $16,000; Ingersoll, $10,000; Aylmer, $10,000; Port Credit, $1,200; Waterloo, $30,000; Gravenhurst, $1,000; Swansea, $5,000; Cobalt, $4,000; Alexandria, $10,000; Pembroke, $65,000; Kingsville, $1,000; Essex, $10,000; Leamington, $10,000; Westminster Township, $2,500; Logton, $13,000; Westminster Township, $2,500; London Township, $2,500; Bowmanville, $15,365; Bala, $5,000; Campbellford, $16,000; Fenelon Falls, $10,000; Barrie, $10,000; Stoney Creek, $15,000; Bracebridge, $11,600; Owen Sound, $40,000; Somerville Township, $4,000; Teck Township, $4,000; Englehart, $4,000; Hanover, $15,000; Simcoe, $15,000; Bradford, $3,500; Etobicoke Township, $28,422.90; Crowland Township, $10,000; Little Current, $3,000; Blind River, $12,000; Haliburton, $30,000; Midland (further appropriation) $5,000; Tecumseh (further appropriation), $5,000.

—o—

Claims Assertion That Rates Are "Political" Without Foundation.

PRIVILEGES ABUSED.

Material Selected From Yearly Reports Not Infrequently Mis-used.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 15. (CP)—Charges of Samuel Insull, power magnate of Chicago, during a recent address here that Ontario's hydro electric rates have a "political basis" are "absolutely without foundation in fact" says a statement issued here by C. A. McGrath, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission.

After suggesting that Mr. Insull abused the privileges of hospitality, Mr. McGrath declares in his statement that at the time Mr. Insull was addressing the Empire Club here, he was answering a letter, refusing to discuss a pamphlet recently issued by the Pudget Power and Light Company of the State of aWshington. It contains numerous photographic copies of rural accounts issued to its consumers by the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission, continues the statement. The accounts were apparently obtained by someone sent into the Province by the Puget Sound Power and Light Company, and were selected and used by that company in its own way for comparative purposes, says Mr. McGrath.

Statement in Part

The statement continues, in part: "I am fully aware of the dispute that has been going on for many years in the neighboring Republic over private and public ownership, and I have consistently refused to be drawn into its controversies.

"The Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario is required by law to present each year to the Government a complete statement of its activities. This statement goes out in the form of published annual reports of which 22 have been issued. From these reports, I know, that material is extracted and not infrequently misused by various organizations in the United States. The Hydro Commission is not in any way responsible for that. It minds its own business.

"There are certain well-recognized standards which should govern the conduct of the individual as well as of the business corporation. Those willing to depart therefrom must be prepared to take the odium attached to a transgression of such standards.

Charge Without Foundation

"Mr. Insull comes into this Province and charges that the rates of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario and political rates. It must be evident to anyone conversant with the scientific and economic basis of Ontario's electrical rate structure, that such a charge is absolutely without foundation in fact.

"It is true that Mr. Insull has investments in Canada, but it nevertheless remains for the citizens of this country to determine its public policies. He saw fit to draw distinctions between the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec in matters of electrical service. I have no reason to doubt that the private power corporations elsewhere in Canada are satisfied with their system. The Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario believes that its policies are well suited to advance the interests of the citizens of Ontario. Then why should an outsider take occasion to meddle with these Canadian affairs?"

DEPUTY REEVES RESIGN IN YORK

Township Council Dismisses D. K. C. Strathearn, Designing Engineer.

TWO MAY RUN AGAIN.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 15. (CP)—The resignation of two deputy reeves and the dismissal of the Township designing engineer are latest developments to the report of Judge J. H. Denton on the investigation being conducted into York Township's affairs.

Deputy Reeves John J. Little and Isaac C. Woolner tendered their resignations to the Township Council and they were accepted.

Both men delivered lengthy addresses prior to tendering their resignations. Each defended his position and took issue with that part of the report which included them in the six members of the council characterized as being of "dull moral perception" or "consciously dishonest." Both intimated they might be candidates at the next election.

In compliance with a recommendation by Judge Denton the council passed a resolution dispensing with the services of L. K. Strathearn, designing engineer for the Township.

Police Force in Toils, Burglars Run Rampant

WARKWORTH, Nov. 15.—With the police force under arrest, burglars ran rampant through the village for one night.

They visited the garage of Dr. Armstrong and carried off about $100 worth of tools. From a public garage they stole oil and gas and left polite note of thanks.

The police force, consisting of Bob Kelly, was charged by Provincial Officer Cary with assaulting John Alexander Dobbs, who accused him of choking him in the street. Magistrate Floyd dismissed the charge.

BRITAIN ASSUMES DOMINION STATUS

Thomas Claims Mother Country Not Even First Among Equals.

EMPHASIZES POINT.

(By George Hambleton, C. P. Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Nov. 15.—Britain is no longer the predominant partner of the Empire nations. She is not even the first among equals. She is merely a Dominion, like the rest of the Dominions.

This is the opinion, at least, of Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Secretary of State for the Dominions.

"We are a Dominion now," said Mr. Thomas. "I would like to emphasize that point."

The Secretary declared the Imperial Conference, in his view, would mark a tremendous step forward in the progress of co-equal partnership within the Empire.

DO-X IS FORCED TO LAND AT SEA

Taxies 100 Miles to Anchorage in Darkness—4 Motors Missing.

CONTINUES TO BORDEAUX.

BORDEAUX, France, Nov. 15. — The giant German seaplane alighted at Guariac in the Gironde estuary, 30 miles northwest of Bordeaux this afternoon.

The big seaplane which made a forced landing along the French coast last night, resumed its interrupted flight to Bordeaux at 11.55 a.m. The weather was misty and the plane flew low throughout the trip this morning.

Forced Down by Darkness

LA ROCHELLE, France, Nov. 15 (A.P.)—C. H. Schildhauer, pilot of the DO-X, coming ashore here today to arrange for re-fueling before proceeding to Bordeaux, said that the plane had been forced to alight short of its goal yesterday and taxi to La-Rochelle because of the fast-approaching darkness. He denied that anything was wrong with the plane's motors.

"Darkness was coming on and we were late," he said. "We alighted off the Vendee coast at 5.25 and then taxied over a hundred miles to reach this spot, where we anchored at 10.20 p.m. No, nothing was wrong with the motors."

"Success?" Schildhauer said, "Don't you think this is success? Too dark to be prudent to remain in the air—we just come down and taxi to shelter. Where would any other plane be, I ask you?"

Despite the optimistic remarks of Pilot Schildhauer, it was learned from passengers that "four motors were coughing" at the time the plane was forced to descend near here and taxi into port.

Expert airmen at Merignac Field averred that it would be foolhardy to attempt the projected hops with the motors as fidgety as they have proven to be since the plane left Amsterdam.

GHOST WARRIOR SEEN AT OPERA

Famous Composer, Darewski Drops Baton and Performance Halts.

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 15. (CP)—Herman Darewski, who wears a crown in the kingdom of jazz, was perturbed to-day because what he thought was the ghost of Siegbried, Richard Wagner's hero-child, appeared as he played last night for a ball at Covent Garden.

Unnerved and shaken, the composer, who has heard the English speaking world stumble over his "K-K-Katy" and dream his "Whispering," wondered what retribution Valhalla, Wagner's warrior heaven, would demand for modern music's cacophonic, sincopated sins against the stately rhythms of another day.

Drummer Drops Sticks

As Darewski's baton marked the measures of a modern waltz in the Covent Garden arena last night, the composer-conductor noticed that the drummer had dropped his sticks and was staring wide-eyed across the hall. Darewski turned, and saw, he said, emerging from the wall a nebulous ghostly figure which he at first thought to be an illuion created by a rotating ball of shimmering mirrors in the center of the ceiling.

The illusion shaped itself. Darewski avers, into an armed, helmeted figure, which glided majestically over the heads of the dancers and then faded mysteriously into nothing. To Darewski the figure seemed to be an apparition of Siegfried, hero grandson of Wotan, who, in Wagner's opera awakens fair Bruenhilde from a fire-encircled bed.

'Even now I can scarcely speak calmly of what I saw. I am still shaken and unnerved. It was lucky the dancers were looking at me when the music stopped and not at the back of the hall. I fear that if they had seen what I saw there would have been a panic."

COOL MOTORMAN AVERTS TRAGEDY

Saves Passengers By Sticking to Post When Car is Switched on Siding and Crashes.

IS BADLY INJURED.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Nov. 15.—The coolness and remarkable courage of William Wilson yesterday prevented possible death or serious injury to fifteen persons to-day. Wilson is in the hospital with a badly mangled leg and possible internal injuries but with a fair chance of recovery.

Wilson, a motorman was at the controls of the fast radial from Niagara Falls to St. Catharines when his electric car took the track to a siding in the latter city instead of keeping on the main line and crashed into a work car.

Despite the unexpectedness, Wilson rose to the situation and applied all brakes, reducing the momentum of his car to minimize the inevitable collision. The cars came together with sufficient force to smash the vestibule occupied by the motorman, crushing him against the inside partition.

There were 15 passengers in the car at the time of the accident, but with the exception of slight cuts and bruises, they all escaped injury.

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

THE hour is late! No one seems to be abroad and on foot. All I can hear, as I sit at the manse window and look out for a moment into the darkness, is the sound of a passing car.

Where it has come from, or where it can be going, are both hidden from me. It might be a doctor's car hurrying him to play his all-important part in that most momentous event, the introduction of another life to this world of ours. Or it might be taking some minister to give comfort in that dread hour when a human being is compelled to say that last farewell to all that has seemed so precious during the pilgrimage from the cradle to the grave.

All is quiet again! The old clock in my study is saying its "Tick-tock, tick-tock, tick-tock." It keeps on saying it whether anyone is here or not to listen to its story.

At first thought it might seem to be telling the same tale all day long—but it isn't! For, with the passing of every hour, something big, something brave and beautiful is coming upon the stage of this world's affairs: or something small, mean and ugly, is shamefacedly, with stooping shoulders and slouching steps, sneaking past to get out of the light into the darkness for which it was born!

A Wonderful Hour.

It is one of those magic hours when imagination finds it easy to reconstruct the past and gives us the privilege of living through experiences which were first met by mankind many centuries ago.

Before me is an old book speaking to me again out of the heart of one of its opening chapters. I am strangely stirred by the story which it is telling me to-night. Never anything in "The Arabian Nights" was half as thrilling as this.

The scene of the story is laid in a land far removed from this. The dress and the speech are somewhat strange, and not like anything I can see or hear in these northern parts. Yet there are principles underlying the story which are still in operation wherever men are to be found.

It is the story of Abraham and Lot in an hour of crisis. Such an hour it was as might come to any man or any woman to-day. Although the superficial observer might have thought that Abraham was an old simpleton, paving the way for failure—while Lot was a far-seeing young man, with all the makings of a successful executive—it was for the older man a time of triumph, and for the younger a time of tragedy!

Man's Attempts at Success.

There has never been a time in the history of man when he has been able to make a success of his life apart from God. He has often made the attempt! His first attempt at running his life without God's help took place in Eden, and it ended in the greatest tragedy of all time!

All the suffering and sorrow to which man is heir owes its existence to that hour in Eden when the creature tried to exile the Creator from the city of Man-Soul.

And he has tried it in every generation since!

For a time it may have seemed as if one man had arisen who was going to prove that he was an exception to this rule—but, sooner or later, his seeming success tumbled about him like a house of cards.

To make a Godless success of life is really to experience the worst failure of all.

The life that is without God is without hope. And if men but realized what it means to be "without hope" they could not go on as so many of them are doing.

Easily Fooled.

Lot, you are a strange character, and your conduct has little or nothing to commend it to those who believe in a square deal. You lack something—the lack of which leaves any life weak and open to defeat! You lack faith. And the man who lacks faith is easily fooled!

By every just law operating among men it is well within Abraham's right to make the choice and give command. And, if you had faith you would have been quick to recognize this and refuse to take advantage of Abraham's generosity. But, instead, you jump at the chance and smile to yourself. Take care, young man! You may have to pay a rather stiff price for this smart deal you have put over.

God does not collect all his accounts in November! But they will be collected, with interest charges included!

Many centuries later, Jesus had occasion to draw attention to a certain rich man, whose life, looked at superficially, had seemed to be a success, with these solemn words, "Thou fool! This night thy soul shall be required of thee."

Appearances Are Deceiving.

What a man seems to be and what he really is may be two entirely different things. Lot, as well as Abraham, had gone out "not knowing whither he went." It is just possible that he was even more enthusiastic. Had it gone to a popular vote he might have headed the poll. But when the test came—and it always comes—he was unequal to the strain of it!

Such a moment is liable to come to all of us at any time! When it comes for you, my reader, what is it going to reveal? Will it prove that your religion has been nothing more than just a case of responding to the influence of others? Or have you heard the call of God within your own soul?

Remember, the time always comes when the real man stands revealed, and it is too bad if he is covered with confusion and shame.

Only one thing will assure victory in the hour of trial, and that is a faith inspired by the character of God and informed by the Word of God—a faith that links you vitally with the risen Son of God.

Courting Disaster.

Lot, I can see where you made your mistake. You left God out of your reckoning when you had a choice to make. You acted as though it were none of God's business, as though you were quite capable of handling the matter yourself. Had you thought before you acted how different your action might have been; and what tears and shame you might have saved yourself at a later day!

We always court disaster when we leave God out of our reckoning at such times as a choice has to be made.

Never should we lean less upon our own understanding, and more upon the Word and the will of God, than at such times as a choice has to be made which affects others as well as ourselves.

Looking at it across the centuries, in this hour of quietness when all the city seems to have retired for the night, with this old book open before me, I can see where Lot made his mistake. But I must be careful to remember that it is not Lot's exclusively. We all have certain rights in it—rights which have got us in wrong more than once.

Weights and Measures.

The material, with this young man, outweighed the spiritual—the temporal counted for more than the eternal. If life had ended at the grave, and been simply a matter of herding sheep and getting the best pasture land for them, the principle on which he acted might have been a good one! But there is more in life than can be seen with the eye or felt with the hand. There are the claims of God and the needs of the soul—and all this was overlooked by Lot! There is not the slightest hint that he ever submitted the matter to God. He just went ahead as though God did not exist; or, if He did exist, He was not interested in such matters.

How stupid it all was. And when we say that we really condemn ourselves. Time and again we have acted just as Lot acted.

Yet, we consider his type shrewd! We elect them to office in our churches and fraternal societies. And when we get them we congratulate ourselves on having made a real catch! What poor fools we are, and what shadows we pursue!

Draw The Curtain.

Oh, Lot! If you could have drawn aside the curtain and seen what your choice was going to lead to for yourself and for others, I wonder if you still could have acted as you did?' Had you considered beforehand the questionable alliances for your daughters, and the terrible fate awaiting your wife, I don't see how you could have done as you did when Abraham permitted you to show what stuff you were made of.

You lived long enough to discover that you ignore God at your peril.

As I sit here alone, conscious of the "Tick-tock, tick-tock, tick-tock" of my study clock, and look once more at what my imagination has been able to reconstruct, I feel less inclined to blame you as I think how much like you I have acted again and again.

Oh to believe that man was not made for himself alone, but all were made for each and each for all!

Life's Bias.

Ere I close this Book and retire to my couch to seek sleep there is one more thought which has come home to my heart with startling power. I am more impressed than ever with the supreme importance of giving my most careful attention to Life's Bias.

I can hear another young man, centuries later, saying, "The good that I would that I do not, and the evil that I abhor that I find myself doing—O wretched man that I am who shall deliver me from this bias?"

Lot, your choice at that fateful hour when Abraham gave you the opportunity to prove yourself a real man, all gold and no dross, was not the result of an unexpected tidal wave of temptation! Oh, no! It was due, rather, to the bias of your whole life—a bias you did nothing to correct.

And yet, how can I blame you in the light of my own life? If I must make an honest confession I am compelled to say:

"Prone to wander, Lord I feel it."

The most important thing in my life is not any achievement that may be laid to my credit but the direction of my life. There may be things and places which are not evil in themselves—such as a card table—and yet the tragedy of them for some of us may be in the fact that they reveal the bias of our life.

In the silence of this sacred moment, and in the presence of this old story of the past, let me understand that the most important thing for me is to make sure that I am right with God.

It sounds nice to say that all life is but a dream, mystic, wonderful and we know not when we sleep nor when we wake—but I need something with more dynamic to it by which to rule my life.

I can understand what a man means when he says—Of suffering and sorrow were all life's beauty. And I know that the hope of immortality sprang from breaking hearts and was confirmed by Divine revelation. The kiss of Pyramus and Thisbe is an ecstacy of pain. Every great lifework is an agony. Behind every song there lurks a sigh. Even nations rise through a mist of tears. The Virgin Mother is known as Our Lady of Pain. The Cult of Christ is called the Religion of Sorrow. The first breath and the last gasp are drawn in suffering, and between the cradle and the grave there lies a monster-haunted Gehenna.

My relation to all this, whether for gain or for loss, will always be determined by my relation to the will of God.

One Last Word.

Writing from memory, and not pretending to quote verbatim, it seems to me that a certain celebrated Edinburgh professor once said something like this: I would rather have a man with one unhealthy idea in his head which he proposes to reduce to practice or break a tug in the attempt than a thousand namby-pambys who are sure of nothing and can only swing round in the current like dead eels in an eddy.

It were better to launch boldly out on the sea of experimentalism and trust to the winds and waves to bear us to the Isle of Bimini than to putter around in unprofitable goose-ponds, playing minnows for sperm whales and bullfrogs for Alboraks, while Sansculottism grows even more savage.

• • •

As I finally close my Book and turn off the light I might be permitted to say as a parting word—Ritual and dogma, church and creed, belief and unbelief, query and theory, Christian and pagan—all fade and pale into insignificance before the unwritten histoy of one life savingly touched by the Spirit of God.

Reader, is your life such a life? If not, why not?

Yours in sunshine and in shadow,

The Hour Of Prayer

SPIRIT of God who dost reveal the order of the Eternal where we had found only chaos or merciless fate, cause us to know that all things work together for good to them that love God, teach us to trust Him who makes the cloud, and from His heaven sends the cloud, and round His angel raps the cloud. We would remember that though the singer is blind, she sings; that though the musician's ears are stopped, the sonatas are none the less sweet; that the artist's work loses none of its spirituality because his face is black; that the glory of the Revelation came to a heart-sore, lonely exile. Open our eyes that we, like them, may find a presence in the storm, a benediction in our curse, a messenger of God in the cloud that darkens our sky to-day. All this we ask in the name of Jesus Christ, our Saviour. Amen.

DO YOU?

IF you want to be peaceful and happy, look up, and by faith see Jesus, who, having put away sin by His Cross, now appears in the presence of God for us, and in His own time will come again to receive us unto Himself.

HALTING but happy! The mark of his weakness was the token of his strength. The sign of defeat was the symbol of victory. Tuition comes high in the school of experience, but the diplomas are invaluable. No night but has its struggle, no struggle but brings its pain, no pain but holds some light, some truth that only the suffering soul can learn. 'Tis the fire refines the gold, the blast and the blows bring forth a thing of beauty from the rock, the keen-edged tools transform the rudest log into a graven altar worthy a place within the Church of God, only the bruising turns the grape to wine, only the crushing fits the wheat for bread.

Gems From Spurgeon

THERE is one place where change cannot put its finger; there is one name on which mutability can never be written; there is one heart which can never alter—that place is the Most Holy—that heart is God's—that name is Love.

THE boundless stores of Providence are engaged for the support of the believer. Christ is our Joseph, who has granaries full of wheat; but He does not treat us as Joseph did the Egyptians, for He opens the door of His store-house, and bids us call all the good thereof our own. He has entailed upon His estate of Providence a perpetual charge of a daily portion for us; and He has promised that one day we shall clearly perceive that the estate itself has been well-farmed on our behalf, and has been always ours. The axle of the wheels of the chariot of Providence is Infinite Love, and Gracious Wisdom is the perpetual charioteer.

FAITHFULNESS

IF we truly serve our Master, we shall be rewarded according to our fidelity, not according to our activity or success. It is not the weight of the load you draw, nor the distance you pull it, but keeping the traces tight all the time. "I cannot light a world, and make seasons, and lift tons of water into the skies," said the dim lantern to the sun one morning, "but last night I kept burning, and helped a dozen express trains full of sleeping people to run swiftly and safely on their way."

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1930

THIS IS GOOD NEWS.

The announcement from the Utilities Commission that Peterborough's gas rates are to be further cut on January 1, this time by 10 per cent., will occasion general satisfaction, not only to the users of gas, but to those who supported and urged others to support the purchase of the gas plant by the city.

The commission has found that the slash made some time ago has been followed by such an increase in consumption that there has been no loss of revenue, and as a result it is possible to further lower the cost of gas both to commercial and industrial users and to domestic consumers as well.

If this cut is followed by another increase in consumption it is predicted that later next year the commission will be in a position to still further decrease the price—in other words, the more gas used by Peterborough citizens the cheaper will be the rate charged by the commission.

The situation in regard to gas is showing a most encouraging improvement, and the new decrease will mean that the local prices will still more closely approximate those in other centres, a condition that at one time seemed impossible of attainment.

MR. PRICE'S MOVE NEXT.

Mining brokers who have been sentenced to penitentiary for conspiracy feel that discrimination has been exercised in that, while eight have received prison terms, two other brokers convicted in the same court on the same charge have escaped with a fine imposed by the same judge.

Public opinion undoubtedly takes the same view.

It is difficult for the man on the street to follow the reasoning by which a fine in two cases was apparently regarded as adequate punishment for an offence which in eight other cases was considered serious enough to merit a term in the penitentiary.

That all ten cases were dealt with by the same judge adds to the general bewilderment.

It is not too late, fortunately, for at least an attempt to remedy the discrimination that is causing so much comment.

The next move is up to the Attorney-General of Ontario, and if he has the proper conception of his duties and is in the least sensitive to public opinion, Mr. Price will lose no time in filing an appeal in the cases of Solloway and Mills, who retain their liberty while others guilty of the same offence have been sentenced to the penitentiary.

The situation should not be allowed to remain as it is; and the only person who can do anything to correct it is the Attorney-General.

WELCOME, THE 2ND BATTALION.

Peterborough feels honored to-day to welcome the former members of the 2nd Battalion, Canadian Expeditionary Force, who to-night will revive old war comradeships and remember old war experiences as they gather together in the first reunion the battalion has held in a number of years.

If there had not been a single Peterborough soldier on the strength of the 2nd Battalion this community would be gratified at an opportunity of doing honor to a fighting Canadian unit of which General Sir Arthur Currie, commanding officer of the Canadian corps, has said: "In all the years of the war the 2nd Battalion never lost an inch of ground or failed to take an objective."

The record of the battalion would entitle it to the warmest welcome from any Canadian city the members selected for their reunion.

But Peterborough has an unique interest in the Iron Seconds.

It was the unit which absorbed this city's first quota of infantry recruits, and as the war dragged on and other contingents crossed the Atlantic, many other Peterborough soldiers found themselves members of the battalion in which their fellow-citizens had received their baptism of fire.

The 2nd Battalion and this community were thus linked together throughout the long years of conflict, and this association increases the pleasure experienced by the citizens of Peterborough generally to-day in being able to welcome many of the officers and men who as members of the Eastern Ontario battalion made a glorious contribution to the reputation won by the Canadian corps as the finest shock troops on the Western Front.

THE CONFERENCE CLOSES.

The Imperial Conference has in effect given the Empire trade negotiations the "six months' hoist."

The conference ended yesterday with the decision to meet again at Ottawa within the next twelve months where the representatives of the different parts of the Empire will resume their task of trying to arrive at a policy that will increase trade within the Empire.

Unless there is a general election and a change of government in Great Britain in the interval, it is difficult to see how the London failure to get anywhere can be retrieved at Ottawa.

With the Dominions firmly united in favor of a policy of preferential tariffs and with the present British Government even more determined to adhere to free trade, there is little to lend support to the opinion that another conference will bring the desired goal closer.

Premier Bennett supplied the only ray of hope for even a measure of success at next year's gathering when he announced that Canada was ready to consider the wheat quota plan as an alternative to tariff preferences.

"Need I assure you that we will meet our fellow delegates in the spirit of true co-operation governed by considered conviction that the interests of all parts of the commonwealth will be surely advanced through subscription to a plan of closer Empire economic co-operation? I will not do more than say that the experience of succeeding years confirms me in the view from which I have never departed that the traditional policy of the party which I have the honor to lead is the best for Canada," said Canada's Prime Minister. "I have explained this policy to the conference in a definite way, and there is therefore no need for me to re-state my position, except to amplify it by saying that in view of the report of the committee on economic co-operation which we have had under consideration and in view of my own personal enquiries into the agricultural situation in this country, I consider it proper to say that we from the Dominion of Canada are prepared to consider the desirability of accepting the quota system as a solution of the problem of marketing our Empire wheat in the United Kingdom, having regard especially to importations from foreign countries."

EXPERT'S OPINION.

We have it on the word of Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce of the United States, that two years of steady progress may be needed to bring business back to the heights reached in 1929. Further, he declares, for those who look upon the 1929 mark as abnormal, conditions are not so bad and have not been at any time since October, 1929, when the pretty stock market bubble burst and the spattering moisture of its blast shrunk theoretical profits into nothingness. He directs attention to the fact that the prevailing depression is not to be compared with that of 1921 or 1907. Speaking for his own country, Dr. Klein cites that internal revenue receipts are practically the same as in the corresponding period of 1929, that there has been an increase in European travel, that the number of stockholders in large corporations has increased and that profits of 257 leading corporations were 5 per cent. better in the first three months of 1930 than for the corresponding period of 1928. The Buffalo Evening News, commenting on the Klein report, reasons thuswise: "The cycle theory of ups and downs in business has this much reasonable basis at least, that in good times people buy ahead of their needs and when reaction comes they are in a position to postpone for a time purchases not immediately required. The exhaustion of supplies accumulated in the flush period of 1929 must have proceeded far since the break of nearly a year ago. Cars, clothes, furniture, plant conditions, which in 1929 could be made to last another year, have fulfilled the economy strain now. More replacement is steadily increasing volume is becoming necessary and the effect must be gradual improvement in trade." All of which sounds entirely reasonable. It may be that all that is needed to dispel the gloom clouds is to go part of the way to meet prosperity, instead of hanging around with mournful mien, waiting for it to put in an appearance.—Hamilton Spectator.

IT CAN BE DONE.

There have been many gatherings in recent days where men in various lines of business met to discuss conditions. Always there is that question of returning prosperity. It seems as if there is a desire to snare the business volume of other years and seek to cause it to come and dwell with us once more.

It has been interesting to note some of the addresses made. For the most part they seem to be reasonable, and indicate a willingness to give a careful survey of all facts. Now and then one breaks away to trot off into the field of bigger and better business. One of these speakers, in a survey predicted that "we shall soon be doing business on the old post-war scale, of that I am assured."

We hope not. Business men who lived through that post-war boom know that they would not care to repeat the performance. During war years we parted with our sense of commercial values, and when the war was over we delayed just as long as possible the punishment that was bound to come in adjusting values to post-war years. There was what we consider an unwise extension of credit to help trade from having to come down to the level of peace-time prices. That operation had to be performed, and no good purpose was served through delaying the inevitable.

More desirable than the reaching after unusual business conditions is the development of a spirit which is abroad in Canada now—the creation of as much employment as possible.

* * * *

Business is a definite thing; it comes from certain conditions having been complied with. Employment is the basis of business. Employment comes from purchasing.

Employment in Canadian factories will come from Canadians purchasing the output of these factories.

If Canadian dollars are turned into the channel of clearing out the available stock of Canadian goods, then there will be more orders placed with Canadian plants.

We do not know of a method which is more direct than the buying of Canadian-made goods.

We actually have it right in our own hands to create more work in Canada by buying things which Canadians make.

There are about 4,500 homes in Stratford. If each home spent even $5 per week for Canadian-made goods, there would be an output of $1,170,000 per year to keep Canadians working.

It is difficult to understand why there is not an immediate response to the suggestion now being so widely offered that there should be a preference for merchandise made in Canada.

We are exhibiting a commendable willingness to organize for the giving of relief to families who may be in need of it, and that is splendid work.

But back of it all let us not lose sight of the fact that employment is the basis of returning prosperity.

We can aid in giving Canadians employment when we make our purchases in the stores if we simply take the trouble to express a preference for something that has been made in Canada.

At the risk of becoming monotonous let us say it again: We have in our own hands the power to create more employment in Canada by buying Canadian-made goods.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The heartiest of welcomes to the famous 2nd Battalion, C.E.F.

Between the mining brokers and municipal officials, Toronto courts show signs of being overworked.

At least Premier Bennett has succeeded in persuading the rest of the British Empire to see Canada first.

A coroner's jury has decided that stunt flying was responsible for the death of three young people at Toronto recently. Aviation has not yet got to the stage when chances can be taken with impunity.

The Montreal Standard says a whole lot in one sentence when it points out, "The housewife has the future prosperity of Canada right in her shopping bag."

"This is going to be a long, drawn-out affair," said the confectioner as he started on his taffy recipe.—Guelph Mercury.

News of Our Own Village

Work on the new highway, east of the village, began this week, but Perce Lancaster of Havelock, also to the east, don't expect cars'll be running through to Ottawa this fall.

Alex. Mowat and a bunch of village school teachers was up to Windsor, west of here, last week end, looking at the new Rotary School, but with so many Kiwanians on the school board it ain't likely 1 of that type will be installed here, some point out.

Officers of the village militia et at the drill shed Tues. p.m. when a good time was had by all.

Tory women of the village held a get-together at Tom Hooper's confectionery Wed. p.m., and decided to send delegates to Toronto, west of here, to help welcome Dick Bennett and Howie Ferguson home from their sojourn in London, to the east of us.

Jack Stewart, our Main St. talking picture impressario, is nearly round shouldered this week carrying bags of money to the bank, owing to Amos 'n' Andy being shown on the sheet.

Things is brightening up on Main St. these days, a new sign on Turner's tent mill knocking the eyes out of commercial travellers and other visitors coming from the depot.

According to reports from hunters to the north of us, 1 of our village hotel men broke the quarter mile record recently, owing to a deer which popped over a ridge the same time he did.

They has been a fuss in Hamilton, west of here, about some firearms owned by the Home Guards disappearing. And that naturally causes some of the folks to wonder what become of the muskets the village Home guarders used to shoulder back in '15?

Lights was burning early in many village homes Wed. a.m. showing King George to be a better alarm clock, so to speak, than even Jack Vernon's mill turns out.

So far village municipal politics aint begun to boil as yet, but when any hats get flung in the ring, the customers will hear from us as usual.

Ed. Beatty's railroad has took off 2 trains what used to run through this progressive village. Lucky, however, Ed. didn't interfere with the afternoon express so folks'll still have somewhere to go Sunday p.m.

A Thought

MAKING THE WORD BETTER.

Life is the winding trail that leads from the cradle to the grave, and when I reach its distant end and start on the long traverse from which no fellow traveller has ever returned I hope to leave behind a world made better by my having lived.

I want to leave in exchange for my every wrong a right; for every frown a smile, and for each and every doubt a ray of sunshine and hope.

To leave a flower wherever I chanced to place a thorn, and in exchange for every heartache and sorrow I may have caused I want to leave a wealth of joy and happiness.—Anon.

Girl Dies Of Wounds Inflicted By Mother

STRATFORD, Ont., Nov. 15 (C.P.)—Patricia Mills, six-year-old child who was admitted to the General Hospital Thursday suffering from severe knife wounds inflicted by her mother, Mrs. M. S. Mills who immediately after took her own life, died in the hospital at 10 o'clock Friday morning. From the first the physicians had held out little hope for her recovery, and thus finis is written on one of the saddest tragedies that has visited this community in years.

THE SILVER HAWK

By

WILLIAM BYRON MOWERY

Then something went wrong with the tiny electric heater which kept the films in the camera at proper temperature; and busy with adjusting it, Dorn could not watch the sky for a winged enemy. It was Aurore who saw "the Hun in the sun," and drew Dorn's attention to a glistening monoplane swimming down upon them from the east.

Dorn snapped off the camera, seized his long-range glasses, brought the machine up to him. At a glance he recognized it as the fighting plane. And then, several miles farther south, into his field of vision swam a second craft—the big heavy biplane.

With that pursuit machine roaring down upon him like a bolt of annihilation, Dorn's first thought was: "Here's the battle! God—Aurore's mixed up in it!" He knew they had come to do for him that day; it was quite a necessary part of their plan—to crash him against some mountain side so that when the 'breeds located Aurore's lake he would not come out of the clouds to interpose for her. They had left him unmolested all these days in order to take him utterly unawares when they did strike; and had he been alone that morning, busy with camera, he would have gone down in flaming wreck.

For several tumultous seconds Dorn studied the monoplane. With a swift glance he had spotted a mountain lake beneath, and had decided: "I'll set down on it and fight them off with the machine gun till dark, and then Aurore and I may be able to get away." But he recognized the make of that monoplane, he had flown a dozen like it, and his reassurance flooded back as he studied it. It was a Fokker two-place with Wasp motor. It was swift, all right, but he believed his Silver Hawk was swifter. He felt that in a chase he could dance away from it; that if need be he could dump part of his gas and even throw out the camera, and wash that monoplane out of sight in a two-hundred mile race.

Just as he swung the Silver Hawk north and was ready to line out for the Yukon, the enemy plane checked its headlong rush, swerved sharply, and began circling Dorn dropped the controls and thumbed his glasses, wondering what caused this sudden manœuvre. He observed the enemy gunner training binoculars at him, and then he understood. "They saw Aurore! It stopped them dead-short when they saw she's with me!"

Circling like a wary hawk he watched. The biplane stood on up till it joined its smaller consort. It likewise carried two men—it's pilot, and Carter-Snowdon in the mechanic's seat. It had no machine gun; it was not a fighting plane. Dorn thought: "Carter-Snowdon hasn't any stomach for an air battle. He came along to watch while these other men did the dangerous work. He wanted particular to see me killed!"

He turned the glasses back to the Fokker. Over the compartment edge of the observer's seat the heavy barrels of a Vickers twin water-cooled stuck up. That enemy pilot, Dorn noted, certainly knew his stick. Though the air over the cluster of peaks was full of holes as a Swiss cheese, he handled his craft like a flying wizard.

Aurore touched Dorn on the shoulder; turning, he saw how puzzled she was by his strange actions and by these planes coming upon them: "Jim, that plane . . . doesn't look exactly . . Mr. Eby's

Dorn fairly seized upon her hesitant suggestion. He throttled down for an instant and geared in the supercharger to muffle the engine roar so that he could shout to her: "Yes, Kansas's plane . . . looks different in the air. Other machine is cartographer's too . . friends . . . don't mind about them seeing you. . . ."

Aurore believed him so utterly that it hurt Dorn; but he had involved himself in lies to her from the very beginning and he had to keep on deceiving her. Her smile came back again now; and all innocent of the truth, she dipped her kerchief in the slip-stream, waving to those planes.

For a moment Dorn was thunderstruck by this act. Then he laughed aloud. That wave of Aurore's tiny kerchief was a taunt flung into Carter-Snowdon's face—a barb that rankled and enraged. To be within a few hundred yards of Aurore after this long hunt for her, to see her there in full sight across that void of air, to see her in Dorn's plane, must have exploded all the festering, jealous fury which had caused him to come along that morning in hopes of watching Dorn go down to death.

He half-rose from the seat, dropped glasses, sank back for a stunned moment, then gestured a furious order at the pursuit machine.

Dorn thought: "I'd better escape—if I can. Aurore might any minute ask for these glasses. If I refused, she'd get suspicious. If I gave them to her, she'd recognize Carter-Snowdon, and she'd know then I've been lying to her all along. If I can wash that plane out of sight, I'll just tell her, when we're safe somewhere, that I turned my cartographing work over to these 'friends' of mine."

But he did not at once make his break to escape. In the biplane Carter-Snowdon shouting orders into the pilot's ear and the pilot, letting his plane fly itself was semaphoring them to the machine gunner in the Fokker. Dorn wanted to find out what was passing between the two enemy craft.

Carter-Snowdon first ordered the Fokker to roar down upon the Silver Hawk and at machine-gun point force it to a landing. The Fokker sent back a curt, emphatic, "No."

It surprised Dorn—that flat refusal; he could not understand it, and watching closely he saw that Carter-Snowdon was surprised, too. After a few moments Carter-Snowdon ordered the Fokker to cripple the Silver Hawk and compel its occupants to take to their pack-chutes.

The terse answer came back: "Girl in that plane."

Then Dorn understood: the Fokker pilot and gunner evidently had no scruples against knocking a man out of the air, but they balked flat-footed at attacking a plane which carried a girl passenger.

He did not catch Carter-Snowdon's next communication, but he guessed it was some offer of money, for the Fokker came back with a hot answer:

"Money hell! We won't do it."

Then the Fokker gunner and pilot had a conference; and the gunner semaphored "We're going to dog him till he runs out of gas and has to set down somewhere."

When he saw that signal, Dorn waited no longer. Wheeling into the northeast, he pushed the throttle wide-open and lined away for the Yukon, with the Fokker on his tail.

Within twenty miles the heavy biplane dwindled, vanished astern. Anxiously Dorn kept glancing back at the pursuit machine; and his heart leaped when he saw that it too could not match the speed of his Silver Hawk. For seventy miles it hung on doggedly, but it was hopelessly outclassed by Dorn's powerful plane; it dwindled to a pinpoint, and finally vanished altogether, and the Silver Hawk triumphantly flew alone—a shining speck in the blue-vaulted immensity.

CHAPTER XXIII
THIRTY PIECES OF SILVER

Back at the Lake of the Dawn at daybreak that morning, Joe Yoroslaf, from his camp in a canyon valley south of the mesa, had heard the Silver Hawk climb into the sky.

He had not known he was so near his goal; but quickly he realized what it meant for a plane to go up from a wilderness lake before good day. The girl was living there at that lake! The cartographer, Dorn, had visited her there by night when his coming and his goingcould not be seen!

Yoroslaf flung off his blankets and sat up hastily, listening to the thrumming, diminishing motor-song, and a smile overspread his swart and hairy face.

Now with success in his hands, he grinned to think of Charlo and Narcisse laboriously following the trail south, where he had shunted them; and of how neatly and completely he had double-crossed them and euchred them out of any share in the reward.

He wolfed a breakfast of greasy bannock and half-raw trout, and started climbing up toward the bighorn pasture, meaning to wait there till one of Carter-Snowdon's planes came near enough to see his power-flash signals. Or perhaps he would be in no hurry about those signals, but would go on down to the lake and paddle a log across to the island where this white girl was alone. . . . Perhaps if he slicked himself up in a pool and put on that bright-coloured ceinture fleche from his pack and made himself unwithstandably agreeable. . . . Probably, yes certainement, a girl that way either from fear or shame, would say, nothing at all, afterward to that big white-skinned and paunchy man with the reward money. . . .

Old Luke Illewahwacet saw him coming. Luke had climbed to the mesa and thrown together a brush lodge at the edge of it and taken up his vigil there before dawn. Watching from his ambush thicke beside the trail, he made sure Yoroslaf came alone; and like a couchant old panther he watched the 'breed clambering up the steep, tortuous path which for countless generations had been polished by the moccasins of Luke's primitive ancestors.

Old Luke was remembering the man who tied babische on a heavy rock for him at the Dead Waters camp. Old Luke was alone now, with no hyas young fool to check his trigger-finger. Old Luke waited with stoical patience, counting Yoroslaf's steps for him, measuring distance, waiting. His rifle steadied and for a second did not quiver; and when it spoke, it spoke once.

At Eaux Mortes that noon, Carter-Snowdon went ashore in an ugly temper. He had thought that this week would see Aurore safely shut away from the world at his hunting lodge in the Quesnal mountains; but every last hope of that seemed to have gone to smash, and her brazen taunt this morning had been insult, outrage. . . .

He blared at the gunner and pilot, who were taking off their helmets and goggles: 'Why in hell didn't you two get that plane? When you first swooped down on it, before he got wise, you could've . . . but you stopped! You had 'em there, right in your hand, both of 'em; and b'God you funked out! You're canned— Get!"

Soft-Shoe said nothing till his chief had thumped into the tent. Then he asked, rather indifferently, what had happened that morning. He heard that after the encounter with Dorn, the planes had come back east where the 'breeds had been set off. Two of these, Charlo and Narcisse, with no one to prod them, had not lifted a foot from camp. The pursuit plane then followed up north where Yoroslaf had gone, but Yoroslaf failed to answer their prearranged signals, and the devil knew where he was.

The shadow of a smile, crafty and wolfish, crep into soft-shoe's expression when he heard that the 'breeds had miserably failed to find Aurore. After a moment he said to the pilot and gunner: "You two hang around. Go up to the station if you want to—till he cools off. I'll need you to-night. Probably it'll be after midnight."

Soft-Shoe kept his counsel; turning away, he stepped into the tent where Carter-Snowdon sat on a cot, viciously chewing at a cigar.

"These came for you this morning," Soft-Shoe said, taking two letters and a telegram from his pocket. He had steamed them, read them, sealed them again; and so knew what their effect would be. Deliberately he waited till Carter-Snowdon had read the letters and the four-page telegram and was pacing the tent in a frenzy. Then, without a shadow of expression on his cold face, he demanded abruptly:

"How much is it worth to you to have her by to-morrow this time?"

Carter-Snowdon whirled on him. "How much is it worth? That's a hell of a question——" He stopped, for he saw that the detective had at last discovered something swift and certain, and was haggling for a price. He swallowed hard, and snapped: "You're working for me. Salary! If you know anything, spit it out."

The detective said coldly: "What I know will cost you thirty thousand dollars. You'll give me a check for it. You won't stop payment on the check afterward; I know too much, see?" He disregarded Carter-Snowdon's clenched fist, he paid no attention to the infamy flung at him. Picking the letters and telegrams from the ground, he presented them like an ultimatum to Carter-Snowdon, and added: "Let's cut out the lip; you know what you're up ag'inst; you've got to get her, and a week from now's too late. I'm offering you your only chance. Them 'breeds are loafing at camp; that fellow Dorn can fight you off your feet. If you don't come across, I take the night train to Edmonton. If you write that check, to-morrow morning by this time . . ."

When he walked out of the tent Soft-shoe had the check in his billfold. It was payable only on condition that he found Aurore McNain within the time he himself had specified, but that did not worry him, for he had made sure he could carry out his end of the bargain before venturing to double-cross his employer. He was sorry that he had not raised the ante ten or fifteen thousand on Carter-Snowdon. But on the whole he was pretty well pleased. He had gone in the tent poor and come out with a small fortune, and it was sweet additional satisfaction to know that Dorn, who had thrashed him twice and spiked one scheme after another and beaten him roundly at his own game, would be ironed out flat within a matter of hours and that Aurore McNain would be delivered to the man who had just paid thirty thousand dollars for her.

What To-day Means To You

"RPIO"

If November 15th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. and from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. The irritating period is during the morning, especially so between 10 a.m. and noon.

Portents for this date are favorable, both as regards finances and health. A meeting with an almost forgotten relative or friend will bring about good results, and evening conditions will be inspirational so far as affairs of the heart are concerned.

Children born on this November 15th will, as they mature, be very matter-of-fact, and not in the least imaginative or enthusiastic. They will be good citizens, cautious and conservative and possess ability, but they will never inspire that affection radiated by one less circumspect and more spontaneous.

If you could only realize that you cannot build a reputation on what you are going to do, but only on what you actually accomplish, life for you would be more productive and more solid. You are a great dreamer, and a poor executant. It is not that you are lazy. On the contrary, you work hard, but the fact remains that your very active brain devises and plans, and there it ends. You lack driving force and the spirit of adventure. Yet, the signs denote that one of your dreams will be made to come true, and that you will participate in its material advantages. This will not happen, however, until you have wasted many years of what could be a very useful life.

Your early life promises to be a continual struggle to keep your head above water. You will be too interested in solving the problems of others to pay much attention to your own. Necessity will, at last, assert itself, and you will them "make good" for yourself and not for others.

Although you usually possess a rather abstracted air, you are a good companion, more a listener than a talker. You have a dry humor, which is diverting, but never harmful. You are capable of a steady, constant affection, but are not very much swayed by spasms of emotions. You, as husband or wife, will wear well and your marriage will never bring in its train [illegible] thoughts of "what might have been."

"Scorpio"—November 16th.

If November 16th is your birthday, the signs reveal no danger periods, except a short one between 12:30 p.m. and 1:30 p.m. Favorable influences are in force throughout the whole day.

Much contentment and unalloyed happiness is promised for this date. It will be, in the most complete sense of the term, a "Day of Rest." Its exercises and recreations will fit you to cope with the problems and difficulties that every week has in store for one and all.

Children born on this November 16th will be subject to moods and changes. They will lack self-confidence. They will crave excitement, society and a "continuous performance" of amusement. They will be impetuous, capricious and always vivacious as well as lovable and winsome.

You, as a result of your congeniality, sincerity and wholesomeness, have a large circle of friends, who are always running to you for solace, sympathy and advice. You are big-hearted and very tolerant. Your daily life is an example to others. You do not, however, parade it, or adopt a "holier-than-thou" attitude. Your tastes are simple, entirely lacking in ostentation, and you possess a clean mind—neither swayed by jealousy nor envy.

You will never cut a big swathe in the world, but, in your immediate circle, you will be respected, and your stainless life must have an effect on others and bear fruit. You are not a dunderhead. Nature has endowed you with much ability, and this has been well developed by careful reading and study. Success has, so far, attended your efforts and will continue to do so, as you, in addition to the virtues already enumerated, possess the gift of business ability. You do not allow yourself to be imposed upon, neither do you try to get the better of others. You run straight, both in private and business life.

If a woman, you will be one of God's gifts to the man with whom you choose to mate. In you, he will find a never-ceasing source of pleasure, a companion that cannot be equalled, a pal that could not be replaced. You are cheerful, tactful, tolerant and sympathetic and will radiate sunshine in the home. Those born on this date should marry young, and preferably should mate with those born in February or August. Such a union promises so much felicity, that an early marriage is recommended in order that as much as is possible in a lifetime should be got out of it.

LAKEFIELD

The Grove school was en fete on Saturday evening for the annual Thanksgiving re-union dance, the floor and the music by the orchestra being perfect.

Dr. and Mrs. Mackenzie are famous hosts and a party at "The Grove" is always a delightful event. "Old Boys" were present in large numbers and were delighted to be back at the "Old school on the hill."

Poppy Day.

Poppy Day was celebrated in Lakefield on Saturday and the returns were highly gratifying to the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Legion, who sponsored the tag day.

Most people did not need a poppy to remember the gallant lives laid down for the King, for Home and for Country, but the outward symbol of rememberance is fitting and those who pass may see that in the busy stir of life there is remembrance.

Base Metals and Oil Groups Consistently Higher on Standard Exchange.

NICKEL SLUGGISH.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 15 (C.P.)—Strong upward movements were still the rule on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange in the short session to-day with turnover showing improvement. Base Metal and oil groups were consistently higher while gold, though somewhat mixed, provided featuring issues.

Noranda was a leader, moving to a high for the movement of $20 and closing just below that figure for a gain of nearly a point. Nickel was rather sluggish. Waite-Ackerman advanced another 30, Hudson Bay a point to over $6. Base Metals a quarter. White Lake was active and sold above 30, Amulet and Abana moved up a couple and Sudbury Basin and Ventures, representing a firm Lindsley group, were up 10 and 3 respectively.

Lake Shore, which has been rather unresponsive, gained three-quarters to-day in only a few sales, and Mining Corp. and Hollinger were up 15 each. Howey firmed a couple to 17 and Kirkland Lake Gold another 3. Teck Hughes lost 15 of yesterday's late rise. Dome was down 5 and Big Missouri reacted a point on profit-taking.

Chemical Research and Home Oil both added 20 to recent recoveries. Nordon moved up 6 to 64. Other oils were holding well around last night's closing levels.

CANADIAN EXCHANGES SHOWING IMPROVED TECHNICAL POSITION

Take on Brighter Hue in Following Wall Street Rally—Rise is Restricted.

LITTLE MARGIN BUYING.

(Special to The Examiner. Copyright 1930.)

TORONTO, Nov. 15 (SNS).—Canadian stock exchanges took on a brighter hue this week when Wall Street rallied on the news of an increase in the price of copper metal. The advice on the local boards was restricted, however, and the market displayed the same tendency in not fully discounting the rise in New York as it did when that list was declining to successive new lows for 1930, and beyond, in the weeks immediately preceding. Base metals producers were in the forefront of the advance here but the movement in the general list was restricted as there was little in the news developments of the period to change the attitude of the Canadian public toward the security market.

Technical position of the exchanges of the Dominion has been vastly improved since the beginning of September and so far this improved position has not been impaired by a sharp advance that would invite profit taking and further liquidation. Stocks have been passing from weak to strong hands and the list given a chance to solidly establish itself at present levels.

The largest proportion of daily transactions is for cash and purchasers are taking up securities and registering them in their own names. Executives of Canadian corporations are noting increases in the number of their shareholders which can only mean the outright purchase of securities rather than on margin. This condition has been brought about by the drastic reduction in market values; the fact that numerous securities can be purchased at no larger outlay of capita than required to carry them on margin about fifteen months ago; difficulty in financing margin commitments of stocks selling below $10 and the narrowing down of price fluctuations that does not permit of quick trading profit. This last factor has resulted in the public taking a long view as against a near view of the future and therefore stocks are taken for a long pull and the liberal in one return to be had to-day.

These developments, naturally, have improved the position of the Canadian exchanges and accomplished something that the period of rapidly advancing prices failed to do. For years Canadian corporations, realizing the advantage of having shareholders in large numbers as providing a wider market and boosters for their products, were active in sub-dividing their outstanding securities so as to bring the price within the reach of all and open the market to the man of moderate means who could not afford to invest in the higher priced issues. Among such companies were the oldest and soundest in the Dominion with remarkable records of progress and, as is always the case in a reactionary market, it is this type of security that is in greatest demand to-day.

Conservative brokers in the past had to warn clients on many occasions of the dangers of carrying stocks on margin without sufficient capital in reserve to fully protect accounts. It is necessary at all times, when one is speculating on margin, to have reserves that will guarantee against forced or distress liquidating of holdings and the one best safeguard against this is to purchase for cash, buying in smaller quantities and diversifying holdings. One of the weak points of the bull campaign was in the fact speculators were purchasing on margin to the full extent of their resources and when the crash came had no alternative but to sell.

With security values to-day well below the peak of 1929 and the markets swinging within narrow limits, the temptation to buy large quantities on margin is not so great and traders are more inclined to hold stocks for an indefinite period, buy them outright and save carrying charges.

Another obstacle in the purchase of stocks selling below $10 is the difficulty of financing them on margin. In New York a security must have a valuation of at least $10 to be considered as collateral and, while this is not a rigid rule here, some Toronto brokers are asking their clients to take up for cash holdings of securities currently selling below this figure.

CANADIAN BONDS CONSISTENTLY STRONGER THAN ON WALL STREET

November Continues to Show Strength—New Issues Expected.

PAST WEEK UNCHANGED.

(By J. H. Turnpenny. Special to The Examiner. Copyright 1930.)

TORONTO, Nov. 15 (SNS).—While bond prices were practically unchanged this week, sentiment switched around the last couple of days. Enquiries were more numerous and bids tightened up, narrowing the spread between bid and ask prices. There was an improvement in tone all along the line. Foreigns also benefited although the level or prices remained just about the same as last week.

New financing this week was noticeable for its scarcity and contrasts with a month ago. New flotations in October were the heaviest for any one month in years and while these have been well absorbed it is only natural there should be a slight slowing in demand. The moment is not yet regarded advantageous for new corporation issues and municipalities have been holding back until the market again shows a broadening tendency. December and January interest and dividend payments will be large in amount and this money will be available for reinvestment.

The Canadian bond market has been consistently ahead of New York, even during slack trading. New York is more sensitive to the stock market and reaction in the latter causes liquidation of bonds to protect margined accounts. Outlook in Canada is for a further strengthening of high-grades; some new issues are expected to be brought out next week.

SMALL GAINS ARE RECORDED

McColl-Frontenac Maintains Advance Despite Some Profit-taking.

STEELS REMAIN FIRM.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 15 (C.P.).—The rank and file of stocks on Toronto Stock Exchange hung motionless this morning, with the strength which has characterized the market, the latter part of this week still apparent in the manner in which selling was taken up and small gains recorded in certain sections.

Coppers, in which interest centres at the moment, did not push the advance further, but nevertheless met with good support and consolidated Friday night's position. Nickel hung just around the previous close of 19¾. Noranda was up most of the morning and sold as high as 20.

The oils made gains of from ¼ to 1 point, the latter in the case of Supertest. McColl-Frontenac maintained its gain of the past two days despite some early profit-taking.

Steels were firm but quiet. Most of the foods were unchanged. Gypsum and Ford of Canada both came out lower, then rose to levels where they had left off last night. Walkers did better, and for a time sold at $7,

FIRST RALLY IN SEVERAL MONTHS ON MINE EXCHANGE

Issues React Swiftly From New Low Levels of Past Week.

COPPER IS FIRMER.

(By Ralph M. Radford. Special to The Examiner. Copyright, 1930.)

TORONTO, Nov. 15 (SNS).—Supported by the first really constructive development in months, the mining list in the last few days rebounded swiftly from new low levels for the year established on Tuesday. The movement, which reached its peak at the end of the week, reflected an about-face in copper prices following agreement to curtail production among the larger world producers.

Improved demand first appeared in interlisted coppers which saw brisk turnover on other boards. It soon extended into the general list, however, the base metal group, as whole, moving into higher territory than it has enjoyed for some time. Improvement in sentiment was accompanied by increased turnover.

After six months of almost unbroken decline, price of copper firmed on Wednesday from its low for the past quarter century of 9.5 cents to 10 cents a pound. The fact soon became apparent consumers' stocks were at an exceptionally low point and producers refused to fill orders. Fabricators had to bid higher until late Friday sales of red metal were made at 12 cents, 2½ up from the low. Other metals moved higher in sympathy in London, the important market from Canadian point of view.

That any inflation which may have existed in mining securities has been thoroughly squeezed out in past year or so of declining values was clearly shown by the response. Lower-priced stocks, many of them selling below actual capital expenditure for plant and development, joined in the upward action, adding 50 per cent. to former values in several instances. Whether these or higher levels can be maintained is dependent on action of copper, but even 12-cent metal will take many of them out of red-ink figures and permit profitable production.

Golds, acting sluggishly at first, participated in the recovery. Small producers and advanced prospects displayed the most pronounced rally. The steady decline of the past week or so in dividend-payers was halted and some ground regained. Declaration of Wright-Hargreaves' dividend had a beneficial influence on feeling towards the gold section and the group is believed to be in good shape to respond to renewed participation in security markets when it comes.

NEW YORK ADVANCE CONTINUES FOR FIFTH SUCCESSIVE DAY

Market Closes With 1 to Four Point Gains Spread Over Wide List.

TRADING FAIR.

NEW YORK, November 15 (C.P.)—The stock market came through to the end of the week to-day maintaining the advance from the three year lows of Monday for the fifth successive day, making one of the most prolonged upward movements of the year.

The day's advances were largely moderate, but the market managed to close with wide-spread gains of 1 to 4 points, when a week-end decline under profit taking on the gains of the past four days was expected in many quarters.

At the end of the day, the market closed higher for seven consecutive days, but the advances were small, and lacked uniformity. One must go back to the third week of March to find a prolonged advance comparable to this week, and the gains then were smaller.

WEAKNESS AT LIVERPOOL HAS BEARISH EFFECT ON TRADING

Figures Plunge ¾ Cent to 2¾ Cents Below Friday's Quotations.

LACK OF SUPPORT.

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 15 (C.P.)—No steadying influence appeared on the Winnipeg wheat market to-day and values tumbled to the lowest marks recorded on the exchange. A few minutes after the starting bell rang out, wheat figures plunged ¾ cent to 2¾ cents under yesterday's quotations.

Falling prices at Liverpool, weakness at Buenos Aires, and a lack of support locally had a bearish effect on the market. Small export shipments was another weakening factor. The May future led the skidding values into lower territory with a drop of a cent to 2¾ cents at 67 to 65¼ cents.. July slumped 1⅞ to 2½ cents at 67⅛ to 66⅛. November went down 1 cent to 2 cents and December ¾ to 1⅞. November was quoted at 63 to 62, and December 62 to 61.

FIFTH ELEVATOR IN DEWART CHAIN

District Grain Men Secure Peterborough Business of J. H. Ferguson.

BUY ALL GRAINS.

By acquiring the grain and seed business carried on by the late J. H. Ferguson, who died a few weeks ago, Dewart Brothers have added an old and strong Peterborough unit to their chain of elevators in this district. It has been located on Sherbrooke street since it was transferred a few years ago from its original site at the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer Streets. The old building was erected by the father of John J. McBain and was finally disposed of to the late George Mather. Upon his death the business devolved to J. H. Ferguson, and in its present change it again broadens out to its earlier comprehensiveness.

"We would like the farmers to know that we have put in new equipment and have improved facilities for handling grain," John Dewart told The Examiner today. "We are now handling here all kinds of grain and seed, but we specialize in peas of both field and garden varieties. We are retaining Mr. B. F. McNeeley who has been connected with the elevator for years."

Dewart Bros. have other elevators at Indian River, Cavan, Kendry and Campbellcroft. Their Peterboro elevator is the fifth in their extending string and will become the central office and headquarters of their business.

FOWL PLENTIFUL ON LOCAL MARKET

Usual Amount of Variety Offerings Placed Before Buyers This Morning.

There was a large market this morning, with plenty of supplies left over in the basket section, at a late hour. Fowl was very plentiful. Chickens were priced from 26 to cents a pound, hens at 23 cents, turkeys at 35 cents and ducks at 28 cents. Cream was 30 cents a pint, butter 32 to 38 cents a pound and eggs 50 to 60 cents a dozen.

The usual run of variety offerings was on the market this morning, running the gamut through novelties of all sorts, home-made cooking and preserved, woollen socks, home-made, artificial flowers, books and washing machines, as well as the usual supply of tea and coffee by the genial Mr. Sargent, near the door.

Apples were plentiful also. In bushel baskets in the downstair entry, they made a fine showing, arranged carefully, with shiny red faces turned to the world. Spies, Wagner and Peewaukee were $1.35 a bushel, or $4 a barrel.

There was much fresh fish on the open market this morning. Three dealers had supplies of fresh whitefish at 15 cents a pound and fresh water herrings at 8 cents a pound.

Lamb sold at 17 and 19 and 17 and 22 cents a pound, and pork was priced at 17 and 19 and 18 and 20 cents, for front and hind sections.

Potatoes were $1 and $1.10 a bag. Yellow pears were 55 cents for a large basket, sulphur beans were 25 ets were quoted at 75 cents apiece. cents a bag and White Leghorn pull-Other vegetables were at the usual price ranges.

LOUIS BLAKE DUFF ADDRESSES KIWANIANS ON CHARTER NIGHT

Ninety-six People Attend Annual Celebration of Local Service Club.

F. M. DELA FOSSE HONORED.

"I want your eggs and I want them bad." That's what a commission merchant wrote as a heading in an advertisement for eggs which he inserted in the Peterborough Examiner about ten years ago. At least, Louis Blake Duff of Welland told Kiwanians that such was the case, at their Charter and Ladies' Night last evening at the Empress Hotel, when he spoke on "Humours of the Press." Mr. Duff, who is president of the Niagara Finance Corporation, and was accompanied by Mrs. Duff, was for many years associated with the Welland press, and is therefore quite qualified to speak on such a subject. His address was replete with a wise and dry style of humour that made it exceptionally entertaining. Peels of laughter echoes through the rotunda of the hotel from the dining-room as he told his listeners some of the funny things, in conscious and unconscious humour, that have come to his attention in the press during many years' experience.

Ninety-six people were present at the celebration of Charter Night and the program was marked by interest, from tart to finish. A group of about twenty five came from Lindsay Kiwanis Club, including their ladies and a number of musicians headed by the genial Art Allin, who is a sure-fire favorite at such gatherings and whose smile and appearance is enough to start the ball of fun rolling on any occasion. Mr. Allin acted as song leader in his own inimitabl way and the balance of the musical program, also provided by the Lindsay group, included songs by Miss Hannah Parkinson, director of music in the Lindsay schools, who possesses a strong, pure dramatic voice that was heard with splendid effect in "Love's a Merchant"; and its encore, del Riego's "Homing" vocal solos in resonant, rousing tones by P. H. Skitch of Lindsay, who sang the ringing stanzas of "Captain Mac" and its encore, "Young Tom o'Devon," with accompaniments played by Mrs. Skitch, and a number of popular song bits by members of the Telford family of Lindsay, the youthful Clarence, Bertram and Betty, with their father, G. C. Telford, at the piano. Martin Chenhall, A.R.C.O., played for the solos by Miss Parkinson and the community singing. Encores were sincere and hearty for every number.

Past President Isaac McNabb, who is also Governor-elect of Kiwanis District for Canada East, presided admirably last night, over an excellent dinner served at tables decorated with vases of bright rose 'mums, and over the program which followed and which was featured by Mr. Duff's sparkling address.

In his remarks, Governor McNabb referred to the fact of Charter Night being also regarded as Past Presidents' Night, and spoke of the various past presidents of the club, commencing with Frank Whitehouse, and progressing through the careers of Presidents J. A. McKone, J. R. Marshall, Charles Cook, Dr. J. J. Craig, Isaac McNabb and J. H. Turner.

An appropriate and touching brief reference was made to the late Joseph John, past president of the club and a beloved and zealous member, whose memory remains green in the hearts of his fellow-Kiwanians. The guests rose for half a minute to stand silently in his honor.

A welcome to the visiting Kiwanians from Lindsay and from the city, was voiced by President Carl Browne, who also welcomed back to the club Art Blade, who does so much for the club in their various activities. The reply of the Lindsay delegation was voiced by the president, Ford Moynes, who congratulated Governor-elect McNabb on the recent honor bestowed upon him.

Local Author Honored.

A tribute to mental prowess by one of the citizens of Peterborough, F. M. DelaFosse, who, under the pen name of Roger Vardon, has recently published his book, "English Bloods", was paid by the conferring upon Mr. DelaFosse, a guest, with Mrs. DelaDosse, of the evening, of an honorary membership in the Kiwanis Club, in recognition of his contribution to letters. Mr. DelaFosse made a suitable acknowledgement. Past President J. R. Marshall introduced Mr. DelaFosse to the guests.

An honor of a different sort was bestowed upon the genial Charles Cook, when Art Allin rose solemnly to declare that the Lindsay group of Kiwanians, after much deliberation, had decided to bestow a special beauty prize brought by them to be awarded to the handsomest member of the local club on the celebration of their Charter Night. Other candidates for the honor, who were rejected in favor of Mr. Cook, were Isaac McNabb, Jack Dewart, Tom Marks, Jack McKone and Harry Huffman. None of them measured up to Mr. Cook's rating, "for marked beauty and general proficiency", in a test made along the lines of physique, general appearance, disposition and mentality. The prize, presented to the lucky one by Wesley Mason, secretary of the Lindsay Kiwanis Club, was a mirror and lipstick.

The speaker of the evening, who, on a previous occasion, owing to trouble with his car, was unable to keep a similar engagement with the club, was introduced by Kiwanian J. I. Allen. His address "Humours of the Press' was one of the best in the club's annals.

Alluding to the honor bestowed upon Mr. DelaFosse, Mr. Duff remarked that the prowess of its writing men would make a city or town noted, rather than the magnitude of its industries and its manufacturers. "One of the finest things that Lindsay ever produced", he asserted," was Watson Kirkconnell."

Just as a prelude to his address, Mr. Duff meandered humorously along a sideline that led o many joking stopping points. He quoted Samuel Butler, who said that "the man who gets married again doesn't deserve to have lost his first wife", and Marie Corelli, who declared that her substitute for a husband was a dog that growled around the house all day, a parrot that swore all afternoon and a cat that went out at nights. Then there was the cockney who spoke of the married state as a matter of "givin' 'arf yer grub to gettin' 'arf of it cooked", and the advertisement of the theatrical attraction, "The Silent Woman".— 100% talkie".

Unconscious Humour.

The unconscious type of humour in the press was treated of first. "And this is due to a great extent to the little imps that live in type."

There was the item about the society lady who had a "punk" tea; the announcement of the lecture on William Butler Yeats, or the "Great Garlic Revival", and the refreshments that were "saved" by the hostess; the church services that were advertised to be "hell" as usual; the paper whose heading announced that the "bottle-scarred veteran had returned home", and then, in the correction later, referred to him as the "battle-scared veteran"; the birth notice that got mixed up with an ad for a range, and announced the arrival of a son and heir, "with hot water attachments"; and the obituary notice of a rival editor published by the paper that had fought him for forty years and whose article also got mixed up with the account of a fire, and so read "when the casket was lowered into the grave, lurid flames shot up from all sides."

Then there was the humour in ad vertisements; the ad which read that the ladies of a certain church had cast off clothing of all kinds and might be seen in the basement of the church any afternoon from two to four; the ingenuous ad which announced "I am now in a position to hatch your eggs", and the English paper which said, that on account of the rain, "the Marquis of Camden will not shoot himself nor any of his servants until the 24th of September."

In going on to speak of the conscious humour of the press, Mr. Duff deplored the decadence of the modern newspaper in this way, as compared with the press of half a century back.

"There is very little of the humour and the brilliancy of long ago. How many editorials do you read nowadays that remain in your memory as examples of sparkling humour or interest?"

He went on to quote the Buffalo paper of that period that said the Canadians were a very ignorant people and did not know enough to come in out of the rain, Britannia to which a Canadian contemporary replied that such might be the case, but the Canadians knew enough to keep out of the hail, Columbia.

A "John Collins."

Then there was the Globe editor of many years back who fancied himself to be a weather prophet and insisted on predicting a dry summer which later turned out to be anything but. This editor wrote under a pen-name which, strangely enough, happened to be the same as that of an Indian who was brought into Police Court.

One of the facetious papers of the day published an announcement that the Indian wished it known that he wasn't the same man who had erroneously prophesied a dry summer.

And there was the telling little story about Sir John A. Macdonald and the biography of him written in 1884 by a Montreal resident named John Collins. This man paid Sir John the compliment of regarding him as perfect and the book was referred to in the House of Commons by Sir Richard Cartwright, who spoke of its fulsome flattery and said it was quite fitting that such a eulogy should be made of Sir John, who, in his day, had done credit to many a "John Collins." The shaft in this remark was supposed to be in repayment for the time previous when, on Cartwright's remarking in debate that the wheels of industry were not running well, Sir John had murmured that "there must be some grit in the wheels."

The thanks of the assembly to the speaker and also to the Lindsay group for their attendance and entertaining program, was voiced very fittingly by Charles Cook and repeated by Chairman McNabb.

The boosters of the evening were J. R. Marshall, who provided a large quantity of waxed paper for the ladies to take home; Walter Oke, who had each guest presented with a Canadian apple; Dr. F. C. Neal, whose prizes were to the card-players, and J. W. Meyers, whos. prizes went to three of the ladies: Mrs. F. H. Dawson, Mrs. W. Carlisle of Lindsay and Mrs. Charles Saunders.

Dr. Neal, in a brief speech, reminded the two clubs that their co-operation would be needed to procure for this district a proposed new sanitarium.

J. A. McKone reported on the splendid progress being made at May's School by three crippled children who are taken there daily in taxi-cabs by the club and also spoke of the menu of the evening, with one or two exceptions, as being entirely of Canadain produce.

E. V. Morphet referred to the activities of the club at the Children's Camp at Jackson Park, and read a list of expenditures there during the summer, totalling $1,353.31. He also spoke of the forthcoming Chapel Savoy Choir event at the Collegiate Institute on November 28th.

Art Allin of Lindsay reminded the members of that club's theatrical offering on next Monday and Tuesday nights, when a play entitled "The Cameo Girl" will be presented there by them under direction of the Malabar Company of Toronto.

Sergeants at Arms for the evening were F. H. Dawson and W. Carlisle of Lindsay. W. H. Freel and Mark Breslin also assisted in distributing name slips.

At the conclusion of dinner and the program of speeches, an hour of dancing and bridge was enjoyed. Jack Marshall and his Orchestradians provided excellent music.

Prizes for bridge were won by Mrs. Al. Sharpe and H. Huffman.

FOWL SUPPER AT LAKEFIELD HUGE SUCCESS

Concert Held Under Auspices of Regent Street Church Ladies' Aid.

MUSICAL PROGRAM.

Numbers By Mrs. McClelland and Mr. Hiscock Please Audience.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 15 (Examiner Correspondence)—The fowl supper and concert held on Thanksgiving evening under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of Regent Street United Church was the big event of the holiday in Lakefield.

In spite of the huge crowd, there was plenty to eat; in fact there was enough for a social on Tuesday evening. The table arrangements were excellent and every precaution taken to avoid crowding and to insure the best of service.

During the interval between supper and the concert the orchestra of Regent Street Sunday School gave an excellent program of music. Rev. S. A. Kemp acted as chairman for the concert, expressing his deep appreciation of the patronage which was so generous, the proceeds amounting to $335. Rev. Mr. Kemp said it was pleasant to see old friends returning year by year for the anniversary and that it was really a reunion of old friends, mentioning especially Conductor and Mrs. Hoover and Mr. and Mrs. Girven who never fail to attend this event.

The program opened with the familiar hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name" followed by prayer by Rev. J. B. McCormack. The remainder of the program was given by Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland of Peterborough and Bert Hiscock, of Bowmanville. Mrs. McClelland was in splendid form and was compelled to respond to several encores. She excelled in juvenile impersonations, "Friday afternoon" a request number and "The Small Boy at a Dime Museum" being especially popular, as was "Thanksgiving at Grandma's." The rendition of "Peace Night in London" was one of the high lights of her program and struck a particularly responsive chord in the hearts of the audience. Another fine number was "The Cattle Thief" a dramatic poem by Pauline Johnson. A comedy note was struck in the cockney woman, "Mrs. 'Arris at the Telephone."

Mr. Hiscock, who made a favorable impression on a former visit to Regent Street Church, fully maintained it; in fact added greatly to it on this occasion. His first two selections had a strong sea flavor, "The Bell Buoy" and "The Life Boat Crew." "The Trumpeter Song" and "The Old Reveille" were fine also, but perhaps in his first and last number Mr. Hiscock achieved his greatest triumph. "The Vagabond Song" was very fine and his rendition of "A Perfect Day" was remarkably fine, his expression and his fine baritone reaching their highest mark and it came as a fitting close to a day perfect indeed, in every way. Mrs. H. E. Moore was the accompanist for the evening.

Hunting Party

Graham C. Bromley, of Campbellford, is hunting with Arthur and W. Tude, of Lakefield and a party from Bridgenorth, in the Pakesley district. Mr. Bromley, who visited Lakefield before going, said in a joke that he would shoot the first deer and he made good, for the first deer fell to his gun. The party reports good luck and on Sunday last, had already secured six deer.

Couldn't Work On Account of Pains

"I used to have such pains in my back," writes Mrs. M. Thompson, Warden Junction, Stettler, Alta. "I could hardly do any work. The worst was when I did my washing and had to bend over the tub. I had no ambition for anything. I tried three boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and I found them wonderful. I am doing all my own work now."

To be assured of good health the kidneys must be kept in good working order all the time. Dodd's Kidney Pills strengthen weak kidneys. 190

MISSION CIRCLE HOLDS MEETING

Millbrook Members Gather at Home of Mrs. John Spence.

W.M.A. MEETING.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 15. (Examiner Correspondence).—Mrs. Cecil Hubbeard, convenor of Group 11, of the Golden Links Mission Circle, entertained the organization for its November meeting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Spence, Main street, on Wednesday evening, when an interesting program was presented, the gathering proving rich in inspiration and interest.

Mrs. Spence assisted her daughter in receiving the guests, and the president, Miss Jean L. Burnham, had charge of the meeting. The secretary, Miss Charlotte Luxon, called the roll and gave some information relative to the payment of fees, the treasurer, Miss Marian O'Brien, reporting on the amount in the sum required to reach the allocation of one hundred dollars.

A discussion of ways and means to raise money included a call for all mite-boxes to be brought in at the December meeting; the distribution of envelopes for the fall thank-offering a number of which were placed on the offering plate at Wednesday's gathering; the decision to ask permission of the trustee board of the church allowing the Circle to hold a special service, preferably on a Sunday early in December, receiving the offering, exclusive of the regular envelopes, on that occasion.

The corresponding secretary, Miss Dorothy McLowell, was instructed to write at once to the W.M.S. office in Toronto asking information as to Miss E. C. Hawken's address, in order to secure her for an illustrated address on her work at Wahstao, Alberta, in the near future. Miss Hawken is now on furlough.

The suggestion of the president that the Circle have a hot supper, followed by a social evening, at her home one week from Saturday, November 22, at 6 p.m with a small charge to add to the funds, adopted, and arrangements will be promptly made. Circle members will be privileged to bring a friend with them to the supper, and the event promises to be one of pleasure and interest.

A piano duet by Bryar Edmunds and Mary Burnham was much enjoyed, and the chapter in the study book "From Jerusalem to Jerusalem" was taken up by Miss Mary Wood, the material being presented in a most capable manner, and with profit to the listeners.

The president read a letter from Miss Marian Coon, missionary in West China, "How the Leaven Worked", and this was followed by a responsive read, "Adventuring for the Kingdom", which laid special emphasis upon the subject of world peace.

The scripture lesson was read by Miss Marian O'Brian during the opening worship service, Miss Jean Burnham leading in prayer. Miss Dorothy McDowell presided at the piano.

The hostess served homemade candy during the social hour at the close when a contest, "Jumbled Letters" gave employment for all, and a most enjoyable time was spent. The December meeting will have as its outstanding feature the receiving of the year's reports, and the election of officers. The place and date will be announced later.

Auxiliary Meeting

An attendance of approximately fifty members featured the November meeting of the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary of Saint Andrew's United Church, held at the parsonage on Wednesday, November 12, at 3 p.m., the president, Mrs. (Rev.) W. W. Jones, having charge of the opening devotional and business period.

An earnest appeal for more prayer on the part of the women of the church was sounded by Mrs. (Dr.) Rae and by the president, this means of bringing guidance and help being emphasized as of value, taking precedence of any other. "Fail in this, we rob God of the channel through which He has expressly stated He will work."

A donation of six dollars from Mrs. J. W. Walsh a life member of the Auxiliary now in Vancouver, B.C., toward the autumn thankoffering was gratefully received. The initial effort through which the Auxiliary came into existence was made by Mrs. Walsh many years ago, her own home being the meeting-place for several years.

The treasurer, Miss M. E. Hetherington, reported a total raised so far this year of $256.86, leaving a balance of over $122 still to be secured in order to reach the allocation set by the Conference W.M.S. Board. Sixty-nine dollars was received when the thank-offering was taken, and there are still envelops to come in at the December meeting. Nearly one hundred dollars was the amount placed on the plates at the time of the Easter thankoffering last April.

In observance of both the Armistice and the Thanksgiving season, and at the special request of the president, Mrs. H. W. Johnston sang very beautifully, Kipling's Recessional, "Lest We Forget" and Mrs. J. H. George led in the consecration prayer.

Mrs. T. H. Aiken, convenor of Group D, took charge of the remainder of the program, the appropriate topic being, "Thinking Peace" the readers, in addition to the leader, including: Mrs. Ridge, Mrs. R. H. Edmunds, Mrs. Lunn, and Mrs. A. J. Henderson.

A responsive reading on the petitions of the Lord's Prayer, with question by the leader and reply by the audience, took the place of the regular devotional leaflet, and was most impressive. Miss Nellie Hetherington took up the chapter from the study book on, "A Historical Review of Christian Work in Japan" and this was followed by the solo, "The Wonderful Story" by Mrs. Johnston.

Mite-boxes were called in for the December meeting, which will be held at the home of Mrs. P. Stinson, the second Wednesday in the month. The meeting was dismissed with the W.M.S. Watchword, the usual service of refreshments being dispensed with at this meeting, as many of the members were assisting with the social part of the public gathering which will mark the re-opening of the church basement on Friday evening, November 14, at 8 p.m., the program to be supplied by talent from Peterborough.

DANGER FROM COLDS

Every woman beyond middle age should realize that a majority of the troubles she has to fear have their origin in what are known as common colds. Each attack lowers her vitality and reduces resistanse to disease. At this season of the year every woman should see that her blood is toned up to meet the rigors of the climate and especially that strength should be restored after any cold, however slight. For this Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a reliable tonic.

These Pills are not a mere stimulant giving temporary relief. They build up the body by creating that rich red blood which imparts the glow of health; steadies the nerves, improves the appetite and digestion and make the users capable of withstanding the rigors of our Fall and Winter months. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

QUEENSBORO

(Examiner Correspondent)

QUEENSBORO, Nov. 15.—The ladies of the United Church W. M. S. met at the parsonage on Wednesday afternoon. In the absence of the president Mrs. John O'Rorke on account of illness the meeting was taken by Mrs. Everson. "What a Friend we have in Jesus" was sung, after which the "Lord's Prayer" was repeated in unison. The scripture lesson was read from Romans, chapter twelve and the first twenty-one verses. Mrs. Bruce Leslie gave a paper on Thanksgiving entitled "In the Door of the Tent" in which was pointed out the benefits of poverty, loneliness and failure. Poverty gives one patience, sympathy, and self-restraint. It develops independence, strength of will, steadfastness and perseverance. Many of the world's greatest men and women were nurtured in poverty. Lincoln was a rail-splitter Henry M Stanley, a bootblack and Joan of Arc a peasant shepherdess. Straightened circumstances are no barrier to glory of achievement. Loneliness teaches the value of universal brotherhood, enables folk to appreciate the beauty of the world in which we move and provides the silence necessary in which to hear the voice of God. Failure may be the means of directing a man's feet into the path of duty and turning his attention toward the vocation for which he is fitted. Honest failure gives the opportunity of gaining greater strength and greater wisdom. It shows us our weak points and gives one a chance to overcome error and faults. Disappointment is often God's appointment. Failure, poverty and loneliness will teach folk only what they are willing to be taught. Mrs. J. E. Dixon, of Belleville, gave a paper entitled "Japan, Facing the Modern World," in which it was stated that agriculture was the foremost industry in Japan and that $2,250,000 are realized annually from this work. $400,000,000 is realized from the production of raw silk. The income from fish amounts to $175,000,000; from forests, $100,000,000 and $200,000,000 from her mines. Japan has the finest electrical possibilities of any country in the world and carries electric power between two and three hundred miles across country at a voltage of 150,000 volts and retails it at two cents per K.W. hour. The government is rapidly approaching democracy, their being the upper and lower houses and the cabinet, the cabinet having the final say in settling matters. There is trial by jury but the judge has the final say in matters of law. Forty years ago only the people paying heavy taxes were allowed to vote, and only 500,000 were allowed the franchise. Five years ago the right to vote became general and 13,000,000 qualified. Women are not allowed to vote but in their influence are steadily gaining-ground. Japan has a conscription system which compels every young man before he reaches twenty years of age to have trained at least eighteen months, and this gives that people the material for the largest and most efficient standing army in the world. Japan holds the world's best record for a general educational system. Japan holds the world's best record for a general educational system. Every child must have a public school education and illiteracy in a strict sense is unknown. The average for litreacy among the people is 96 per cent, the highest average of any country in the world. The United church has an academy in Kobe with an attendance of 200. The studies are like that of our Canadian schools and the academy is in affiliation with the University of Toronto.

The meeting closed with singing "We've A Story To Tell To the Nations", and the benediction. The December meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. John Alexander, Sr.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 15.—Anglo-Saxon people like decorations and titles just as much as Gallic people do. This was the consensus of opinion of the final session of the 66th annual convention of the Provincial Association of the Protestant Teachers of Quebec, held recently in Montreal.

The discussion came up in connection with the Provincial Government's offer of the Order of Educational Merit to the teachers qualified to receive it in this province. The Order had been established last year, Orrin B. Rexford, the teachers' representative on the Protestant Committee of the Council of Education of Quebec, stated, and while the Catholic teachers had readily accepted the idea, the sub-committee of the Protestant Committee had felt that the Protestant teachers would not be interested.

Asked to explain why the sub-committee had come to this decision, Mr Rexford said: They thought that Anglo-Saxon people were not interested in wearing little bits of ribbon that represent honors. They felt that perhaps Gallic people were interested in it more."

"But aren't Canadians supposed to be a mingling of both Anglo-Saxon and Gallic stock?" a teacher inquired.

Prof. H. D. Brunt then declared that in his opinion, Mr. Rexford's analysis of the Anglo-Saxon temperament had been quite inaccurate, that he had always found that Anglo-Saxons were most childishly fond of titles.

Mr. Rexford then explained that he had merely wanted to learn the feeling of the association on the question of accepting the Government's offer of the Order and that since the convention felt as it did, he would, as the teachers' representative, line up for its defense.

TRAVELOGUE READING DELIGHTS SPRINGVILLE W.M.S. AUDIENCE

Mrs. H. Young Gives Interesting Talk at November Meeting of Socieyt.

OTHER PAPERS READ.

SPRINGVILLE, Nov. 15 (Examiner Correspondence)—"From Canada to India, via Trinidad" was the title of a reading given by Mrs. H. Young at the November meeting of the Springville W.M.S. held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mr. J. Staples, Scott's Corners.

The spirit of Thanksgiving pervaded in the scriptural lesson, Psalm 107, 1-31, read by Miss J. Schaffer, also in the hymns and in prayer.

Mrs. William Whitfield led in the opening prayer and reports were given by Mrs. A. Hunter treasurer, and Mrs. H. Young, Assistant Associate Helper's Secretary.

The advisability of continuing the meeting in the homes during the winter months was discussed and the decision made in favor of this. The serving of lunch will be dispensed with during the period of short days.

Mrs. Young's reading told the story of a young Indian who decided to live his life for Christ and who was exiled from his family but remained true to his great decision and became a valuable worker for His Master.

Mrs. M. Johnston gave an interesting paper on "South America" reporting on a lecture given by Rev. Mr. Storey returned missionary, when speaking in St. Catharines, some time ago.

Mrs. J. Grandy and Miss M. Southam sang in duet, "That Beautiful Land." Mrs. A. Hunter, in a brief, interesting sketch, gave a synopsis of the first two selections of the second chapter of the Study Book, "Fruits of Christian Missions in Japan." In 1549 the Roman Catholic Jesuit missionaries began work in Japan. Two hundred and twenty years later following the period of dreadful persecution of the Christians, traces of Christianity could still be found by these later Roman Catholic teachers of the Gospel. In 1872 Protestant missionaries arrived in Japan. Progress was slow at first, during the period of the first twelve years only ten receiving baptism.

As time went on progress became more rapid. It is interesting to note that in the early Japanese Parliament the majority of seats were filled by Christians. Mrs. Hunter will continue with the study of the second chapter at the December meeting to be held at her home.

Mrs. Moyer closed the meeting with prayer following which a hearty vote of thanks was unanimously extended to the hostess Miss J. Schaffer for her kind hospitality.

During the social hour following the meeting, a dainty lunch was served.

A SIMPLE TREATMENT FOR CHILDREN'S COLDS

Cold in the head is very common at this time of year, especially in the very young. Neglect of a cold is prone to lead to serious consequences. To relieve all congestion of the system is the first step in treating a cold, whether in infants or adults. For the very young, Baby's Own Tablets are the ideal means of doing this. Containing no narcotic or other harmful drugs they soothe the child's fretfulness, relieve its suffering and ensure convalescence.

Baby's Own Tablets are without an equal for relieving indigestion, constipation and colic. They check diarrhoea; break up colds and simple fevers; promote health-giving sleep and make the dreaded teething period easy. They are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MOTORING NEWS

Here's News! Canada now holds second place among the nations in the per capita ownership of motor cars, and third place in the production, according to a survey compiled by the Canadian Pacific Railway. Uncle Sam's record is one automobile to every 4.6 persons, whereas that of the Dominion is one to every 8.2 people. The United States manufactured 5,358,414 cars in 1929, France produced 263,660 and Canada 262,625. England claims fourth place, having had an output of 238,805 in 1929. Germany has 70,500. The number of cars scrapped or withdrawn from use in Canada in 1929 was 87,152.

Automobiles are enjoying longer life! A test covering every make of car on the American market, and over a period of 10 years, reveals the fact that the average American-made car will run 30,000 miles before new piston rings are required, as compared with an estimate of 25,000 miles made three years ago, and 20,000 miles 10 years ago. The man who made the test said that the best indicator of the operating age of an automobile engine is the amount of wear of piston rings and cylinder walls.

The motoring public continue to like black cars. That color still holds first place among the fall colors for automobiles, according to the automobile color index. Deep lively blues hold second place, with brown running a close third. The fall season has revealed conservative trends in motor color modes. The Paris Salon boasted few brilliant hues. Sombre colors prevailed, and the majority of cars were in black or very dark shades.

For a certainty that man Henry Ford hasn't lost any of his faith in the motor industry. From Detroit comes the news that the Ford Motor Company is spending $23,000,000, this year and in 1931, in expansion and improvement of facilities. The program, one of the largest ever taken by a single concern over a similar length of time, lists six major projects, at Edgewater, Buffalo, Richmond, Seattle, Long Beach and Detroit.

A pronouncement on careless driving at intersections has recently come from the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. It is interesting to Canadian readers: "We have laid down the rule in a number of cases that at crossings the drivers of all motor vehicles must be highly vigilant and maintain such control that, on the shortest possible notice, they can stop their cars so as to preevnt danger to pedestrians avaing the right to cross the streets at crossings and to rely on the drivers of automobiles not to run them down, and we have categorically said that care at street crossings is the highest duty of motorists."

A person can fall asleep in a chair or a chesterfield with the assurance that within a reasonable length of time he will wake up. Not so with the driver of a motor car who falls asleep at the wheel. There are too many accidents caused by drivers dozing at the wheel. Motorists should measure their driving capacity carefully, and not drive beyond that capacity.

It is poor economy to shut off the ignition when coasting down a long hill. Unburned gas is sucked into the cylinders and cuts the oil so that its efficiency as a lubricant is impaired. Also, the gas may explode in the muffler and blow it out.

Four things a new driver should remember: 1. Keep the rear doors of your car closed when starting. 2. Don't park a car beyond the crest of a hill or around a curve where it cannot be seen by overtaking traffic. 3. Avoid rubbing the tires against the curb. 4. Don't attempt to turn out of ruts while under high speed.

Speedometer equipment on motor buses has recently come in for considerable criticism. It is claimed that satisfactory results are not obtained from speedometers on big buses, and that maintenance of them is entirely too costly. Experiments are now being conducted to find some new method of judging speed. Now we know why some truck drivers drive so fast.

Add to Ford antique museum: One early model of the Oldsmobile. It was manufactured in 1900, and was driven to the Ford Museum at Dearborn under its own power, and will form part of the display of transportation mediums and examples of early Americana. The display includes a duplicate of the first internal combustion type engine as designed by Otto in 1878 and the early, crude steam engines as well as exhibits pointing toward advancements made in these two forms of power plants.

Brighter Days!

You need not punish a sluggish system with purgatives that do violence. Just chew a pleasant Cascaret before bedtime. Next morning you'll be a new person. Candy Cascarets are made from cascara—which doctors say actually strengthens the bowel muscles. So their action is always beneficial. They clear up a stubborn, bilious, headachy and constipated condition every time. You awake with coating gone from tongue; with eyes brightened; breath sweetened; appetite on edge. For a bright morning, try a Cascaret tonight. Then you'll know why 20 million boxes are used every year.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

The spare room, like the old time kitchen, is again coming into its own. There was a time when to speak of a spare room was out of date as to eat in the kitchen.

• • • • • • •

But everyone who entertained at all had some extra room for guests. This was in the era of a previous generation when the apartment house was in its infancy.

• • • • • • •

Today in modern cramped housing quarters, where apartments are inadequate to the real needs of a family, a spare room is a luxury. It can be, and is, mentioned with a certain degree of pride.

• • • • • • •

To have an extra bedroom is a convenience scarcely to be done without, yet not so customary that it is not thought to be a bit affluent. To have a room to spare from the actual demands of a family's requirements is munificient, a luxury in a home, and to be mentioned by its correct name--spare room.

• • • • • • •

There is an interesting transition of terms for this extra room, which, by the way, always applies to a bedroom, when it is called "spare room."

• • • • • • •

When the early settlers made their homes in the wilderness of North America, the dwellings they put up barely filled the needs of the occupants. When opportunity and funds permitted small houses divided into numerous rooms, were erected and later on the spacious mansions came into being.

• • • • • • •

An extra bed in the living roo mwas the first accommodation in the small house. Four poster and tester beds with handsome hand-woven coverlets and choice patchwork quilts made these living-room beds decorative.

• • • • • • •

It is a far cry from such an expansive or double day bed, that now supplies the added sleeping accommodations in modern apartment living rooms. Intrinsically the old and modern bed-in-the-living room are the same.

• • • • • • •

The identical purpose is served in each instance. Necessity often demands a return of fashion.

• • • • • • •

When houses were large enough to have a whole room in each devoted to sleeping quarters for company, a room off the parlor was considered the most appropriate location. This was called the complimentary name of "parlor chamber."

• • • • • • •

For a long time it continued to be called by the honored name even when its location was far distant as upstairs. There came a gradual change of terms, however, and spare room came to have the same welcoming significance.

• • • • • • •

There was room and to spare in the house. To-day this very word is again being used in its original meaning, and because of a like reason.

• • • • • • •

The name guests room has found favor, above all the other names in recent years. It fulfills the purpose adequately but it does not carry the compliment the "parlor chamber" implies. Nor does it express the expansive gesture of spare room in a dwelling.

• • • • • • •

In this era the extra bed bespeaks the opportunity for an overnight guest even in an apartment. A "spare room" does more. It represents a superabundance of space, a room that is devoted solely to house guests, who can occupy it without thought of discommoding a family. Like a guest room it has a pleasant meaning.

School Association Will Hold Card Party

The regular monthly meeting of Central Home and School Association was held last evening in the Kindergarten room of the school. Mrs. D. G. Eldred, President, presided.

Minutes of the last business meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Metheral, and duly passed. In the absence of the treasurer, Mrs. P. Gray, the financial statement was given by Mrs. Vass. Relief work done by the Association was given by Mrs. W. Flannery.

Final arrangements were completed for the holding of a card party on Wednesday of next week, at which a floor lamp will be drawn for.

The banner for the largest attendance of mothers present went to O. M. Steer's room.

On the basis of 10 houses an acre and four persons to a dwelling, it is estimated that London has room for 46,000,000 people, which is more than the total population of England and Wales.

Mr. and Mrs. Atcheson and two sons of Toronto, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Tinny and attended Cavan fowl supper.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gray, Peterborough, motored to Cavan and spent Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. James Paul.

Mr. and Mrs. W. White and son, Billy, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. Lamb, Mrs. White remaining for a visit.

Miss L. Syer spent Thanksgiving Day with her cousins, the Misses Jean and Isabel Syer, of Millbrook.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Reynolds and Mrs. N. Lamb, motored to Port Hope on Friday.

Mrs. Atcheson, of Toronto, who was the guest of Mrs. Albert Tinny, purchased the quilt, which was offered by auction at the Cavan fowl supper.

The continued dry weather is proving a serious handicap to many farmers, whose wells are dry. Some are having to drive their cattle some distance to water.

It is also making it difficult to finish the fall ploughing where the land is heavy.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D

DON'T TRY TO FIGURE OUT APPENDICITIS.

Perhaps you wonder why some acquaintance, attacked by appendicitis, refuses to go to hospital for operation, and gets well, whereas another acquaintance is hurried to the hospital and the operation performed a few hours after the attack. He gets well also.

Still another when attack occurs, delays calling a physician and when he is rushed off for operation, gangrene has set in, and he does not recover.

And still another suffers for days with acute appendicitis, refuses to go to hospital, has all the dangerous symptoms, and yet recovers. The appendix has drained its pus into the intestine and the pus comes away in the natural way by intestinal movement. This is of rare occurance but cases of this kind do happen from time to time.

Now what should you do when you feel a pain in stomach or abdomen, that seems to naturally shift over to right lower side of abdomen?

Call your doctor at once.

You see there are other symptoms besides the pain that the doctor will recognize, and so prevent serious results.

In certain ailments you recognize the trouble at once—scarlet fever, diphtheria, typhoid fever, heart disease and others—but in appendicitis the symptoms vary according to the condition of the inflammation in the appendix.

Dr. D. P. D. Wilkie points out that the onset of the ordinary appendicitis is not very striking—just a little sicky feeling, pain in abdomen going over and staying on right side, a little rise in temperature tongue coated and constipation. This, just means that the lining of intestine is inflamed, and is likely to get well again just as do inflammations in nose, throat, or elsewhere in the body.

However, in some forms the inflammation is so severe, that it blocks up the appendix so that it cannot empty its contents into intestine. It becomes blocked or obstructed.

This is more serious, but unfortunately the pulse doesn't get much faster and the danger is not recognized.

However, the patient himself usually "knows that something is wrong inside" and the anxious look in his face is a warning sign to the doctor, that operation is immediately necessary.

So don't try to figure out why some people get well without operation, and others die who do undergo operation.

There is the amount of infection, the resistance of the patient, the condition of the appendix and intestine, the exact place where inflammation exists, and many other factors entering into the matter.

CLEAN WINDOWS

Instead of using soap and water on windows, try using a cloth dipped in ammonia and whiting and then polish with a chamois.

FIRE HAZARD

Burn up all cotton waste used for polishing furniture. Many a fire has been caused by spontaneous combustion of just this.

QUAINT FROCKS

A Roman striped challis frock for sports wear has its tuck-in blouse made with Chinese collar and elbow sleeves and its skirt gored.

LEMON SAUCE

A thick lemon sauce, served hot, is a good change for pudding sauce. Some families like it with a dash of ginger.

TWO GREENS

ARE YOU EASILY FATIGUED?

Have you that "tired feeling?" Lack of energy and ambition, failure to get a sense of real rest from sleep, nervousness, frequent colds, are all signs of sluggish kidney and liver. Allowed to go uncorrected, these conditions are followed by more alarming symptoms which may result in Bright's disease, rheumatism and other serious ailments.

A safe and sure corrective, which you can depend upon to bring back your lost energy and "pep," are Dr. Banta's Kidney Pills. Get a box from your druggist to-day. Price 50c. a box. Sole manufacturers, The Dr. Norvall Medical Co., Limited, Peterborough, Ont.

When a Child is FEVERISH, CROSS, UPSET

Colic, gas, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, in babies and children, generally show food is souring in the little digestive tract.

When these symptoms appear, give Baby a teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Add it to the first bottle of food in the morning. Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. It will sweep the bowels free of all sour, indigestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, colds, children's ailments. Children take it readily because it is palatable, pleasant-tasting.

Learn its many uses for mother and child. Write for the interesting book, "Useful Information." Address The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., Windsor, Ont. It will be sent FREE.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

TALENTED BAND LEADER ENTIRELY SELF-TAUGHT

Salvation Army Sousa Has Many Stirring Compositions to His Credit—Wrote the "Chalk Farm March"

IT is rare that a man of outstanding ability in any one direction can remain more or less hidden in a city the size of Toronto. Yet such is the case of Staff-Captain Bramwell Coles, the "Salvation Army Sousa," a quiet, unassuming member of the editorial department of the Salvation Army in Canada East.

Captain Coles

A talented musician, not yet forty, his compositions are being played all over the world where there is a Salvation Army band capable of playing them. He cannot claim to have had any university education, although he once said, with a chuckle, that he went through Cambridge. He enlightened his hearer by saying Cambridge, England, was the place of his birth, therefore he had been through Cambridge." With the exception of a couple of years or so, when he attended a school of music in London, England, he is entirely self-taught. He lived most of his life in London, England, where as a youth he played a saxaphone in the famous Chalk Farm Band of the army.

Suddenly feeling the urge to express himself in music he made his first attempt—a march. To his amazement he was given a prize by the Army Musical Board and he dedicated the march to the band in which he played. Since that time the "Chalk Farm March" has been played by bands all over the world. That was in 1910 and now his name is a household word in S. A. circles, having composed more than 30 marches and selections. Critics of note have described his music as "great."

Recently in New York he conducted the massed bands by invitation on the occasion of the great Salvation Army gathering under Commander Eva Booth, and John Philip Sousa the eminent American bandmaster, personally congratulated Mr. Coles on one of his latest marches, "The Firing Line."

One of his finest compositions is "The Man of Sorrows." How he became inspired to write this he tells in his own words: "Hung prominently in my home was a picture of Christ. The Man of Sorrows was portrayed turning towards a gloomy, forbidding path. In the distance could be dimly discerned Calvary. The face was turned so that I could see the sad eyes. From the first I longed to express it in music, but the idea was really born when I was in hospital with an attack of malaria—the result of war service. One night as I lay in a raging fever it seemed as if a door in the heavens opened and solemn melodies came floating down to me. I tried to memorize them and when my wife came to visit me I asked for a pencil and paper and jotted down some of the captured strains. The picture of the Man of Sorrows was the dominant inspiration."

Slightly built, sandy-haired, he deprecates any kind of praise, is absolutely devoted to the Salvation Army, has a word of encouragement for the most elementary musician and is helpful to budding composers. There is nothing of the Sousa or the Goldman in his style of conducting. He aims for tone and precision and usually achieves both with the minimum of gesticulation. To play under his baton is to sail tranquilly along, knowing that at the right time the various instruments will be eased in at the difficult phrases.

Charlie Dunning

by "R. T. L."

Charles Avery Dunning

MR. DUNNING would just about as soon become president of the C.P.R. as be prime minister, anyway, so everything has turned out all right.

At present he is a sort of glorified hotel manager of a place called Lucerne-in-Quebec, but his office is in Montreal, in the same building as Mr. Beatty's, and the rest seems to be only a matter of time.

If you are a friend of his you say that he has self-confidence. If you are not, you call him a bumptious broncho.

Whether you are a friend or not, you are obliged to recognize that he is well equipped with intestinal fortitude. He has no use for people who lose heart when things go wrong and he met a number of these during his four years at Ottawa.

His names are Charles Avery. He likes to be called Charlie and has never given for publication any explanation of Avery. He still signs himself as C. A. Dunning, which is a good thing.

He has hardly ever been to the movies.

He was born in a place called Croft, in Leicestershire, and did not come out to Canada until he was seventeen.

He is forty-five now and was the youngest minister of finance since confederation.

He is used to this as he was provincial treasurer in Saskatchewan when he was thirty-one and is well aware that a number of people have referred to him as the boy-wonder.

He came out to Canada because he strained his heart in a swimming race and the doctor said he couldn't work in the foundry any more. This was disappointing as he had intended working his way up to be foreman.

He thinks that Senator Forke is a very nice old man.

When he came to Canada he went straight through to Saskatchewan and hired himself to a farmer for ten dollars a month. He chose a farm which had wood and water because his father had told him that these were essential to good farming.

He taught a Sunday school class in England when he was fourteen and still goes to church when he has time. He is a Presbyterian, which was a fine thing for a finance minister but is not quite so important to the C.P.R.

He still regards a kippered herring as proper food for breakfast.

He is, however, more Canadian than many of our best families and does not believe that a governor-general and his wife are superior beings.

He got his start out west by being sent as a delegate to a grain growers' convention and making a good speech at the right moment. He was running the grain growers a couple of years later and then organized the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Co.

He was twenty-five years old then.

He had just enough money for railway fare to get to the convention and slept in the boiler room of the hotel to save three dollars.

He likes to study maps and always had some around his office in Ottawa.

When he became finance minister he expected to stay that way for several years unless he happened to become prime minister but no matter how old or feeble he became he intended never to be a senator.

He started in politics as a member of Martin's cabinet in Saskatchewan when he was about thirty and was soon provincial secretary, minister of municipal affairs and minister of labor as well as provincial treasurer.

He was premier of the province five years later and had a system better than Mr. Taschereau's used to be and nearly as good as Mr. Ferguson's is supposed to be.

He is of medium height and used to be of medium weight.

One of the things at Ottawa that gave him a pain was the drawing-room, but he is still unable to admit it. Another of his unadmitted opinions is that Rideau Hall would make a good national art gallery.

He used to be able to make Mr. Arthur Meighen angry more thoroughly and more quickly than anyone else in the House of Commons, and was sorry when Mr. Meighen decided to leave.

He was also sorry that Mr. Howard Ferguson did not venture down to Ottawa.

His voice has a sort of ring in it, which was one of the things that used to annoy Mr. Meighen. He enjoys getting angry himself and can make a much better speech when he is hot than when he is cold.

It Takes An Irishman To Concoct a "Bull"

THE MOST REV. CHARLES FREDERICK D'Arcy, Archbishop of Armagh in the Church of Ireland and as Primate of All Ireland head of what is practically the Church of England in Ireland, who recently came out in opposition to the abolition of appeals from the Free State to the Privy Council is nevertheless a thorough Irishman. If there were any doubt about it he dispelled it at the Lambeth Conference when he asked the secretary to read a notice which he had prepared. In a gale of laughter the secretary duly announced: "The Irish bishops are asked to meet at two o'clock at the entrance to the library to have their group photograph taken. Any Irish bishops who do not hear this announcement are asked to come to the secretary's desk."

MR. McMICK

A WOMAN, driving into a village, asked one of several boys where she could find a Mr. Jenkins.

Said the youngster, "That's him over in front of McMick's, leaning against the wall."

"Where?" said the motorist.

"In front of McMick's," reiterated the boy, pointing.

The woman looked in the direction indicated and there was Mr. Jenkins. Also she noticed, just beside where he was standing, this legend carved in the stone: "MCMIX."

THE champion "questioner" in the British House of Commons last year was Mr. Harry Day, M.P., who was responsible for 847 questions to ministers. Sir Kingsley Wood, M.P., was, however, only three questions behind him.

THE most unnecessary thing we've heard of in some time was a Chicago man and wife going clear to China to be shot by bandits."

SENTIMENTALITY FAILS WITH MOST CRIMINALS

So Says General Hughes and He's Handled Penitentiary Inmates for Forty Years

BRIGADIER-GENERAL W. ST. PIERRE HUGHES, Dominion inspector of penitentiaries, strongly believes that a penal institution has no right to exist unless it turns out the inmates better citizens than when they entered. This does not mean, however, that he approves of sloppy sentimentalism. Far from it.

Brig.-Gen. Hughes

Speaking of his experiences recently while visiting Western Canada, General Hughes threw some interesting sidelights on the well-meaning but misdirected efforts of those who would reform convicts by moral suasion and physiological uplift. The general has been connected with penitentiary work for nearly forty years and the longer he stays with it the more convinced he becomes that discipline and fair treatment are the only methods worth while when dealing with the sub-strata of society.

"A few years ago," says General Hughes, in describing conditions, "a wave of what can only be described as sloppy sentimentalism swept over the country. Men and women—but more particularly women—of established standing and high reputation made such vociferous efforts on behalf of the convicts that we were not able to keep them from visiting our jails and penitentiaries. They came, not exactly in droves, but very nearly. What they didn't think they knew about psychology and cranial indications wasn't worth mentioning.

"I remember one committee, headed by a celebrated Ontario professor's wife, that showed unabated zeal over a considerable period. Eventually, however, they came a sad cropper. The committee had been making a tour of an eastern institution, making wise observations and taking copious notes, when the leader happened to notice a small building a little apart.

"'Who's in there?' she asked the guide.

"'Three women,' answered that worthy, solemnly. 'I don't think they'd interest you, madame.'

"'Indeed!' exclaimed the leader of the group, her eyebrows going up in rebuke. 'I'll look at them through the window.'

"She did, and saw one elderly woman and two younger ones picking over some laundry. They were plainly dressed, but not in prison garb.

"One hasty glance was enough. The leader summoned her faithful followers, all of whom peered intently through the window. Then, in a body, they sought out the warden.

"'Who are those awful women in that small room?' asked the professor's wife. 'Why isn't there a guard with them? They are the perfect criminal types.'

"The warden managed to gasp that he'd never noticed this and then invited the psychologists to meet the 'perfect criminal types.' They agreed, and he led the way to the small building, where he introduced them to—his wife and daughters!

"That was the last time this particular group of social reformers visited that penitentiary."

Famous Indian Chief Looped the Loop on His First Flight

IT isn't often that an Indian goes up in the air, but it happened the other day—and how!

It was at the famous Roosevelt Flying Field, and the Indian was Chief Buffalo Child Long Lance, who was brought up by the Blackfeet Indians. The chief is well-known in Canada. He was once a newspaper reporter in Calgary, but had to quit the cow-town after he had played a practical joke on the city council. The joke consisted of heaving a dummy bomb into the council chamber, at a time when there was fear of real bombs being flung at the city fathers by real anarchists. Long Lance claimed that he was the light heavyweight boxing champion of the Canadian army. He is a graduate of West Point, Uncle Sam's famous military academy, won the Croix de Guerre, wrote a book three years ago, and starred in the film called "The Silent Enemy." Not so bad, for a boy who was adopted by the Blackfeet Indians.

Here's how he came to go up in the air so violently. He wanted a pilot's license. So he left his lodgings in the Explorers' Club of New York and moved to Roosevelt Field to receive his training. He was a little nervous about the telephone in the room alloted to him, and had it removed. Indians, apparently, have their superstitions. Next morning he made his first solo flight, and it was some flight. He took his machine to an altitude of three thousand feet, and to the amazement of his instructors, nosed it down with the engine roaring. When the machine was humming like a strummed harp, he pulled back on the stick and made a perfect loop. The instructors on the ground looked at each other, and turned pale. But the student wasn't finished. He apparently thought the first loop was easy, for he took his machine up again and executed two more. They were perfect, too. After that he soared into the skies again. His engine died down. The plane started to wobble, and down it came in a spin. On the fifth turn the engine began to roar again, and the plane straightened out and then turned towards the landing field. Long Lance brought it down gently and made a perfect landing.

The instructors who were watching the performance were so staggered that they could scarcely pull themselves together in time to run over to the machine.

Long Lance was "balled out" properly for stunting before he had made a clean solo landing, but he just smiled at the horrified experts and promised not to repeat his performance until he'd completed his training. But in a week he had done all the required tricks.

Long Lance is crazy about flying now. He seems to have nerves of iron, and although he is in his thirty-sixth year, is very pliant and nimble when up in the air. Before he had been a week at Roosevelt Field, he made his first parachute descent, and he liked that, too.

He is, so far as is known, the only aviator who has stunted successfully during a solo flight.

Edward Johnson

Guelph's Favorite Son Knows the Dear Public

EDWARD JOHNSON, famous Canadian tenor of the Metropolitan Opera, has gleaned some worth while bits of philosophy during the course of his interesting career. And as the following story will testify, he is not averse to sharing them.

Over in Guelph, his native city, try to find the person of any musical importance who didn't know "Eddie" back in the days when he was a struggling, ambitious youth whose greatest asset was a voice of lyrical beauty! And one of his oldest Guelph friends is Miss Hattie R. Kelly, a daughter of Charles Kelly who has the distinction of being Mr. Johnson's first teacher and who encouraged "Eddie" to study farther afield. It will be recalled that several years ago, when Guelph tendered a civic reception to the tenor, he paid high tribute to his old teacher, Mr. Kelly.

Miss Kelly, who is an accomplished musician, had resigned her post as organist and choir leader in a large Guelph church, after many years' service. She felt that she would like a change. But the board thought otherwise. They were not content to accept her resignation and pleaded with her to return. So, under the circumstances, she was uncertain what to do. Fortunately Mr. Johnson was home on a visit, so Miss Kelly explained the situation to him and asked for advice.

"I'd go," he counselled. "Leave 'em while they love you, Hattie!"

Miss Marie Lohr, the famous actress, during a discussion as to the present slump in theatrical business remarked that she was a confirmed optimist regarding the future of the English stage.

"What exactly do you mean by a confirmed optimist?" queried a friend.

"Well," replied Miss Lohr, "there was once a bald-headed man who went into a chemist's shop for a bottle of hair restorer.

"'Yes, sir,' said the chemist. 'Here is a preparation that we can confidently recommend.'

"'All right,' answered the hairless customer, 'I'll take a bottle. And kindly wrap up a brush and comb with it.'"

"Now," said Miss Lohr, "I should call that man a confirmed optimist."

It Must Be Admitted—

THAT Greta Garbo is the most intriguing personality in the world of films. She was unknown six years ago. Ten years ago she earned money lathering men's faces in a barber shop in Sweden. Now she is considered by many to be the greatest screen actress in the world and she is rich.

Greta Garbo

Those who saw this girl in "Anna Christie" must have sensed the air of tragedy that seems to brood over her. Her tired voice, her draggy walk, her hopeless mannerisms—all seem to cry out that this girl has plumbed depths unknown to the average movie actress. And she has.

She was brought up in a poverty-stricken home in Stockholm. The youngest of a family of three, she had to work at an age when other girls are still in school. She adored her father and her sister Alva. The father died while she was struggling for an education; Alva died in a motor accident just when fame had enveloped Greta. And then, as if to fill the cup of grief to overflowing, Greta's director, Mauritz Stiller, died suddenly. She loved this man.

Greta Garbo was left alone, a stranger in a strange land. Something had happened to her soul. She seemed frozen. She avoided people. She is never seen in the hectic social swirls of Hollywood. Scarcely able to speak English, she clings to a few Swedish and Danish friends avoiding new and strange contacts.

She seems to have bottled up terrific emotions. One could sense this in her characterization of Anna Christie—one could sense the tremendous emotional depths that lie beneath her acting. Some day this strange girl will begin to tap this reserve and we may have another Bernhardt.

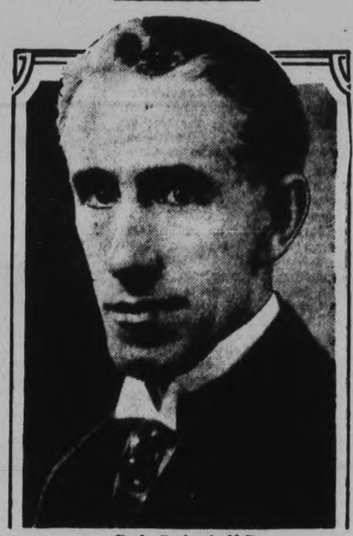
Strangely enough, Miss Garbo began her screen career as a comedienne. She was demonstrating a riding-habit that was too big for her in a shop in Sweden and was so funny that a film producer who saw her gave her a small part in a picture he was making. She got her first real chance with Mauritz Stiller when she was seventeen—and that was only seven years ago.—P. H. D.

"A SUCCESSFUL dinner party is one of which the guests take a pleasant memory home with them." And leave the cutlery.

A striking illustration of "Preparedness" is furnished in the story told by Dr. James L. Hughes of Toronto regarding an old negro who approached him one day during his inspectorship to complain of the suspension of his boy.

Rastus, who questioned the wisdom of sparing the rod and spoiling the child, very quietly and with some show of dignity, addressed Dr. Hughes.

"Suh," he said, "ah don't believe in suspendin' chil'in. Ah believe in lickin' 'em. Of cose, ah don't believe in unreasonable lickin'. The old mastah dat was heah befo' you was inspectah, he was a brute! Ma oldest little boy, he came home de fust week he was at school, te'bbly cut up with a rawhide. Ah didn't get mad, no' make no fuss. Ah jest got a piece of sheep-skin and sewed it into his trousahs with the woolly side in, and aftah dat he took his lickins' quite comfo'table.



E. J. Garland, M.P.

Garland's Old Photo Has Been Condemned

NOT, by his own admission a vain man, E. J. Garland, U. F. A. member of the House of Commons for Bow River, Alberta, fails to relish what might be called libel in the way of a slanderous portrait, and according to Mr. Garland, one of the most brilliantly witty speakers in the House, a number of pictures of him appearing in the daily press recently have been anything but flattering.

Having no capacity to take this sort of thing lying down, Mr. Garland, with the cares of the session left behind, has had a new photograph taken and has sent prints to a certain newspaper in western Canada, with the following letter:

"House of Commons,
"Canada
"Ottawa, Ontario.
"The Editor, "Sept. 23, 1929.
"Dear Sir:

"I am not a vain man—at least not more so than most men—but frankly I get a pale green feeling whenever I see that terrible picture that is supposed to be myself printed on the front page of your excellent publication.

"Was it not Barnum who said—'damn me if you like, but for heaven's sake say something about me'? I doubt very much if Barnum would have been just as anxious had a portrait as diabolical appeared with the publicity.

"I am herewith enclosing a press picture which I hope you will use in future—either send the other one to the archives or to some—better still, burn it. "Yours very truly,

"(Signed) E. J. Garland."

ARTICLES OF INTEREST TO THE FARMER

MORE PROFITS OPEN TO FARMER THROUGH EXPORTING GRAIN CROP IN FORM OF BEEF, CHEESE, BACON

Rapid Decline in Canada's Exports Partly Due to Bigger Home Need.

OVERSEAS SALES DOWN

Outstanding Opportunity at Present Lies in Pork and Bacon Market.

At a time when the prices for grains and other farm products have been declining rapidly, livestock prices have shown outstanding strength. At present relative prices it is decidedly more profitable for the farmer to export his grain in the form of cattle, cheese and bacon than to attempt to sell his grain in a world market burdened with surplus supplies from many countries.

During the past few weeks shipments of live cattle from Canada to Great Britain have been resumed after a lapse of three years. This trade was at one time an important outlet for the Canadian livestock industry. Increasing demand and higher prices in the markets of the United States diverted these exports, and shipments overseas ceased. The initial shipments of the last few weeks have been cattle from Eastern Canada.

Perhaps the outstanding opportunity in livestock at the present moment is in the market for pork and bacon. The demand for bacon in Great Britain has grown at an amazing rate. In 1921 imports of bacon into Great Britain amounted to 636 million pounds. In each of the last three years the total imports into that market have been more than 900 million pounds. This is an increase of 50%, and most of the additional supplies have come from Denmark. Canadian shipments, however, are no greater to-day than they were forty years ago.

Bacon Exports Drop

In 1924, the average price of Canadian bacon on the British market was equivalent to the price which prevailed in September, 1930, in that market. In 1924, Canadian exports amounted to 120 million pounds. For the present year it is doubtful whether they will amount to as much as 20 million pounds. In 1924, the price of wheat was approximately 75% higher than at present, and the price of barley, the most important grain for the bacon hog, was more than two and one-half times the price now prevailing. These facts seem to indicate that the possible margin of profit in hogs has improved decidedly.

British imports of dairy products have also been maintained although the proportion secured from Canada is declining. Canadian exports of butter have practically disappeared and shipments of cheese are one-third less than they were five years ago. Canadian cheese long held first place in the British market and as late as 1928 received substantial premium for it high quality.

The rapid decline in Canada's export in animal products has been partly due to the great increase in domestic requirements. This has been very great during the past few years and production has not increased in keeping with the growing demand. Shipments overseas have been drastically cut, and in some instances, such as butter and lamb, large quantities have been shipped into Canada. Butter imports amounted to nearly 36 million pounds in 1929 and imports of mutton and lamb to over four million pounds. Substantial quantities of beef and pork were also brought in.

Low Grade Wheat Surplus

Millions of bushels of low grade wheat and coarse grains are poured in Canada each year. Mill offals, screenings and similar products are available in abundance. Under prevailing conditions, it is more profitable to market these comodities through the medium of livestock and animal products than by selling them as raw materials.

Animal husbandry already brings the farmers of Canada a total revenue estimated at half a billion dollars each year. The home market itself offers opportunities for the expansion of Canadian production. The efforts of the British Government through the Imperial Economic Conference and the Empire Marketing Board have created conditions favorable to the extension of Canadian exports in the British markets. The high standard of quality achieved by producers of Canadian bacon and cheese is well known overseas. Farmers and others interested in Canadian livestock might well consider their opportunities for the development of the industry and the extension of both the domestic and export markets for such products. The assurance to importers of adequate and steady supplies with quality and price in keeping with similar products from other countries is necessary if Canada is to regain her former position in the international field. Present conditions seem to be favorable for the expansion of this industry and for greater diversification in Canadian agriculture.

Cheese Production Down in Hastings

A number of cheese factories in Hastings County have closed for the season and few will be running after next week. Production of cheese for Hastings is down approximately 2,000 cheese this year. Heavy frosts have stopped plowing for a few days in the northern part of the county and everywhere land is dry and hard.

Harvesting of turnips in Durham is completed, and in the north of the county, where they have had more rain all season they have a much better crop than in the southern part of the county. Fall wheat acreage is possibly ten per cent. below the average of the last five years. Most of the fields will go into winter carrying a very good top.

STOCKMEN URGE IODINE FEEDING

Simple Precaution Doubly Important During Winter Months.

CHEAP INSURANCE

In this day of low price it is of vital importance that every vestige of waste be eliminated. Even during properous times no person likes to lose a foal or half a litter through poor health but at present, with the margin of profit between cost and selling price so narrow that sometimes we cannot see it at all, the loss of any stock is even more serious. Furthermore, most losses are easily prevented, particularly those of such a nature as goitre in lambs and calves, hairlessness among hog litters and joint ill in foals.

All of these things can easily be prevented, according to Dr. Lionel Stevenson, Provincial Zoologist for Ontario, if iodine is incorporated in the rations of the breeding stock and particularly in the rations of pregnant animals. The regular use of this drug is particularly essential during the period when stock is stabled, as there is then absolutely no chance of picking up any iodine in the natural state.

For convenience sake iodine is usually fed in the form of potassium Iodide, being mixed with salt, feed or water. It is quite simple to handle and according to the best livestock opinion in Canada is a cheap insurance against many livestock losses. As doses vary a pamphlet entitled 'The Significane of Iodine in the Feeding of Live Stock" and distributed along with other similar bulletins on request, by the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers, Toronto. It covers the whole subject, giving the methods of administration and the particular doses for the various types of live stock, under various conditions.

WILL USE TALKIES AT TRACTOR SCHOOL

Program Will Show Phases of Power Machinery Application in Farming.

Tractor operators or prospective tractors operators who attend the "Caterpillar" Tractor School at Toronto, November 20th and 21st will be treated to something decidedly new. They can sit in a darkened room and have the essential points of tractor operation and care explained to them by means of talking motion pictures—or "Talkies" as they are popularly known. This will be one of the first times, if not the first that the "Talkies" have been used for purely instructional purposes.

This will not constitute the entire two-day programme, of course, but will be one of the main features. There will also be discussion by tractor and power machinery experts on the various phases of the application of power machinery to farming, road-building, road maintenance, logging and industrial work. But it is first and last a "School" and not a sales or advertising device. The motto of the school is "To Tell, Not to Sell"—based on the realization that the general popularity of power machinery depends upon its economic value to the owner, which in turn is governed largely by the care which the machines receive. Anyone interested in the use of tractors should find such a school well worth attending.

Although the number of unemployed in England has risen greatly in recent years, the number of persons receiving Poor Law relief at the end of June was the lowest since 1920, according to a recent government announcement.

Extra Years Are Given To Six Jail Breakers

GUELPH, Ont., November 15 (C. P.). — Six prisoners of the Ontario Reformatory received sentences of two years each in Portsmouth Penitentiary when they appeared in the Police Court to-day and pleaded guilty to charges of escaping from the institution. They are: William Cann and Percy Rawn, who were captured in Winnipeg, and Michael Huard, Ottawa, William Bradt, St Catharines, Clifford Marshall Guelph and Walter White, Gananoque, all of whom figured in the break from the institution on Tuesday. White, Marshall, and Bradt will each serve four years, the penalties imposed today being made consecutive with other Portsmouth terms hanging over their heads.

VARYING STRAIN OF SEED GRAIN GOOD PRINCIPLE

Continuous Culture on Same Soil Has Actual Trend to Deterioration.

STUDY CONDITIONS

Registered Seed Should be Considered for at Least Part of Crop.

Persons who have new varieties to introduce and seeds to sell have always been strong advocates of seed exchange, saying, in effect, that it is a good principle of farm management often to vary the strain of seed grain to be sown. It is also a common belief of grain growers that there is a necessity for frequent change of seed, because of actual deterioration due to continuous culture upon the same soil or under the same conditions.

Farmers are continually changing seed grain. He on the black land must have seed from the sand region, and a man upon the hill must have his brought from the heavy soil regions. So, also with the question of latitudes, seed grain is often shipped long distances north and south very much at random as to reason but usually with the hope that some good will come in increased yield because of the change.

Disease Lessens Value

Undoubtedly seed may become of but little value because of injury arising from disease, improper cultivation and a great number of causes which militate against the production of a normal type of kernel. Various types of plants will undoubtedly be produced from a given type of seed depending upon the character of the soil upon which each has grown. The Dominion Experimental Farms system composed as it is of numerous widely separated branch Farms, has given a particularly good opportunity to study this problem. However it has not been demonstrated that such variations will in any way have an effect upon the next season's crop, upon using this seed.

In considering the supply of good seed the farmer should take into account the suitability of his own stock. Is it the best variety available for his conditions? Is it relatively free from other varieties, other kinds of grain and weed seeds? Has it strong vitality? Can it be cleaned into first class seed? If these questions cannot all be answered in the affirmative it is advisable to secure seed of suitable quality and purity elsewhere. Registered seed is the farmers protection and should be considered if possible for at least a portion of the crop. Seed requirements should be filled as early as possible, before the supply of suitable grain is exhausted.

(Examiner Correspondence)

The members of the W.A. of St. John's Church, Ida, held their monthly meeting in the Parish Hall on Wednesday afternoon, Miss A. Sisson, president, presiding. It was decided to hold the four winter meetings in the homes of the members, the next meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Leonard McNeill. Mrs. B. Fee and Mrs. Thomas Braithwaite acted as hostesses and a social half hour was enjoyed.

The many friends of Mr. Merton Seeney will regret to learn that he is confined to Dr. Turner's Private Hospital at Millbrook, having undergone an operation for appendicitis.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Fallis and Miss B. Touchbourne were guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Howden on Monday evening.

Mr. A. Hunter, Miss Eileen Hunter and Mr. Vernon Hunter visited Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Rutherford, of South Monaghan, on Sunday.

Mr. Sidney Boyle met with a painful accident on Wednesday morning when he was crushed against a door by a cow, breaking his collar bone. Dr. Turner gave the necessary surgical attention and Mr. Boyle is resting easier.

Mr. Herbert Syer has purchased a farm in South Monaghan, two miles east of Bailieboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Swain and son David, of Valentia, were guests of Miss Frances Hunter on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cameron, of Brantford, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Syer on Tuesday.

Mrs. Gerrett and son Mr. J. Gerrett, of Toronto, were guests over the week-end of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Snider.

PROVINCIAL DAYS AT WINTER FAIR

Feature of Scheme to Contribute to Development of National Unity.

"CANADIAN DAY" FIRST.

"We are featuring 'Provincial Days' at the Royal Winter Fair, said the President, Alfred Rogers, in an interview, "because it has always been felt that one of the purposes of the Fair in addition to promoting the more immediate needs of Canadian agriculture, is to contribute to the development of national unity. This year we feel sure from the letters and records that the Royal will be a concrete expression of the optimism of all who believe in the basic soundness of economic conditions in Canada. The first day has been designated for this especial purpose of the Royal programme, 'Canadian Day.' On that day the broad national aspects of Canadian agriculture are brought out and its unitifying effect in a national sense are seen more plainly. We are dedicating the succeeding days to each of the provinces, combining the three Maritime provinces into one. This year the order will be: Canadian Day—Wednesday, November 19; British Columbia — Thursday, November 20; Maritime Day—Friday, November 21; Quebec Day—Saturday, November 22; Alberta Day—Monday, November 24; Manitoba Day—Tuesday, November 25; Saskatchewan Day—Wednesday, November 26; Ontario Day—Thursday, November 27.

"On each day we hope to have the Minister of Agriculture of each province or his representative, and we shall make that particular province as prominent as possible through parades of livestock in the arena and in many other ways."

"In the past this has created an atmosphere that has tended to intensify general interest in these provinces and their resources. In this way visitors to the Royal find a means under one roof of comparing the exhibits of widely separated districts of Canada and of contrasting them with others, while at the same time sensing the link of unity that in a broad way runs through our Canadian life."

"We attach much importance to the place the 'Provincial Days' take in the Royal plans." Mr. Rogers added "They have, we think, an important influence which elevates our agricultural industry and give it added dignity in the eyes of the men and women who live by it."

Port Rowan Doctor Faces Serious Count

SIMCOE, Ont., Nov. 15.—Dr. W. H. Reid of Port Rowan was arrested yesterday afternoon charged with manslaughter and abortion in connection with the death in the Norfolk General Hospital on October 28 of Miss Vida Warden, a Toronto suburban school teacher. He was brought here last night and appeared before Magistrate Langford, being released on $20,000 bail. The preliminary hearing of his case will take place one week from today.

Roy Ainsley, the man alleged to have brought the unfortunate school teacher to Dr. Reid, was arrested in Toronto. Simcoe Police went there this morning to bring him back. He faces a charge of being an accomplice in abortion.

This pelican, the proverbial queer old bird, made a recent getaway from the duck pond of the Riverdale Zoo, Toronto, and was rescued from downtown traffic by a messenger boy. None the worse the old boy is seen here thinking it over.

JUNIOR FARMERS RENT ORANGE HALL

(Examiner Correspondence)

HAVELOCK, Nov. 15.—The Junior Agricultural Society, regular meeting was held on Wednesday evening in the Orange hall, with a very good attendance of the members. Meeting opened in the regular way, the president Mr. Isaac Anderson in chair.

The committee appointed to see about securing the Orange Hall as a joint meeting place for the Junior Institute and Agricultural society, submitted their report as follows. Hall can be secured for first Wednesday each month at a special rate of three dollars per month, heated and with piano if the boys will replace it before closing the hall. The Masonic Hall could be secured for $3.75 per month unheated, and without piano. It was decided after a great deal of discussion between the two societies, that the boys would remain where they are in the Orange Hall, the girls to make their own decision to go in with the Women's Institute if they cared to do so. The girls expressed the opinion that the boys were ungrateful in not taking the Masonic Hall when the Women's Institute had been at great pains to secure a place suitable for them all to meet, and were indignant at their decision to meet in the Orange Hall.

The idea of buying fuel, and making fires before their meetings did not appeal to the boys at all and they remained firm in their decision.

The committees for the dance made their reports ,and when all expenses were paid, were eighty dollars to the good.

Some of the boys suggested that they would like to assist the Women's Organization in procuring some books for their library, but the girls told them to keep their books, as the women would not want them. As matters stand now, it looks as though the two societies have decided to hold meetings in the Orange Hall. The meeting concluded in the usual way, after which dancing was enjoyed until midnight.

CRATE-FEEDING PROPER METHOD TO FINISH BIRDS

Essential Point to Remember is That Quality is Aim of Efforts.

USE MASHED FEEDS

Barley, Oats and Buckwheat Mixed With Buttermilk Give Good Results.

The most important work done on the farm and work which yields the greatest return for the labor expended is the proper feeding of a product for market. This is particularly true in the case of poultry. F. C. Elford, Dominion Poultry Husbandman, states that it costs from 7 to 8 cents per pound to feed a bird to maturity, around five months of age, and only 5 cents to 6 cents per pound to crate feed and properly finish that bird. The significant fact in the situation is that it is the last pound of finish which raises the quality, raises the grade, and improves the weight of the bird to be sold. Crate-feeding is a comparatively simple operation. A suitable crate is made of slatted framework 6 feet long, 16 inches wide and 20 inches deep, divided into three compartments through the use of solid wooden partitions and ends, the slats in front are placed up and down about two inches apart, and a feeding trough is placed in front at a suitable height. Any farmer intending to market poultry this fall will find that it will more than pay him to crate-feed his birds.

Quality Is Aim.

In crate-feeding the essential points to remember are that the feeding is being done to raise the quality of the farm flock so that the birds will grade when dressed into the "Milk-fed A and B" classes. Only finely ground or mashed feeds should be used. Coarse grains which give best results in producing a milk-fed grade are barley, oats and buckwheat. These should be mixed with buttermilk or skim-milk to the consistency of thin porridge. Where sour milk is available it gives best results. The feed should be prepared one meal ahead. Care must be taken when putting birds into the feeding crate to see that they are hungry enough to eat and also that they are not over-fed the first few days they are in the crate. They should be fed as much as they will clean up in twenty minutes. The feeding trough should be cleaned out after each meal. At this time of the year two meals a day is sufficient. The first should be given in the morning as soon as it is light enough for the birds to see to eat and the other about an hour before sunset in the evening.

Peterboro' County Raising More Hogs

There is a decided increase in hog production in Peterborough county this fall. The effect is not yet seen in marketing but a large number of sows have been kept and about a carload have been selected and distributed from the local packing plants and every day sees enquiries for more. Milk production is falling off rapidly, but as yet there has been no increase in price. Most of our farmers feel that present prices do not warrant an attempt to keep up the production. There was a heavy marketing of dressed poultry for Thanksgiving. Turkeys as a rule are a good quality, but a large number of chickens have been marketed that are not properly finished.

SCRATCH GRAIN NEEDED IN FALL

Keep High-Grade Mash Before Hens All the Time and Encourage Them to Eat.

FEED HOUR BEFORE DARK

The amount of scratch grains to feed layers varies with the different seasons of the year, except in the South where the length of day is practically the same the year around.

In the winter when the nights are long and cold, hens need more of the heat-forming, energy-producing scratch grains than when the nights are short and warm. For the next three months feed about one quart of scratch grains to twelve hens, or fourteen pounds to one hundred hens. If living in the South, twelve pounds to one hundred hens is all they need. In the extreme North give them all they will eat.

Scratch grains should be fed an hour before the birds go to roost so they will have time to clean it up before dark. Do not feed any grain in the morning as the hens are apt to fill upon it and then will wait for it to digest before they eat any mash and obtain the egg-building materials.

Keep a high grade mash before the hens all the time and encourage them to eat all they want. The more they eat, the more eggs it ordinarily means.

TYPE OF RAM USED IN FLOCK BIG INFLUENCE

Where Male is Twin More Twin Lambs Born Than Where Male a Single.

11-YEAR EXPERIMENTS

Have Good Dog-Proof Corral For Sheep Over Night.

Many farmers, and more particularly farmers' sons who may not have had much experience in sheep raising, should be interested in learning something of the average results that may be expected over a period of years.

At the Dominion Experimental Station, Kapuskaisng, Ontario, a flock of pure-bred Shropshire sheep has been kept since the Station was established. Over an eleven-year period the average number of lambs born per ewe was 1.54 and the average number raised was 1.18.

It has also been observed that where the male used was a twin there has been a greater percentage of twin lambs born than where the male used was a single. The weight and quality of fleece produced has also been materially affected by the weight and quality of fleece on the ram heading the flock.

Dog Attacks Costly

Sheep ordinarily do very well in this climate. The greatest drawback is the danger of attacks by dogs. However, this can be overcome to some extent by the use of a dog-proof wire corral in which the sheep are enclosed each night during the pasture season. Even with this precaution there is some danger of the flock being attacked during the day. One way that this could be entirely prevented would be to fence the whole pasture with a dog-proof wire fence or on some farms it might be possible to have the pasture so arranged that the sheep could come to the barn at any time during the day. Where this is possible it is probably the cheapest and safest plan to follow.

PETERBORO'S BRAVE DIED AT ST. JULIEN

Into the Jaws of Death Led By Their Gallant Leader, No. 1 Company Destroyed

Headed By Major Bennet No. 1 Company Charged Into the Teeth of a Leaden Storm at the Battle of St. Julien To Be Almost Completely Wiped Out.

THE ENEMY FIRE LASTED LESS THAN TWO MINUTES BUT NOT ONE MAN WAS ABLE TO REACH GERMAN TRENCH

As Morning Brightened it Revealed the Field Between Juliet Farm and the Enemy Position Dotted With Lifeless and Writhing Men.

Through the courtesy of Captain W. W. Murray, M.C., Regimental historian to the Second Battalion and largely through the kind offices of Major G. G. Winterbottom, M.C., D.C.M. (bar), The Examiner is afforded the privilege of reproducing the first authentic account of the ill-fated attack in which No. 1 Company (Peterborough), under the command of Major G. W. Bennett, were literally mown down under heavy musketry fire, at the Second Battle of Ypres on the morning of April 23, 1915.

The account of the battle, comprises the abridged version of Chapter III, of the complete history which Captain Murray has now in the course of preparation.

Captain Murray, who saw active service with the battalion, is Canadian Press staff writer in the Press Gallery at Ottawa. He has spent many years in gathering the data necessary for the complete and official history of his Battalion, and his kindness in releasing his manuscript for the benefit of the people of Peterborough and district, who are so vitally interested in knowing just what happened to their boys in that fateful encounter, will be fully appreciated.

With 11th Brigade

The 2nd Battalion had left behind them the quagmires of Salisbury Plain; had arrived in France along with the other units of the First Division and eventually found themselves attached to the 11th (Imperial Brigade) with orders to be ready to move at an hours notice."

"The Battalion was billeted at Vlamertinghe, towards which place from Ypres surged a torrent of fugitives. The bombardment of Ypres was growing more intense. Houses were seen to collapse and disappear in dust-clouds, burying their civilian occupants among the debris. Grouped around the billets the members of the Battalion had now become accustomed to unusual happenings. The men sought to obtain information from the refugees, but received little or no news that was either coherent or even dimly enlightening. What alone could be obtained was that Ypres was being blasted to fragments; women and children were being killed. For the citizens of Ypres it was a day of wrath. It was evening. The cannonade had reached the proportion of drumfire, and a new element was now injected into the scene of this seething tumult. Reeling down the roads and across the fields, dropping into ditches in convulsions of vomiting, and striving to assuage their thirst with the polluted drainage water, soldiers garbed in the flaring red pantaloons, the blue coats and kepis of French Colonials staggered back in driblets. Attempts were made to halt them, but the sufferers were beyond questioning."

"One huge bearded man, huddled in a blue cloak and his swarthy features distorted in agony, was stopped near No. 3 company billets. He called for water. To the inevitable query he wheezed hoarsley, "Asphyxie—asphyxie!" That was all. He tore himself free and continued his tortured gait over the fields towards Poperinghe."

"To what extent the line had given way, how far the Germans had penetrated, what resistance was being offered, could not be ascertained. But whatever the situation might be, the general atmosphere was portentous, and the 2nd Battalion had no doubt now that they would soon be involved. This expectation was strengthened with the arrival of orders to stand to arms."

"Darkness had fallen when the companies paraded in billets, and each set out for the rendezvous—Pottenhoek, a small hamlet adjoining Vlamertinghe on the road to Brielen."

"Around 9 p.m. the entire Battalion had assembled. The Commanding Officer conveyed to the company commanders such information as he possessed. It was scant in the extreme. However, the fact that the 2nd Battalion had been placed under orders of the General Officer Commanding the 3rd Brigade (General R. E. W. Turner, V.C.) was an indication that some part of the Canadian line was in trouble. The Germans had driven deeply through the French positions. The Third Brigade were hanging grimly on; all available troops were being rushed to their assistance. Perhaps when the Battalion had proceeded forwatd a clearer understanding might be obtained."

Bennett's Men Lead

"It seemed hours that passed before the order to move was given; actually the battalion set off around 10 p.m., No. 1 Company (Bennett) was in the lead, followed by No. 2 (Culling), No. 3 (Chrysler) and No. 4 (Bolster). The Company machine-guns and the bombing section were detached to headquarters. The route lay to Brielen, at which place the Battalion turned south for about half a mile, then east towards the Yser Canal. Progress was painfully slow."

"The Canal was crossed by a pontoon-bridge about a mile north of Ypres, and from there the rate of progress quickened. A gun-less battery jingled past. To the men's questions the drivers replied disconsolately that their guns had been captured by the enemy in a wood west of St. Julien. The information conveyed little to the Battalion at large; but to those officers who possessed the somewhat inadequate maps of the period, it indicated a great deal. It showed that on the left of the 3rd Brigade the Germans had bitten into the French positions to a depth of at least two miles. How wide was the gap? Did it extend to the Canal itself? The disquieting thought troubled the officers, proceeding as the Battalion were across practically open country, their own left flank might even at that moment be completely exposed. The march continued. From time to time mounted patrols of the 19th Alberta Dragoons, a small detachment of which had picked up the Battalion near the Canal, rode in from the left."

"The headquarters of the 3rd Brigade were at Mousetrap Farm, several hundred yards north of Wieltje. To so many interruptions had the Battalions advance been subjected that it was not until 1.30 o'clock in the morning of April 23rd that Lieut.-Colonel Watson reported to Brigadier General Turner. There the situation was somewhat clarified. To the Commanding Officer it was explained that the entire line from the left of the 13th Battalion, fronting Poelcapelle, to the Yser Canal had been breached. The enemy had poured through the gap, and the support and reserve battalions of both the 2nd and 3rd Brigade had hastily formed a defensive flank. This ran rearward, roughly parallel to the Poelcapelle-Kerselaere-St. Julien Road, swinging again to the left north of St. Julien and tapering into the blue somewhere in the neighborhood of Kitchener Wood. The 10th and 16th Battalions were at the moment attacking through the wood in a northerly direction. The 2nd Battalion's orders were to support these two units. The enemy were believed to be in the vicinity of the wood; but their exact position was uncertain."

Local Men in Support

"The Commanding Officer's plan of operation called for the advance of Nos. 2 and 3 Companies in extended order from Mousetrap Farm forward; to them fell the responsibility of establishing contact with the enemy. No. 1 Company (Peterborough) were in support, but Major Bennett had assigned to him the special duty of keeping touch with the movements of No. 3. The reserve Company were No. 4 with Major Bolster instructed to hold his platoons available for detachment to No. 2. The situation so far as it was known was outlined to Captain Culling and Captain Chrysler by Major G. B. Hughes brigade major of the 3rd Brigade. The information however, was sketchy: it failed to enlighten those officers to any appreciable extent, for the ebb and flow of battle militated against definiteness."

"From columns of route on the road east of the farm the platoons were deployed. The normal alignment was adopted: right platoons of half companies to the left, left platoons to the right."

"The area was seared with narrow winding roads: ditches, soggy and choked with weeds, criss-crossed everywhere; hedges and wire fences rose up in unexpected places, and across these the men sprawled and tumbled in the darkness. They were totally new to the ground, and not one of them had the faintest idea where he was headed. They strove to keep together, but inevitably lost touch, turning round and round after much scrambling, finding their direction again. Bullets were whining about them: the occasional shell crashed into their lines, but they kept going on, groping a way through the thick night. A long distance in front and at wide intervals the Germans were shooting up star shells, most of which seemed to be beyond the northern extremity of the wood. The enemy were much nearer than that, however, but where? That was the question. A screen of scouts was thrown out by each of the two companies."

"Fighting was in progress somewhere in the wood, which, to the fighting men, was simply a blur against a very black sky. Wounded men staggered back through the 2nd Battalion lines; stretcher-bearers loomed out of the darkness with their burdens, trudged silently by and were swallowed up."

Juliet Farm with it's labyrinth of hedges, divided the extended companies. Captain Culling had already informed Captain Chrysler that he would continue due north in an effort to secure touch with the 16th. battalion. No. 3. Company kept on passing the farm on their right."

"Previous to this point a situation arose which had a far-reaching effect on the ultimate course of the action, particularly as it bore upon No. 3 Company. The Company met some stiff opposition their front being cut in two, with Nos. 9 and 11 platoons isolated about thirty yards in advance of the left front, a circumstance which was to have its tragic sequel thirty-six hours later."

Stumble on Enemy

"In order to appreciate the whole Battalion situation as it disclosed itself finally and as further emphasizing the extent to which the platoon and company commanders were obliged to exercise their own initiative, one must now turn to follow the movements of No. 2 Company under Cap ain Culling. They had continued their northerly course after parting from No. 3 south of Juliet Farm. Kitchener's wood drove itself as a wedge past their left flank. The trench of the 10th and 16th Battalions, running for one distance up the eastern edge of the bush, covered the company to a certain point: but they gradually advanced beyond this protection. The ground was broken and from time to time halts were called to allow stragglers to overtake the main body and to secure re-alignment. It was during one of these tops that Sergt. Nichol of No. 5 platoon had sidled cautiously hrough a hedge and immediately stumbled on a small trench held by the Germans. His cry of alarm brought his comrades forward with a rush. A short, sharp fight ensued in which a number of the enemy were killed and on one prisoner taken. Others escaped in the darkness."

"One of the purposes of the advance thus fulfilled, Captain Culling decided to rest on this position. No. 5 Platoon (Lieut. Doxsee) pursued their course a short distance forward of the captured trench, their place being taken by No. 7 (Lieut. C. R. Scott). The other two platoons—Nos. 6 (Lieut. Stirling) and No. 8 (Sergeant M. A. Neilson)—were distributed to the right. The company dug in."

"The precipate retirement of those of the enemy who had been able to make their escape soon brought the aftermath, for as the men sought to set under cover a heavy rifle and machine-gun fire was brought to bear on them. An enfilade from the extreme left suggested to the Company Commander that this flank had now become exposed. A message was dispatched to Lieut.-Colonel Watson, who had established headquarters at Juliet Farm, conveying this intelligent."

"Lieut. Scott's platoon, now forming the left flank of No. 2 Company, were at least 500 yards north by east of Captain Chrysler's right, and in order to take care of this condition the Commanding Officer was obliged to draw upon his reserve. In conformity with the plan which provided for placing platoons of No. 4 Company at the disposal of Captain Culling, No. 15 (Lieut. A. G. McLennan) were sent forward. The men started off in single file from Juliet Farm, northwards on a line parallel to the eastern edge of Kitchener Wood. They had gone no distance when both Lieut. McLennan and his principal non-commissioned officer, Sergeant Larkins, were wounded, while a number of men also became casualties. Orders were then given to Captain W. H. V. Hooper second-in-command of the Company, to take over No. 15 Platoon. This officer conducted them to a position in advance of and covering Captain Culling's left front, between 50 and 100 yards, southwest of Alberta Farm."

"Meanwhile No. 13 (Lieut. E. D. O'Flynn), No. 14 (Lieut. C. H. Ackerman) and No. 16 (Lieut. R. D. Ponton), were brought into use earlier than anticipated, due to the definite check imposed on No. 1 Company for the operation which was to have such unfortunate results. No. 14 took up the temporary line to the west of Juliet Farm, later establishing themselves on No. 3 Company's right. No. 13 continued rear of the trench occupied by the 10th and 16th Battalions; while No. 16 strengthened the line for the time being. They moved over subsequently to the extreme left in order to buttress Lieut. McLurg's isolated force at Oblong Farm."

No. 1 Company

"At Third Brigade Headquarters, No. 1 Company (Major Bennett— had been put in support, and following an interval of about half-an-hour moved up in the rear of the others. Their sudden projection into the battle arose from the Commanding Officer's anxiety for the left flank of the Battalion, for he had reason to believe that there were few allied troops from Oblong Farm westward to the Yser Canal. The presence of the enemy in the trench that ran diagonally towards No. 3 Company's lines added to this anxiety. From there the Germans had maintained an enfilade fire on the 10th and 16th Battalions through the night. This menace formed the subject of deliberations between him and Lieut.-Colonel R. G. E. Leckie, O.C. 16th Battalion, and following these the decision was reached to storm the trench. No. 1 Company of the 2nd Battalion were required to execute the operation, and it was imperative that the attempt be made before daylight, reduced the chances of success, for dawn was not far off."

"Objects were visible at a greater distance now than formerly and a tense calm had succeeded the riot of the darker hours. It was the uneasy quietness which broods over a battlefield when men, whose strength is sapped by strain that has worn their nerves raw and whose minds are befogged with lack of sleep, want to relax—but dare not."

"They hugged the shallow holes they had laboriously scratched for themselves heavy-eyed and hungry and shivering in the penetrating cold in the morning."

"At Juliet Farm, Major Bennett was instructed to dispose his men for the attack. To him and his platoon officers—Lieut. T. A. Kidd, Lieut. O. G. Whelan, Lieut. G. W. Day and Lieut. H. Klotz—the scheme was outlined by Lieut.-Col. Watson. It was an operation that envisaged a frontal assault. It involved assembling in rear of and at right angles to the line occupied by the 10th and 16th Battalions; the direction to be taken was west by north—obliquely across No. 3 Company's front. In an effort to secure more definite information as to the enemy's whereabouts, reconnaissance patrols were sent out."

"The men themselves were strung back in single file, extending for some considerable distance to the rear of the farm-buildings. The word was given, and the company trudged forward, with Major Bennett in the lead. When the last man had crossed over the roadside ditch where No. 14 Platoon lay, a halt was called, and from the head of the line the command was issued to execute a left-turn. The Company's initial movements were favoured by a fold in the ground which partially concealed their assembly. Over a low ridge and about 250 yards away, were the enemy."

"In later days, when things were done differently, the assault would have been preceeded by some sort of artillery preparation. But that time was not yet. However, this was the first attack the 2nd Battalion were to make; and a realization of its character seized upon the men. They stood perfectly still, awaiting the order."

Patrols Killed

"The patrols dod not return."

"Uneasily Major Bennett requested his second-in-command, Captain Leslie Gordon, to reconnoitre the situation. He set out alone; and that was the last seen of him alive. The minutes were now lengthening: so on it would be too late to operate with any prospect of success. Lieut. Whelan was ordered forward; but as he started off Major Bennett apparently made up his mind that the time was now or never. The order was quietly passed to fix bayonets, and the Company almost at once shook itself into action."

"As if some stage-manager, having now prepared the scene, sought to inject the full elements of drama into the tragedy that followed, dawn rolled away the curtain. It disclosed a long, thin line charging wildly over the ridge and down the gentle slope toward the enemy."

"Silence had shrouded the whole German trench for the past few minutes. This was suddenly shattered by a crash of musketry. Into the teeth of a leaden storm went No. 1 Company. Major Bennet, Lieut. Day and Lieut. Klotz were instantly killed; Lieut. Kidd and Lieut. Whelan fell wounded. The line sagged, crumpled and finally was swept away. The enemy fire lasted for less than two minutes. Not one man reached the German trench. About a dozen were able to attain as far as the line held by the 10th and 16th Battalions to their right; some few crawled wounded into No. 3 Company. But as the morning brightened it revealed the field between Juliet Farm and the enemy position dotted with lifeless and writhing men The forlorn hope had failed; and No. 1 Company had ceased to exist."

He Was Cured

"Red" Young thought it wasn't manly to ge homesick, so he tried hard to forget it. But his roommate knew the symptoms. One night he said carelessly, before going out, "Why not telephone home some evening and get the news?" Later when he returned, "Red" was jubilant. "I did call home, Bill. The folks are coming down for the game. That's what the voice does! Gee, I feel great."

Peterborough's Quota to Original 2nd Battalion

PROMOTION FOR HARRY S. DAHN

Former Manager of Grand is Famous-Players District Manager.

OFFICE IN TORONTO

Harry S. Dahn, manager of the Capitol Theatre, Montreal, has been promoted to the position of district manager of the Famous Players Canadian Corporation, with offices in Toronto.

Mr. Dahn was formerly manager of the Grand Theatre and has many friends in Peterborough who will be highly pleased by his promotion.

W. M. Gladish, Ottawa, reports that the Governor-General and Viscountess Willingdon are regular film fans, often attending three shows a week.

Theatre-goers of twenty years ago may remember "The Tenderfoot," the Richard Carle musical comedy which provided a night's entertainment at the Grand here, with Oscar Figman in Carle's part. Warners-First National will put it on the screen early in the new year, with Joe E. Brown in the "I'm a Peaceable Party" role.

CANADIAN ART SHOULD BE MADE BEST IN WORLD

No Need To Go to Europe to Study Declares J. W. Beatty, R.C.A.

BEWARE OF IMPEDIMENTS.

Womens Art Association Hears Principal of Port Hope Art School.

"I made the mistake in 1900 of going to Europe to study. That is the biggest mistake and the greatest error that any native-born Canadian can make. We have a country here that is the biggest and the best and the freest in the world, and we have stuff here that can't be beaten anywhere. You can get a better artistic education in Canada to-day than you can get anywhere on earth. If we stayed right here, we could develop an art so distinctive and fine and native to our land, that a painting by a Canadian hanging in a foreign gallery would be just as easily recognized as a Canadian is to-day, walking down the Strand, by his clothes and character."

Thus making an eloquent plea for the recognition of Canadian preeminence in its own artistic line, J. W. Beatty, R.C.A., of Toronto, and principle of the Summer School of Art at Port Hope, spoke to members of the Lyceum Women's Art Association yesterday afternoon in the studios of the Conservatory of Music, takng as his subject "Experiences of a Sketcher." Mr. Beatty, whose address was refreshing and delightfully frank and sincere, brought with him a collection of charming landscape done in oils. He was introduced by the president, Mrs. W. Blackwell, who also proferred him the vote of thanks worded very aptly by Miss Letitia Elliott, at the close of his address.

Mr. Beatty spoke of the attitude toward art of half a century back and how his own father had frowned down his desired to take art lessons, stigmatizing them as "woman's work."

Liable to Arrest.

"About fifty years ago, an artist was liable to be arrested under the Vagrancy Act, a vagrant being one who had no visible means of support."

Homer Watson, said Mr. Beatty, started his working career by carrying bricks in a brickyard at the weekly wage of $2.50.

Beginners in sketching, he said, were liable to wander for miles looking for some ideal spot to sketch, forgetting that the basic idea was to take Nature as a motif and eliminate undesirable things, for, although one must never put in what wasn't there, one might eliminate nine-tenths of what was there, if one wished. Portraits, he thought, were only a matter of copying, whereas landscape work required real ability.

Recounting some of his sketching work in the Old Land, Mr. Beatty spoke of his resorting to a constant exhibit of his gold tooth while sketching in Holland, where the children would sit quietly around him as long as that glittering object was in plain view. The children of Spain were little devils, he declared, in the matter fo harassing the luckless artist.

Beware of Impediments.

Several humorous incidents were told, and the speaker warned his hearers against the type of artist who sallies forth with a complete outfit of sketching materials, a stretched canvas being a very bad sign. One of the finest water-color artists in his experience, a man named D. F. Thompson, now living in Boston, took with him only three colors, a piece of paper and a couple of brushes stuck in his pocket.

"The fate of Canadian artist' while alive was illustrated by the impoverished career of Tom Thompson, who once offered 51 of his sketches of Algonquin Park to Mr. Beatty for the sum of $250. The latter refused and raised the sum for the artist by the sale of only a few of the group. These same sketches now sell to-day for $300 each.

So with Paul Peel, who received $168 for a picture that was sold after his death, after a life almost of starvation, to the Canadian Government for $10,000.

Mr. Beatty waxed very indignant over the treatment accorded many artists by unscrupulous dealers and the manner in which invoices are falsified to bring in pictures to this country. He spoke of the small prices paid the painters by the dealers, who later demand exorbitant prices from a credulous buying public that will apparently spend almost anything for foreign pictures. A large establishment in Toronto, he declared, asked $375 for a picture that was purchased in England for the sum of two guineas.

"Under such conditions, we can't achieve a national art in Canada. It is up to you people to have confidence in your own children. That's what it means."

JAPAN'S PREMIER HOLDING HIS OWN

Foreign Minister Takes Over Reins of Government Temporarily.

POLICE FINDINGS SECRET.

TOKYO, Nov. 15.—(A.P.)— Baron Shidehara, the Foreign Minister, temporariuy took over the reins of government to-day as Premier Hamaguchi, struggling to recover from the pistol wound inflicted yesterday by a young radical, passed a critical period to the satisfaction of attending physicians.

A bulletin issued shortly before noon indicated Premier Hamaguchi was making progress. His temperature had shown a slight increase, but his pulse and respiration had slowed. He was sleeping soundly when the bulletin was issued.

Hamaguchi's mind was clear and he had questioned nurses about his assailant. Police meanwhile had not revealed anything they might have learned after hours of questioning of the 23 year old assailant, who was a member of the Aikogusha, or "Love of Country Organization." No motive for the attempted slaying at the Central railway station was known to the police.

The Cabinet, meeting this morning, named Baron Shidehara, Foreign Minister, as Acting Premier during Hamaguchi's incapacity.

THE WARDERS

On Vimy Ridge and Passchendaele
Our silent armies sleep,
Through summer's sun and winter's gale
And neath the starry deep;
No more for them the dawn of day,
Nor sunset on the hill,
Their shouts and songs have died away,
Their giant strength is still.

The march of time goes swiftly by
And brings its care and toil,
But in eternal youth they lie
Beneath a foreign soil;
With iron limbs and fire for breath
They charged amidst the gloom,
And shared along those fields of death
The comradeship of doom.

Yet not in vain they watch and wait,
Strong champions of the right,
They are the warders at our gate
And guard us through the night.
From selfish aim and paltry ease,
From slavery of the soul,
The men that saved the land are these
They point us to the goal.

Monthly Meeting Of King Edward Assoc.

The monthly meeting of King Edward Home and School Association was held on Friday afternoon in the Assembly Hall, with a fine attendance. The preident, Mrs J. J. Pollock, occupied the chair, and conducted the business of the day. The meeting was opened with a devotional service. The minutes were read and adopted, and furnished considerable new business to be taken up. A most encouraging report was given by the treasurer, and accepted. After discussion, a motion was made by Mrs. Price and Mrs. Groombridge that a donation be made to the Home and School Federation for the Dr. Marty Fund. Letters of thanks for kindness shown in gifts of flowering plants sent during illness were received from Mesdames Warne, Price, and Roberts. Arrangements for a large bridge and euchre party was the chief item of business, creating much enthusiasm and pleasant anticipation. Committees were chosen for the different phases of work, one of these being the draw for the Kenwood blanket for which tickets have been sold, and many other valuable prizes. The affair will be held on Thursday evening November 27 in the Legion Hall. The meeting closed with "God Save the King."

UNABLE TO ATTEND RE-UNION BUT SEND THEIR BEST WISHES

Among the numerous notices of regret from officers, N.C.O.'s and men of the 2nd Battalion who are unable to come here for the reunion, and who express their hope that the occasion will be one of great joy and success, are the following:—

From Rev. William Beattie

From the first padre of the Battalion, Rev. William Beattie, D.D., C.M.G., V.D. "If you are reading greetings from absent ones, tell the boys I'll be thinking pretty strong about them, especially about 'lights out.' We will all think, too, of the long absent ones who come not again to any of our feasts—the splendid fellows who went over on the old Cassandra or who joined us later and paid the full price. God bless their memory and make us more worthy of them, is the prayer of your first Chaplain."

From Lt.-Col. H. J. Smith

Lieut.-Colonel H. J. Smith, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, in mentioning that he has a prior engagement that will prevent his attendance, says, "I regret it very much because I had counted greatly on being able to meet a lot of old friends of War days."

Flying Officer R. O. Denman, R.A.F. and 2nd Batt., writes from Hamilton, "I regret I shall not be able to attend the reunion."

Colonel Thomas H. Kidd, M.L.A., of Kingston, has a business engagement which will keep him in the West for some four weeks.

Major R. de W. Waller, M.C., of Brandon, Manitoba, expresses keen disappointment at his inability to attend.

Colonel H. F. H. Hertzberg, C.M.G., D.S.O., H.Q. No. 2 Toronto. "Unfortunately the inspection of the Ontario Regiment at Oshawa takes place on Saturday night, which will prevent my attendance at Peterborough."

Quartermaster R. Pearson

Ralph Pearson, Quartermaster, 2nd Battalion, "I would very much like to be at the reunion particularly that I might renew acquaintanceship with some of you chaps whom I have not met in the past eleven years. Unfortunately I cannot make it on November 15th."

Brigadier-General A. E. Swift, D.S.O. of Dane, Ontario, "Very sorry I cannot be with you this year, much to my regret. It would have been a pleasure to meet old comrades again. The fame of the 2nd Battalion is well known, as one of the best fighting units in France. I think the Battalion was fortunate to have such commanding officers as the late General Watson, to the last O.C., Colonel McLaughlin."

Sergeant-Major Bradley

Sergeant-Major J. H. Bradley, M.M., D.C.M., writing from St. John's Hospital, Long Island, N.Y., "See in one of the Canadian newspapers to-day that the old Batt. is having a reunion at Peterborough. You don't know how I should like to be there, but here I am with a compound fracture of the right leg, and don't expect to get out before the first of the year. Give my best to all the boys of the Batt. and tell them that I would like to hear from them now or at any time." Sergeant-Major Bradley's address is 120 Delhi street, Port Colborne, Ontario.

Lieut. L. F. Green, of Belleville, "Owing to the serious illness of a relative will be unable to be present, but trust you will have a most pleasant time."

Captain Bill Sneath of Ottawa, "Replying to operation order of 2nd Batt. I am enclosing $2.00 for the 'eats' with very little chance of being present. My heart will be with you all in any case."

Clarence F. Dafoe, of 8 Platoon, now of Gilmour, Ontario, sends his regards to all old comrades, with his sincere regrets at his inability to attend.

W. H. Eaton of Cornwall also sends his regrets and congratulates the boys on their reunion which he is assured will be a grand success.

Major Edwin Deerham of the Soo Rifles, "It is with sincere regrets I find it necessary to forego the extreme pleasure that will undoubtedly be the outcome of this reunion."

Captain F. C. Biggar, head office Canadian Bank of Commerce, "Much as I regret it I find it will be quite impossible to attend the Battalion reunion. It would be pleasant to have a chance to see all my old friends once more. However, as it cannot be done, I must grin and bear it."

H. Hartshorn of Kingston, Ontario, "Find it impossible to attend. My thoughts will be with you and the boys. May it turn out a huge success from every angle."

Bandmaster W. Christmas, P.W.O. Regiment, Kingston, "Regret to state I will be unable to attend the reunion, but hope it will be such a success that it will become an annual

Captain F. H. Pratten, M.B., F.A.C.P., of the Queen Alexandra Sanitarium, London, "Was pleased indeed to receive a line from you again. I am all in favor of a reunion every year of the good old 2nd Battalion and will do all in my power to assist in this matter."

GENERAL SIR ARTHUR CURRIE
Commander of the Canadian Army Corps.

"It is a pleasure to send cordial greetings to my old comrades of the 2nd Battalion as they meet once more to renew the loyal friendships formed in the War Days."

"My heartfelt hope is that your gathering may be a joyous reunion, reminiscent of those arduous but splendid hours of the past, and that you will rededicate yourselves to that unselfish association and faithful endeavour which ever characterised the Canadian Corps and contributed so greatly to its glory."—A. W. Currie.

CANADIAN ART

he said, send to the United States for their designs, when better designers may be had in their own country.

"And these things come in duty free, as a manufactured article, although I must pay 25 to 30 p.c. for everything I bring in, in the raw state. What is the matter with our Canadian people?

"Art is the only industry in Canada that has no protection and that is because you people have not sufficient confidence in your own people and in your own designs, to entrust them with your work."

Going back to the problem of the inefficient artist who will not work hard, Mr. Beatty spoke of one such of his acquaintance, in the Old Land, who was always going to do something and never quite accomplished it. This man informed his associates one day that he was about to make a collection of his masterpieces, and divide them into three sections "the Important Pictures, the Clever Sketches and the Little Gems."

Tea was served, at the conclusion of the address.

ARCTIC BOUDOIRS ICILY FURNISHED

But Out-of-door Life and Subzero Climate Fine For Health, Says Physician.

SYDNEY, N.S. Nov. 15—The simplicity and satisfaction of frozen beans for breakfast, the solid comfor of deer-skin-covered beds of ice, the Eskimo's joy in the "makings of spring"—these and a score other characteristics of the Arctic combine to give a vivid picture of the white man's life in the north, as conveyed in letters reaching Sydney from Dr. Hugh A. Stuart, who has completed a year of service in the land of midnight sunshine.

Dr. Stuarts' communication reached Sydney late last month by the government ship Boethic, on which Dr. Stuart returned to his station at Pangnirtung, Baffin Land, from Pond's Inlet, whither he had gone—covering the 950 miles by dog-team in 52 days—in order to examine enroute all the natives on the east coast of Baffin Land to determine the prevalence of tuberculosis.

Leaving Pangnirtung on February 14, with dog-team and native, Dr. Stuart was forced to return a week later, when his tent was blown to ribbons by a blizzard. For two days and nights he was forced to huddle under the remains. The second trip, however, begun on March 14 and ending on May 15, was uneventful. It was the second time a through run from Pangnirtung to Pond's Inlet had been made by a white man.

Have Cold Spells.

Dr. Stuart says the weather last winter was "quite good." There were some cold spells—about 45 degrees below zero, but it was clear, for the most part. "The out of door life has suited me splendidly," he continues, "and I have already gained fifteen pounds. All year I have been in perfect health and have never had even an ordinary cold. It is one of the remarkable things about this country, that in spite of the extraordinary exposure to cold, no one ever gets pneumonia . . . the climate, despite the rigors, is an excellent one for good health."

"The house is a small affair of three rooms, consisting of a bedroom, kitchen and dispensary. The floors are of hardwood and they are very well laid, so it is not exactly an igloo.

"Of course, I have slept many times in snow igloos since coming here and I hasten to say that they are very comfortable.

"They are built in a very masterly manner, of snow-blocks and are perfectly wind proof. The sleeping bench made of ice, is well covered with the warm deer-skins and with a large judlik (seal-oil lamp) burning it is a pleasure to lie there listening to the wind howling outside.

"When travelling by dog-team with my native I use merely a silk tent at night for sleeping accommodation. Deer-skins are placed on the floor under which tanned seal-skins to keep the snow from wetting them and on top of this we put our sleeping bags.

"The sleeping bag is a very excellent bit of Arctic equipment—made of heavy khaki stuffed with eider-down. The only indication of cold is that you usually have to break away the ice that has frozen all around the small aperture through which you have been breathing.

"On awakening in the morning the small kerosene pump stove is lighted and with its strong heat the interior of the small tent is oven-like in a few minutes.

"Breakfast usually consists of heated up beans which have been carried, already cooked, frozen in small patties. The beans contain plenty of fat and molasses so they readily heat up. This with black tea and pilot biscuit makes a simple and satisfying basis for the day.

"On December 25th the sun at Pangnirtung just shows as a red rim, and then sinks again. This is the shortest day. However, despite the fact that the sun is below the horizon. There is still enough twilight to enable us to travel for a few hours.

"Conversely, in the summer time on June 25th the sun does not set at all. Here at Pond Inlet, which is considerably farther north than is Pangnirtung, the sun did not set from May 20th till July 25th round and round in the sky it travelled in an endless orbit. During the day the sun is quite near and its rays are hot. At night, although it still shines, it is on the other side of the earth, so the heat emanating from it is negligible

"This would be an ideal country for a sun-worshipper. It is a great sight to see the returning friend' in the winter and although it is only a red disc without heat it brings promise of sunnier and warmer days to come.

"The Eskimos have a very apt and impressive terminology for their seasons. They do not jump abruptly from one season to another, but instead intervene a makings of a season' in between. The 'makings of spring' is a splendid time of year—that is when the surprises higher and higher in the heavens and develops signs of being a centre of heat The young seals are being born in their cosy igloos and the older seals are coming up through their holes in the ice to sun themselves. Here and there along the land snow is melting sufficiently to form small rivulets. This is the time of year for travelling, and it is a joy indeed. Dogfeed is plentiful—young seals on the ice—days are long and warm and the bone-runners of the komatik run easily over the snow.

"The days soon lengthen—so that on May 20th (at Pond Inlet) a little later than at Pangnirtung—the sun no longer sets. However, in the same fashion that the days lengthen in spring, so do they rapidly shorten in the fall and now each day can be seen visibly shorter than the previous one.

EX-PREMIER BALDWIN HOLDS HIS PARTY THROUGH ORATORY

Wickham Steed, Well Known Publicist, Tells of Leader's Life in "The Real Stanley Baldwin."

PASSED TRYING TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—(By Thos. T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff, Correspondent)—When the last General Election deprived him of office Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin could say truthfully that for every pound he had possessed when he entered 10 Downing Street, only one shilling remained when he left. This is one of the many entertaining reflections in a book called "The Real Stanley Baldwin," published here by Nisbet. The author is Wickham Steed, the well-known publicist and one-time editor of "The Times."

Exactly 10 years before that election an anonymous letter appeared in "The Times," in which the writer said he had decided to realize 20 per cent of his estate, purchase $750,000 of War Loan, and present the same to the Government for cancellation. The writer of that letter was Stanley Baldwin.

Men still know little of him, says Mr. Stead, and it is not certain they now wish to know more. Mr. Steed attributes Mr. Baldwin's revolt against the Lloyd George coalition Cabinet in October, 1922, which proved to be the point in his own political career, to "moral and subjective" motives not unlike those which inspired self-sacrifice of June, 1919.

The General Strike of 1926, in the opinion of the author of this book, was the hour of Mr. Baldwin's greatest opportunity, yet he himself collapsed. He missed "the tide" in his affairs. Thereafter his voyage was "bound in shallows and in miseries." How then can his hold upon his Party, and upon public opinion beyond the ranks of his Party, be accounted for? The explanation lies mainly in his oratory. His "plain speech" goes home. For rhetoric he confesses contempt, though he is by no means innocent of it. He has claimed that he escaped from his youthful servitude to "fine language and beautiful expressions" at the age of 18, when he read Froude's denunciation of oratory as "the harlot of the arts."

Coming to events of the present moment, Mr. Steed declares that where Mr. Baldwin has failed, or appeared to fail, has been in steady determination to go ahead and get things done. This is why Lord Beaverbrook's campaign for "Empire Free Trade" made so strong an initial impression. Such success as it achieved was due to the impression that, in an hour of confusion, and faint-heartedness, Lord Beaverbrook was determined to "get something done"; and to the psychological insight into the character of the English people which he showed by taking the ostensibly unpopular cry of "food taxes" as the starting point of a popular campaign. Lord Beaverbrook's arguments may be specious. Some of his "facts" may be wrong. His suggestion that the peoples of the Dominions will tumble over themselves in their anxiety to provide markets for British manufacturers is certainly wide of the mark. But he has challenged, the self-hypnotising refrain, "The people will never stand food taxes," which Conservatives and Liberals alike have chanted to each other in paralysing antiphony for a generation. Lord Beaverbrook doubtless remembers the egregious misreading of the temper of the country during the war by eminent politicians who imagined that the people "would never stand" this or that demand upon their patriotism.

Of late, the author asserts, there have been signs that a new sort of Baldwin may be in process of evolution—a fighting Baldwin, a Baldwin with a punch. Lord Rothermere has been, unwittingly, the chief cultivator of this "rare and refreshing fruit." Between him and Mr. Baldwin there has long been a lack of reciprocal admiration; and the assumption is plausible that Mr. Baldwin's dealings with Lord Beaverbrook would be less ambiguous had Lord Beaverbrook's relationship to Lord Rothermere been more clearly defined. The two "Press Lords," sometimes known as the "Wicked Uncles," are associates in the "newspaper industry." Now and again they have thrown bouquets at each other in public. At other times they have exchanged epithets, in private. What Lord Rothermere does not know about the finance of the "newspaper industry" is hardly worth knowing; but if he flatters himself that he is also a journalist, in the same sense in which Lord Northcliffe was a journalist, he is the victim of vainglorious self-delusion, Mr. Steed comments.

Lord Beaverbrook, on the other hand, says Mr. Steed, is something more than a newspaper financier. He is endowed with a certain degree of political sense, and he possesses a moral courage from which Lord Rothermere is immune. By degrees he has won a meed of recognition even as a journalist. Moreover, his aims go beyond the mere making of money and the using of it for his political purposes. In the secret places of his heart there may lurk an ambition to prove to the people of Canada, who have sometimes reviled him, that, on the broader stage of British and Imperial affairs, he is a very considerable actor and a credit to the senior Dominion. In any event, his opposition to Mr. Baldwin and to the official organizers of the Conservative Party seems to be prompted rather by public than by private consideration.

The breach, if breach it be, between Lord Beaverbrook and Mr. Baldwin may therefore be neither so deep nor so wide as that between Mr. Baldwin and Lord Rothermere.

Check dandruff!

You, too, can say goodbye to hair-worries, if you'll learn this simple method of caring for the hair. It is known to hundreds of stage and screen stars; used by thousands of women and girls, who haven't time for laborious methods.

Sprinkle a little Danderine on your brush to-night. Then as you brush your hair you'll feel the soothing, toning effects.

For over 20 years, specialists have recommended Danderine; to dissolve the crust of dandruff; stop falling hair; tone the scalp, encourage the hair to grow long, silky and abundant.

The first application gives your hair new life and lustre; makes it softer; easier to manage; holds it like you arrange it. Evidence beyond doubt proves the benefits of its regular use.

Memories Revived as 2nd Battalion Hold Reunion

Eastern Ontario's Originals Left Behind a Proud Record Of Over 4 Years' Service

When the Call Came in the Early Days of August, 1914, Peterborough Contributed Her Share of 124 Men and Officers From 57th Regiment.

IN COURSE OF GREAT CAREER AT THE BATTLE FRONT RECRUITS FROM ALL PARTS OF CANADA JOINED UNIT

(By Harold Robson)

Proud memories are revived through the reunion in this city of the Second battalion, Canadian Expeditionary Force, (The "Iron Seconds")—memories of those early days in August 1914, when Canada's offer of an army division to Great Britain was gratefully accepted. Hearts swell with pride as we remember how the subsequent call for 20,000 volunteers was answered with an enthusiasm unqualled in the history of the world; the response of Peterborough and district; the departure of the first contingent of volunteers from the 57th Regiment and the Prince of Wales' Dragoons, who were destined to become a unit of the 2nd. Battalion mainly recruited from Central Ontario.

Our thoughts go back to those days of preliminary training at Valcartier Camp among the blue Laurentian Hills; the departure of the great Armada of thirty-three transports which carried the First Division C.E.F. across the Atlantic without a hitch; of the intensive period of training for warfare in the quagmires of Salisbury Plain and of the countless glorious deeds of heroism and gallantry on the fields of France and Flanders, where the Second Battalion won the proud title of the "Iron Second."

General Sir Arthur Currie, Commander-in-Chief of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces during the Great War, said of the Second Battalion, "In all the years of the War this battalion has never lost an inch of ground, nor failed to take an objective."

The Personnel.

The 57th Regiment's initial contribution to the Second Battalion was 124 men while also from this city went the Dragoon's volunteers. Lieutenant-Colonel Watson of Quebec was in command of the Second Battalion with Lieut.-Colonel Rogers of the Dragoons second-in-command. Major Joseph Mills of Peterborough, quartermaster; Captain Garnet Greer, M.D., also of this city, the M.O.; and Lieut. R. W. F. Jones of the Dragoons, transport officer. Major G. W. Bennett commanded A Company having with him Lieut. C. H. Ackerman.

Departing from this city on August 22nd, 1914, the local unit saw service as part of the Second Battalion until the signing of the Armistice, and returned on April 24, 1919.

The "Iron Second" was one of the first original battalions of the Army of Occupation, and was the first infantry to cross the German frontier south-west of Malmedy on December 4, 1918.

124 Men Enlisted

In those August days when the newspapers were crying that the Hun was at the gate and Armadegdon seemed to impend, there were activities of preparedness at the armouries just at the time when the 57th Regiment had planned a trip to Windsor. This peace jaunt suddenly cancelled, the men were expectantly awaiting the call to the colours and on August 7th, Colonel E. B. Clegg, the officer commanding the regiment, received authorization from the Militia Department to accept recruits for service overseas for the duration of the war. In five days the company allotted to Peterborough was complete, and these first recruits were nearly all members of the 57th Militia Regiment. On August 12th, the list for volunteers was closed, and the company of four officers and 124 men was introduced to "bikes" and squad drill that proved at least a pleasant emory in the strenuous training that began at Valcartier.

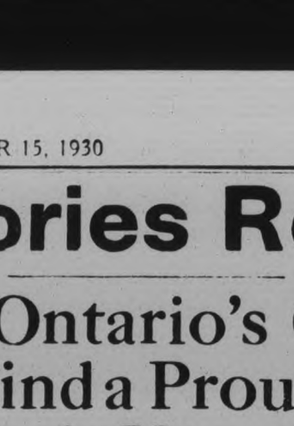
Planned Re-Union



MAJOR G. G. WINTERBOTTOM

Second in command of the Peterborough Rangers and one of the originals of the Second Battalion who has taken a prominent part in planning the re-union in this city.

Followed a brief two weeks of feverish waiting for the orders to depart, and on the evening of August 21st the order was telegraphed to Colonel Clegg. The next morning the company as a unit bade morning the company as a unit bade farewell to the old town and stepped off on the first stage of the great adventure which was destined to become a seemingly endless Gethsemane.

The volunteers wore the old red coats of the local regiment when they paraded at the Central Park, where Major Davidson (now Archdeacon Major Davidson) conducted a short service of intercession, praying for the safety of the nation and of the soldiers. Them en repeated with him the Lord's prayer and sang a verse of the National Anthem. Navor Buller gave the company a final message and extended the city's formal good-bye promising the soldiers that the city would protect and care for their families. The tense, dramatic scene and poignant emotions, were quickly relieved by the realignment of the men into marching order and the command that called them away.

That was a lovely summer morning. The sky was a soft blue and the sun warmed the fresh morning air, which seemed to sparkle with a strange brightness as the volunteers swung down George street to the regimental tune of "The Lass O' Gowrie". The first popular song of the new army, "It's a Long Way to Tipperary" had not at that time attained its vogue in Canada.

Re-inforced Often

Such was the departure, and the faces that did not return are still fresh impressions on the memories of many as their proud but tender thoughts go back over the years that are gone, on this memorable occasion. Following the departure of the first contingent of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, the "Iron Second" was continually re-inforced with men from other battalions and units, and many other men from Peterborough and district were destined to see active service in it's ranks, and to find a last resting place beside their heroic comrades who lie buried in the glorious fields of France and Flanders.

The first reinforcements to the 2nd Battalion were drawn from the 11th Battalion and after the second battle of Ypres in which the "Iron Second" sustained severe osses, they were reinforced by a company from the 32nd Battalion (Alberta). Likewise at Givenchy the 2nd Battalion suffered such enormous casualties that it was necessary to draw two companies as reinforcements from the 38th Battalion (Ottawa).

Glorious Record

The 2nd Battalion, the "Iron Second," mobilized at Valcartier on the 12th of August, 1914, and is one of the veteran battalions of the original expeditionary force.

It was recruited largely from Eastern Ontario, but in the course of its fighting career received reinforcements from every province in the Dominion. Latterly, however, when the territorial idea was developed within the corps, the 2nd Battalion regained its original identity with the eastern counties and went under canvas at Salisbury Plain.

After three and a half months' miserable soldiering in the quagmires of the plain, the battalion sailed for France and landed at St. Nazaire in February, 1915.

Entering the trenches at Armentieres it was broken in by the equally famous fighting unit, the North Staffordshire Regiment, prior to holding its own sector at Bois Grenier.

Marching north in April, 1915, the battalion was heavily engaged in the severe fighting around Langemarck and Polecappelle, at the second battle of Ypres.

The first infantry brigade, of which the 2nd Battalion was a unit, were in reserve in Boesinghe. Before the battle the English and Canadians held the line from Broodseinde to a point half a mile north of St. Julien on the crest of Grafenstafel Ridge. The French prolonged this line to Steenstrate on the Yperlee Canal. The Canadian division held a line extending about five miles from the Ypres-Roulers railway to the Ypres-Poelcappelle Road. The division in the front line consisted of two brigades of infantry and the artillery brigades.

About five o'clock on April 22nd, chlorine gas was projected from a large number of cylinders brought into the German front line trenches, and was carried by a gentle breeze over the Canadian and French lines. The native French soldiers sustained the brunt of the gas attack and gave way all along the line. The consequence was that the Canadian line remained with its flank exposed. The third brigade, under Brigadier-General Turner, on the left, was to some extent disorganised by the gas, but the men held firm.

As the German line pressed forward through the gap left by the retreating French it was necessary for the third brigade to swing around to the south to prevent envelopment. It was not found possible to throw the first infantry brigade into the line at a moment's notice, and the enemy, advancing rapidly, reached St. Julien in the rear of the original French line.

A counter-attack was made by the 10th and 16th Battalions after midnight on April 22-23, and the third brigade was shortly reinforced by the second, third, seventh and tenth battalions and fought desperately all night long.

Canadians Called Up

At dawn on the following day the second brigade still held its position, but the third Canadian brigade had swung back upon St. Julien. At this time the Germans made a powerful attempt to outflank the third brigade, and it was then to afford relief that the first and fourth Canadian battalions were called upon to counter-attack.

The attack was pushed home in broad daylight in the face of heavy frontal fire. It was made in the face of tremendously superior odds, but the trenches were won back and held until the remnants of these shattered but victorious battalions (the first and fourth), were relieved by fresh troops.

The Canadians had proved themselves beyond all question and, in the words of Sir John French, had saved the situation.

The effect of the Canadian losses was immediately felt in all its significance throughout the Dominion. The division had sustained 6,000 casualties, with the 2nd Battalion suffering its full tragic portion.

Withdrawn to Bailleul, the battalion was reorganized, and sent south to Festubert where it supported the attack on the Orchard, which was launched by the Canadian Highlanders on May 20th, 1915. After sustaining heavy casualties here, through machine-gun fire and unexpected delays from ditches and barbed wire the Orchard position was taken.

A month later the battalion saw service at Givenchy, which, taken as a whole, was but an isolated battle in the long struggle that occurred on the western front; it was, in reality, a very bloody affair for the Canadian division. From Givenchy the battalion proceeded north and took over a section at "Plug Street." The section at "Plug Street" seemed peculiarly familiar to men from Ontario, for on first impression it reminded them of the old holiday grounds of Muskoka. In the woods numerous log houses had been built, resembling those of campers in Muskoka, while rustic fences, gates and trellis work completed the illusion that this was a section of one of Canada's summer playgrounds.

Winter in Trenches

In October, 1915, the "Iron Second" side-slipped and held the line throughout the winter of 1915 at Wulverghem, in front of Messines. Nothing unusual occurred on the Canadian front until March, 1916, when the third British division on the bluff in front of St. Eloi sprang a series of mines which shook the country around for miles, like an earthquake. The 2nd Battalion was withdrawn from Wulverghem again to proceed north. At the end of April it was in action at Hill 60, and was deeply committed in the fighting at Ypres six weeks later.

The next engagement of the 2nd Battalion was on the Somme—the battle in which tanks were brought into action for the first time, successfully co-operating with the infantry and giving valuable help in breaking down enemy resistance. The tanks were used on September 12. It was the first Canadian unit to attack during that great battle, in which it greatly distinguished itself. Six weeks were spent on the Somme and severe casualties were suffered in the various small operations in which this unit participated.

Moving by march route the 2nd Battalion took over Vimy Ridge sector in front of Souchez in October and passed the winter in this vicinity.

In April, 1917, it was again in action at the capture of this famous ridge, and a month later again attacked at Fresnoy, northeast of Oppy.

Withdrawn for a brief rest the 2nd Battalion became involved again in the fighting at Hill 70, and was the battalion which bore the brunt of the heavy counter-attacks by the 4th Prussian Guard. The grimness and stubbornness of its resistance earned for it great praise from the army and corps commanders and fully justifies the proud title of the "Iron Second."

It was at Hill 70 that Major O. Learmouth, O.C. 3rd Company, 2nd Battalion, won the Victoria Cross. The other holder of the coveted decoration in the battalion is Sergeant Bomber Leo Clarke, who won the V.C. at Pozieres on the Somme.

General Sir Arthur Currie, Commander of the Canadian Army Corps, in his introduction to a complete and authentic history of the part played by Canada and the British Empire during the World War, written by Colonel George Nasmith, C.M.G., and to whom The Examiner makes acknowledgment for many important facts in compiling this brief history of the heroic 2nd Battalion, said of Major Learmouth:

Tribute to Learmouth

"Our men had to form up in very exposed ground between Arleux and Fresnoy. The shelling was extremely heavy, and only those who have waited in a heavily shelled area, for the zero hour, know the tension that existed. In order to set an example to his men," states General Currie, "Learmouth knelt and prayed to the God of Battles in whom men have more than ever learned to put their trust. Learmouth took part with his battalion (the 'Iron Second') again in the fighting at Hill 70. In one of the innumerable counter-attacks delivered by the enemy, our men faced for the first time liquid fire Jumping on the parapet, Learmouth shouted, 'Second Battalion, we hold this trench for Canada. Not a man must leave.' With his revolver he shot down the leading attackers. Standing on the parapet he hurled bombs at the enemy and drove them back, himself catching and returning bombs that were thrown at him. He was badly wounded and fell back into the trench. His men wanted to carry him out, but he refused to leave. His men assured him that the trench would be held as long as one of them was alive, for the 2nd Battalion in all the years of the war has never lost an inch of ground nor failed to take an objective.

"Learmouth fainted, and his comrades carried him out. He revived and recognized that he was near battalion headquarters. He insisted on seeing the battalion commander, reported the situation, what had occurred, and advised as to steps that might be taken to make the position more secure. He again fainted and never recovered consciousness.

"In these paragraphs," states Sir Arthur, "I have tried to point out some of the salient characteristics of the Canadian soldier. Vigorous, clean-minded, good-humored, unselfish, intelligent and thorough: not leaving anything to chance; fully imbued with a sense of their responsibility and the determination to win. The qualities that made him to become rapidly one of the best soldiers in the field. He is going back now to civil life still possessing these qualities, while having learned in addition the value of well-organized, collective effort, backed by self-restraint and discipline. The change from the indescribable sufferings endured on the battlefields to the normal conditions of life is so great that the mental readjustment necessary may require some time, and make a call on the sympathetic care of the nation, but I have every confidence that the period of transition will be short."

In October, 1917, the 2nd Battalion marched north again to Ypres, and took part in the attack on Paschendaele, returning to its old sector in the vicinity of Lens. At a later date it was sent back for a rest and reorganization to Chamblain-Chatelain.

January, 1918, saw the battalion again at Hill 70 and fighting with great determination during the local attacks which the Germans staged in accompaniment to their great offensive against the Fifth Army.

In a few days the 2nd was hurried south with the intention of throwing it in against the heavy attack of the enemy south of Albert, but on 28th of March the Germans commenced their offensive against the Third Army east of Arras.

The battalion was diverted, and on The battalion was diverted, and on the night of March 28th marched on to Telegraph Hill to relieve the wearied troops who had withdrawn from Monchy that morning.

For a few weeks the 2nd Battalion held the line in the vicinity of the Scarpe River, before being sent back for a rest, which lasted for nearly ten weeks.

On the 8th and 9th of August this unit attacked on successive days at Amiens, taking part in the great counter-offensive. Two weeks later it returned to Arras and attacked at Upton Wood, north of Hendecourt. On September 2nd and 3rd it took part in the breaching of the Drocourt-Queant line, and advanced as far as the Canal du Nord, north of Inchy.

On the 27th of September the battalion was again prominent in the fighting at Bourlon Wood, west of Cambrai, where it captured 14 guns. This was the last big engagement of the 2nd Battalion. The pursuit of the enemy from the Sensee Canal to north of Valenciennes did not call for so much for fighting as for endurance.

When the Armistice was signed the 2nd Battalion was in rest at Rieulay, between Denain and Douai. It was, hwever, one of the original battalions of the Army of Occupation, and was the first infantry to cross the German frontier southwest of Malmedt on the 4th of December, 1918.

Nine days later it marched through the streets of Cologne and across the Rhine, to hold the bridgehead north of Sieburg.

Withdrawn from Germany on the 10th of January, 1919, the battalion returned to Belgium.

Triumphant Return

The 2nd Battalion, in command of Lieut.-Colonel McLaughlin, D.S.O., well known in Peterborough, reached Kingston at 4 o'clock on the afternoon of April 23, 1919, disentraining at the Tete du Pont barracks, where they were welcomed by thousands of people. Headed by their own band and with a mounted escort furnished by the R. C. H. A., and a large number of war veterans in uniform, the "Iron Second" marched to the market square, marched to the market square, they were formally welcomed by Brigadier-General Victor Williams, G. O. C. No. 3 Military District, and Mayor Newman of Kingston. Afterward there was a triumphal parade through flag-brightened streets, and then the battalion marched to the barracks at Barriefield where they were billeted.

The artillery units and other details who arrived on the second train at 9 o'clock, were given a similar reception and cheered by an even larger crowd.

There are not many Peterborough Original Firsts back with the "Iron Seconds," stated The Examiner in reporting the sad fact on the arrival of the battalion fresh from the fields of battle. There were three found, however, in the persons of Regimental Sergt.-Major Ernest Nicholls, D.C.M.; Sergeant Harry Kelsey and Corporal Stan Bucknell, with the battalion, although another of the originals, Sergeant William Hale, came in on the second train, having been transferred from the 2nd Battalion to a machine-gun unit.

Sergeant-Major Nicholls, who was a member of the 57th Regiment, and who left Peterborough in August, 1914, as a sergeant in the 57th detachment, has probably as long a record as any who came back with the battalion. He has since been promoted to the rank of Captain—a rank which he now holds in the 57th Regiment. He was slightly wounded in the battle of Ypres in April, 1915, and was in hospital for a short time, later rejoining his battalion, and winning the D. C. M. and promotion to sergeant-major. Sergeant Kelsey and Corporal Bucknell also have a record of service since the 2nd Battalion went to France, as has Sergeant Hele, whose father and two brothers also served in France.

Well-known Peterborough boys who came back with the 2nd Battalion were Sergeant Allan Wade and Private Stanley Wade. The two brothers went overseas with the 39th Battalion but were transferred to the 2nd. Sergeant Allan Wade was awarded the Belgian Croix de Guerre.

Accompany the end Battalion was a company of men who were attached to the 2nd, as they wanted to get an early discharge at Kingston. Among them was Pte. D. G. Hatton, son of the late Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, who served at the front with the 5th Battalion, and Ptes. Chris McGrath and E. W. Bailey, former members of the 93rd Battalion who were at the front with the 1st Battalion.

There were no Peterborough officers with the 2nd Battalion when they arrived at Kingston, Captain T. W. B. Marling, of Lakefield, who went overseas with the 93rd, being the only officer from the immediate district to return with the battalion, while Acting-Major G. G. Winterbottom, M.C. (bar); D.C.M. (now Major in the Peterborough Rangers), was in the Royal Free Hospital, London, England.

The special train bearing the men back home was an hour later than was expected, but large crowds of people endured the cold and waited about the G.T.R. station and stretched away down Charlotte street and up George street, to welcome the returning men with an enthusiastic reception.

The procession to the Armouries was led by the 57th Regimental Band, followed by the Boy Scouts, the Reception Committee of the City Council, the G.W.V.A. band at full strength and a full line of veterans. It was highly fitting that the escort for the soldiers was composed of veterans of the 2nd Battalion who had been previously invalided home. The Salvation Army Band and a string of automobiles followed the cars that contained the returning men.

The crowd nearly filled the Armouries when Mayor Duncan delivered the city's address of welcome. Alderman Turner, of the reception committee, voiced a warm welcome, after which he called for cheers. The home-coming soldiers were then claimed by their friends and former comrades. The joy of reunion proved contagious to those who could only envy the happiness that pervaded the swirling crowd about the platform.

Officers at Demobilization.

The officers with the Battalion on arrival at Kingston following the Armistice, were as follows: Lieut.-Colonel L. T. McLaughlin, D.S.O.; Major R. Vanderwater, D.S.O.; Major R. de W. Waller, M.C.; Captain D. Paton, M.C.; Captain H. H. Hester; Captain P. C. Band, M.C.; Captain W. W. Murray M.C.; Captain H. Smith, M.C., M.M.; Captain H. Pym; Lieut. R. N. Broad, M.C., M.M.; Lieut. We Strive to Reason Why

We are those who paid the price
That brought you victory;
We are those who threw the dice
And won obscurity,
We are those you cheered along
Because we took your cause;
We are those you knew were wrong
And tore with hateful claws;
We are those who won and lost
But mingle in the grave;
We are those who know the cost
Because of lives we gave.

Foemen yesterday were we,
But now we're just the dead.
Dead—but souls in amity
Without a single dread.
We have learned behind the veil;
That strife goes not beyond;
Only Love and Peace prevail
To form a lasting bond.
Feuds of worldy days no more,
We strive to reason why
Those we left do not explore
The paths of Peace so nigh.

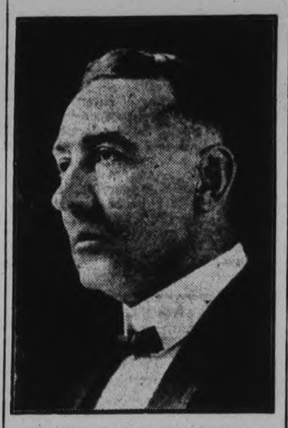
Killed in Action



MAJOR GEORGE W. BENNETT

Commander of "A" Company, Second Battaloin, who was killed in action at the Battle of St. Julien in April, 1925.

PERCY TOWNSHIP LOSES PIONEER

Mrs. W. McClelland, Oldest Resident, Succumbs in Norham After Long Illness.

WAS IN 98TH YEAR.

NORHAM, Nov. 15 (Examiner Correspondence).—The death occurred on Tuesday evening, in the village of Norham, of Mrs. William McClelland, in her 98th year. Deceased was the oldest resident in the township of Percy.

Mrs. McClelland's maiden name was Sarah Jane Reddick and she was born in Demorestville, in 1833.

At the age of 18, she was married to Mr. William McClelland and settled at Salem, near Colborne. Some years later, they moved to a farm near Norham, now occupied by Mr. J. Woddard.

About thirty-five years ago they moved to Norham villege to the home which they now occupy.

Mr. McClelland predeceased her twenty-seven years ago.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Tweed of Norham and Mrs. George Goheen of Brighton and one son, George of Norham with whom she has lived.

Four years ago this month, Mrs. McClelland had the misfortune to fall and break her hip and since that time she has been confined to her bed. Mrs. McClelland was a member of the Anglican Church.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. Major Belford of Codrington.

He based his remarks on the text, "Death is swallowed up in victory."

"Death is the one thing everyone is afraid of," said the speaker. It was the passing from the known to the unknown that caused the fear. But it should not be so. The physical is this life, and the spiritual life is what is beyond. If we can think of death as a door to a future life of happiness, that fear is removed."

Mr. Belford spoke of the number of years the deceased had lived. In her girlhood days, it was the time of slow things—oxen and slow developments. She had seen a country grow from a small colony. She had been a pioneer and had endured many hardships in a new country. Much honor is due to the pioneers.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. P. Windover, W. Campbell, N. Gummer, H. Curtis, F. Meneilly, and W. Crealock. Interment was in the Stone cemetery.

QUEEN VICTORIA WAS STRONG IN POLITICS TO THE LAST

Aged Queen Kept Tight Hand on Foreign Policy and Had Firm Views on Most Subjects. New Volume of Her Letters Shows.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—(By Thos. T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).—By the permission of King George a volume, edited by G. E. Buckle and published by Murray, appears here comprising the third series of "Letters of Queen Victoria." The book covers the five years from 1886 to 1890. In political affairs it includes the introduction of the first Home Rule bill, the matter of the Pigott forgery, the fall of Parnell. There is also a host of incidents concerning foreign affairs, upon most of which Queen Victoria held very firm opinions. It is more interesting to the general reader of this day to note some of the intimate glances which the letters afford of the family and domestic relations of the English court in the years around the time of Victoria's Jubilee.

The old Emperor William of Germany was dying, and his successor, the Emperor Frederick, was a doomed man already. Queen Victoria well knew of the lack of sympathy between her daughter, the Empress Frederick, and the latter's son, afterwards Kaiser William. Victoria knew, too, of the implacable hostility of Bismarck to the Empress. "I appealed to the Prince Bismarck to stand by poor Vicky, and he assured me he would and that hers was a hard fate," she wrote.

At a later period personal differences soon became so acute between the Kaiser and the Prince of Wales (later Edward VII) they formed a subject of a memorandum written by Bismarck for presentation to Lord Salisbury in which among other things the complaint was made that "the Prince treated the Kaiser as an uncle treats a nephew, instead of recognizing that he was an Emperor who, though young, had still been of age some time." The Queen's reply to Lord Salisbury was full of spirit.

Silly Affair.

"We have always been very intimate with our grandson and nephew, and to pretend that he is to be treated in private as well as in public as 'His Imperial Majesty' is perfect madness. He has been treated just as we should have treated his beloved father and even grandfather, and as the Queen herself was always treated by her dear uncle King Leopold. If he has such notions he had better never come here.

"The Queen will not swallow this affront. All this shows a very unhealthy and unnatural state of mind, and he must be made to feel that his grandmother and uncle will not stand such insolence. The Prince of Wales must not submit to such treatment."

Lord Salisbury felt so strongly the danger to the good relations of the two countries when the Empress Frederick was being very harshly treated by her son and Bismarck that he wrote to the Queen that he and the Prince of Wales both thought that it would be prudent to defer the Empress's visit to England. But the Queen put her foot down: "She has nowhere to go; everyone expects her to come and wonders she has not come before. It would be no use and only encourage the Emperor and the Bismarcks still more against us. You all seem frightened of them, which is not the way to make them better."

Relations improved later, and next year the Queen made her grandson a British Admiral. The Emperor was ecstatic: "Fancy wearing the same uniform as St. Vincent and also Nelson; it is enough to make one quite giddy. I feel something like Macbeth must have felt when he was suddenly received by the witches with the cry: 'All hail, who art Thane of Glamis and of Cawdor too!'"

Other letters of the period show that the personal relations between the Queen and Prince of Wales (afterwards King Edward) were mellowing: "Dear Bertie! He has many qualities and is such a good son."

The Princess of Wales was her favorite. She is always "dear Alix," and her beauty fascinated Victoria. Young Mr. Balfour, soon to be the leader of the House, she finds charming. Sir Charles Dilke she regards as guilty, and the Parnell divorce nauseates her. She is moved to admit the innocent wives who have figured in divorce suits to her Court, although, oddly enough, her officials raise objections. It is they and not she who are "Victorian" on this question.

Her home life might be that of any elderly lady. We find on her birthday a curiously familiar family excitement and have a pleasant picture of grandchildren trooping into her bedroom and sitting on her bed to say, "Many happy returns, Gan-gan."

The promotion of Dean Davidson of Windsor, her beloved adviser, who is more anxious to have a bishopric than she is to lose him; the attempts to unseat the Duke of Cambridge from his control of the Army; the conduct of foreign affairs; the cession of Heligoland to Germany to which she most reluctantly consents with gloomy forebodings for future troubles and the remark that "giving up what one has is always a bad thing"; her fight for the financial and professional protection of her family, causing her when the promotion of the Duke of Connaught is in question to cry that "it is very abominable that the Government, and a so-called Conservative one too, should wish to pander to the Radicals"—these things fill the years, revealing her as still the masterful Minister of State that she had always been; growing more Tory and more Imperial as the years pass, but displaying a new mellowness and a wider tolerance than heretofore.

The full savor of these letters, as of the earlier series, is only for those who bring to the book a close knowledge of the men and the events with which the Queen's letters and journals deal: but even to a youthful reader untroubled by personal memories of the actors of that great day and unburdened by acquired knowledge of their actions, the collection must be fascinating.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright,
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet
Or dims the radiant light.
No unkind word our lips shall pass,
No envy sour the mind,
But each shall seek the common weal,
The good of all mankind.

MILLBROOK ..

A discussion of lunches at an Institute meeting brought out many practical ideas that members would doubtless go home and act upon. One woman, whose daughter went to business every day, taking her lunch and coming home for hot dinner at six, gave her plan of putting in cheese, chicken, or ham croquettes, or sandwiches; tomato, celery, cucumber, or lettuce salad in wax paper container; buttered brown bread, sometimes changed for graham muffins; occasionally a piece of plain sponge cake, and a thermos bottle of milk, or hot cocoa.

Someone who had been at the C.N.E. this year mentoined the drink called 'grapenuts milk' seen in one exhibit, she could not remember just which, but had learned that it was made by soaking grapenuts in milk, and then pressing through a sieve, the result being an appetizing and nutritious drink.

When the subject of a lunch for the school child came up, there were many suggestions, the outcome of practical experience, the concensus of opinion being that variety, nutritive qualities, and absolute cleanliness were ideals to be kept to the fore in its preparation.

Sandwiches might be the same as for the business girl's lunch, it was decided, and salad was also an ingredient not to be left out, though fresh fruit, preferably a rosy, Ontario apple, would happily take its place. Brown bread, or Graham muffins or wafers, must always be included, and the slice of plan cake would not be out of place, with emphasis on the word 'plain'—no rich confection, nor icing. A chocolate bar would oust the cake, occasionally, and milk, or cocoa, were the correct drinks to provide.

As several members were the wives of workingmen naturally they wanted discussion of their problem—that of making an attractive lunch pail for the noontide meal of their husbands. This might be more substantial, it was the general opinion, and several remarked that tea was the dring insisted upon in the thermos bottle which fitted into their menfolks' lunch kit. Sandwiches of white bread, with a goodly slice of cheese for filling, were declared to be popular, though ham, or other cold meat, was also liked; whole tomatoes seemed in more favor than a salad, "and my man wants his piece of pie, and won't be satisfied without it," one woman insisted. A banana, or apple, or a good slice of cake, were other suggestions to provide the 'dessert' for the noon meal.

"I wonder if all our members know that, by writing the Dairy Branch of the Department of Agriculture, they may have free bulletins telling how to use milk, and why, with information along the line of skim-milk, buttermilk, cream, cheese, etc., "asked the secretary, and a number made a note of the matter, and decided to write at once. "So many farmers put in their own ice now, why not have frozen desserts occasionally" the secretary added; "and then the bulletins tell us how to care for milk, and that is important in either town or country."

A farm home, with its doors wide open for the young people to come in and have a good time, was a recipe given at one gathering for the preevntion of delinquency among the younger element of the community, and rural sections.

Nice homes, with recreational and cultural centres in athletic fields, sports' equipment, skating rinks, libraries, good schools, supervised at the noon hour, and an intelligent interest taken in the young folks' activities by teachers, parents, and other leaders, were emphasized as the discussion proceeded, and it is safe to say that several mothers went home with new ideas 'buzzing in their bonnets' as they thought over the message, plain-spoken but given with loving interest, by the visiting secretary who was the guest at their gathering that day.

WARSAW

It is only five years this month since Women's Institutes were organized in New Zealand. Now they have a small paper all their own called "Home and Country." In three years they had over fifty branches and three Provincial Federations. New Zealand women like to form their Institutes along the lines of English ones. Though the country is small there are long distances to travel and many very lonely places.

Miss Jerome Spencer is the chief New Zealand organizer. For years she was head mistress of the girls' school at Napier and after retiring she took a trip to England. A few days before her return to New Zealand she just happened to see the Women's Institutes' Arts and Crafts Exhibition in Hall, London. She was attracted and spent what time she could studying it and left determined to start Women's Institutes in her own land as soon as she landed. She makes her home with a Mrs. Hutchinson, with whom she discussed the matter, and the first meeting was in her home. The women were much interested and organized at once. The women there weave, spin and dye their own wool.

Miss Spencer is not a wealthy woman, but seeing the need of and the good done by the Institutes, she bought a second hand car, so that she could tour the North Island of Newzealand, hold meetings wherever possible, and start branches without any outside help. She travels thousands of miles, sleeps in her car often and helps the Institutes already organized, as well as organizing new branches. She edits Home and Country. She holds classes for organizers. The Exporter Newspaper Company donated two hundred and fifty dollars to help organize more branches throughout the country. It was a big gift and the first one they had received from any outside body and they appreciated it.

No large scheme was ever launched more efficiently and economically than Miss Spencer launched the Women's Institutes is the opinion of New Zealand people.

CAVAN

It is gratifying to the Ontario Women's Institutes to note that in his address to the sixteenh annual convention of the Women's Institutes of Western Ontario, in session at the Masonic Temple, London, Ontario, the Hon. H. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, promised that the Women's Institute government grant should be increased shortly.

He spoke in terms of praise of the work of Women's Institutes in Ontario. The women of that convention are asking that rural scholars should be given their entrance certificates on their year's work, instead of by examination, as in urban schools. They also ask that the Department of Education should make hygiene, physiology and temperance compulsory studies for an hour a week from the fifth to the eighth grades inclusive, and that rural teachers should be taken into the exchange system, under which urban teachers have trips to other parts of the empire.

The conventions which are being held during the fall months bring out many interesting features of other Institutes. They show method and thought in program planning. The conventions in the north report much relief work carried on under the handicap of sparsely settled districts and poorer facilities with which to work.

In the Rainy River district, one community has the proud record of having every woman a member of the Institute and every new baby receive a layette.

In Manitoulin, a one-day convention was held, when the members from all sections of the Island drive from a short distance to fifty or sixty miles to tell of the work they have done, and to express their appreciation of the services available and the co-operation of other Institutes. This convention has been compared to a family re-union, there is such thorough enjoyment of its privileges and social advantages.

A number of branches reported having an emergency basket on hand which is loaned in case of sickness. Some of the articles and the layettes are given away while the sheets and certain other articles are retained for future use—they in all cases being properly sterilized before being sent out again.

Many Institutes are hoping to follow the example set in a few centres of introducing music in the schools.

The schools are not overlooked, one community providing outdoor sports, such as swings, teeters, sand piles, and first aid kits to three schools.

More and more attention is being given to the beautification of public places, through the planting of bulbs, the growing of flowers, the planting of trees and keeping the grass cut. Gradually more community halls are being established.

Flower and weed naming contests are carried on at fairs, which, no doubt, develop keen-eyed boys and girls, alert for observing nature about them. One branch reported a wild-flower identification contest; while another related an interesting study of wild flowers at a meeting. Pictures or pressed specimens of wild flowers with description of the plant attached were on exhibit and characteristics studied.

The convenor on agriculture at one convention stated that since at least three-quarters of the members come from farm homes, this subject was of general interest, and in answer to the comment that the average farm woman has to work very hard, she replied, there is satisfaction in hard work at worthwhile tasks done for those we love. It is the eager, capable spirit of our farm women in the face of difficulties and sometimes discouragement that makes life worth while. One cannot work for the home without helping the country as a whole.

WHEN CHILDREN CRY

CHILDREN often cry for no apparent reason. Many times we can't guess what is wrong. The crying may mean a touch of colic; the little bowels may be sluggish—or some other upset. It may mean any of the common little ailments that children suffer. To bring quick comfort to your little one, give a few drops of Castoria. Most upsets of children are soon soothed away by this pleasant-tasting remedy that children all love.

In five million modern homes, Castoria is a mother's first thought when a child is out of sorts, feverish, cross, doesn't eat right or sleep right. When bad breath, coated tongue, or languor tells of constipation. These five million wise mothers know that children should never be given stronger medicines meant for the fully developed systems of grown-ups. Castoria is gentle—safe, yet always thorough and effective for a child of any age. It may be given to the tiniest infant for any little upset. When buying, look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on wrapper.

ROSENEATH COUPLE HONORED BY FRIENDS

Mr. and Mrs. John Webb Celebrate Fifty Year Anniversary of Wedding.

ROSENEATH, Nov. 15.—(Examiner Correspondence)—Mr. and Mrs. John Webb celebrated the fifty-first anniversary of their wedding on Wednesday, a large number of their friends gathering in the evening to honor and congratulate them.

Mr. and Mrs. Webb were taken completely by surprise at seeing the large gathering. Albert Crowe and son furnished music for dancing in which the younger folks indulged, while the older ones enjoyed a social chat.

Heartiest congratulations were offered Mr. and Mrs. Webb after which a delicious luncheon was served.

Tidbits, Interesting and Humorous CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 15. (Examiner Correspondence)—Canadian Authors' Week was observed last week in Campbellford Public Library with a very satisfactory result. For the six days ninety-nine Canadian books were read. This is a very good average considering that Canadian books constitute a very small percentage of the library and that many of these books have already been read by the public.

This spell of soft weather almost makes one wonder if summer is paying us another visit. So it almost seemed when a local doctor reported that on Thursday evening he heard a frog merrily croaking.

Mrs. G. C. Bromley and children returned on Tuesday after spending Thanksgiving with friends and relatives in Lakefield.

Doxsee Lodge L.O.B.A. will hold their first euchre of the season on Wednesday, Nov. 19th, at 8 p.m., at their rooms in the Ferris Block. Lunch served. Draw for spread made. Come and have a good time. Admission 25c.

Mrs. J. L. Hoover is visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hoover at Orillia.

Mrs. Martha Wescott of Burnbrae visited for two days this week with Mrs. Nora E. Westcott, Stirling.

It is reported that a local youth shot a ten pound wild goose on the river north of town. This must be a "daddy" that old age forced out of a passing flock. Youth seems more speedy, even in the bird world.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Todd and Mrs. J. B. Todd spent the holiday in Stirling the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Richards.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sloggett had as their guests over the holidays, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Sloggett, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Sloggett and Mr. G. Sloggett, all of Toronto.

Mrs. Bennett, Hoards, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Morrison and Mrs. John Storey of Town, were the guests at Wellmans of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fanning for Thanksgiving.

Mr. and Mrs. Sweet of Trenton were the guests of Mrs. Tomes Rutherford on Friday.

We are sorry to heart that "Buster" Whitton, Campbellford's all-round sport, was taken to hospital on Friday for treatment. We trust that his stay will be a short one.

Mrs. C. W. Turner is visiting friends this week in Peterborough.

Mr. D. Mainprize met with a painfull accident on Wednesday, when he had the misfortune to break his arm. While hauling a load of wood with a team and wagon the bolt came out of the cross trees causing the tongue to drop. This scared the team which sprang forforward, throwing Mr. Mainprize from the wagon.

Many members of the Campbellford Rebekah Lodge journeyed to Frankford on Thursday evening and were the guests of the Glenford Rebekah Lodge at that place. Among those who went were: Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Craighead, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Haig, Mrs. Ray Phillips, Mrs. Harold Petherick, Miss Stella Keir, Mrs. John Jeffs, Miss Helen Jeffs, Miss Alma Simpson, Mrs. Charles Hay, Mrs. Robert Moore, Mrs. John Ackerman, Mrs. Frank Menzie, Mrs. J. CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Nov. 15.—Trading on the local butter market was dull again this week, and though some sales were made they were in quantities required by buyers to fill in for immediate needs. Local dealers gave out a 'quiet' report daily and a transaction involving any fair sized amount was exceptional. Buyers had not shown any tendency to become interested for some considerable time, due mostly to the unsettled conditions in respect to the tariff against imports from Australia. This Dominion is quite capable of flooding the Canadian markets even at the increased tariff, which is lower than that imposed on New Zealand.

Prices held steady for Ontario, No. 1, butter at 30c to 30½c, and 29c to 29½c for No. 2. Brokers did not offer much good quality stock at 30c, but the general range for the first grade was as stated.

Cream

Cream prices were unchanged at 33c for special, 32c for No. 1, and 29c for No. 2, f.o.b. country points, and according to the buyers interviewed there will be no reduction in the immediate future.

Cheese

Cheese prices declined from ¼c to ½c during the week, bringing the prices for new large, down to 14¾c to 15c, with twins at 15c to 15¼c, colored, paraffined, Government graded. Prices to retailers were steady at 17c for new large, 17¼c for twins, and 17½c for triplets.

Eggs

The situation on the local egg market remained unchanged as far as demand was concerned. Real fresh eggs were very scarce and prices to shippers were higher, while storage supplies moved into consumptive channels freely and at steady prices. Practically all of the trade between retailers and wholesalers was in storage and short held eggs, and any receipts of new laid eggs brought good prices.

For the last few days of the week country shippers were offered 50c to 55c for extras, 46c to 48c for firsts, 40c to 42c for pullet extras, and 28c to 30c for seconds, ugraded, delivered, cases returned. Retailers were unable to get many new laid eggs, but the prices quoted for this quality were 58c to 60c for extras in cartons, 56c to 58c for extras loose, 50c to 52c for firsts loose, 45c for pullet extras loose, and 37c to 38c for seconds loose. Short eld supplies were offered at 52c for extras in cartons, 50c for extras loose, 44c for firsts loose, and 35c for seconds loose.

Wholesalers offered storage extras at 40c in cartons, 38c loose, and firsts 36c loose. Brokers were able to make some sales of storage eggs to wholesalers at 34½c to 35c for extras, and 32½c to 33c for firsts.

Poultry

The poultry season is now at hand but to date receipts of poultry have not been exceptionally heavy. The stock coming in at most centers shows a lack of finish which could be remedied and which would materially improve the value of the bird by a short period of crate fattening. With the differentials which will be paid this year for quality poultry, on the basis of the National Poultry Standards, producers everywhere would be well advised to properly fatten their birds before marketing.

Calves 700; vealers steady to 50 lower; good to choice $12.00-13.00.

Sheep, 3,800, holdovers 2,000; lambs draggy, bulk unsold, scattering sales 2.50 lower, quality and drastic sorts considered, good to choice ewe and wether lambs 75-90 lbs. 7.75-8.00.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Despite surprising relative strength shown by prices for December delivery of wheat here, the wheat market, as a whole, averaged much lower yesterday. General belief was expressed that farm board allies were purchasing December wheat on a large scale. On the other hand, Canada's 1930 wheat yield was officially estimated at 11,000,000 bushels, larger than was forecast in September, and Canadian country marketing for 24 hours totalled 2,143,000 bushels, against 786,000 bushels a year ago.

Prices Drop ¼ to 2 Cents

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous at ¼ to 2c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1⅜ to 2¼c down; Oats ¼ to ⅝c off, and provisions showing 12 to 42c drop.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, November 15.—Wheat prices continued to slide here yesterday, and recessions of 3 to 3⅝ cents a bushel were marked up at the close, representing the lowest price ever recorded on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

Touching low marks of 64, 62¾, 68, and 69 cents a bushel respectively, all futures recorded the lowest value in the 24-year history of the local exchange.

With the exception of fairly good buying by Continental and elevator interests shortly after mid-session, trading was dull throughout the day, and finally, in the last 20 minutes slumped to the low points. Weak Liverpool cables, limited overnight xeport business, and the bearish Government report all contributed to the weakness.

Trade in cash wheat and coarse grains was slow, and price recessions, especially in afix, were drastic.

SCIATICA PAIN SO SEVERE THOUGHT ANKLE BONE WOULD SPLIT

Heathcote, Ont., man has good reason to thank T-R-C's

"Like most blacksmiths," Mr. S. Davidson writes, "I get a touch of pain in the back sometimes—but this pain was different. Started in the small of my back, shot down my leg and often felt as though it would split the ankle bone. A farm implement agent recommended me to try Templeton's Rheumatic Capsules. After taking the first dose I got relief. I kept right on taking the capsules and soon was back at work. I continued the treatment for several weeks after I was round again. "As a result I have never had a return of the Sciatica. Of course, I always keep T-R-C's in the house...never let the pain get started."

Repeatedly T-R-C's have given speedy, safe relief from Sciatica. And, when taken faithfully and correctly, T-R-C's have conquered even the most stubborn Rheumatism. Safe and swift also for Neuritis, Neuralgia and Lumbago. No harmful or habit-forming drugs. Reliable.

There is no mystery about the action of T-R-C's. They enter the blood stream. Go to the root of the trouble. Help your body throw off the poisons that are making your life miserable. Buy a box. Get back your normal health again. 50c and $1 at your dealer's. 142

DIAMONDS ARE DISCOVERED IN ONTARIO LAKE DISTRICTS

Precious Gems in the Rough Found in Southern Great Lakes Regions.

MANY NEW FINDS

Special to the Examiner. Copyright 1930.)

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 12.—Diamonds in Ontario? Is there somewhere in this province a miniature Kimberley?

In widely separated localities south of the great Lakes rough diamonds have been found in glacial drift, gouged out of some Canadian hillside by the ice and transported there. Somewhere in Canada lies the mother-lode of these diamonds, perhaps. It has never been located.

This is one of the touches of romance that have crept into a handbook just issued by the federal department of mines. It is called "Prospecting in Canada" and it has been written and compiled by officers of the Geological Survey.

Laborers are engaged in building the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway in 1903 are said to have worn bright the surface of a vein of silver over which they walked. A blacksmith, Larose, smelted ore in his forge before its value was recognized, the handbook relates. But not all discoveries are accidental, nor are they all on the surface.

"In Turner Valley, near Calgary, great flows of natural gas, natural gasoline, and petroleum are being drawn from a mile underground, although there is little if any trace of these usefu substances on the surface.

"The gold-copper Horne ore-body in Rouyn district, Quebec, was entirely covered by soil and dense forest growth," records W. H. Collins. "According to an official of the Mond Nickel Company, their Frood ore-extension, in Sudbury district was disclosed by scientific use of the magnetic needle and the diamond drill."

The prospector has some traits in common with the criminal investigator. He is a sort of geological Sherlock Holmes Examples are cited in the handbook of mineral discoveries by tracing the glacial debris back to its source. Iron ore in the Lake Superior region, fluorite in Madoc district, corumdum in the Bancroft district, and gold-bearing quartz veins in Nova Scotia have been located in this manner.

Similar methods applied to the copper of the Coppermine River area may result some day, in a spectacular find of native metal. One slab weighing 600 pounds has been found, and many smaller pieces. Major Locke T. Burwash, who spent the early summer of 1930, at Hearne, where the Coppermine flows into the Arctic, is hopeful that the mother-lode will be found.

Sometimes river float of minerals gives the prospector a clue as to the site of important metal ores. The method, unfortunately for Canada, can only be applied in regions not affected by the great glacial age, since metals discovered in rivers elsewhere, may be fragments brought from other parts by the ice. In the Yukon gold and tungsten have been so located.

Occasionally fragments found at the base of cliffs or mountains have given prospectors a clue. In Gaspe, Quebec, lead-zinc ore-bodies were discovered by tracing float uphill to its source. The original discovery that led to the exploitation of the Keno Hill ores, Yukon, was made by tracing talus uphill.

"Prospecting in Canada" covers wide ground. As well as describing the kind of pack to fasten on a 'husky' it tells in detail the way the radio-active metals break down into helium emanations and lead. Besides long formidable lists of Canadian minerals it tells the prospective prospector how to survey a stretch of irregular ground. It contains such odd and curious facts as that in extreme depths any rock will flow like putty into an opening or fissure, though in a strong rock like granite a wide crack may exist as far down as 11 miles below the surface.

A brief treatise on gems and precious stones offers the information that the total world production is about $80,000,000, of which $76,112,500 is in diamonds, and only $1,104,000 in the next most valuable stone, the sapphire.

Magnetic, electrical, electro-magnetical and gravitational efforts to locate mineral bodies are examined, and through a few examples of successful and profitable work with these "fancy" methods of prospecting are named, the general impression given is that there is still a long way to go with these instruments before they can have wide application. The writers confess, however, that many of the results contained and the detail of instruments used are regarded by the manufacturers as trade secrets, and that it is difficult to make a fair conclusion.

One of the limitations of the electrical method is that so far ore-bodies more than 500 feet below ground level could not be detected. Where the rock surface is exposed such a deposit would be likely in any case to be discoverable. Where a few feet of glacial drift covered the rock the value of the electrical prospector might be much greater.

The most curious of these scientific attempts to discover mineral is the seismic, in which an explosion of dynamite or other agents is recorded on a sensitive seismograph, the suspected body of ore lying between the blast and the instrument. The wave travels faster through certain kinds of rock and ore than others, and the results in some cases indicate the presence of ore-bodies.

REMARQUE'S NEW BOOK.

Erich Maria Remarque's new book, "The Way Back," will go into production at Universal as soon as its adaptation is completed. It starts in serial form in "Collier's" issue Dec. 6.

It is an after-the-war story. Lew Ayres, Slim Summerville and Louis Wolheim will be in the cast.

DANCING COURSE IS HIGHLY ACCLAIMED

Pupils of St. Margaret's School, Kirkfield, Appreciate Great Advantage Given Them.

KIRKFIELD, Nov. 15.—The Dancing Course at St. Margarets School, Kirkfield, just completed, was conducted by Miss Leona Beatrice James from the Conservatory of Music, Peterborough. Miss James studied dancing at the Duncan School of Dancing, Birmingham, England, and also at the New Wayburn Vestoff Serova School New York Cty.

The pupils of St. Margaret's enjoyed the course and entered into the intricate steps of the many fancy dances with hearty zeal and appreciation at the great advantage to be derived from the instructions given by such a teacher.

OBITUARY

JOHN P. GORMAN

A highly respected citizen of this community passed away in the person of Mr. John P. Gorman, who died on Tuesday, Nov. 4th at the age of 60 years, in the Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston, after a brief illness.

He had suffered greatly during his short illness and was removed to the hospital on Monday night, where an operation was performed.

The funeral service which was held in St. Jerome's Roman Catholic church, Warkworth, was said to be one of the largest ever held there. The large numbers gathered, together to pay a last tribute to the departed attested to the high esteem in which he was a member.

Rev. Father Ferguson who sang the Requim High Mass, spoke of his sterling qualities as a good Catholic, a loyal citizen and a charitable disposition which won him his many friends. He called attention to the fact that even in his moments of greatest pain he was remembering to prepare himself for the great eternity. He will indeed be greatly missed, not only in the community as a kindly neighbour, and a true friend, but in the church as a loyal and generous supporter.

Besides his wife, he leaves to mourn his loss two daughters, Mary and Helen, and two sons, Paul and Bernard, one sister, Mrs. John Duff, Sr. of Campbellford, and a brother, Maurice of Toronto. A brother William predeceased him thirteen years ago.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. John P. McAuley, J. B. Moran, William Greenly, Walter J. Weir, P. J. Moran and L. Boyce.

WEDDING BELLS

BENNS—PAYNE.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 15.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—The marriage took place quietly on Friday evening, November 7th, at 7.30, at the parsonage of Regent Street United Church, of Alice Ruth Violetta Payne, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harry Norman Payne of Peterborough, formerly of Lakefield to William Orval Benns, of Peterborough. Miss Marion Miles and Mr. Basil Smith, both of Lakefield, were the attendants. Rev. S. A. Kemp performed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Benns are taking a motor trip to Frankford and Belleville and on their return they will reside in Peterborough.

MURRAY—GARVEY

DOWNEYVILLE, Nov. 15 (Examiner Correspondence). — A pretty Autumn wedding was witnessed by a large crowd in St. Luke's Church, Downeyville, on Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock, when Lillian, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Garvey, became the bride of Fergus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Murray, all of Emily.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of the Wedding March, played by Miss Regina Costello, and was frocked in a gown of velvet, with hat, hose and gloves to match, and was assisted by Miss Anna Murray, sister of the bridegroom, who was attired in blue velvet, with hat, hose and shoes to match.

The bridegroom was ably assisted by Mr. Dennis Garvey, brother of the bride. After the ceremony, the bridal party with the immediate relatives repaired to the home of the bride's parents, where a sumptuous dinner was served.

After dinner Mr. Murray and his bride left on a trip to Buffalo, N.Y., and other American points and on their return will reside in Emily. The presents were numerous, showing the high esteem in which they are held.

LUCAS—COLLINS

DOWNEYVILLE, Nov. 15 (Examiner Correspondence).—A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Luke's Church, Downeyville, Wednesday morning, at 8 o'clock, when Miss Isobel Collins, daughter of Mrs. and the late Patrick Collins of Ops, was united in holy bonds of matrimony to James C., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lucas, Downeyville.

The ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Father Galvin, was witnessed by a large number of friends and relatives of both bride and bridegroom. The bride entered the church to the strains of "Lohengrin," played by Mrs. Patrick Perdue, organist, and looked lovely in a gown of brown transparent velvet, with hat, hose and shoes to match, and carried a bouquet of roses and lily-of-the-valley. The bride was assisted by her cousin, Miss Mary Wyne, who was also attired in brown velvet with hat, hose, etc., to match, and carried a bouquet of roses and lily-of-the-valley.

The bridegroom was ably assisted by Mr. Frank O'Leary. During the signing of the register Mrs. Patrick Perdue sang Rosewig's "Ave Maria."

Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party left on the 9.15 train for a brief honeymoon, and on their return will reside in Emily.

Ready to go to work much sooner than expected, after the birth of her child, Norma Shearer will start immediately on Metro's "Strangers May Kiss."

Singer Stripped of Title-Herd Defeats Bulldogs

TWO REAL PUNCHES SPELL DEFEAT FOR WELSH FIGHTER IN FIRST ROUND OF BATTLE

And Singer is Stripped of His Crown as Quickly As He Won It.

CANZONERI WINNER.

Sixteen Thousand Fans Boo Defeated Gladiator From the Ring.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN New York Nov. 15. (CP)—Quicker than he won the crown, quicker almost than the eye could follow, young Al Singer was stripped of his lightweight title last night by Tony Canzoneri, brisk little Italian, who started his fantastic boxing career as a bootblack in the streets of New Orleans.

Singer, hailed as the new Benney Leonard when he crushed Sammy Mandell in a single round last August to mount the 135-pound throne, lasted only two real punches and 1 minute and 6 seconds against the attack of the former featherweight champion. Canzoneri nailed the sleek Jewish lad with one left hook to the chin punched him again, and the battle was over in the first round of what started out to be a fifteen-round match.

The "viewers with alarm" became very busy the minute Singer hit the floor, as busy as they were when Mandell, a pale, lifeless ghost of himself, was battered into senselessness by Singer in something over 2 minutes last summer. The crowd of about 16,000 rose and booed, howling Singer from the ring, though they cheered the exit of Canzoneri, the new king.

Amateur Hockey Moguls Meeting in Toronto

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 15. (CP)—Meeting on the eve of the annual conclave here the Ontario Hockey Association executive committee admitted 11 new clubs to membership and disposed of considerable other business. The new clubs are Campbellford, Toronto Marlboro seniors, York Hockey Club, Uxbridge, Hamilton Patricians, Ohsweken, Mimico, Brockville juniors, Huntsville, Dresden and Aurora intermediates.

Applications from players for change of residence were passed on and the clubs concerned will be notified as to the decisions reached.

FIRST BLOOD?

Campbellford Hunter Shoots Buck After 30 Minutes' Hunting First Day of Season.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 15 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent)—Campbellford produces some fine men and some fine shots, and it takes an occasion like the hunting season to establish this fact.

Here is a story that comes direct from the back country. Chief G. C. Bromley went back hunting this season with a Lakefield club, and shot what was perhaps the first buck of the season, for he made his bag after only being out for half an hour on the first day of the sport. A. E. Webster of Lakefield, also one of the same party, bagged a deer the same day, which perhaps constitutes a record.

What sportsman can say that he made his bag in the first thirty minues of the sport? No wonder we boast of good men and good shots in this part of the country.

Roughriders Certain To Win Western Title

VANCOUVER, B.C., Nov. 15.—Unless a startling upset occurs, Regina Roughriders, Prairie football champions, will be crowned Monarchs of Western Canada today for the fifth successive year. The Riders meet Vancouver Meralomas, Coast titleholders, in the second game of the Western titular series.

If the result of the first game Thursday night, can be taken as a criterion, Al Ritchie's Sackatchewan huskies will have little trouble in making it two straight. Regina won the opening game by a 17 to 0 count, and on actual play should have won by a larger margin.

The teams came out of the opening fray in good condition and none other than minor injuries were reported today. Meralomas may shift their team about for tomorrow's game, but their definite lineup has not yet been selected. Ritchie will probably nominate the same team as started last night for the visitors.

BISONS BLANK BULLDOGS 1-0

Windsor Loses Close Contest in Which Goalkeeping Features.

ROTH SCORES WINNER.

WINDSOR, Nov. 15.—Buffalo Bisons spoiled the local opening of the International Hockey League season for 4,500 fans last night by capturing a 1—0 verdict in a scrappy battle that was featured by sensational goaltending.

For almost two and a half periods, Clint Benedict, National League veteran, held the Bisons at bay. But he could not keep up his miracles for the full hour, and midway through the third chapter Roth's low drive from the blue line split his feet and sailed on into the net.

The Bull Dogs, outplayed up to that stage, came back with a fighting finish that almost forced the game into overtime. But then it was Bill Taugher's turn to shine, and the Buffalo goalkeeper didn't pass up his chance. He turned back the best efforts of Windsor's frenzied four-man attack, and his citadel was still inviolate at the final gong.

On the night's play, the Bisons richly deserved their victory. They had many scoring chances in the first two periods, and they almost held their own in the third. The Bull Dogs played very ragged hockey at times, and never approached the form they showed against Chicago Black Hawks in an exhibition game earlier in the week.

Will It Be The Scullers Or The Tigers?

SPECTACULAR FIGURE OF TENNIS COURTS

Between the years 1919 to 1926, William T. Tilden was the world's greatest tennis player, possibly the world's greatest tennis player up to the present day. He brought back the Davis Cup after it had lingered in Australia. He went across to England to win the British championship at Wimbledon and he returned to conquer the same Bill Johnson, his closest rival, at Forest Hills.

Bill Tilden was the most spectacular figure that ever walked on a tennis court. He was not only the star player up to 1926 but also a militant revolutionist or mutineer, the man who could draw the greatest crowds in the game and then, more often than that, have these same crowds pulling for his opponent to fin.

Tilden has had more arguments with tennis associations, umpires and linesmen than any ten players in the game. Tilden has given more time to teaching young stars, without recompense, than any one else in the game. He has always been willing to help any promising young player that asked for advice and instruction. And he does it with keen enthusiasm.

Few would have believed that the nervous, over-tense Tilden of 1918 and 1919 would have developed so quickly into the confident, almost care-free performer of later years. Even during championship matches he would work out certain strokes, using many of them as if engaged in a practice test.

At the age of thirty-six, when Tilden's tennis glory was supposed to be fading, he came back to win the national championship of the United States for the seventh time. Nearing thirty-seven, he set sail again this spring for another invasion of Europe. He began by sweeping his way through the Riviera tournaments, collecting enough cups to lead a small battleship.

Then he descended on Italy and won the championship of that country with some of the finest tennis he had ever shown. He crushed Italy's greatest player by 6-1, 6-1, 6-2, with an all-around display of speed, skill and power that reminded one of the Tilden of ten years ago. From Italy he fell upon Austria with as much violence as Napoleon ever used, hammering everything from his path.

The stormy petrel of the tennis world is now drawing near the end of the road. But with all his faults few men have left their impression upon any game as Tilden has. Great player, hard fighter and master strategist, he has been the most colorful figure in the history of the game.

NEW SOCCER LEAGUE PROVES SUCCESS ON PACIFIC COAST

Big Four League Plays to Huge Crowds—Westminster Royals Lead.

GEORGE RUSSELL BACK.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., Nov. 15 (Special to The Examiner—Copyright, 1930)—The formation of a Big Four Soccer League in British Columbia is meeting with success, and the clubs are packing them in the available closed grounds in Vancouver and Nanaimo. Westminster Royals, Canadian champions, are leading the loop at the present time, although by a narrow margin, due, no doubt, to the increased strength of St. Andrews and St. Saviours, the two Vancouver clubs, and the youthful Nanaimo City, an all-Canadian outfit.

Crowds of close to 3,000 have been common so far this season and the respective managers see visions of wiping out the "red" in their ledgers of the past few years.

George Russell, well-known to Winnipeg and Montreal teams, and one of the outstanding centre half backs in Canada, will be back with the Royals this season. Russell developed lung trouble last year but prompt action by scores of his admirers allowed the player to migrate to a sunny clime. He returned with a clean ticket from the doctor, married an Edmonton girl last week and will shortly commence training.

Anna Q. Nilsson has left for three months at the old home in Sweden. She'll be five weeks at sea on a freighter.

Team standing City League:

Big Five 10 pts.; Rangers 10 pts.; Lucky Strikes 9 pts.; Bowlrites 9 pts.; Westclox 7 pts.; Canadiens 7 pts.; Belmonts 3 pts.; Brintons 3 pts.; Examiner 2 pts.; Cogs 0.

The team standing in the City League was given a thorough shaking up last night when five shutouts were registered which placed two teams in a tie for first place and four others within striking distance. Close decisions were the order of the night with the striking out of an individual player winning the game on two occasions.

The biggest upset of the season was registered when the Big Five took the league leading Westclox team for a ride to win every game which puts the winners in a tie for first place with the Rangers. Tommy Cupoli was going great guns for the Clockmakers securing 732 in three games but this total was not enough to offset the consistent pin spilling of the Canadians who had nine out of the fifteen scores over the 200 mark

The Bowlrites hit a big league stride in their tangle with the Belmonts to collect 3347 pins in three games. The so-called weak Belmonts toppled 3027 pins, having 8 out of 15 scores over 200 while the winners chalked up 10 scores over 200. Sweetman, V. Anthony and L. Anthony clipped off triples of 748, 722 and 709 respectively for the winners, while Holyman with 707 and Green with 655 were high for the Belmonts.

The Cogs had rough going with the Lucky Strikes losing every game, which means that they retain the cellar position for another week. O'Connell and Hickey were the mainstays for the winners, both topping the 700 mark. O'Connell leading with 736 while Hickey made 719. The former established a high single record when he knocked over 309 pins.

The Rangers had a rather easy time of it, with the Brintons winning three games by a margin of over 500 pins. The Brintons, however were away below their usual form and the fowl line pulled their total down. Playford led the attack for the winners with scores of 245-229-235.

The Canadians went on a sharp-shooting spree to swamp The Examiner quintette for a four point gain with a comfortable margin. Each team had seven 200 scores with Lewis on the winning team being the heaviest hitter making singles of 365 and 284.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, the lads from Confederation Sq. has turned the trick and copped Doc. Neal's mug for the 3rd year in succession. Here Sat. in spite of some cock-eyed umpiring that was tougher'n the Belleville team to overcome. Mister Legon's up-and-coming young athaletes battled themselves into a 12 to 8 lead and then Wed. they went down to Belleville and repeated the feat, beating the Bay of Quinte champs right on their own door step 17 to 10. A nice afternoons work. When P. C. I. started off this year by taking 1 on the chin at Oshawa they was a lotta folks began to think mebbe this season the home lads would find the going just a little too tough to be handled. But the P. C. I. boys buckled to their work and now have grabbed off the Central Ont. title by reeling off 7 straight wins. What I mean that's nice going and entitles both Mister Legon and his athaletes to the congratulations of the old home town. Who the lads stack up against next in the Ont. series aint been announced up to the time of writting but anyway they can be counted upon to put up a good battle

I hesitate to point out, Mac, that for once I've picked a winner, me calling Queen's to take Varsity last Sat. which same they did neatly. The win meant curtains for the Toronto rah rahs for their only chance now is for McGill to lay Queen's like a carpet in Kingston there Sat. and that simply aint being done this year. Anyway Queen's will hafta be satisfied with the college title for I for 1 can't see them beating the Big 4 winners which oughta be Tigers although them Argos may put up a grim battle in the big game Sat.

Both our Junior hockey squads is being tossed into action in the 1st round of the S.P.A. serious, Mac, the St. John's team clashes with Gal; and the Petes Jr. with Stratford. I aint got a line at all on them 2 Western teams but they'll likely have the edge on the Peterborough kids in condition, despite the odd practice the boys may work in at Oshawa in the near time. Anyway it'll be a trip to the big town for the youngsters and a chance to show what they can do under fire.

Our Intermediates is asking for a Lake Shore grouping, Mac, which our friends in Lakefield is likely to think is a case of highhatting, but then a change of scenery won't do the Petes no harm.

Well, Mac, they aint nothing new except a coupla Baby Austin jokes and mebbe they aint so new at that so well just bail out here.

Sportfully Yours,

A. WISE CRACKER.

CHAMPIONSHIP ISSUE WILL BE SETTLED IN INTERPROVINCIAL FOOTBALL UNION BY SUNDOWN

Tigers Favorites to Cop Title For Third Successive Time.

ARGOS RELY ON AERIAL.

McGill Optimistic Over Chances With the Tri-color To-day.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 15 (C.P.) — Two football championships are hanging in the balance to-day as six well-drilled teams swing into action eager to conclude the schedule in the Interprovincial and Intercollegiate Unions. Of the six squads, two will emerge at sundown champions of their respective unions and entitled to enter the Canadian Rugby Union playdowns.

To-day's Card

Interprovincial.—Hamilton Tigers at Toronto Argonauts.

Intercollegiate.—McGill University at Queen's. University of Toronto at University of Western Ontario, London.

Of the three games the Tiger-Argo struggle takes the headline position without trouble. Rivals for years, this feeling has been intensified recently by certain developments and then of course, to the winner goes the spoils, in this case, the Big Four crown, worn by Tiger twelves with regularity in recent years.

On form, the Jungle Kings should win. They have swept through their schedule to date with nothing more serious than a tie with Montreal marring their string of victories. In addition, they swept through a pre-season tour of Western Canada without defeat. Once during the season they seemed to be faltering when injuries weakened the team. But last week they displayed a convincing return to top form by trouncing the Montreal Winged Wheelers decisively.

Argos have met but one setback. That was by Tigers at Hamilton earlier in the season. The Scullers have improved since then, and today will have the moral support of home fans and a familiar grid-iron.

Tigers of course will depend on the mighty power of their wing line to attain victory. During the Big Four season the Yellow and Black has piled up the impressive total of 14 points against 8 for their opponents. The wing line, led by the husky Brian Timmis, complied most of the points by crashing through opposing lines for touchdowns. Tigers have scored five more points than the other three squads—Ottawa, Montreal and Toronto—combined.

Argonauts' main strength appears to lie in the backfield department, where the brilliant Frank Turville performs. The latter has played a leading role in the Double Blues' success and upon him will probably depend Argos' chances of victory. And, should the local line succeed in holding the Bengal Tanks, Turville will, no doubt, come through with flying colors.

At Kingston, the college championship will be decided when Queen's entertain McGill. Everything points to a Tricolor win and the end of the Intercollegiate race. The Montreal Red Men, however, are taking the contest seriously and may furnish the biggest upset of the season in the Union by downing the powerful dozen trained so well by Coach Harry Batstone.

If this unexpected development occurs, University of Toronto will again enter the picture. Prior to last week the Blue and White were favored in many quarters to annex the honors, but they were unexpectedly beaten on their home grid-iron by Queen's and nosed out of the leadership. To-day, trailing by one point in the standing they clash with Coach Joe Breen's Western Mustangs and a triumph will place them on top if McGill spill Old Man "Dope."

Ottawans Prominent In Pro Hockey Games

OTTAWA, Nov. 15.—The large part Ottawa puck-chasers played in deciding the three games on Thursday night's professional ice hockey program is a major topic of discussion in the Capital today. The fans proudly point to the fact Ebbie Goodfellow scored the lone goal that gave the Detroit Falcons victory over New York Rangers: that "King" Clancy was the backbone of the Toronto Maple Leaf team held to a goalless draw by New York's revamped Americans, and Len Grosvenor netted two of the three winning goals for London Tecumsehs against Pittsburg's International League team.

The coach of the Americans, who have shown surprising form in their two starts of the present season, is Eddie Gerard, an Ottawa player of yester-year.

Belanger Married

It was learned yesterday that Albert "Frenchy" Belanger, Canadian flyweight boxing champion, was married last week to Miss Ivy Bracewell, daughter of Mrs. Bertha Bracewell of Toronto. The marriage took place last Friday morning at Our Lady of Lourdes Church, Rev. Father Kelly officiating. The bride wore her travelling costume of brown suit, and hat with a brown broadtail fur coat to match and carried a bouquet of roses. Miss Helen Wagner was her attendant wearing a brown velvet suit, with brown hat to match and carried roses also. Ray O'Donnell was best man. Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for Buffalo. They will reside in Toronto, Frenchy is a nephew of Thomas Turcotte of this city.

SERIES OF MARRIAGES.

When the Marquis de la Falaise marries Constance Bennett, as he is expected to do when divorced by Gloria Swanson, he will for a second time become the third husband of an American film star who divorced two predecessors. Gloria divorced Wallace Beery and Herbert Somborn, and has a daughter by the latter. Gloria's mother married Joseph T. Swanson and Matthew P. Burns, before marrying C. C. Woodruff.

Constance Bennett divorced Chester H. Moorehead, of Chicago, and Philip M. Plant, of New York. Her father, Richard Bennett, actor, was divorced by Adrienne Morrison, actress, and married Aimee Raisch, who had divorced Harry C. Hastings, of San Francisco. The mother, Adrienne, married Eric Pinker, agent. Constance received a $1,000,000 or more settlement from Plant, whose mother's third husband is Col. William Hayward.

MIX ILLNESS LESS GRAVE.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 15. — Tom Mix's condition, at first thought to be grave, is now regarded more optimistically. He is still confined at the Hollywood Hospital where he is being X-rayed to determine the trouble.

X-rays point to a recurrence of a previous spinal trouble incurred in strenuous cowboy athletics.

HAZEL BRADLEY WINS MORROW CUP FOR SENIOR CHAMPIONSHIP

Judges' Decisions Meet With Popular Approval of Large Audience.

LIFE SAVING WORK.

One of the most successful swimming exhibitions yet conducted by the local Y.W.C.A. — and one which reflected great credit upon Miss C. F. Littlefield, swimming and physical training director—was witnessed last evening by a crowd of spectators who thronged the gallery and occupied other points of vantage, and evinced a keen and enthusiastic interest in the entire program.

A very large number of entries were received for the various championship events, and the competition was both close and strong, making the task of the judges an extremely delicate and difficult one. Their decisions, however, met with popular approval, as was evident from the uproarious applause which greeted their anonuncements.

The major events were captured by the following contestants:

Junior Life-saving Championship, The G. N. Gordon Cup — Marion Harvey.

Babies' Championship, The O'Conor-Fenton Trophy — Lily Long.

Junior Diving Championship, The Hamilton Cup — Isabel Duffus.

Senior City Championship, The Morrow Cup—Hazel Bradley.

Praises Sport.

Dr. A. Moir, in a short speech which preceded the aquatic exhibition, dilated on the advantages of sport, with particular reference to swimming. He gave high praise to the work of the Y.W.C.A., and the kindred organization, including the Board of Directors, instructors and staff, who are accomplishing splendid work in the interests of the moral and physical advancement of the youth of the city. He pointed out that in the past five years Miss Littlefield had given swimming instruction to 2,000 pupils; had passed 200 in their life-saving examinations; while a further 2,000 persons had used the swimming pool without taking instruction. The speaker in mentioning the Y.W.C.A. financial drive, now under way, for $2,000, thought that this sum should be readily forthcoming, as he felt confident that the citizens of Peterborough had a full realization of the good results which were being shown through the "Y" training.

Prizes were presented at the conclusion of the program by Mrs. E. E. Harvey, president of the Y.W.C.A., who afterwards addressed the swimmers in the Green Room, extending to them her sincere congratulations on the praiseworthy efforts they had put forth——winners and losers alike, and offering them encouragement to go on to further accomplishments.

Capable Officials.

Miss Littlefield had the capable assistance in the arranging of the program and during the evening, of the swimming committee, those being present at the event including Mrs. J. Harkness, Mrs L. J. LeClare, Mrs. J. F. Strickland, and the general secretray of the "Y", Miss L. Brownscombe. The judges were: Dr. J. J. Craig, G. H. Roper, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A., J. C. McClenehan, director of Boys' activities at the "Y," and I. T. Lillico.

The Junior Life-saving event provided an intensely interesting part of the exhibition, and gave one a full realization of the read practical value which such knowledge is to the pupil. The competitors ,all under 14 years of age, were required to perform four different methods of rescue and three of release in the water. They were required to tow their "victims" for at least twenty yards. A neat dive, 100 yards breast stroke, and 50 yards back stroke, and diving for a weight—a difficult feat—were other requirements for this difficult test.

Marion Harvey, winner with 215 points, had as runner-up Edith Long, 193 points, while Audrey Johnson and Audrey Doukas were third and fourth respectively.

Win Much Applause.

In the Babies' Competition each of the three contestants was under eight years of age, although their wonderful exhibition of swimming would have done credit to persons of more mature years. In the manner in which they took the high dive from the balcony, and performed other difficult evolutions, in the water, they earned the admiration and applause of the entire gathering, including audience and contestants. Nonchalantly poised on the edge of the swimming pool, the youngsters eagerly awaited the starting signal, and fought for the honors in a true sporting fashion. Lily Long won the championship with 234 points, being closely followed by Fred Fowler 214 points, and Doris Doukas 211 points. For speed little Fred Fowler outclassed his rivals in the 12 yards race, completing the course in 6 4-5 seconds, the best time he has yet made.

Following the announcement of the winners of this event, Lily Long and Doris Doukas presented their instructress with a bouquet and a box of chocolates.

Decisions in the Junior Diving Championship classes were a difficult proposition, and the girls were requested by the judges to go over their work a second time, when they announced Isabel Duffus as the winner with 260 points, Marion Harvey second, [illegible] points, and Mary Kingsbury [illegible] points.

In the Senior Championship Hazel Bradley put up a splendid showing, proving her ability as an all-round swimmer of promise. The judges awarded her 362 points, with Jean Harvey and Elda Bradley close followers with 349 and 339 points respectively.

The program, well conceived in every detail, was rounded out with the inclusion of a number of exhibitions of trick and fancy swimming and diving, novelty races and stunts, etc.

Mary Kingsbury, a member of the "stunting squad," performed a noteworthy feat, in so much as she completed two lengths of the pool swimming under water—a distance of 87 feet.

Great amusement was created by the tub chariot race, in which two swimmers completed the length of the pool, while supporting a washtub including "passenger." There were several teams entered in this novel race, and great was the merriment when one of the tubs would suddenly capsize, and take a sudden plunge to the depths of the pool, along with the "cargo." This event was won by Doris Rogers, Jean Harvey, and little Lily Long.

Other mirth provokers were the duck race, Hazel Bradley; old clothes race, Jean Harvey; egg and spoon race, Doris Rogers (seniors); candle race, Audrey Johnson (juniors) and Hazel Bradley (seniors); and the blindfold race, Isabel Duffus (juniors) and Ilene Bowles (seniors).

Girls Put One Over.

In the relay race between teams representing the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A., the girls took the lead and held it throughout, beating their male opponents in a thorough fashion. The boys are awaiting the completion of their new swimming pool, and intend to get some of their own back.

Among some of the other difficult events on the bill, was the 25 yards senior race won by Jean Harvey, and the race in which the contestants took to the water with their hands and feet securely tied. The junior event was won by Marion Harvey, while Elda Bradley captured senior honors.

In addition to the cups other valuable prizes were awarded to the successful contestants in the minor events, these prizes being donated by Mrs. E. E. Harvey and the swimming committee, and consisting of articles of jewellery and a set of silver spoons.

Jean Howson passed award of merit examinations on Friday afternoon: J. McClenaghan of the Y.M.C.A. being the examiner.

BOWLERS PLAN OPEN TOURNEY NEXT SEASON

Will Mark Beginning of Next Year's Activities By Local Club.

EXTENSIVE PROGRAM.

Much Decided at Meeting of Sports Committee Held This Week.

Although the lawn bowling season is scarcely over, plans are already being made by members of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club for a busy season's activities next year. This will include a number of district tournaments as well as club tournaments which should keep the members busy from the start to the close of the season.

At the meeting of the Sports' Committee, held in the club house this week under the chairmanship of B. Chesler and attended by President J. D. Fitzpatrick, R. Disney, H. Freemand, Dr. H. J. Long, George Cairns and H. B. Cowan, tentative plans were laid for a portion at least of next season's activities. In order that the local club may have the full support of the bowling clubs in the districts adjacent to Peterborough in any open tournaments that may be conducted, it is proposed that the twenty-one bowling clubs, between Whitby on the west and Belleville and Tweed on the east, shall be invited to send representatives to a meeting to be held in Peterborough, Thursday afternoon, November 27. The main purpose of the meeting is to try to avoid over-lapping of tournament dates and to insure outside support for whatever tournaments are decided upon.

Open Tournament

The Peterborough Club proposes to hold open tournaments on July 1, and Wednesday, August 26. These will be elimination tournaments and suitable prizes will be offered. In addition it is proposed to hold a men's double tournament on Wednesday afternoon and evening, July 22; the winners to be decided on the plus system, and a mixed tournament on Wednesday afternoon and evening, August 12.

In view of the fact that Peterborough has much the best equipped buildings and grounds of any local club and because of the city's central location, it is expected that strong outside support will be forthcoming for any open tournaments that are finally arranged.

It is proposed that the local season shall start with a local tournament on Monday, May 25. This will be an all day tournament restricted to club members and will be decided on the plus system. The club fours will commence the first of June and it is intended that they shall be completed by July 10. Teams which fail top lay according to this schedule will be penalized. It is expected that there will be about 44 rinks and that 16 greens will be used.

The first Wednesday in June will be used for the club fours but the other three Wednesdays' will be used for local tournament purposes. On June 24 it is proposed to hold a mixed tournament in the afternoon and evening. On June 24 it is proposed to hold a mixed tournament in the afternoon and evening. Two games of 12 ends each will be played in the afternoon and one at night.

The club house has recently been improved by the installation of a furnace which makes it possible for it to be used with comfort throughout the winter months for any activities which may be decided upon.

TORONTO LEAFS WILL MEET PHILADELPHIA QUAKERS IN SECOND GAME OF SCHEDULE

While Montreal Canadiens Entertain Ottawa Senators to Open Their Home Season—Three Games Sunday Night Will Complete the Official Opening of All Teams in the National Hockey League.

GAME NEEDS MORE LENIENT REFEREEING TO WIN APPROVAL OF HOCKEY FANS

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 15 (C.P.)— Two games in the Canadian group mark activities in the National Hockey League to-night. Tomorrow night, however, three games will be played, and the official opening in all cities represented in the circuit will have been completed.

While Toronto Maple Leafs are entertaining the Philadelphia Quakers, Montreal Canadiens will inaugurate their home season against Ottawa Senators.

Highly favored to win their opening game Thursday against New York Americans, the Leafs who were lucky to secure a tie, are expected to redeem themselves against the Quakers, who lost their first start as representatives of Philadelphia when New York Rangers beat them, three to nothing.

Too strict officiating spoiled the Leafs' opening tussle. But things may be different to-night. Another capacity house will watch the teams perform and most of those who saw the first game are hoping President Frank Calder has appointed more lenient referees.

Canadiens will attempt to avenge the defeat suffered by their intra-city rivals when they meet the Senators. The latter trounced the Maroons in the opening game quite handily, but are expected to find it a more difficult matter to defeat the Stanley Cup holders, who have shown all of their old time ability in exhibition contests.

In the Sunday games, Philadelphia stops off at Detroit, after leaving Toronto, and engages the Falcons of that city. Hopes of a championship are already arising among Detroit fans following the Falcons sparkling one to nothing victory over Rangers on Thursday, and another large crowd will welcome the Quakers and cheer the Motor City team.

Rangers move on to Chicago where they assist the Blackhawks in opening the schedule in the Windy City. Rangers have played two games, winning one, but just how good the Hawks are is not definitely known.

The Blackhawks have much the same team which entered the playoffs last year, only to be defeated by Canadiens, but with the return to form of stars of 1928 who were not up to the mark last year, it is expected the Chicagoans will be an outstanding threat to every team they meet this season.

Eddie Gerard's "Amazing Amerks," more amazong than ever, open their home season in New York against Montreal Maroons. The latter have played but one game, but lost that despite the presence on their line-up of six stars of last year's Allan Cup team, the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association. Ottawa's victory was so convincing it would occasion no surprise if the Americans, powerful defensively, should register their first victory of the season. The Gothamites have played two games, losing by one goal to Boston and playing a scoreless tie with the Maple Leafs in Toronto.

Famous Race Horse Victim Of Disease

TORONTO, Ont., November 15 (C.P.). — Falling victim to the dread autumn pneumonia, Rare Jewel, who scored a sensational victory in the Coronation Stakes at the Ontario Jockey Club's fall meeting at Woodbine last September 20, is dead at Thorncliffe Park Race Course.

The death of this promising racer came as a shock to Conny Smythe, popular managing director of the Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League, who had planned to train the fast running filly for the big stakes at Woodbine next spring, including the historical King's Plate.

When Rare Jewel won the Coronation she returned her backers $214 for a $2 ticket. Smythe won more than $5,000 besides the purse of $3,000.

SYRACUSE SEES FIRST PRO GAME SATURDAY NIGHT

Newly Formed Team in King League Will Meet Detroit Olympics.

SIX TEAMS IN ACTION.

London Tecumsehs' Clash With Cleveland Will Be Only International Affair.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 15. (CP)— Six teams in the International Hockey League get into action tonight to complete the opening of the King loop. Two games are all-American clashes, while the other is an international affair with London meeting last year's champion Indians at Cleveland.

The Tecumsehs have already had a taste of competition proper for they beat the Yellow Jackets at Pittsburgh on Thursday and hope to add the Indians to their short list of victims. The Londoners will have an edge in condition over their opponents who in a recent exhibition game appeared badly in need of some strenuous training.

Buffalo Bisons, fresh from a hard earned triumph over Windsor Bulldogs last night, by a lone goal in the final period, open their home season with Pittsburgh as the visitors. Possessing all of last year's players who know each other's style perfectly the Bisons will no doubt make it two wins in a row, as the Yellow Jackets do not appear to have settled down in their home as yet. The Pittsburgh tam is composed of players who were last year with Toronto Millionaires and Niagara Falls Cataracts two clubs that dropped out this year.

Professional hockey will make its debut in Syracuse when the stars clash with Detroit Olympics. The latter were a power in the race last year, but several sterling players have been promoted to the Detroit Falcons of the National league, and on paper the team does not appear quite so formidable.

BRUINS WANT NEW PLAY-OFF SYSTEM

Different play-off arrangements in the National Hockey League are desired by the officials of the Boston Bruins. The following article in the New York Telegram outlines the Bruins' suggestions:

Somehow or other it's just impossible to keep the old reform instinct from bubbling over the top of the Boston kettle. If it isn't a book, it's something else again. Just now it happens to be hockey, and the Bruin officials are shouting the need of a play-off reform, for the second time in three years. Using Frank Calder president of the National Hockey League, as a medium, the Bruins have despatched form letters to all magnates in the ice circuit. Among other things these circulars advocate a three-out-of-five game final and a set payment policy for players regardless of the magnitude of the gate. It is just a coincidence of course but still true, that Boston's hockey chieftains never experience the reform urge when successful in the play-offs. Three seasons back the three-out-of-five game final prevailed. That year the Rangers put the wilds under the Bruins, and the official machinery began to grind. Owner Charles F. Adams and Manager Art Ross talked so fluently, in fact, that a two-out-of-three game final was installed. Whether the new Bostonian plan will be accepted will be decided at a Board of Governors' meeting, and there is a strong likelihood of its being approved. Charlie and Art have a way of convincing their fellow-icemen which is astonishingly consistent. Besides Art Ross is known as a very difficult person to thwart. It is not the type of play-offs that bothers the New York hockey public, however, but the play-off system as a whole. The customers cannot understand why six out of ten teams in the National League should be given a chance to win the title after the regular season is over. They regard it unfair to the group winners, and quite at odds with the American baseball theory. Bill Dwyer, owner of the New York Americans, advances the same opinion. He would prefer a world series between the leaders of the American and Canadian groups and nothing else. Like the other magnates, he agrees the play-offs are purely a financial proposition, and he would install the baseball series system if given his way. Colonel John S. Hammond, boss of the New York Rangers, takes the opposite stand, as does Manager Lester Patrick.

Wish Peterborough Luck In Playdowns.

On Wednesday afternoon in the Ball Park at Belleville the Garnet and Grey of Peterborough C. I. triumphed over the crimson of Belleville C. I. to take the second game of the home and home series by a score of 17 to 10 and the Dr. Neal Cup and the right to advance further in the Cossa playdowns and the O.R.F.U. interscholastic series. Peterborough's team this year, as in other years, was a hard but clean-playing outfit who fought hard all the time from the drop of the hat. Their coach, "Red" Legon, gave them the plays and they put them into effect, they played nice football all year and the local collegiate team and fans who saw them play here wish them luck in their further quest for honors, and are satisfied that the reputation of this district for producing good teams is in capable hands.—(Lindsay Post).

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S LITTLE APPLE.

Once upon a time there was a wee tiny, little growing on top of a tree that stood in a farmer's orchard, close to the fence. On that tree was this little apple, but it was so small that it was quite ashamed of itself.

"Oh, dear!" sighed the little apple one day.

"What's the matter?" whispered a leaf. There were very few leaves left on the tree now and only this one, wee apple. For the summer had passed, autumn was passing and winter was coming. "Are you in trouble, my friend?" asked the leaf.

"Such a trouble!" said the apple. "I am so little that no one wants me. I am of no use in this world. All the other apples on our tree were either picked off or they fell and the farmer man gathered them into his cellar. But he didn't try to pick me. Here I am left alone on top of the tree where everybody sees me."

"Perhaps," said the leaf, "the farmer didn't pick you because you were so high up."

"No, it wasn't that," sighed the apple, "It's because I am so small he thought I wasn't worth bothering with. He just left me to dry up here and whither away. Why, I am so small that even the wind didn't think it worth while to try to shake me off. And none of the animal boys, who live near Uncle Wiggily's bungalow, thought it worth their while to try to knock me off with a stick or a stone. Oh, dear! I am of no use in this world. Nobody wants me! I wish I could dry up and blow away!"

Buster threw a stone!

"Nonsense! That is no way to talk!" said the leaf. "Look at me! Nobody ever wants me or picks me. The best that can happen is that I will fall off, dry up and blaze in a bonfire."

"Even that would be better than having nothing happen," said the little red apple. "It isn't as if I were on a low branch where no one could see me. But up here, so high, everybody can see me and make fun of me."

"I'm sure no one makes fun of you," spoke the leaf. 'You must try and be more cheerful. Who knows? You may be of some good after all. And you may have an adventure such as Uncle Wiggily has."

"Don't try to cheer me up!" said the little red apple. "Let me be sad and unhappy."

"Nonsense!" chuckled the leaf. "I think—but hush! Some one is coming, I hear them walking under our tree! Listen!"

There was a shuffling, rustling sound in the dried leaves and, looking down, the little red apple saw the rabbit gentleman himself. With him was Buster, a little boy rabbit.

"There's Uncle Wiggily now," whispered the leaf. "He may bring you good luck, little red apple."

"I'll never have any luck!" sighed the sad fruit.

Uncle Wiggily looked up into the tree. Then he looked again and said:

"Why there's one, lone, little, red apple left on top of the tree. I guess the farmer doesn't want it."

"Could we have it?" asked Buster.

"I think we might, if we could get it down," answered Uncle Wiggily. "But it is too high for us to climb up there."

"We don't need to climb," spoke Buster. "I'll throw a stone and knock the apple off. It will fall down and we can pick it up."

"You may try," said Uncle Wiggily.

Buster threw a stone.

"Oh, I hope he hits me and knocks me off," thought the little, red apple. "I'm so tiny that I'm ashamed to stay up here."

"Whack!" went Buster's stone against the stem by which the little apple was fastened to the tree. The stem broke and down fell the red fruit in a pile of leaves at the same time a large, red apple rolled out on the ground beside the little one.

"Oh, look!" cried Buster. "There were two apples, Uncle Wiggily."

"No," said Mr. Longears. "You knocked down the little apple, but the big one was already on the ground under the leaves. I guess the farmer man forgot it. And as he doesn't want it, you may have it."

"Then do you want the little apple, Uncle Wiggily?" asked Buster.

"Yes, I'll take it," said the rabbit gentleman. "It's a cute, little thing," he went on, picking up the red fruit. "I'll put it in my pocket and give it to Baby Bunty."

"See," whispered the leaf, which had also been knocked down with the wee apple. "You are going to have an adventure! How wonderful!"

"We shall see!" answered the apple. "At least this is better than being all alone on top of a tree." The tiny apple cuddled down in the rabbit's pocket.

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a homemade medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a 16 oz. bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to make 16 ounces. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. First, it loosens the germ-laden phlegm. Second, it soothes away the inflammation. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in the obstinate bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

SOCIETIES HONOR LAKEFIELD WOMAN

Mrs. G. C. Grant, an Esteemed Member of Knox Church, Leaving Village Shortly.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 15 (Examiner Correspondence)—Mrs. G. C. Grant, who is leaving shortly to join her husband in California, was the guest of honor at a joint meeting of the W.C.T.U. and W.M.S. of Knox United Church, held on Wednesday evening in the schoolroom of Knox Church.

The impromptu program was excellent and included a double presentation to Mrs. Grant. On behalf of the W.C.T.U. of which Mrs. Grant was president Mrs. S. Hunter and Mrs. J. M. Simpson presented her with a cut steel chain and onyx and steel pendant and Mrs. Bailey and Mrs. Burgess on behalf of the W.M.S. presented a bar pin to match.

Refreshments were served and a social hour spent. Mrs. Grant bid her friends good-bye, assuring them of her thanks for the gifts and of her remembrance of them and their pleasant associations.

To Give Travellogue

Rev. J. B. McCormack will give his very interesting travellogue "A Trip to Scotland" on Wednesday evening, Nov. 19, in the Selwyn Baptist Church, beginning at 8 o'clock.

THREE RIOTERS KILLED.

MADRID, Nov. 14.—(A.P.)—Three men were killed, a dozen seriously wounded and fifty others injured in a series of labor riots which threw the city into a turmoil for half an hour to-day.

A Cape of Good Hope four-cent 1862 stamp printed in the wrong color was sold in London recently for $1,050.

MILBURN'S HEART & NERVE PILLS

Price 50c a box

Was Weak and Run Down

Could Scarcely Do Housework

Mrs. Edward A. Allen, Bezanson, Alta., writes: "I would like to tell you of the great benefit I have received from your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I was feeling very much run down in health, and was so weak I could scarcely do my housework, in fact, I would have to lie down in the afternoon for an hour or so. I saw your Pills in the drug store and took a box home with me, and I was delighted with my renewed strength. I have recommended them to a neighbor and feel sure they will help her too."

Sold by all drug and general stores, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Ltd., Toronto, Ont.

JOB PRINTING

We will gladly make layouts in one, two or more colors, and estimate costs for you.

Phone 1600

It looks easy to feed sheets of paper into one of the swiftly running presses . . . and it is easy. But it requires a trained eye to spot faults. Our pressmen take an intense pride in the quality of their work, and we make certain of this also by holding them to only one kind of work — "Good Printing."

BYRD PICTURE IS RATED BEST

Polar Photography Receives Annual Award for Camera Work.

"ALL QUIET" SUPREME

John T. Rucker and Willard Vander Veer, the two Paramount camera men who spent eighteen months in Little America with the Byrd expedition and who filmed "With Byrd at the South Pole," have received the annual award of the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences for the best cinema photography of the year. This and other awards were announced recently in Hollywood at the third annual dinner of the academy.

The performance of George Arliss in "Disraeli" was judged the best of the season, and "All Quiet on the Western Front" was selected as the outstanding motion picture. To Lewis Milestone, director of that film, went the award for the best direction. Herman Gosse was declared to have done the most outstanding art direction by his work in "The King of Jazz." Norma Shearer's performance in "The Divorcee" was adjudged the best by an actress.

Frances Marion for her script of "The Big House," received the palm for the best original story, while the sound recording in that film brought to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer engineers the award for the most perfect work of its kind.

AT THE REGENT

The week's attractions at the Regent are as follows:

Nov. 15 (tonight) and 17—"Dumbbells in Ermine", a Warner Bros. picture.

Tuesday to Friday, Nov. 18-21—Ronald Colman in "Raffles." This is a United Artists production and the second to be shown at the Regent under the house's new booking arrangements with U.A.

Saturday and Monday, Nov. 22-24—Rube Goldberg's "Soup to Nuts" (Fox).

FRENCH PERMIT "ALL QUIET"

The French government has ruled to permit the exhibition of "All Quiet on the Western Front" (U) in spite of the general ban on war pictures. Reason is that the authorities acknowledge the value of the picture's propaganda against war.

So completely is the cabinet in favor of preachments against war the officials give willing ear to the suggestion that such material be encouraged by remission of the usual film taxes.

CAPITOL BOOKINGS

Forthcoming attractions at the Capitol are:

"The Spoilers," based on Rex Beach's novel, Saturday and Monday, Nov. 15 and 17.

"Heads Up," with Chas. Rogers, Helen Kane and Victor Moore, Nov. 18 and 19.

"The Big House," Nov. 20 and 21, a prison-crook story and one of the big films of the year.

"Old English," with George Arliss in the title role, Nov. 22 and 24.

"With Byrd at the South Pole," Nov. 25 and 26. This picture was one of the few to receive "Liberty's" four-star rating.

SCREEN AND STAGE NOTES

Amos 'n' Andy's second picture for Radio will be made on the Coast next summer. No terms have been reached nor agreement made, but there is a mutual understanding the air team will repeat for Radio.

Ruth Chatterton will blow herself to a vacation in New York and abroad.

Indications are that Mary Nolan will be retained at U for another year, following expiration of present ticket in four months. She may go into lead of "Up and Up."

Wallace Beery spent week-end at San Francisco as a participant in the American Legion air race. He piloted his own plane.

"Mlle. Modiste" will be sold under the title of "Kiss Me Again" instead of "Toast of the Legion."

Will Rogers' new deal with Fox aggregating $1,000,000. Cowboy star calls for six pictures in two years. Has yes or no on all stories.

Oscar Strauss' $11,000 breach of contract suit against Metro has been settled in full. Strauss must furnish some additional song material for Metro's use.

Jackie Coogan is hog raising in San Diego county. This info leaked out at Brawley, Cal., when his representatives negotiated for three carloads of hog feed.

Basil Dean and Sir Philip Gibbs are collaborating on a story for R-K-O-Associated Talking Pictures, one of the Anglo-American films made here for R-K-O distribution.

Pathe lot is starless with Ann Hardin, Helen Twelvetrees, and Constance Bennett all under loan to other studios.

"Indiscretion", United Artists feature starring Evelyn Laye, will open at the Rialto or Rivoli on Broadway in December.

No opening date yet set for Charlie Chaplin's "City Lights."

El Brendel, the Swedish comic, is a leading man in Fox pictures now. Instead of furnishing the comedy relief for others, Mr. Brendel will enact the principal part in "Poor John," based on a story by Sonya Levien and Harry Delf.

William Powell's next picture will be "Ladies' Man," from the story by Rupert Hughes. The film is now going into rehearsal in Hollywood within the next ten days. "Alias Mrs. Wallace," an Octavus Roy Cohen play, which was to have served as Mr. Powell's next feature under the tentative title "Buy Your Woman," will be produced immediately with another cast.

Lawrence Tibbett left Hollywood last week to star tour from coast to coast that will keep him away from the Metro lot until next May. Tentative New York appearance on the concert route is December 24.

Culminating a friendship which started 65 years ago, Miss Grace Rowlands, aged 85, and Charles Blanchford, 87, were married recently at Horsell, England.

TWO CIRCUSES FOLD

Sparks and Hagenback-Wallace Shelved for 1931.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Sparks and Hagenbeck-Wallace circus will not be on the road in 1931. Recent conference between John Ringling and several executives brought the decision to shelve these two properties for next year.

Several head men, who had yearly contracts with the Sparks outfit, were notified by mail their contracts would be void as the show was not going out. Same procedure for the H-W show.

Al. G. Barnes circus, on the Pacific Coast, is reported for sale. If this goes through will leave Ringling with only the Ringling-Barnum, Sells-Floto and John Robinson for next year.

These three outfits, at present, are slated to go on tour in 1931. Understood there will also be considerable change in advance personnel, which will include many Ringling employees who will step into the shoes of the executives of the old American Circus Corp.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR SALE

UNDER AND BY VIRTUE of the powers contained in a certain mortgage, which will be produced at the time of sale, there will be offered for sale by public auction, on Thursday the 18th. day of December, 1930, at the hour of two o'clock in the afternoon, at Hancock's Auction Parlours, 494 George street, Peterborough, the following property consisting of two detached dwelling houses, with lands appurtenant, being premises known as 492 and 496 Elm Street, in the City of Peterborough. The properties are suitable dwellings, with modern conveniences, and may be purchased separately or together.

THE sale will be subject to a reserved bid.

TERMS: 10 per cent of the purchase money to be paid down at the time of sale, balance to be paid within 30 days.

FOR FURTHER particulars and conditions of sale apply to Gordon and Elliott, 395 and 397 George Street, Peterborough, Solicitors for the Mortgagee.

THE RETURN OF TARZAN No. 54 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

In half an hour they came stealthily upon a small party of black warriors filing toward the west. As Tarzan saw them he gave a cry of delight. It was a band of his own Waziri. Busuli was there and others who had accompanied him to Opar. At sight of him they danced and shouted in exuberant joy. They had been searching for him for weeks.

The blacks exhibited considerable wonderment at the presence of the white girl with him, and when they found she was to be his woman, they vied with one another to do her honor. With the happy Waziri laughing and dancing about them, they came to the rude shelter by the shore. There was no sign of life, and no response to their calls.

Tarzan clambered quickly to the interior of the little tree hut. There he found the still, emaciated form of Clayton. Lines of suffering were upon the once young and handsome face. Clasped in his dead hand were some sheets of faded yellow paper. Tarzan of the Apes drew a fold of cloth across the upturned face. Then he beckoned Jane to come up.

For a moment they remained kneeling there, the girl's lips moving in silent prayer. As they arose Tarzan handed her the dead man's pitiful diary, day by day sentences filled with the tragedy of his situation until he was too weak to write more. Through her tears the girl read the tale of suffering and devotion to her. And as she read her eyes went very wide.

IN MEMORIAM.

DYER. — In loving memory of Walter John Dyer, who passed away on November 16, 1927.

As we loved you, so we miss you,
To memory you are dear—
Loved, remembered, longed for always,
Bringing many a silent tear.
Three years ago to-day
You were carefully laid away,
And the years go swiftly by
A misty light now fills our eyes
We loved you dearly, dad, dear,
And when our time is up
We'll join you there.

—Sadly missed by Wife, Sons, and Daughters and Grandchildren.

DRIP, DRIP, DRIP!

Peterborough had what sailors refer to as "dirty" weather last night. A heavy fog mantled the city and the surrounding district. The trees and eaves dripped with wet and motorists found difficulty in peering through the fog. The same conditions have prevailed for several nights this week, the fog being caused by the comparatively high temperature of the day followed by the cool night.

RAY BROWN ENTERS INSURANCE COMPANY

Partner in A. Brown and Son Associated With North American Life Company.

The many friends of Ray Brown will be pleased to know that he has recently associated himself with a business of such stability and progress as life insurance.

In choosing the North American Life Assurance Company to represent, Mr. Brown has affiliated himself with one of the oldest and strongest Life Insurance companies on the continent. It has an enviable record of service to policyholders, an unexcelled financial position, and its fifty years of history has well merited its motto "Solid as the Continent".

Before entering the Life Insurance business, Mr. Brown was associated with his father, Mr. A. Brown in the automobile business where he made many friends on account of his fair dealings and gained a broad sales and business experience which will greatly assist him in his new work.

Mr. Brown will be connected with the Peterborough agency of the North American Life Assurance Company with offices in the Royal Bank Chambers.

We extend Ray our best wishes for success in his new vocation.

CENTREVILLE MAN HELD FOR MURDER

Action Taken Following Death of Victim in Hallowe'en Celebration.

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 15 (C.P.)—A jury at Centreville, sitting before Dr. T. M. Galbraith, coroner of Napanee, probing the circumstances that led to the death of Frank Shane, about forty years of age, who died in the Kingston General Hospital on Sunday morning last, as a result of a skull injury, rendered a verdict that Shane came to his death as the result of a blow on the head caused by a stone in the hands of Lorne Rogers, Camden East. Shane received his injuries during a celebration of Hallowe'en at Camden East.

Following the verdict rendered by the jury, Provincial Officer F. W. Barrett of Napanee, placed Rogers under arrest on a charge of murder, and the accused was removed to the jail at Napanee. He came before Magistrate Graham at Napanee this morning and was remanded for a week.

WEDDING BELLS

TRUSSLER—MacEACHERN.

A quiet wedding took place on Thanksgiving Day in Yonge Street United Church, Toronto, when Marion E. MacEachern, eldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William MacEachern, of Orangeville, became the bride of Paul E. Trussler, eldest son of Mrs. Trussler, of 28 Kenneth Avenue, Toronto, and the late Joseph Trussler, formerly of Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Peter Webster.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Percy MacEachern, wore a pretty gown of eggshell lace and net, with matching velvet hat and shower bouquet of roses and lily of the valley.

The bridesmaid, Miss Lorraine MacEachern, wore blue georgette with a hat of blue velvet and a bouquet of pink roses.

W. L. Randall acted as best man.

Ushers were Harold MacEachern and Robert Eustace.

After the ceremony, a reception was held. The mother and sister of the bridegroom received with the bride and bridegroom, the former wearing black lace and georgette with a black velvet hat, and the latter, Miss Alma Trussler, in coral georgette with matching velvet hat. Refreshments were served in buffet fashion.

Later, Mr. Trussler and his bride left for their future home in Cobalt, the latter travelling in a dress of wine colored crepe, with matching felt hat and fur coat.

Mr. Trussler is associated with the Woolworth Company in Cobalt.

HALL—WILSON

On Monday, Nov. 10 at St. Paul's Anglican Church, Perrytown, a very quiet wedding was solemnized by Rev. Mr. Kingsford, M.A., when Beatrice E., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reid Wilson, of Port Hope became the bride of William Clifford Hall, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Hall, Millbrook.

The church was tastily decorated with oak leaves and yellow and bronze "mums".

Mendelssohns wedding march was played by Miss Dorothy Wilson of Toronto, as the bride entered the church on the arm of her father. She looked very dainty in an ankle-length gown, in Empire style of eggshell georgette with trimmings and mittens in mahogany transparent velvet. Hat and shoes were of the same mahogany shade. She carried a prayer book and wore a bouquet of lily of the valley and deep purple pansies at the waist.

During the signing of the register by Miss Gladys Wilson, sister of the bride and Mr. Willis Hall, brother of the groom. Mr. Laurence Dunbar sang "The Voice that Breathed O'er Eden".

The ushers for the occasion were Mr. Charles and Hector Wilson, brother and cousin of the bride respectively.

On their return they will reside on "Fairview farm", Cavan.

BAND PRESENTS FINE CONCERT

Entertaining Affair Held Under Auspices of Brotherhood of St. James' Church.

PLEASING NUMBERS.

Unique in character was the "Twin Brother Concert" presented last night by the Salvation Army Band, under the auspices of the Brotherhood of St. James' United Church, when a large audience occupied the church auditorium.

After an opening hymn, Rev. A. E. Moorhouse, pastor of the church, offered prayer, and gave the program into the hands of Bandmaster Robinson, who introduced the first selection by the Temple Band, "Bravest of the Brave" (S. C. Coles). A humorous reading "Registration Day" (Jessie Alexander Roberts) was cleverly portrayed by Miss N. Boorman.

Deputy Bandmaster Richardson contributed a fine sacred vocal solo, "We Are Witnesses for Jesus," which was well received.

The next selection by the Band was a Meditation, "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross." (S. D. Coles), with a massive introduction leading up to more emotional feeling, resulting in a softer climax. The episodes between the verses were taken by various instruments in solo parts.

A very pleasing vocal quartette, "Soldiers of the Cross," was well rendered by Misses F. Boorman, N. Boorman, M. Boorman and G. Sutherland.

The concert flute and Italian accordian duett (selected) by Bandsmen O. and J. Yurgensen, came as a delightful innovation on the program.

Another stirring selection by the Band, "Joyous Echoes" (C. Bristow) received warm applause.

The female voice quartette again appeared, offering a part song, "Praise Ye the Lord," with fine effect.

A patrol, "Salvation Army" (Hawkes), represented a new departure, since it is the first selection of its kind to be written. It skilfully depicts a band in the distance, gradually coming nearer, and then fading away. The finale is a mighty crash on one chord.

Bandsmen O. and J. Yurgensen with their flute and accordion, gave a second selection, "Over the Waves" that brought them repeated applause.

Familiar hymn tunes, "Onward Christian Soldiers" and "O God Our Help in Ages Past" were given added attractiveness when played as band numbers with variations.

A short Bible reading by Rev. Mr. Moorhouse, from St. Matthew 7:21, preceded the final number by the Band, which was a beautiful anthem, "Praise Ye the Lord" (Marshall). This was written first to words and later to band music in which one could almost hear the words of praise.

The Doxology, followed by prayer by the pastor, brought to a close this fine musical treat.

The announcements were made throughout by Bandmaster Robinson, who also conducted his splendid band with ease and skill.

The Brotherhood of St. James are to be commended for providing this treat to lovers of band music and for promoting a spirit of friendliness between the two organizations.

Wheat Decline Checked at Winnipeg

PRICE DECLINES LOWEST MARK IN PAST 24 YEARS

Heavy Liquidation By U. S. Interests Brings Selling Wave to Climax Before Noon.

MARKET OPENS WEAK.

November Future Registers Greatest Loss With 8½ Cent Decline.

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 18. (CP)—After the drastic 7 1-8 cents to 8 1-2 cents recession, the wheat market at noon had bounded back more than three cents from the low marks.

November advanced from 55¼ cents to 58½. December touched 57 3-8, May 62 1-4 and July 63 7-8.

Heavy liquidation by southern interests, including Chicago and New York, brought the selling wave to a climax shortly before noon. Thousands of bushels of wheat were dumped in the local pit, but then support came from professional traders and the climb back got underway.

Greatest Decline

The November future registered the greatest loss, 8⅛ cents, when it touched 55¼ cents a bushel, an all time low mark. December was 7 1-8 cents down at 55 1-8, May future at 59 5-8 and July 7 1-3 at 61 7-8.

Starting at the opening ong, values started down the ladder and as each hour went by, slipped drastically until a general wave of selling, in a frenzied pit, shot quotations to the lowest in the 24-year history of the grain exchange.

There was absolutely no support. Buyers had deserted the pit as traders fought to gain position and unload.

Weakness at Liverpool and Buenos Aires and another disappointing overnight trade in export grain were early contributing factors in the decline.

190 UNEMPLOYED ARE GIVEN WORK

At Present Time City is Expending $425 a Day on Unemployment Work.

363 MEN REGISTERED.

One hundred and ninety married men have been taken from the ranks of Peterborough's unemployed and placed on the city's payroll under the unemployment relief program entered into by the City Council and the Federal and Provincial governments.

At the present time the city is expending $425 a day on this unemployment relief work, stated City Engineer Parsons to-day. The relief bill last week for five days, work was $2,104, and it will be bigger this week because there is one extra day of work and more men are now employed.

363 Men Registered

In all 363 men have registered at the Engineer's office as being unemployed. Of this number 271 claimed to be married and 92 signed themselves as being single. Forty of the married men were culled out, because they had secured jobs since registration or it was found that they were not discharging their duties to their families. It was found that 26 single men were supporting dependents, either widowed mothers or younger brothers and sisters, but as yet no single men have been given jobs under the city's unemployment relief scheme.

Mr. Parsons intimated to The Examiner that it was no bed of roses giving the city's unemployed work. He quoted several cases in which men had tried to secure work who did not need it, but he thought that most of these men had been found out and few were working for the city who were not deserving cases.

Students From Queen's To Visit C.G.E. Plant

Australian Flier May Try Pacific

OAKLAND, Cal., Nov. 18.—(C. P.)— R. H. Kingsford-Smith, Oakland shipping executive, announced to-day his famous brother, Wing Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith, was planning a non-stop flight across the Pacific from San Francisco Bay to Tokyo.

The plans were revealed in a letter from the Australian flier, who said he expected to have a new plane named the Southern Cross to negotiate the 4,800 miles. The new plane would be designed to have a cruising radius of 6,000 miles to allow sufficient margin for possible adverse winds.

BARCELONA RIOT QUIETENS DOWN; TWO ARE KILLED

Guards Route Out Merchants in Hiding, Compelling Them to Open Stores.

ONE TROLLEY LINE RUNNING.

Over 200 Wounded Before Civic Officials Threaten to Bring in Troops.

BARCELONA, Spain, Nov. 18 (C.P.) —The beleaguered authorities of this terrorized city took a firm hand today to put down the labor riots which had caused at least two deaths and probably as many as 200 wounded.

Detachments of the Civil Guard made the rounds of stores in the business sections, routing out merchants who had fled in panic yesterday and demanding that they re-open their places of business.

Police guards were assigned to trolley cars and a few of them were put into operation. Passengers at first feared to ride, as groups of strikers still appeared in the streets, but the loaded rifles of the police gave them ample protection and by mid-afternoon one line out of the city's sixty was running on a more or less regular schedule.

The city government has determined to break up this strike if it requires the use of army troops.

Troops were held in reserve to-day but as indications increased that the strike was near an end, it was hoped that it would not be necessary to use them in any great numbers.

PETERBOROUGH CANOE COMPANY COMPLETES NEW MODEL CRUISER

Company is at Present Working at Full Capacity.

DEMAND FOR SKIIS.

"Anticipating the demands and the volume of the 1931 trade, our plant is at present working at full capacity," said W. A. Richardson, president of the Peterborough Canoe Company to The Examiner this morning.

The company has recently completed a new model 24-ft. cabin cruiser, which is the last word in luxury and perfection of design, and it is hoped within the near future to put her through her paces on the waters of the Otonabee River.

Among other new models is a runabout type 19-foot motor boat, which is expected to have a good demand next year.

Despite the lateness of the winter season, Mr. Richardson states, that orders for skiis, snowshoes and other winter sports equipment is exceedingly brisk, and the shops are being kept busy in fulfilling the supply.

He seemed to be very optimistic as to a revival in trade, and said that the company following years of boat building experience, is confidently anticipating the demands of the future and is thus able to keep the plant working at full time.

$44,629,847 WILL BE SPENT ON UNEMPLOYMENT

Senator G. D. Robertson, Minister of Labor, last night fully approved Peterborough's unemployment relief program of laying storm drains and paving up to a total cost not to exceed $80,000. He also approved the expenditure of $30,000 for relief in Haliburton County.

The lists issued bring the total amounts approved for unemployment relief up to $44,629,847. This includes the $11,514,000 undertaken by the Canadian Pacific Railways and the $11,764,498 by the Canadian National Railways. A total of $10,735,100 has been approved for Ontario.

HARDEST PERIOD LIES BEFORE U. S. THOMAS STATES

Claims Americans Must Have Faith in Their Institutions.

AIDED WORLD PROGRESS.

Five Year Plan For U. S. Industry Suggested By Chamber of Commerce Chief.

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 18. (CP)—The United States will "go through hell in the next four months as never before" said Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Secretary of the Dominions, to-day, in an address before the American Chamber of Commerce.

"America is up against it, just as we have been" Mr. Thomas said of the depression. "You in America must have faith in your institutions and you have a right to be proud of them, for you have made no small contribution to world progress. They should be your guiding star. You should say, 'Yes, we are having a bad time of it, but just as clay goes through the fire and comes out purified, so shall we.'"

Francis Powell, President of the London American Chamber of Commerce, suggested a "five year plan" for American industry based on the Russian idea to avoid future slumps. "Some Governmnt departments could call together the heads of industries and lay production plans five years ahead" he elaborated later.

Bennett Pays Visit To City Of Belfast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Nov. 18 (C.P.)—Premier R. B. Bennett came from the Irish Free State to Northern Ireland to-day, motoring on his arrival here to Queen's University, where he was the recipient of an honorary degree.

His busy program next included a visit to the City Hall where he adressed the corporation and immediately at the conclusion of this item, the Canadian Prime Minister was taken to the Grand Central Hotel, where he was the guest of the Ulster Government at a luncheon.

Hull, England, with a population of 300,000, is just substituting electricity for gas for street lighting.

Il Duce Has Salary Cut 12 per Cent.

ROME, Nov. 18 (C.P.).—The Council of Ministers, acting on Premier Mussolini's recommendation, to-day decided on a sweeping salary cut of twelve per cent. for all State employees in Italy, including themselves.

This reduction will become effective December 1, and is designed to obviate the necessity of imposing new taxes or increasing present ones.

The decision came after it had been stated that there was a deficit of about $36,450,000 facing the State in the first four months of budgetary period to come.

This drastic economy move, it was indicated, would not be the first and only retrenchment measures the Fascist State would adopt.

Labor Gov't Announces New Hours' Measure

LONDON, Nov. 18.—(C. P.-Cable)—The Government today made public the text of its "Hours of Industrial Employment" Bill, which is to implement the Washington Working Hours Convention of 1919. The Bill, which is not restricted to rigid limits, sets the statutory working hours of industrial workers at eight a day and 48 a week, with certain exceptions. Overtime must not exceed 32 hours in a period of 28 days. Before it is concluded the Minister of Labor will consult organizations affected.

The provisions of the bill do not apply to seamen, managers or clerks.

Discussing the Destiny of India

CONTROL OF GERMANY MAY CHANGE TO HANDS LIFTED AGAINST FRANCE

Senator Beaubien Lays Much of Blame For European Conditions on Mussolini.

PRAISES LEAGUE'S WORK.

MONTREAL, Que., November 18 (C.P.). — "War is the scourge of the masses," stated Senator C. P. Beaubien at a meeting of the Young Men's Canadian Club held here yesterday. The League of Nations, which he characterized as mankind's greatest concerted effort against war, was gradually fighting it, he said, and time alone would record success or failure

Senator Beaubien said that the serious conditions in Europe to-day were aggravated by Mussolini's aloofness from France, his present marked leanings towards Germany, and by Germany's marked leaning toward Russia. He declared that though Germany was prohibited from arming at home, she was doing so indirectly through Russia in view of a Russian conflict with Poland.

Grave Situation.

He said that the situation was grave and that the control of Germany may slip to hands uplifted against France. Could Germany wage war or was she penniless and powerless as Lloyd George states, could be answered by the increases since the war in her industry. The coal industry had increased 48 per cent., since 1913, the iron industry 48 per cent., the steel industry 38 per cent., the chemicals products 113 per cent., and international trade 29 per cent. The war budget since 1924 has increased 50 per cent. and Von Seeckt, the genius responsible for the Reichswehr, openly claimed its superiority over the French Army, and stated that the defensive force of France would be shattered at the first blow, Senator Beaubien said.

France, led by Briand, the apostle of peace, faces the future with patience and faith in disarmament, he said.

He praised the work of the League of Nations and paid tribute to Sir Robert Borden and Senator Chapais' work there.

B.C. PILOT LOSES LICENSE

VANCOUVER, Nov. 18 (C.P.)—Pilot W. A. Joerss, who landed his seaplane here from Prince Rupert, was handed a letter from Squadron Leader T. Cowley, acting head of the Civil Aviation Department, permanently cancelling his pilot's license for continued infractions of air regulation. Joerss had taken part in the so-far-unsuccessful search for Captain E. J. A. Burke and two companions.

Particulars of the Alleged infractions of the air regulations charged against Joerss were not made public.

Six U.S. Governors To Plan For Relief

NEW YORK, November 18 (C.P.). —Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt plans a round table conference in January of the Governors of six industrial states to discuss problems of unemployment.

Prior to his departure last evening for Warm Springs, Ga., the Governor said he would issue invitations to the chief executives of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Ohio to come to Albany and devise means of preventing "an unmployment situation similar to the present one."

RELIEF AGREEMENT IS APPROVED AT REGULAR MEETING OF COUNCIL

By-law Endorsing Expenditure Will Probably Not Have to be Given People.

CALL GARBAGE TENDERS

The agreement between the City Council and the Provincial Government on sharing the expense of unemployment relief work now being carried on by the corporation unanimously passed the City Council at a special meeting last night. By the agreement the Province is held responsible for 25 per cent. of the cost of the work of laying of specified storm drains and paving up to an amount not to exceed $80,000 in total cost, and one third of the cost of direct relief over that given out monthly by the city last year.

May Not Submit By-Law.

It was intimated by Mayor Denne that the Council will not have to submit the unemployment relief by-law to the ratepayers, since J. A. Ellis, secretary of the Provincial Unemployment Relief committee, has given assurance that a law will be passed in Order in Council giving Ontario municipal councils power to sanction such work on their own.

The additional program of water main laying suggested by the Utilities Commission will not be added to the city's relief program at the present time, since it was thought not the proper to again visit Mr. Ellis with a request to alter the city's program. It was held that something in regard to the Commission's suggestions might be accomplished later, when sufficient time had elapsed to allow the Coun-

Bone Amid Ruins Points to Tragedy

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 18 (C.P.). —With the finding of a charred collar bone during a search of the debris on the farmhouse of Andrew McDermid, swept by fire early Sunday, belief that an unknown person died in the ruins are substantiated. Police stated last night, however, there is still doubt as to whether the bone found was that of a human or an animal, and further examination is to take place.

Many Police Injured During Indian Parade

PATNA, India, Nov. 18 (C.P.) — Many police were injured and three civilians were wounded by police shots in clashes growing out of celebration yesterday at Muzaffarpur of "Jawahrlal Day" in honor of the imprisoned Pandit Jawahahlal Nehru, President of the All India National Congress.

Three thousand persons formed a procession which was declared unlawful and was ordered to disperse, but, according to official report refused to do so, the participants stoning the police. The police charged the gathering, firing seven shots before the disturbance was quelled.

PRESS COMMENTS VERY FAVORABLE ON INDIA PARLEY

Guardian Urges Concrete Proposals at Once Lest Generalities Take Sway.

EQUALITY CLAIM JUSTIFIED.

Events Show All-India Federation Possible if Parties Work Hard.

LONDON, Nov. 18.— (By Thos. T. Champion, C. P. Staff Correspondent.)— A hopeful tone is shown in newspaper comment on the first business session of the Round-table Conference on India, which will last for many weeks.

The Manchester Guardian to-day said: "It looks as if the main business will be to draw up a general plan for an All-India Federation and agree on the extent of responsibility the British Government may transfer to a Central Legislature. It is most important, therefore, that concrete proposals should be submitted forthwith, otherwise the conference may fall into a slough of generalities."

Aid Within Reach.

The Guardian, however, noted that neither the Simon report nor the Indian Government's despatch held "much help in this respect for both consider an All-Indian Federation, though entirely admirable, to be but a remote possibility. Events have shown it is nothing of the sort, but is within reach if all parties work zealously. If the Round-table manages to produce a generally agreed upon plan for Federation it will have done well. The details are best worked out in India."

The Daily News said the speech of the Maharajah of Bikaner, spokesman for the native rulers, yesterday, makes it certain that anybody cherishing a secret hope the Prince could be used as a dam against the rising tide of Indian Nationalism may clearly dismiss the idea. The speeches of Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru on the one hand and Mr. Jayakar, speaking for young India, on the other, "make it equally plain that progressive Indian opinion in British India is alsoperfectly willing to co-operate with the Princes," the News added. "Federated India has ceased to be the distant ideal of Lord Irwin."

The Daily Telegraph noted particularly the remarks of Sir T. J Spokesman for British India, who said such delegates had to come to the conference "amid the jibes and ridicule of their countrymen". "There is no doubt whatever" commented the Telegraph, about her claim to equality of status with other members of the British Commonwealth. Assured of that, even the Congress Independence Party would

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY IN BELFAST HONORS CANADA'S PRIME MINISTER GREAT WELCOME GIVEN CANADIAN

Very Full Day is Spent in Ireland By Prime Minister Bennett.

SENTIMENT NOT ENOUGH.

Need For Educated Men Was Never Greater Premier Declares.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Nov. 18. — (C. P. Cable) — Premier R. B. Bennett of Canada caught an early train at Dublin today, arrived in Belfast at noon, and by nine o'clock tonight had received a civic welcome, received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from Queen's university, attended an official luncheon and a dinner, and visited Stormount Castle, headquarters of the cabinet of Northern Ireland.

Met By Cabinet

Viscount Craigavon and members of his cabinet greeted the Canadian Prime Minister at the station. At the university Mr. Bennett received a tumultuous welcome from hundreds of boisterous young men and women students.

"There was never a time in the history of the world when the need for educated men and women was greater," Premier Bennett said at Queen's. "Neither was there ever a time when the competition was keener and the trained mind more in demand. I trust you are availing yourselves of the opportunities presented to you. I realize I did not fully avail myself of mine. Opportunities in the world were never greater and the demands were never higher."

At the Government luncheon in his honor, Premier Bennett spoke of the problem facing the Empire, of tieing together the several units to present an undivided front to the world. "Of the constitutional side we have made such progress that nobody suggests there should be more," he said, "but sentiment will not alone maintain national life—it must be buttressed by material things. Much as I believe in the ideals that men should have regarding their own countries and their policies and life, the fact remains that we must tie together the various component parts of the Empire."

Seeks Investigation Into Moysey Accounts

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 18.—Baptiste David, formerly a mining camp cook, who has lodged a claim for $500,000 as creditor in an application for the winding up of Arthur E. Moysey and Co., stock brokers, has demanded an investigation of the personal account of Arthur E. Moysey. The petitioner alleges the company has fradulently transferred its assets without the consent of creditors, in order to obstruct their claims. The petition, which is fyled at Osgoode Hall, asks that in the interests of the creditors the accounts of Moysey and all the directing officers be investigated.

HENRY TO APPEAL COURT DECISION ON ASSESSMENTS

City Council Gives Assessor Power to Act in Assessment Cases.

GO BEFORE JUDGE

Alderman McNabb Outlines Stand of Merchants on George Street.

The verbal battle over the proper assessment for 1931 of the land occupied by stores on the west of George street between Hunter and Charlotte streets is not over, but will be opened before His Honor Judge Huycke by City Assessor Wm. J. Henry.

Notice that he took exception to the decision of the Court of Revision in placing the 1931 assessment on these business sites back to the 1930 level, was given the City Council last night by Mr. Henry, declaring frankly that the City Council had never interfered with the work of the City Assessor, the aldermen unanimously voted him "power to act" in carrying the assessment fight through to a finish. Mr. Henry then informed The Examiner that he would certainly take an appeal before the Judge on the Court of Revision's decision handed down last week.

Mr. Henry took exception to the Court's decision on the grounds that the value of the land between these two blocks on George street was worth more than the value placed on it by T. E. Ephgrave, who was witness for the merchants. According to Mr. Ephgrave's estimate, the land between Charlotte and Simcoe streets on the west side was worth $800 a foot, and in the block north $1000. Mr. Henry said that 168 feet, 9 inches of land between Hunter and Simcoe Streets had changed hands recently, the lowest price being $1058 per foot and the highest $1250. In the block between Charlotte and Simcoe streets 139 feet had been sold at prices ranging from $758 to $1338. He said that the 1930 land assessment on the south block was $650 on the centre lots and $835 on the corner ones. Similarly the assessment in the block between Hun-

Convict Leaps From Train as His Five Companions Battle Wardens.

ON WAY TO PENITENTIARY.

ROMSEY, Hampshire, Eng., Nov. 18.—(CP)—A desperate fight in the corridor of a train between four convicts and their warders ended today in the death of one convict who jumped from a window.

The convict whose name was Fern and three fellow prisoners were being taken from Winchester to Princetown, Dartmoor to serve heavy sentences.

During the trip the men, who were chained together requested to be taken into a corridor where one was released. He immediately attacked the warder while the other three prisoners leaped on the second warder.

The six fought desperately for some minutes until a train guard came to the warders assistance. As the train was passing Crampton Moor cross, the unchained convict jumped from the train and was killed. The remaining three were overpowered.

DENIES ALL REPORTS.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 18 (C.P.). — Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, former Conservative Premier of Canada, today said he knew nothing of reports published recently that he would be the next chairman of the Canadian National Railways.

The former Premier was in Montreal to-day on his way to Saint John, N.B. He leaves to-night for the New Brunswick city.

Mob Applies Torch to Several Places Not Closing on Strike Orders.

CAVALRY TROOPS ORDERED.

Police Battle For Control Valiantly—Revolutionary Tinge Looms.

BARCELONA, Spain, Nov. 18. —(CP)— Serious disorders flared last night in connection with a general strike, with at least one man killed and probably 200 wounded.

Police and strikers fought bitterly in a half-dozen clashes, with a mob applying the torch to certain places which had not closed in compliance with the strike order.

Shout for Republic

The disorders also took on a revolutionary tinge, for countless speakers mounted improvised rostrums and shouted for a republic. Others voiced fiery demands for a Communistic regime, and still others called for the separation of Catalonia from Spain — an old question

Cavalry troops of the regular army were ordered into action, and heavy guards and soldiers patrolled the entire city.

HOME IS RAZED NEAR BANCROFT

Children Suffer Severe Burns When Their Home is Destroyed.

CANDLES BLAMED.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 18.—According to word received from the village of Bancroft, 90 miles north of here, the family of Clifford Avey of Kenneway are patients at the Red Cross hospital at that point, suffering from severe burns received when their home was destroyed by fire.

It is understood that an entertainment was being held in the school house, and in order to furnish sufficient light, the family had loaned their lamps. Candles were lighted in the home and in some manner a dresser scarf was ignited and the fire spread with rapidity until soon the dwelling was in flames.

Mr. and Mrs. Avey, who were sleeping downstairs, were awakened by the cries from the children choking in their beds from the smoke. They were successful after some difficulty in removing the youngsters in their night attire, but not before all had been painfully burned. The family was immediately taken to Bancroft.

The home was reduced to ashes, and it is understood that little insurance was carried. Kenneway is situated in the northern bush, where no fire fighting apparatus is available.

SOLLOWAY MILLS BOOKS LOCATED

Shipment Lost Since Last September Likely to be Seized To-day.

Prosecutions May Follow.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 18 (C.P.)—Following a diligent search 28 crates of books and records of Solloway, Mills and Company, missing since early last September when they were despatched from Vancouver to Toronto by freight and express, have been located here and will be seized to-day by Mark Cosgrove, representative of the Attorney-General's Department of British Columbia. He declared he was "reasonably sure" of the location of the missing records.

Prosecutions by British Columbia against the two brokers who have already been convicted and sentenced in Alberta and Ontario, depends on what the books and records reveal, it was stated.

A search warrant, it was said, may not be necessary, as there is believed to be a possibility of the officials of the company yielding the books voluntarily.

In a statement issued here Mr. Cosgrove declared he had been on the track of the missing books since his arrival in Toronto several weeks ago.

U.S. FARM BOARD BUYS UP WHEAT

Reported to Have Purchased 20,000,000 Bushels Saturday in Chicago.

STABILIZATION MOVE.

The Federal Government is openly holding the line it secretly had manoeuvred against sagging last week in a brand-new grain stabilization campaign.

Chairman Legge of the Farm Board and George S. Minor, general manager of the Grain Stabilization Corporation, joined in the public announcement of this second effort to dam the flood of wheat price depression with Government resources.

A year ago, at a cost estimated at around $75,000,000, the Corporation penned up 60,000,000 bushels of grain, which it still has on its hands.

The new stabilization move, which became evident in Chicago last Saturday, was unofficially reported late yesterday to have absorbed another 20,000,000 bushels.

Chairman Legge said the total holdings of the stabilization corporation now could be "conservatively" estimated at 70,000,000 bushels, but other estimates at the Capital approached 104,000,000 bushels.

PREMIER SLATED FOR LONDON POST

Ottawa Despatch Says Announcement is Coming in Near Future.

HENRY NEW PREMIER.

TORONTO, Nov. 18.—(CP)—A special despatch from Ottawa to a Toronto morning paper says:

Appointment of Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Primier of Ontario, as High Commissioner for Canada in the United Kingdom is likely to be announced officially in the near future. It is reported in well-informed quarters here that Premier Bennett discussed the appointment with the British Prime Minister during his sojourn in London and that the necessary preliminaries have been completed.

If an announcement is not made by Sir George Perley in the meantime, it is understood the Prime Minister will make a public statement shortly after his return from England at the end of this month.

Mr. Ferguson's successor, according to gossip here, will be Hon. George S. Henry, who has been acting premier in the absence of Premier Ferguson overseas."

BROKERS' TERMS APPEAL IS LIKELY

Attorney-General Price Considering Action in Solloway-Mills Cases.

CONFERENCES HELD.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 18.—(C.P.)—An appeal against the sentences imposed on I. W. C. Solloway and Harvey Mills, heads of the former Dominion-wide mining brokerage firm of the name, will be made by the Attorney-General's Department of Ontario, it has been learned on good authority.

In the fall assizes here recently the brokers pleaded guilty to "gaming in stocks" and Solloway was fined $200,000 and Mills $50,000.

Attorney General W. H. Price declines to comment regarding appeal, but it is understood, the Department will fyle the necessary papers at Osgoode Hall some day this week.

Several conferences, it is learned, have taken place between the Attorney General and prominent legal authorities during the last few days and it is said, the purpose of these conferences was to discuss the question of an appeal.

GRANT BY GOV'T TO AID FARMERS WILL BE URGED

Westerners Want Help During Depression of Agricultural Prices.

PREMIERS IN TORONTO.

Bankers Agree to No Forced Dumping—Bonus on Wheat Sought.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 18.—(C. P.)—An emergency subvention to aid the farmers of Western Canada during the present depression of agricultural prices, will be urged upon the Federal Government, when the Premiers of the three prairie provinces, confer with Government officials in Ottawa to-day it was learned here.

In conference here yesterday with managers of leading Canadian banking houses, Premier John Bracken, of Manitoba, J. T. M. Anderson, of Saskatchewan and J. E. Brownlee, of Alberta, reported they had reached "very satisfactory" results in their efforts to alleviate the crisis in the western wheat situation.

No Forced Dumping."

Having reached an understanding with the bankers that present stocks of grain will not be dumped" on the market through forced liquidation, the western Premiers will now, it is learned, ask the Dominion Government for a bonus on wheat. Such assistance, it is said, will be sought, in an attempt to stabilize Canadian prices and tide the western farmer over the present crisis until conditions in the world markets can resolve themselves into something like order and definite price trends emerge.

The prairie Premiers left Toronto last night for the Dominion capital where they present their recommendations to Hon. Sir George Perley, Acting Prime Minister.

The nature of the bonus proposal, it is understood, will suggest payment of a certain amount per bushel on all wheat sold through the present established channels, poor or private. The actual amount which the Federal Government would be asked to advance, is estimated at twenty or twenty-five million dollars.

SON ESCAPES JAIL FATHER BLAMED

Drayton Man Charged With Having Entered Prison and Smashing Locks.

YOUTH AT LARGE.

GUELPH, Ont., November 18 (C. P.). — Alleged to have assisted his son Wilbert Mayne, to escape from the Drayton Jail, Frank Mayne was brought to Guelph yesterday by Provincial Constable Harry Noble of Palmerston, to face charges of obstructing a police officer in the discharge of his duties and aiding his son to break custody. In the Police Court he was remanded for one week, bail being fixed at $2,000 in two sureties.

According to Constable Noble, Wilbert Mayne was in jail awaiting trial on a charge of driving a motor car while intoxicated, when it is alleged his father broke into the lockup, smashed two locks, and released his son.

So far as the Guelph police could learn, the longer Mayne has not been apprehended.

MEIGHEN GIVES PALESTINE VIEWS

Claims Passfield Fails to Understand Pledges to Arabs and Jews Are Different.

FACTS ARE CLEAR.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 18.—(CP)—A significant interpretation of the Palestine situation was given here last night by Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, former Canadian Premier.

"Perhaps it may be well to enquire how far—if at all—the recent pronouncement by Lord Passfield departs from the promise made by Lord Balfour and the obligations under that promise in 1917", he said.

Facts Are Clear

"It would be most unfortunate if people hurriedly came to the conclusion that a breach of faith was contained in the Passfield declaration," he proceeded. "The historic facts are clear. In days when the very sternest of patriots were beginning to fear that a complete victory might never come—in those later years of the war the allies were holding out rewards here and there in directions which they thought likely to have a bearing on the final victory. In these days the British Government knew the Jewish world was favorable to the Allied cause, and particularly favorable to Britain. They were, nevertheless, especially anxious the Jewish people—particularly in the United States—would rally to the cause. The British Government then made the now famous statement that they looked with favor upon, and would do their utmost to establish a home for the Jewish people in Palestine." It was during the negotiations at Versailles, said Mr. Meighen that the conflicting viewpoints of the allies were brought into the melting pot. The effort was to bring about a treaty which, by the distribution of mandates, would result in a maximum of fidelity to all nations, having in mind the fact that some of the aims were in conflict.

Under the treaty, continued the speaker, the mandate was given to Great Britain to establish a national home for Jews, in Palestine. It maintained that not only would Britain establish and maintain a national home for Jews, but also the State would guard the civil and religious liberties of the Arabs.

Obligations Vital

That these two obligations were vital and nowise in conflict, was concurred in by a commission of Allied Powers in the League of Nations. Then later in 1922, a statement was made to the effect that Britain was still bound to establish a national home for the Jews as a positive obligation, but equally bound, though only by a passive undertaking, to maintain the liberties of the Arabs.

The Passfield pronouncement indicates that the one is as obligatory as the other, Mr. Meighen said, but he seems to fail to understand that, while one is indeed as obligatory as the other, they are of entirely different character. The Arab civil liberation must be safeguarded, but there is no pledge addressed to the Arab population. On the other hand there is a pledge for maintenance of a national home for the Jews in Palestine and it is a pledge to Jews throughout the universe.

TEACHER FACING ASSAULT COUNT FOR BEATING GIRL

Pupil of 13 Has Ribs Broken and Left Lying in Agony By Roadside.

FOUND BY SISTER.

Victim Unable to Explain Detention—Arrest Sensation in Aldborough Township.

RODNEY, Ont., Nov. 18 (C.P.) — Reeling from the schoolhouse and finally falling to the roadside on her homeward journey, Jessie Lamont, 13-year-old pupil of Oakgrove School in Aldborough Township, was found last Thursday by an older sister and carried to the Lamont home.

Harvey Gillies, 21, teacher at the school, was placed under arrest and charged with inflicting severe injuries on the girl, who medical examination revealed was suffering from four fractured ribs and other injuries caused by a brutal beating.

Released on $4,000 Bail

Several hours after being placed in St. Thomas jail Gillies was released on bail of $4,000. When he appears in court he will face a charge of assault and occasioning actualy bodily harm.

Gillies' arrest caused a sensation in the district. Wild rumors had been circulated throughout the countryside concerning the affair. The teacher was taken from the school by two police officers as wide-eyed children looked on.

According to the Lamont girl's version of the affair, Gillies had detained her after school hours last Thursday. Two other girls, it was reported, had also been "kept in."

Jessie claimed the teacher refused to tell her what she had done to deserve punishment. Then, she alleges, he set upon her and beat her brutally, leaving her to drag herself homeward in agony.

Natives of District

Both the teacher and pupil are natives of this district, and members of well-known families. The girl was considered exceptionally clever for her age and was taking second form high school work in the country school.

For some time, it is understood, Gillies had been driving his senior pupil, the Lamont girl, home in his automobile after school. Recently, it is said, she declined to ride with him any more.

PALESTINE RULE HEAVILY SCORED

Lloyd George's Attack Vigorously Defended By Laborite Government.

WILL CARRY OUT MANDATE.

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 18. (CP)—Administration of the British mandate in Palestine was vigorously attacked in the House of Commons yesterday by Right Hon. David Lloyd George, Liberal leader, and as vigorously defended by the Laborite Government.

At the conclusion of the debate between the former Premier and Drummond Shiels, Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies, Premier Ramsay MacDonald re-affirmed the Government's intention to carry out the mandate terms in full.

Mr. Lloyd George declared he could only understand the Palestine white paper on the supposition it was written by anti-Semite officials.

He contended that the Jews were made responsible for Palestine's unemployment troubles, and even were held to blame when they were murdered. He asserted that the white paper has been generally regarded as a virtual revocation of the mandate, and declared "if the Government cannot work the mandate, it should be handed back to the League of Nations."

Quoting the text of the Balfour declaration, he said the idea was not only to give an opportunity to the Jews for colonization and settlement, but the dominant idea was the establishment of a Jewish national home in Palestine.

"It was an idea accepted at a critical moment in our fate" he said. "It was a pledge of honor by some of the greatest nations on earth, including the British Empire, which we are called upon to honor."

Soviet Russia Gives England Large Order

LONDON, Nov. 18.—(CP)—Orders for various types of machine tools to the value of $3,000,000 are to be placed in Great Britain by the Soviet trade delegation, through its agent, Arcos, Limited.

An agreement to that effect has been signed by Saul G. Bron, Soviet trade representative here, and Greville Maginness, chairman of the Associated British Toolmakers.

The British Association will extend credit to the Russians to the full amount of orders placed, and undertakes to provide technical assistance in constructing toolmaking works in Russia.

Mr. Maginness and directors of the Association will visit Russia next week.

Second Suit Faces King Of Bootleggers

MILTON, November 18 (C.P.). — Another writ has been served upon Rocco Perri, self-styled King of the Bootleggers. It was learned this morning the writ was issued on behalf of Andrea Centen Aretie, who claims 4,458 allegedly due him from Perri on a promissory note issued in 1926. In the meantime, Perri is stated to be in a very serious condition, suffering from pneumonia. A consultation of doctors was held at his home on Saturday.

MINISTERS HEAR BISHOP SEAGER

Question of Church Union is Dealt With at Regular Ministerial Meeting.

RE-UNION OF CHRISTENDOM.

COBOURG, Nov. 18 (Special to The Examiner).—That the Roman Catholic Church is faced with the alternative of changing so as to become a part of re-united Christendom or of perishing, was the declaration here yesterday of the Rt. Rev. C. A. Seager D.D., D.C.L., LL.D., Bishop of Ontario, and until two years ago Provost of Trinity College, Toronto.

Every evangelical Communion in the United Counties and members from Peterborough were represented at the sessions of the Ministerial Association of Northumberland and Durham, held here in St. Peter's Parish House yesterday morning and afternoon.

Rev. Dr. Seager's address dealt with the question of Church Union from the standpoint of the Anglican Communion, based on His Lordship's recent attendance at the Lambeth Conference of the Church of England prelates.

He declared that the Anglican Church is "deeply, desperately and passionately committed to Christian re-union," but regarded any federation of Protestant Churches to offset or to counterbalance the Roman Church as "abhorrent."

Results Disastrous

"The motive of such a federation," Bishop Seager declared, "would be wrong and its result would probably be disastrous. Christianity itself might easily be destroyed between the upper and nether millstones of the Roman Church and the Protestant Federation."

That Canada is in a position to give leadership in the movement towards complete unity between the non-Anglican and Anglican churches of the Empire was earnestly stated by the speaker. He pointed out that the Anglican Church's position is much better understood in Canada than in England itself.

In support of his contention he quoted extensively from The New Outlook, showing an example of hopeless misunderstanding, when the London correspondent insinuated that the Lambeth Conference had receded or retreated from its position of 1920.

Bishop Seager cited the union in South India of Anglican, Presbyterians and Wesleyan Methodists as the great example of the Anglican Church's position. Voluntarily it had cut away 750,000 communicant who became, not Anglicans, but "something greater." His Lordship stated, "A unit of Church Universal which is yet to be."

He predicted that in time the South India Union would embrace the whole of that continent.

Anglican effort toward union with the Greek Orthodox or Eastern Church was misconstrued in some quarters, Bishop Seager said in conclusion. But the Anglican Church, he again affirmed, was working for the reunion of Christendom. It might take a thousand years, but the Church was prepared to plot its course accordingly, and in doing so realized that Christian re-union must come through the episcopal churches, of which the Eastern Church is a most important part.

Educational classes for prisoners in Dartmoor, England's famous prison, are being conducted by voluntary teachers, the most popular subjects this year being foreign languages.

Brokers Get 2 Years For $2,000,000 Fraud

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 18. (CP) Sentences of two years in the House of Correction were given to Ottis E. Dunham, President of Page and Shaw Candy Company, Isaac Hart and Joseph Pollay, Boston brokers for conspiracy to defraud in connection with the floating of a $2,000,000 stock issue of the candy company.

In addition, Dunham was fined $1,000 and Hart Pollay each $5,000. They were acquitted of being accessories to larcency.

It was testified during the trial that the brokers got nearly $1,000,000 of the $2,000,000 taken in on the issuance of the stock. Among the witnesses for the prosecution were several aged women, who had mortgaged property in order to purchase stock in the candy company.

At the suggestion of his wife, H. B. Sedgwick, of Farraline, Scotland, celebrated his tenth wedding anniversary by reducing rents of farm tenants 10 per cent.

HAMILTON BY-PRODUCT COKE

"We sell this Made-in-Canada Fuel" declare progressive dealers

SPONSORED by the Federal Government, the "Buy Canadian products" campaign is winning the endorsation of merchants and public alike.

Among the products which stand high in popular favor is Hamilton By-Product Coke. Strictly Canadian, it is the fuel preferred for its heating qualities, its cleanliness and its lightness.

Irrespective of price, Hamilton By-Product Coke is endorsed by thousands as the modern and satisfactory fuel for domestic furnaces. But the price itself is one of the largest factors in its ever-increasing sale. It represents a clear saving of one-third on every ton you buy.

REV. PETER TAYLOR OF TORONTO SPEAKS AT WESTWOOD SERVICES

Annual Anniversary Services Held in Francis Andrews' Memorial Church.

POWERFUL ADDRESS

KEENE, Nov. 18.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—Rev. Peter Taylor, of Toronto, was the speaker at the anniversary services held in Francis Andrews' Memorial Church, Westwood, on Sunday morning, and which were most impressive and inspiring.

Before beginning his address, the Rev. Mr. Taylor spoke of his extreme pleasure in seeing the Westwood congregation; first because it was with them that Dr. Andrews had labored for over half a century, second, because out of the seven hundred congregations from coast to coast, it was the first to reach its allocation for the church budget for 1930.

The chapter in Acts dealing with Paul's conversion on the road to Damascus was chosen and the text, Paul's trembling inquiry in Acts IX-6, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" and the Lord's reply, "Arise and it shall be told thee what thou must do."

"A man was wanted to follow up the preaching of Jesus. His language had been simple for simple men, but if it were a message to go down through the ages for all kinds of men it must be reduced to systematic and doctrinal form. Who is capable of gleaning after the reaping of Jesus? Certainly not one of the group of fishers and tax gatherers. Yet you'll not find one so unlikely as the one on whom the robe fell—Saul, the chief inquisitor.

Always it is thus. Whenever God needs a man for a special purpose, one is raised up. Does God want an emancipator? From the courts of Egypt and the slave huts of the Israelites came Moses; does God need a prophet? Isaiah appears, one of the greatest intellects of his time; does God need a reformer to save Christianity from superstition and sensuality? From the lonely friar's cell, Martin Luther answers, "Here am I." So now from the highway of Damascus, the proud, imperious, threatening Saul rises, blind, broken in spirit. "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" Me must await his commission.

"Why was a commission necessary? In the answer to this question lies all Christian propaganda and missionary effort throughout the centuries. If one religion is as good as another why did Paul follow the carpenter? In the days of Imperial Rome was the saying, "All roads lead to Rome." To-day some say, "All religions end in Heaven," suggesting that one is as good as another. 'No,' cried the speaker, 'I believe that every man must be able to gve a reason for the faith that is in him.' Did Paul now choose the way of Christ for its richness, glory, its wisdom, its culture just as a wise Roman might choose rather than the other highways, the Appian way for its princely residences, its triumphal arches? No, Paul knew there had been a great churning up in his life.

"So he returns first to Jerusalem to his former associates to tell them that the Jewish religion had lost the heart out of it by rejecting Jesus. It had become a mere round of formalism.

"Driven from Jerusalem, the spiritual capital of the world, he went to the intellectual capital of the world, Athens. There, with all its philosophy, science and art, religion, too, was practised earnestly. What was the sense of Paul coming to Athens if all religions are equally efficient in saving the souls of men? Paul was quick to see in their hearts the yearning for something beyond all that they had and seized upon the inscription carved on the boulder, 'To the Unknown God.' But when Paul preached a God to them who was just one of those despicable Jews, who had been hanged on a cross, they laughed him to scorn. And still the religion of Jesus went on. Being cast out of Athens he went to the great beyond—to the great Pagan world of heathen men and women—but he found them all apparently happy in the practice of their natural religions. If a religion of nature is as good as a religion of grace, if a religion moulded out of men's conception is as good as a religion revealed by God's grace; if a God carved by men out of stone is as good as the Incarnate Son of God, then the whole thing is a tragic mistake. Go back, Paul; don't go into a world of shipwrecks, hunger and thirst, stonings, lashings and finally the headsman's axe at Ostium!

"But now comes the greatest miracle of the ages. Delicate women as well as men who had battled the world over, are giving their lives a willing sacrifice, bravely dying in the arena, victims of the lions. There you have Truth! No other religion has sealed its testimony as has the Christian. 'The blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church,' said Augustine.

But let us take the testimony of Jesus himself. What was the meaning of his incarnation? Why was it necessary if one religion is as good as another? The meaning is this. There was no other good enough to pay the price of sin. "He only could unlock the gates of heaven." You could hear the death rattle in the throat of the ancient world. Then the Lord God laid bare his arm' as any one does when the task before them is great. Then it was that the birth of Jesus occurred.

And what was the meaning of His death? 'As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness even so must the Son of Man be lifted up, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish." Ah, but how could any person perish if all religions are good and any religion is as good as another? No, we are all in danger of falling short of the mark God intended for us. But by the religion of Christ, God can take hold of a broken life and remake it. All history testifies to this.

Take 2 Rev. Peter Taylor

Oh yes, in other religions is some truth and beauty—in Mohammedanism, Faoism, Buddhism, as gold is found in sea water! But what we want is a religion that can save us from ourselves, save us from our passions that drag us to the level of the beasts, a religion to keep us straight when the temptation comes to do the slefish and mean thing.

"What is the church? A lodge, a place of entertainment, a gathering of congenial souls? Christ intended His church to be an army to slay sin, to save the outcast. What a cheap, shoddy thing some men make of it in comparison with the glorious thing God intended it to be.

At Pentecost Christ gave his disciples their commission. First, witness at Jerusalem, that is your home church; second, go to Judea and Samaria, there is your challenge to home missions; third, go to the uttermost parts of the earth, there are your foreign missions. Some say they do not believe in missions. Charity begins at home. Yes, but charity that stays at home ceases to be charity. If Christ gave this order to his handful of disciples, is he going to countermand it now that his followers number millions and he commands the wealth of the earth. If he doesn't cancel the commission what right have we? Can we to men benighted, the lamp of life deny? That's the work of the church to make known the name of Christ, not to save—that is the work of God's Holy Spirit.

The choir sang Hadyn's 'Oh Come Let Us Worship.' Mr. Grieves, of St. Paul's church, Peterborough, sang two solos, 'Somebody Cares, It's Jesus," and "Love Brought Him Down From Glory." The church was decorated with carnations, chrysanthemums and massed foliage. Everything conspired to make the occasion one of spiritual uplift.

S. S. Bricken, principal of the Brighton High School, R. W. Sampson, assistant, and Miss Luella Munroe, of the York Road School, were the judges for the occasion.

W. A. Fraser, M.P., has donated a silver cup for each township in the county, to be held for one year only, the contest to be an annual one.

Each speaker was the recipient of a book and also a gift, these being donated by the citizens of Colborne and vicinity.

Dorothy Craig was placed second in the contest, with Jack Mutton and Isabella Harnden third and fourth respectively.

R. HOPPER IS ROTARY GUEST

Addresses Campbellford Club on Work of Rotary Among Crippled Children.

FINE OUTLET FOR SERVICE.

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 18.— The weekly meeting of the Campbellford Rotary Club was held on Monday in the St. Lawrence Hotel, with vice-president, N. Alex McColl in the chair.

The speaker for the luncheon was R. Hopper of Toronto, who gave a very interesting address on the work that is being carried on by Rotary in connection with crippled children. He commenced by stating that before the war, Hamilton was the only club to do any work along this line in the province. About eight years ago individual clubs started to undertake this work as part of there program and since that time it has grown rapidly until today there are only two or three clubs in Ontario who do not handle this specific object. This work, the speaker said, is a fine service out let for members of the club and stated that ninety per cent of the work among crippled children in Ontario is done by Rotary.

This work is handled in many ways, from dealing with the individual cases to the organizing of clinics. Some clubs reach out so far as to spread themselves over a large area outside of the community in which they operate.

The causes of crippling were gone into very thoroughly by Mr. Hopper. In the first place he spoke of infantile paralysis as being a chief cause of this condition. He pointed out however that this disease does not confine itself to children nor does it always paralyse. It comes in waves across the country and is very hard to combat because the germ has never been isolated. At present it is almost impossible to prevent it, but the serum treatment has done much to lessen the mortality rate. This serum is taken from the blood of those who have suffered from this complaint, and Rotary had done a great deal in collecting and transporting those once affected to local centers for the purpose of giving blood for this project at the request of the government.

Another cause of crippling was that of tuberculosis. This comes from human contact and defective milk and affects the lungs and the joints.

"Rickets"

Another cause and a common one the speaker went on to state was that of rickets. This was due to improper feeding and lack of sunlight, and although the remedy for it is simple, people fail to take advantage of it. The general effect of the complaint is a general weakening of the system which makes the child unable to resist the usual ailments to which it is subject.

Then there are those children who are crippled through accidents, some of which could be avoided if only people would take more care, and lastly those children who are born crippled. This latter class is very low, comprising only ten per cent. of the whole, and the cure is to have them treated when they are young and before their infirmaties develop.

Mr. Hopper went on to explain that because there were many parts of the country where there were no clubs to operate along this line, yet where inspection had shown that there were many children who needed treatment, a petition had been made to the Royal Commission on Public Welfare by the Ontario Society for Crippled Children to obtain aid from the government to carry on this work. The commission had accepted the report and it was hoped that soon the matter would go before the house and become law.

In conclusion Mr. Hopper asked that the club appoint a member to sit on the board of the O.S.C.C., and explained the necessary procedure that would enable the club to link up with this society, under which they could obtain a measure of help in their own relief work.

Want No Insurance.

Unemployment insurance received something of a slap in the face from the Council. The following by-law was received from the Hamilton City Council with the request that the Peterborough Council pass it and join with Hamilton's Council in forming a delegation to wait upon the Federal Government:

"That in view of the unemployment at present existing and of the inability of municiapilties to cope adequately with the widespread distress resulting therefrom, the Council go on record as favoring a scientific relief measure, and the City Clerk be instructed to correspond with all City Councils in Ontario and to urge them to join this City Council in a joint delegation to wait upon the Federal Government, requesting that the earliest possible moment steps be taken to bring into force a system of unemployment insurance suited to the needs of the Dominion."

The general expressed opinion of the Peterborough aldermen last night was that now was not the opportune time to consider such a big subject and the matter required much deep thought. Alderman Tuggey did say that such unemployment insurance was certainly coming some day to the workers, but even he was firm in the belief that no "snap judgments" should be made.

Tender will be asked for this week on garbage collection and anyone desiring to have a district included in the garbage collection should inform the City Clerk.

Public Liability Insurance

Alderman McNabb, chairman of the Claims Committee, reported as follows:

"Your committee was waited upon by representatives of Messrs. Plaxton, Hueston & Company, of Toronto, in regard to public liability insurance for this city. They offered a public liability and property damage insurance policy of $5,000.00 for one person and $10,000.00 for one accident and $1,000.00 for property damage covering streets, sidewalks, parks and playgrounds operated by the city for a rate of $12.00 per one hundred of population, which would be $2,736.76 for the year. They said that this would be the rate for the first year and that they were satisfied that after the first year the premium would be reduced fifteen to twenty per cent, and in two years it would probably be $1,200.00.

"They told your comm... that while the Zurich Comp... insured against public liability from 1924 to February, 1925, they received a premium of $760.00 and the losses were $510.00; that from February, 1926 to 1927, the premium was $1,540.00 and losses $4236.00 and expenses $1,000.00 and from February 2nd, 1927 to October 2nd, 1927, the premium was $1,026.60, the losses $3,822.00 and the expenses $620.00.

"Since the City has not carried insurance the compensations paid have been: From October 2nd, 1927 to the end of that year, Ten Dollars; in 1928, $1260.00; in 1929, $634.00, and in 1930 up to date $1,531. The amount of $1691 in 1930 includes $900.00 paid Mr. Carroll for injury by ice when blasting was being done in the creek on Hunter street."

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—Climbing up in lively fashion as much as 3 3-8 cents a bushel, the Chicago Wheat Market yesterday closed with most of the gains tightly held. The rise was attributed to extensive new purchasing operations on the part of the United States Farm Board allies and to a statement from leading Canadian banks that the Canadian Growers' Pool would not be compelled to sell out on a depressed market.

Estimates were current that Government sponsored agencies in the United States now have acquired ownership of more than 20,000,000 bushels of future deliveries of wheat, and there were authoritative statements that further purchases of like character might be expected if necessary to sustain the domestic wheat price level.

Corn and Oats Advance

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were nervous, 1-4 to 3 3-8 cents a bushel higher than Saturday's finish. Corn closed, 1 1-8 to 1 3-4 cents up; Oats showing, 1-2 to 1 1-8 cents advance, and provisions varying from 10 cents decline to a rise of 20 cents.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Nov. 18.—Prices to the country shippers for fresh eggs and to the retailer for the same quality were higher on the local market yesterday. Offerings of short held supplies were celaned up, and larger receipts of fresh eggs changed the situation. Storage stocks were needed, of course, to meet the demand, which lately has greatly exceeded receipts from the country, and the lack of short-held supplies helped move considerable of those "long-held" eggs.

Country shippers were quoted 55c for extras, 47c to 48c for firsts, 32c to 35c for seconds, and 40c to 42c for pullet extras, delivered, ungraded, cases returned. Last week-end there was a spread in prices, some dealers quoting lower than the above, but yesterday the market was steady at top figures. Retailers were asked to pay 2c more for fresh eggs at 62c for extras in cartons, 60c for extra loose, 52c for firsts loose, 38c to 40c for seconds loose, and 45c for pullet extras.

Brokers offered storage supplies at 34½c to 35c for extras, and 32½c to 33c for firsts.

Peddlers were offering new-laid firsts to consumers at 67c per dozen, at the week-end, and stated that they could not get extras, which would probably have brought 75c.

Butter

The butter market was quiet, and asking prices were unchanged from those quoted last week, but no sales were reported at better than 30¼c for No. 1, Ontario, though the price range was 30c to 30½c for No. 1, and 29c to 29¼c for No. 2. Buyers were no more anxious to take on fair-sized lots than usual.

Cheese

Cheese prices were unchanged at 14¾c to 15c for new large, 15c to 15¼c for twins, and 15¼c to 15½c for triplets.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Nov. 18.—Butter and one grade of eggs were advanced from 1c to 2c to retailers; cheese was lower, while wholesale butter and potatoes were unchanged on the dairy and produce market here yesterday.

Cheese was ¼c lower, Ontario being quoted at 13½c and Quebec at 13c a pound. Receipts were 1,413 boxes.

Butter, to retailers, was advanced 1c a pound as previously announced. Solids were 33c and prints 34c a pound. The carlot market was unchanged. Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized creamery selling at 29½c to 29¾c a pound. Receipts were 397 boxes.

Fresh pullet extras to retailers were increased 2c a dozen, and other grades were unchanged on the egg market. Receipts totalled 1,736 boxes.

Prices on the potato market were unchanged. New Brunswick Green Mountains were quoted at 85c per 80-pound bag, and Prince Edward Island potatoes were 85c for Cobblers and 90c for Mountains, per 90-pound bag.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, November 18. — Gaining nearly four cents a bushel, the wheat market yesterday staged a notable recovery from Saturday's record low levels.

In one of the most active sessions of the season, "shorts" and speculative buyers, whose absence had been noted from the market for some time, rushed into the pit immediately the session opened and all offerings were quickly snapped up.

The "about face" in the trend of values was brought about mainly by the statement of lending banks that the Wheat Pool selling agency would not be forced to unload supplies to meet its lans. This brought the "shorts" back on the jump and within a few minutes of the opening gong, good gains had been registered. At the close quotations were: 3 to 3⅞ cents a bushel above Saturday's finish.

Coarse grains and cash wheat shared in the advance. No. 1 Northern wheat climbing to 63⅝, as against 60½ on Saturday.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Nov. 18.—Receipts at the Union Stock Yards yesterday were: 4,475 cattle, 456 calves, 504 hogs, 2,554 sheep and lambs.

The supply of cattle is moderate for Monday with only a small proportion of good butchers. Cows were the only fairly active killers up to 11 o'clock, selling steady at $3.50 to $5.25 a cwt. for butcher kind. Heavy steers are a very slow trade. Stockers and feeders are fairly active with good quality selling at $5.75 to $6.75 a cwt. One load of good handy butcher steers brought $7.50 a cwt. and for medium steers, $5.50 a cwt.

Baby beeves are weak, with the best selling around $10 a cwt. There is very little demand for milkers and springers with bids easier than last week. Veal calves are selling steady at $12 to $13 a cwt. for choice and downward to $4 a cwt. for common grassers. Good ewe and wether lambs are selling steady at $8 to $8.25 a cwt., with buyers imposing $2 a cwt. discount on culls, heavy lambs and bucks.

Good butcher steers sold up $4.50 a cwt. The hog prices are unsettled with packers bidding $9.75 a cwt. f.o.b. and $10.75 to $11 w.o.c.

THREE PEOPLE AT FAULT.

A Simcoe jury has brought in a verdict of accidental death following an investigation of a traffic mishap in which the life of a farmer was taken.

The Examiner has no desire to quarrel with the justice of this verdict and yet the circumstances surrounding the case were such as to remove the killing from the category of accidental deaths.

There were apparently three contributory factors.

In the first place, the victim was driving in a horse-drawn vehicle that did not carry a light as required by the traffic regulations.

In the second place, a truck approaching the scene of the crash carried bright lights that almost completely blinded the driver of a motor car coming in the opposite direction, with the result that his car crashed into the horse-drawn vehicle.

In the third place, this motorist whose vision was affected by the truck lights was driving at the rate of 35 miles an hour when the "accident" happened.

All of which suggests that if ordinary care and common sense had been exercised there would have been no fatality.

The farmer should have been protected by the light on his vehicle called for by law.

The truck equipped with blinding headlights should have long since been checked up by traffic officers and made to comply with the regulations.

And the motorist who was bothered by the strong lights approaching him had no business to drive at anything like thirty-five miles an hour.

All three people were at fault—and yet there is a verdict of accidental death, which hardly fits in with the evidence of triple carelessness and disregard of the regulations.

THE REAL ISSUE.

The charge made by S. C. Tweed, member for North Waterloo in the Legislature, that Messrs. Solloway and Mills, convicted mining brokers, knew in advance that they were going to be fined and had their cheques ready before sentence was passed, has been vigorously denied by their counsel.

The case was bad enough without the introduction of charges of this nature, and nothing is to be gained by attempting to paint the affair in blacker colors.

What the public is chiefly concerned about is, why in the case of these two offenders a fine was considered sufficient punishment when others in the same boat drew penitentiary terms.

There has been no explanation from anybody in authority on that point; the Attorney-General, who is usually ready to talk, has made no statement, and so far as the people are concerned the difference in the treatment accorded these various offenders remains a mystery.

To the man on the street it seems a travesty of justice that two men should escape by handing over a fine while others guilty on the same charge were given no option.

The Attorney-General, if he is alive to the duties and responsibilities of his office, will appeal in the Solloway and Mills cases and ask for more adequate punishment.

If he fails to do so the public is justified in believing that he regards it of more importance to replenish the provincial treasury with a share of the loot than to see that wrong doing meets the penalties it merits.

THE WORLD'S BEST.

While it will probably strike the average Canadian that this business of special weeks for the promotion of this, that and the other thing is being sadly overdone and that there has been so much of it that nothing like the full effect of any of these campaigns can be hoped for, this present week's drive to bring before the people of this country the great variety and fine qualities of Canadian fish foods deserves more than a passing thought.

There are one or two points of especial importance.

First, fish are, as the Department of Fisheries points out, among the best foods available.

Second, fish foods are in many cases cheaper than other food products.

Third, Canadian fish offer an exceptional variety and in quality cannot be surpassed.

Fourth, the fishery industry of this country represents an investment of $62,000,000, is a direct source of livelihood for some 80,000 Canadians, comprises a production of over $50,000,000 a year, and indirectly, because of the buying power of those engaged in the industry, helps to furnish employment for many workers in a large number of industries.

For all these reasons the consumption of fish in Canada should be a great deal larger than it is at present, and if the present campaign succeeds in increasing the demand for this most excellent food the results cannot fail to be beneficial to the whole country.

ADMINISTERING RELIEF.

The Examiner has frequently called attention to the need in Peterborough of a clearing house for charitable organizations so that the business of administering relief can be dealt with in a less haphazard manner.

There is nothing new in the suggestion nor is it likely to be taken up with any more enthusiasm on this occasion than when advanced before, and yet it seems obvious that in view of the abnormal unemployment conditions at the present time that something more businesslike than the old methods is a necessity.

There will be more families in need of assistance this winter than usual, that is certain.

On the other hand, there are many organizations eager and willing to lend a helping hand.

The problem is to reach as many of the needy as possible and to utilize the willingness of these social service organizations to the best advantage.

If they all work on their own it is difficult to see how overlapping can be prevented—and worse than that, there is the evident danger that some of those most in need of help may be completely missed.

A central committee representative of all the existing agencies that are ready to help furnish relief for the families suffering from the present conditions. The Examiner maintains, would contribute materially to a better handling of the situation than if the administration of relief is to go on undirected and with no head or leadership.

THE PICK-AXE GOT HEAVY.

One man found a few hours' work a day with pick, shovel and sometimes a wheelbarrow. He had not been used to labor of that sort, but he was anxious to get something to do.

The hours he was permitted to work were not very long, that is as we regard a day's work.

At the end of the first day he was telling a friend: "I never had any idea just how heavy a pick-axe was. When I got hold of the thing in the morning it didn't seem so very big, but by the end of the first hour it felt like three pick-axes."

Regarding wheelbarrows that were well loaded he remarked: "I never knew I had so many muscles up and down my back and in my legs that could start and get sore and stiff. I found out that a wheelbarrow does not run itself."

When he got home he was so tired and sore that all he wanted was a chance to eat something and go to bed.

Did he quit? His friends asked him about it, and received this answer: "I'll show up there in the morning if they have to get a wheelbarrow and take me down. It's bad enough to be sore and tired from working, but it's worse to be idle."

And yet now and then we hear some jaundiced cynic saying that men don't want to work!—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

"TOO EASY" PROSPERITY.

When the sky is overcast it is hard to distinguish the proverbial silver lining. Yet, when one comes to take stock of conditions, how many are the reasons for thankfulness and satisfaction. No situation is so bad that some good cannot be extracted from it, and it is always well to look on the bright side. There is genuine distress, undoubtedly, at the present time; but there is, on the other hand, a sincere desire and effort to cope with it. Governments, national, provincial and municipal, as well as organizations and individuals, are rising to the occasion in a way which is truly inspiring. The problems are pressing and difficult, but there is no tendency to shirk them and everything possible is being done to prevent distress and to ensure justice to needy citizens. Depressions come in cycles, but there has probably never been a depression in the past which has evoked such sympathy and such a responsive effort. As to the causes of these depressions, the one which has received the major share of the blame on this occasion is the stock market crash, which shattered the dreams of deluded speculators and replaced the spirit of unbounded optimism with a gloom equally unbounded.

The tale of woe is repeated day after day, with details which tend to become ever more harrowing. One of the latest threnodies comes from a famous American university. Students, it appears, are leading a much less luxurious life than they used to do; moving picture houses in this particular centre find the patronage of students is showing a lamentable falling off; stores complain that cash customers are fewer and charge accounts larger; there are not so many student golfers; railways are not selling so many week-end tickets; fewer books, phonograph records, magazines, candies; less expensive room furniture, etc., are noted as infallible indications that parents have been forced to reduce the allowances to their children in college. Most significant of all, registrations for work have increased at least twenty-five per cent. All this may be very sad; but then, again, it may be just the reverse. Is it, after all, a cause for sorrow that young men and women have been compelled to take life more seriously; that they have had to curtail their extravagances and been brought to realize the necessity and virtue of independence and thrift?

Other people than university undergraduates have been forced to retrench and return to the good old-fashioned method of living frugally and putting by for the rainy day. While it lasted, it was very exhilarating to ride gaily along on the crest of the wave of speculation. It was exhilarating, but in its nature an essentially ephemeral experience. It simply could not last, and sooner or later the descent to earth and common sense was bound to come. It came with a sickening thud; but that is no reason for lying prostrate. The thing to do is just what these college students have done: get up on one's feet, take off one's coat, set to work and rebuild, with the advantage of added experience. It was a sharp lesson, but a salutary one. Life is not meant to be so soft and easy as the hopeful speculators imagined. In a recent speech, Mr. Dwight Morrow summed up the position in these wise words: "Of course, we will come through this period. I make no prophecy when, for I don't know. Much depends on the character of the people. I have often wondered whether our morale can be spoiled by too easy prosperity. Our forefathers weren't given any assurance there would be an uninterrupted prosperity, yet they carried on with a remarkable courage and everything turned out all right."—Hamilton Spectator.

THE SILVER HAWK

By

WILLIAM BYRON MOWERY

The sky gradually became a deeper, darker blue. The sun's halo disappeared, and the sun itself was merely a bright disc of dazzling copperish colour. In that lifeless region of the upper air its rays had no warmth or cheerfulness. An invisible ice—incredibly thin flakes riding level on the wind—stung him like tiny daggers.

At twenty thousand feet Dorn turned to Aurore. She was leaning forward close behind her windshield; her breath had formed rime frost on the mask he had fashioned for her. But she freed her mouth for an instant and smiled back at him, knowing now what his adventure was; and her pursed lips answered his unspoken question:

"Yes, Jim! Yes! On up, up . . ."

Each thousand feet above twenty came slower, harder. Always Dorn kept an eye on that dot of blue below him where he could glide down to a deadstick landing in case the engine failed. And he kept strict watch over his body, his senses. His breathing was laboured, his limbs cramped and chilled to the bone; he had to fight a drowsiness stealing over him. But he had been aloft enough to know the danger signals; he meant to drop back down at the first imperative warning; and his limit was not yet come.

When he looked around now he saw that Aurore's eyelids were heavy. She too was fighting the drowsiness. He had never in the world expected her to stick it out this long; he had expected to her go to sleep in the warm place he had fixed for her; but she was still awake, still alert, and he climbed on aloft.

In that thin air the Silver Hawk was now standing slightly on its tail for greater lifting power against the wings, and the tilt rapidly increased. At twenty-three thousand feet Dorn struck a steady wind blowing out of the northwest: a wind so strong that the Silver Hawk could rise against it hovering nearly still, with ground-speed almost nothing. With no more spiralling he held the plane head-on into the screaming gale and felt it braving the wings, lifting the Silver Hawk on higher and higher till his slow progress dwindled to nothing and he came out upon his ceiling, twenty-six thousand feet aloft; and hovered there for half a minute while he gestured for Aurore to look at the ten million acres of wilderness spread below.

Then with the danger signals ringing in his ears, Dorn turned the plane downward, back toward mother earth.

When he came down from his ceiling Dorn headed for the Lost River Dutchman's post to take on gas and oil, as he and Aurore had planned while in the Bighorn's Looking-Glass. For the first forty miles to the vedette their flight lay over unglaciated spear-head mountains with only deep canyons of perpetual twilight in between. But the ranges then began to take on softer rounder outlines; the valleys widened. They flew over muskeg swamps teeming with water-fowl rookeries, over tamarack lowlands where moose and caribou yarded in winter, over beaver meadows where trapping must have been a paradise.

Nearing their goal they came upon a sign of human life—an abandoned Indian camp where teepee leather flapped idly on rotting poles. A little later they winged over a lake where a band of nomad "Smookies" were passing the summer at their fish weirs. On a spruce-buried river Dorn glimpsed a canoe with two scarlet dots in prow and stern, and focussing the glasses, saw it was a Police patrol on some wilderness business—possibly to those same nomad Indians. Recognizing the insignia on his plane wings, they waved their paddles, and he leaned out to answer.

The silvery ribbon of a sizeable stream swam in sight far ahead. Dorn spotted the river-widening where the Dutchman's vedette was located, and veered toward it. To make sure neither of the enemy planes was there, he circled once before alighting.

The lonely vedette stood in a clearing on the river bank. It consisted of a large squat building, a fur storage shed of heavy rocks and logs, a fur press, pole frames for stretching big peltry and drying fish and meat, a canoe landing, and an acre of quick-maturing vegetables. It was rumour that the indefatigable Dutchman, bringing in his seed potatoes from Fort Vermilion one winter, had kept them from freezing by sleeping with them next to his body.

No one knew where the Lost River Dutchman and his wife had come from. Their names and identities were lost in the past of uprooted wanderers. They had simply appeared out of nowhere—city-bred cheechakos in a raw, savage wilderness; and located their vedette on the lonely river.

While Dorn was helping Aurore out of the blankets and canvas, she said to him: "Jim, my father told me a story of these folk here. Dad lent them money and befriended them when they first came, and I believe he knew the truth about them. This is what he told me; he asked me never to repeat it, but I believe Dad would want you to know.

"This man here was an officer in the Prussian army, Jim—a young officer with the most brilliant kind of prospects. This woman then was the wife of a general in the—I think Dad said the French army. They met at a diplomatic affair, they liked each other, and they ran away together. They made aliens and exiles of themselves, Jim. Europe wasn't big enough to hold them. They had to forget their names and their identities. They came to the States; they were traced and would have been deported; but they escaped into Canada and found safety—here."

Aurore's account sounded a little incredible to Dorn; but he had often thought there had to be some strange story in the lives of these two strange people; and he did not reject Aurore's explanation.

When he took Aurore ashore the Dutchman was in the storage shed making castorum a mixture of the female beaver scent beaten up with aspen buds; but he dropped his work and trundled down to the landing, and his wife came out of the log dwelling to greet their visitors.

It was with sharpened eyes that Dorn observed the pair now. There was nothing about the Dutchman—fat from spruce-beer and heavy meat-eating—to suggest a former officer in the Imperial Army, but his wife was startling proof of every word Aurore had said. Though she was now a woman of forty, Dorn thought she must have been beautiful in he halcyon days. Her black hair was still long and silken, there was a nameless grace in her carriage and manners, her French was not of the Strong-Woods nor the eastern habitants of Canada, but unmistakably Parisian.

In that lonely alien wilderness, with her husband and herself the butt of coarse jokes, she had sunk to a pitiful level. She had no pride left, no desire to keep herself pretty even in the eyes of her husband. Her clothes were greasy, her features expressionless, her body as shapeless as a bag of pemmican tied in the middle.

"Vell, vell, Chim!" the Dutchman boomed, after he had shaken hands twice and kicked a snarling dog. 'Py golly I see you got marriet vunce!"

Aurore flushed and looked aside. Dorn winced at the unmeant ironyof the remark. Married . . . the word stung. But he smiled, answered casually:

"Oh, no, we're—Aurore's my sister—Aurore Dorn. She just wanted to come along to-day and see what my work was like."

The Dutchman looked at Aurore's flushed, averted face, at her trim-jacketed figure; compared the oval outline of her face, the delicate cast of her features, with Dorn's lean stern countenance. A wide grin spread.

"Ya! I believe dass, Chim! You bet. Didn't I saw you handle her into de canoe unt den handle her onto de landink? Ha! Her unt you—Geschwestern? Der Teufel? Geschwestern dey don't act like dot! Congradulachuns, Chim! Come up to de house. Ve vill do de honours."

There was something pathetic in the way the Dutchman and his wife craved talk with Dorn and Aurore that afternoon. Something profoundly pitiful in the way his wife, hopeless and broken in spirit, kept looking wistfully at Aurore, envying a girlhood such as her own had been.

Dorn thought: "She's regretted a thousand times what she did—if only for his sake, that she ruined his career. And if he loves her at all or ever did, he must hate himself for dragging her down to this."

The thought came to him, shocking and abhorrent, that here was a foreboding of himself and Aurore, twenty years hence: "Only by degrading yourself and me, Jim, can it ever be." And when Dorn realized why Aurore had repeated to him the story which her father had told her; and why, on the eyrie pinnacle of the mountain-top, she had said, "I'll show you what your future—our future—may be." She had guessed, she had somehow become aware of the temptation he fought, to take her into his plane and be down across the Border with her in twelve hours. She had repeated that story in order that he could see a living picture of what might come to pass for himself and for her in the years ahead. She had raised a mirror of the Future to his eyes; and Dorn shrank back, appalled, from what he saw.

CHAPTER XXV.

A HOME NEVER TO BE BUILT.

It was near midnight when Dorn and Aurore came back to the Lake of the Dawn. As they walked up the path together under the towering pines, Aurore said to him:

"Kansas told me, Jim, how you and he have worked out plans to start an air line between Seattle and Alaska. He wouldn't tell me the cost of it. But won't you?'

Her question surprised and jarred Dorn. He wondered why Aurore wanted to know about that hopeless project, and how she could mention so unimportant a thing now when a few more minutes together were all they had. He said "It would cost more than's in sight for Kansas and me in ten years," and thought to end the subject.

But Aurore insisted: "Jim, you've got to tell me! How much—in figures?"

"We'd need three big, safe, cabined flying-boats. They'd cost forty thousand apiece. Then advertising, hydrodromes, franchise. About a hundred and sixty thousand—to start on."

Dorn remembered afterward how hesitantly Aurore made her magnificent offer.

"Jim, my father left most of his estate to me. I'm of age now, it's mine. There must be over half a million. All to-day I've been thinking . . God knows you'd make better use of money than ever I could. You wouldn't be offended, Jim, you wouldn't think I was trying to repay kindness with dollars if I . . I want to stake you! It's the only gift in my power to make. Won't you let me, dear?"

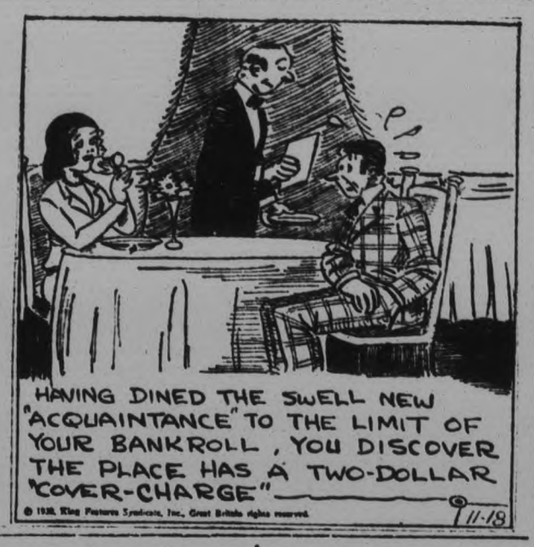
Dorn was overwhelmed by an offer so downright and unexpected. It confused and bewildered him, and this was the first time Aurore had allowed herself to use a word of passion toward him. Then he thought: "I can't accept her money. She'd be a partner in everything; I could never plan or work but I'd be remembering her."

Aurore did not wait for his refusal but went on, a little breathlessly: "I'm going to make you accept it, Jim! I'm going to put it on deposit for you. You think now you'd never use it, but—but after a time you'll feel differently, and then it'll be waiting for you. Don't you see how I'd watch and read of your success, Jim, and how glad I'd be of it?"

Dorn could not wound Aurore by refusing directly. He tried not to be bitter: "There's a part of that plan, Aurore, which Kansas didn't tell you about; I never told him but I'll tell you now. Over there on the coast, where I could manage this air line and yet wouldnot be living in a city, I've got a home. It's on a mountain slope, with the sea in front of it and the mountains—nearly as mossy and wild as these ranges here—stretching back of it. It's the kind of a home I've always been hungry for. You, and Kansas too, you can't possibly understand what the word means; only a person like myself who's never had one, can know. With me that home and the air line and —other things—they all hang together; one without the others would be intolerable. I've had that home for more than a year now, but the girl living there with me, my wife——"

(To be continued.)

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS



What To-day Means To You

"SCORPIO"

If November 18th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m., and from 7 p.m to 9 p.m. The danger periods are from 6:30 a.m. to 8 a.m. and from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m.

There will be little to break the ordinary routine of life on this date—a quiet and peaceful time is indicated. The development of good will in the right direction; words of wisdom will be dropped on fertile soil. An extremely good time for tired nerves.

Children born on this November 18th will have too little independence of spirit for sufficient protection against selfishness in others, from which they will suffer great injustices. They will have unselfish and gentle natures, and will be honest and sincere. They seek considerable affection.

You have a very patient, plodding nature, and one which proves that persistency alone is better than brilliancy alone. You are not given to brain storms, but in a slow, deliberate way, you are able to do some very clear, sane reasoning. You do not have a whit more than the average amount of intelligence, energy or courage, but you are an ordinary man or women, who can achieve extraordinary things, because you stick to your job until it is finished.

You have a very calm temperament, and are seldom given to emotional storms. You seldom speak or act when in a temper, and in this respect you are at an advantage over those who have less self-control. You consider your words, and you measure your steps. You are very careful not to get mixed up with what you consider other people's affairs. Your own troubles, you keep pretty well to yourself, and there are very few who have your complete confidence. You are widely sympathetic, although not in the least demonstrative. You are a person of few words, and you do not require constant companionship for happiness. You are an intelligent reader, and will always be a student.

You do not look upon love and marriage in a light way, and you will give a constant and sincere love to your wife or husband, as the case may be. You are passionately fond of children, and in a home and family you will find your greatest happiness.

Father Of Five Held For Stealing Cattle

SARNIA, Ont., Nov. 17.—(C.P.) — Thomas Carl Evans, father of five children, is under arrest here charged with the theft of four registered Holstein cattle from the dairy farm at Coplestone, operated by the Rev. V. M. Derbford of Hyde Park.

Evans, who was manager of the dairy farm, was discharged on Oct. 25, after two head of cattle disappeared. Last Friday two more cows were missed and Provincial Police were called and traced them to an auction sale at St. Mary's. The officers went too. After an all night vigil they arrested Evans as he returned from London. He will be arraigned in court here.

HOUCH REMANDED.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 17 (C.P.).—Miles Houch, of Oshawa, was remanded a week when he appeared in York County Police Court to-day on a charge of negligence.

THREE INJURED IN CAR CRASH

Vehicle Hitting Stone is Thrown Into Ditch and Collides With Post.

NEAR CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD, November 18 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent)—Striking a stone on the Grand Road Sunday afternoon at the boundary line of the town of Campbellford, a car driven by Percy Saunders of Detroit was thrown into the ditch colliding with a pole, the driver and two other occupants being thrown clear over the windshield onto the ground.

Mr. Saunders, with Jack Potts of Toronto, both formerly of Campbellford and one other passenger also a Toronto man, were driving into Campbellford on the Brighton highway when the accident happened. The top of the car was fortunately down at the time and when the car struck the pole all three of the passengers were lifted clear of the car without any interference. No serious injuries were sustained although all three of the men were badly shaken and severely bruised and scratched.

The car was badly wrecked, the front axle being bent, the front wheels turned in and the fenders smashed.

The Editor of The Examiner.

Upon my return to this city my attention was immediately drawn to the reply of "Assistant Public School Principal."

His comments equal that to "the dog at the fair", all over the lot, and travelled nowhere.

He claims that his words were twisted and added to yet he still refrains from stating just what he did say or the meaning he wished to impart.

If someone is telling a lie I am prepared to go before The Board of Education with no less than three witnesses, and let them decide just who is telling the truth.

I also note that he hides behind his forefathers record as to what they done but just because some colonel told him that he being a married man, should be home with him family is a mighty poor excuse for staying back.

His apology in his concluding paragraph is however accepted but I and others would still like to know his story of "Poppy and England's disgrace", and why he still refrained from buying one on Saturday last.

May we be further enlightened, and would he please sign his name instead of hiding behind a non de plume?

Yours very truly,
W. H. HOWARD.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND BRIEFS

A SPECIAL SERVICE TO THE EXAMINER

Sir Clive Morrison-Bell's work, "Tariff Walls" published in Canada by Longmans, Green and Company, comes at an opportune time when the world is tariff conscious. Perhaps Sir Clive's book has had something to do with arousing that consciousness, for it is avowedly a crusade to clearly acquaint the world with existing conditions and awaken a general interest in the subject. The author has hit on the ingenious idea of showing national tariffs by raised walls built on a map of Europe—The map is an attempt to visualize customs-house schedules so that they convey the idea of being physical walls over which international trade and commerce have to laboriously climb. A dull and oftentimes difficult problem is pictured in its simplest form. The ever photographs actual barrier which the mind finds difficult to evaluate out of a mass of figures. Incidentally, a mass of detail work has been a necessary preliminary in arriving at a new and finding comparative height for these walls himself a free trader at heart. Sir Clive emphasizes that Britain is trying to play the role of a free trade country in an otherwise protectionist world. The author takes no side in the dispute, content to point out an already existing condition. He has no panacea but does suggest a "tariff holiday," during which time the nations might scientifically study the complex problem.

Volume has fallen off in the decline and brokers opinions differ as to the merits of this. Some hold the opinion the reduction in total sales when prices were dropping was a good sign, indications selling was not in the same quantity as purchases of the previous week, while others say the fact such a larger percentage of the five days advance was wiped out in a single session should be taken as a cautionary signal. In support of the later view it is pointed out the Dow-Jones industrial average gained 15.08 points in the five days of rising prices on sales of 14½ million shares and the same average dropped 6.18 points Monday on sales of 2,137,700 shares, the result being a loss of 41 per cent of the gain on 18 per cent of the turnover required to move the average up 15.08 points.

Prices Shaded.

The stock markets were still under the influence of the reaction of Monday in the early hours of trading to-day and prices, both here and in New York, were shaded from the preceding close. Following a five day period of advancing prices it was to be expected profit-taking would be experienced and operations for the decline in New York were aided by the reduction in the price of copper and news of banking trouble in the south. In Canada the markets had to contend with the old Wall Street influence and the wheat situation with the western premiers in conference with banking heads in Toronto before seeking government aid at Ottawa, the low price of wheat has become a national problem as industry in the east depends upon the purchasing power of the west to some extent and a solution of the difficulty will not only benefit the prairie provinces but the dominion as a whole.

To-day the stock markets are more susceptible to adverse news than in some years and all advances in security prices in the future are bound to meet with interruptions from selling by disturbed holders and professionals who will take advantage of every opportunity to ply their trade on the short side. This will tend to check the security markets from rising into dangerous ground by avoiding speculative excess that would sooner or later have to be corrected.

Shareholders of Famous Players Canadian Corporation who exchanged their shares for those of paramount public under the offer made some time ago, will be interested in the announcement of President Adolph Zukor that the budget of the United States corporation for 1931 will be as large as the $25,000,000 spent in 1930 with more advertising and more work. Following the exchange of shares, Paramount Public has a large number of stockholders in the dominion from coast to coast and their equity is now in a company, having a chain of theatres and production studios in the United States as well as the show places in Canada owned or controlled through Famous Players.

WALL STREET IS UNEASY OVER GRAIN SITUATION FOLLOWING BREAK ON WINNIPEG MARKET

But Stock List Creeps Irregularly Higher Following Early Depression.

MARKET MARKS TIME.

Nevertheless Losses of Two or More Issues Suffered in Some Issues.

(Claude A. Jagger, Associated Press Financial Editor.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The stock market was becalmed to-day, save for a few ripples of liquidation left by yesterday's selling wave.

Further selling in the first hour depressed about a score of issues 2 to 4 points, but these were, in the main, more than regained, as the list crept irregularly higher thereafter. Trading was sluggish.

Losses of a point or two in U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Radio, American Water Works and Bethlehem Steel were recovered.

Eastman Kodak converted a loss of 2 points into a gain of like extent, and Allied Chemical substantially more than recovered a 3-point loss. Sears Roebuck, Gillette, Howe Sound, National Lead and Air Reduction gained 2 points or more. Some of the rails were heavy, notably Northern Pacific and Union Pacific, the latter losing 5 points.

The market appeared to be marking time, pending clearer signs of the trend in commodity prices. Efforts to stabilize wheat, copper and steel prices are being watched in Wall Street with keen interest.

The stock market has now had a substantial technical rebound after its two-month decline and a secondary reaction of fair proportions occurred yesterday, it now appears to be in a position to reflect outside developments rather than inside market conditions.

Wall Street was naturally a little uneasy over the grain situation, with a wide-open break in wheat at Winnipeg, and the Grain Stabilization Corporation again making heavy purchases in the Chicago market. The fact that domestic prices were substantially above the foreign markets lent an element of uncertainty to the situation.

AMULET HOLDS AT EVEN TONE

Profit-taking and Decreased Demand For Stocks Leave Mine Market in Soft Condition.

GOLDS IRREGULAR.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 18. (By the Canadian Press)—Prof.it-taking, cessation of short-covering and decreased demand for stocks has left the mining market in rather soft condition resulting in further declines during the forenoon session to-day.

Both Noranda and International Nickel showed fractional recessions from last night at noon, and Hudson Bay was down 55 to $4.95. Base Metals and Waite-Ackerman dropped 10 each to $1.40 and $2.60 respectively. Amulet and Abana were just holding. Falconbridge was unchanged and Ventures regained 3 to 45, but Sudbury Basin was off 10 at 60 and Sherritt Gordon 7 at 75.

New York advised foreign sale of copper Monday came to slightly over 6,000,000 pounds with sales early to-day totalling around 500,000 pounds. Customs Smelters and Producers are both holding at 1 cents domestic and foreign price remains 2.30 C.I.F. European ports. In all countries abroad, as well as here, second-hands are offering metal at material concessions below producers prices.

Gold sections was merely irregular. Hollinger and Wright-Hargreaves were off 4 each and Kirkland Lake gold a point, while Lake Shore, Premier and Teck Hughes firmed 5 apiece. Others were steady with last night.

Chemical Research dropped another 30 to $2.75 and Home Oil was off 15 to $2.15. Alberta Pacific eased a couple of 33 and Calmont 4 to 36. Balance of the oil section was quiet.

GARAGE DOOR BLOWS SHUT MOTORIST ASPHYXIATED

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 18 (CP)—Failing to notice the garage door had blown shut, Frederick T. Abbott, age 38, continued to repair his car and was found asphyxiated in his garage early to-day. Abbott returned home late last night and went to the garage to make a minor repair. Mrs. Abbott went to bed, awakening shortly after 3 a.m. and on investigating found the body of her husband lying under the car with the ignition switch turned on.

A doctor was called but pronounced life extinct.

Appointment Awaits Return Of Premier

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 18. (CP)—Sir George Perley, Acting Prime Minister said to-day that he has little expectation of an appointment being made to the post of High Commissioner for Canada in London, before the return of Premier Bennett next month. Rumors respecting the selection of Premier G. Howard Ferguson for the vacancy were met by Sir George with the statement that he had nothing to say.

While it is understood that no decision has yet been reached, the choice of Premier Ferguson as Canadian High Commissioner would not be surprising. The decision rests with the Prime Minister, however, and no official action is expected until his return.

NICKEL SHOWS POINT DROP

Toronto Exchange Sinks Lower Under Reduced Volume of Trading.

OILS SLIGHTLY LOWER.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 18. (CP)—Under reduced volume of trading, stocks on Toronto Exchange sank lower again to-day. The session was the slowest for any time back over the past month, and the recessions, while indicating that sellers were forced to take the initiative, certainly did not bespeak weakness.

Major portion of the losses was accounted for at the opening, the prices showing scarcely any variation in the second hour. International Nickel sold at 18 most of the morning, off slightly less than ½ point. Noranda too was down less than ½ point. Smelters dropped 3 points during the morning on board lots.

Oils were almost uniformly ¼ point under last night. Brazilian dipped under its former closing of 26, Bell Telephone was unchanged at 147, C.P.R. lower at 43.

Ford Canada sold down as low as 19½ for a loss of 1½ points, then firmed somewhat later. Steels, Walkers, some of the farm implement stocks and some of the foods lost fractions.

A fair amount of Service Stations turned over, the price ¼ point down at 32¼. One large order in the stock was reported for a client who has been picking out favored stocks the pas month, purchasing three to five hundred shares and locking them up in the safety deposit box.

PARTY IS HAVING SPLENDID HUNT

Jopling Party on Saturday Had Secured Nine Fine Deer.

225 POUND BUCK.

News of the doings in northern huntings camps where Peterborough's hardy nimrods are on the trail of moose, deer, bears and wolves seeped into The Examiner office today.

"We are having one of the best hunts ever and have bagged one of the finest poles of deer ever brought out of this district," writes Fred Jopling from Packsley in a letter that carries one's mind out to cedar runways, baying hounds and booming guns.

Last Saturday the Jopling party, consisting of twelve zealous hunters, was but three short of their full bag of deer. Mr. Jopling relates that "Hap" Grose shot an exceptionally fine buck weighing about 225 pounds, one of the finest specimens seen in the Parry Sound District.

All the Americans in the party are delighted with the hunting in Canada, each having bagged his deer. John Neasmith, of Tonawanda, a tenderfoot, states Mr. Jopling, shot a deer his first day out and then spellbound watched a large buck and doe canter past him within thirty feet.

It is also related, and the story is causing many a laugh around northern fires, that Joe Alcorn wrestled with a large buck. "Sharp-shooter Joe", of Youngstown, Ohio, was on a lonely watch," writes Mr. Jopling, "when 'Shiner' Johnston of the adjacent watch heard through the calm of the northern wood, shrieks of terror from Joe. It is alleged that the buck had knocked the sharpshooter over."

Partridges are plentiful and seem quite tame, and the hunters have seen numerous signs of moose and bear.

The following "boys" make up the party this year: J. L. Alcorn and G. D. Smith, both of Youngstown, Ohio; S. T. Newman, Playmyra, N. Y.; J. I. Nasmith, Tonawanda, Pa.; Johnston, H. E. Grose and Fred Dobson, of Peterborough; W. J. Telford, W. B. Jopling, F. Jopling, Sandy McManus, of Bridgenorth, and J. S. Taylor, of Cobourg.

Tommy Hooper and other members of the band of former years are not at Packsley this year and they are missed.

MINISTER DENIES SALMON DUMPING

Canadian Exports to Britain Have Increased in Past Year.

DECREASE FROM RUSSIA.

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 18. (CP)—Imports of canned salmon from Canada had increased in the first 10 months of the year over last year, while imports from Soviet Russia of this commodity had showed a heavy decrease in the same period, stated Rt. Hon. William Graham, President of the Board of Trade, in the House of Commons to-day.

The Minister made the statement in contradiction to an assertion that the canned salmon industry of British Columbia had been severely affected by the Soviet government dumping salmon on the British market.

Extradition Hearing Opens in Gunmen Case

ORILLIA, Ont., Nov. 18. (CP)—Proceedings to extradite "Two Gun" O'Brien and "Sunny" Sydney Lass, alleged gunmen and hold-up men, at present held in New York were opened to-day with John Ainsworth, brought from the Toronto jail under heavy guard, to give testimony.

"If we can show evidence from this hearing to the New York court which would convict the pair there, we shall get them back to Canada said County Crown Attorney F. G. Evans.

The pair of gunmen are wanted in connection with a payroll hold-up in Toronto in September.

Port Colborne Man Leaves Large Estate

WELLAND, Ont., Nov. 18. (CP)—One of the largest estates to be filed in the local Surrogate Court is that of the late Michael J. Hogan, former Port Colborne contractor, who left $1,981,666. The application is filed by James Moore Hogan of Port Colborne, only son of deceased and sole beneficiary. The provincial governments' coffers will benefit to the extent of $396,000 in succession duties.

Blames Team Failure On the Poor Coaching

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 18 (C.P.)—A. C. Cochrane, sports editor of "The Varsity," in to-day's issue blames the lack of success of the University of Toronto football teams on the coaching, or rather the system of coaching, that has been in vogue at Varsity. He advocates a paid coach with a five-year contract, which, he says, would give the man placed in charge a chance to get results.

GOV'T IS ASKED TO GUARANTEE PRICE ON WHEAT

Proposal For Minimum Figure Laid Before Perley By Westerners.

MUST AWAIT BENNETT.

Ministers View Scheme as Meaning Gov't Would Have to Enter Wheat Business.

OTTAWA, Ont., November 18 (C.P.). — Premiers of the three Prairie Provinces asked the Dominion Government to fix a guaranteed minimum price for wheat at a conference held in the office of the Prime Minister here to-day. The reply to this and other suggestions made was that the proposals must await the return of Premier R. B. Bennett from overseas.

No announcement was made as to the price which was proposed, or even if the Western Premiers had suggested a definite figure beyond which the Dominion should not let the wheat market fall. It is understood the view taken by the Dominion Ministers present was that the proposal would practically mean the Canadian Government would have to go into the wheat business. In the absence of the Prime Minister no commitment of this kind could be given.

Situation Improved.

Sir George Perley, Acting Prime Minister, stated following the discussion, that he thought the arrangement effected between the banks and the Western Premiers in Toronto yesterday improved the situation materially. Under this arrangement last year's remaining crop would be taken care of and the market would not be adversely affected by it. He also said he had been in communication with Premier Bennett on the wheat situation, both by cable and long distance telephone. He had spoken to Mr. Bennett over the telephone last Sunday. At present it was more difficult to reach the Prime Minister who was in Ireland.

Conference Lasts 2 Hours

The conference to-day lasted for over two hours, and at its conclusion the three Western Premiers hurried out to lunch at Government House. Premier J. T. M. Anderson, of Saskatchewan, declined to make any statement, and Premier John Bracken of Manitoba, indicated that Sir George Perley would give out any announcement. Sir George could not say definitely whether or not there would be any further discussion during the day.

While the fixation of a minimum price was perhaps the most important proposal made to-day, it was stated that other plans had been laid before the Government. Sir George Perley did not indicate their nature. The views of the Western Premiers were obtained with respect to various ways of improving the position of farmers in Western Canada apart entirely from the present grain situation.

HIGGINS MAY LOSE FURTHER POWERS

Salvation Army Sessions Secret Over Reform Arguments.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—(C. P.)—Taking heart from the strength shown in the first major clash of the conference of Salvation Army Commissioners, reform elements in the organization are insisting on further shearing the powers of General Edward J. Higgins, were said in many circles to be more confident to-day.

A proposal of the reform element providing for drastic cuts in the General's powers was defeated by a vote of 23 to 19 although the clash of the opposing interests took place Friday, news of the heated arguments had been withheld. The sessions are secret.

The exact manner in which it was proposed to curtail the General's powers was not made known. Since the opening of the conference, however, three other curtailments have been placed upon the General's office. These included retirements at seventy years of age, formation of a five or seven member trusteeship in place of the sole trusteeship held by the General for British property, and provisions to elect Generals in the future instead of permitting a General to choose his successor.

HUNTER IS SHOT CHASING DEER

Gun Discharges as Mallorytown Youth Attempts to Overtake Swimming Animal.

BULLET PIERCES BODY.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Nov. 18 (C.P.).—With a bullet wound in the chest, sustained accidentally at Buckshot Lake, north of Perth, while he was on a deer hunting expedition, Donald Haffie, 23, of Mallorytown, is in hospital here, after a long and trying journey by easy stages from the scene of the accident, with medical examinations carried out en route. The shooting occurred on Monday morning while Haffie and his father, Thomas Haffie, together with two men whose identity is unknown here, were camping on the shore of Buckshot Lake. A deer was sighted in the water, and the younger Haffie set out in a rowboat to overtake it. Suddenly a dense fog blanketed the lake and the boat ran aground. The jar discharged the youth's gun, the shot entering Haffie's chest, passing directly through his body and, after shattering a bone in his arm, came out at the shoulder. The injured youth was carried two miles through the woods on a stretcher, and then brought here by motor. His recovery is anticipated.

MINISTERS PLAN NATIONAL POLICY FOR AGRICULTURE

DELIGHTED WITH PROGRESS.

Terms Meeting a Federal Cabinet of Agriculture.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 18 (C.P.)—Provincial agricultural ministers convened here to-day under the chairmanship of Hon. Robert Weir, Canadian Minister of Agriculture, to continue their discussion on the development of a national agricultural policy. The party came here from Ottawa, where they were in session yesterday.

The conference as yesterday was held in private and Mr. Weir said there would be nothing made public until late this afternoon.

When the conference adjourned for luncheon, Mr. Weir told the Canadian Press he was delighted the way matters had progressed. Everyone, he said, was greatly enthused and very optimistic regarding the outcome. "Things have progressed very successfully," the minister repeated. He again expressed his pleasure at the work of the meeting which he said, "might be termed a Federal Cabinet of Agriculture."

JAIL BREAKER UNDER ARREST

Clarence Pfeifer Escaped From Burwash on September 1.

TAKEN IN HAMILTON.

HAMILTON, Ont., November 18 (C.P.). — When police visited a boathouse on the bayfront this morning, they found ClarencePfeifer crouched within. He was talkative, morning, they found Clarence Pfeifer break from Burwash Reformatory "a nine years," he bragged, when he saw that the game was up.

Pfeifer was sentenced by Magistrate Burbidge a year ago on a charge of keeping a disorderly house. He escaped from the prison farm on September 1, and since that time has eluded the police. To-day, he boasted of the ease with which he had avoided the authorities.

"The funny thing was that it was so easy to get out of Burwash," he said. "I had a job as a trusty in the pump house of the Reformatory, and I just walked out on them. I might just as well have said goodbye to the guard before I left."

CANADIAN COMMERCE DELEGATES VISITING CHINA TO BOOST TRADE

Imrie Presents Chinese Press With Statement Showing Objects of Mission.

LAND IN SHANGHAI.

SHANGHAI China, Nov 17 (CP) The trade delegation to the Orient of the Canadian Chambers of Commerce arrived here Sunday. A statement expressing friendliness and goodwill and the objects of the mission was given to the Chinese press by John M. Imrie, Edmonton chairman on behalf of the delegation.

Closer Business Contact

The statement read:

"It is a desire for closer and more intimate contacts with the business interests of China that has brought this delegation across the Pacific from Canada. Our coming is prompted by friendliness and goodwill, and the hope of mutual benefit.

"The conviction is growing in Canada that recent developments in China are symbols of growth and expansion. They represent a passing phase, which must surely be followed by the unification of this great empire and the utilization of its vast resources in enlarged trade, both within itself and with other nations.

"Canada is a near neighbor of China, separated only by an ocean which man has converted from a physical barrier into set lanes of ever widening commerce and communication.

"Although lacking the rich history and maturity of China, Canada has displayed recently a capacity for vigorous growth and economic expansion. Since 1915, our exports have increased threefold, and our imports have been doubled. Today Canada stands fifth among the nations of the world alike in export, import and aggregate trade.

"China and Canada are in many respects trade complements of each other. Each is growing or manufacturing goods which the other lacks. Canada is in a position to supply many commodities that China will need in her internal development of agriculture, transportation and industry, and in turn will have need of much that China is producing or will produce in the new economic era on whose threshold she now stands.

"Therefore, the Canadian Chambers of Commerce, which represent Chambers of Commerce in 205 cities and towns in Canada, and of which I have the honor to be Vice-President, has sent this trade mission to China.

Fourfold Purpose

"It has a fourfold purpose, viz: To reflect the goodwill and friendship of Canada's business interests; to acquire knowledge of trade conditions and trade requirements; to establish personal contacts, and to promote mutual understanding with a view to the further expansion of bi-lateral trade on a mutually beneficial basis.

"Included in our party are representatives of three of the leading Canadian banks, two managing directors of daily newspapers, five representatives of lumbering and manufacturing interests, a member of the legal profession who is also on several business directories, two technical engineers, a financier, a representative of the distributing trade, a representative of the import trade, a representative of our transportation system, the Vice-President and the Secretary of the Canadian Chambers of Commerce.

"Our delegation is looking forward with great pleasure to our sojourn in China, and sincerely hopes that our visit will prove of mutual benefit."

FURTHER COMPLAINTS HEARD ON C.P.R. TRAIN SCHEDULE

Present 9.30 Mail From Toronto Not Picking Up Its Full Quota of Mail.

SAYS CHARLES LACHEUR

Following a recent meeting of the Transportation Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, under the chairmanship of J. A. McKone, when complaints were heard from Postmaster Charles Lacheur against passenger train schedules on the C. P. R., the secretary of the Chamber interviewed W. Fulton, assistant general passenger agent of the company, in Toronto recently.

Mr. Fulton said he had strenuously opposed the recommendations of the operation department to remove Train No. 34, and seemed surprised to hear that the present 9.30 train was not picking up its full quota of Toronto mail.

He admitted the 9.30 train left too early to permit of people connecting with it who were coming from Chicago and other points west, who are now obliged to remain in Toronto overnight. In making the change, which came into effect on November 8, the company had done so, he stated, by reason of several complaints on the part of Peterborough people who objected to the old arrangement, whereby they had to wait until 1.50 in the morning to take a sleeper to Ottawa.

The Chamber of Commerce Transportation Committee, in their interview with Mr. Grout of the C.P.R. which was held in this city a week or so ago, suggested that a sleeper be put on the 9.30 from Toronto, without having any idea that the company would remove train No. 34 leaving Toronto at 11.35 p.m.

Mr. Fulton said he was glad to have the information passed on to him from the committee, and would after a conference with Mr. Grout, communicate with the Chamber as to the outcome of the complaints.

The committee's representative also interviewed Mr. Bourlier, general passenger agent of the C.N.R. respecting the recent removal of the "sleeper" of the Saturday night Montreal train.

Mr. Bourlier, on hearing that the C.P.R. night train did not carry a "sleeper," promised that he would consider the matter and would advise the committee as to his decision.

COMMUNISTS ALLEGED SENT OUT TO CANADA TO START TROUBLE

Also Rumored That Conference Held Recently in England.

Plan To Seize Government.

(Special to The Examiner Copyright 1930.)

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Startling reports concerning Russian communistic activity spreading in an intensive campaign across Canada have come to the attention of police here and a probe is being launched.

The report is that in June, London communists elected three delegates to a parley scheduled to be held in Moscow under the third internationale, the expenses of the delegates being paid by Moscow.

It is now said that three delegates were elected in this city and that they did go overseas. Instead of Moscow the conference was transferred to a point in England.

Within just about three weeks the delegates were back in this city, according to the story, which is being checked through steamship agencies and other sources. Other delegates attended from various communist centres in Canada it is claimed.

These leaders returned with instructions concerning schemes for fomenting trouble among the unemployed and for a weird plan to eventually seize the reins of government. Local communists are credited with the statement—which is the basis of the investigation—that last week a small group of notables operating directly under Moscow landed at Halifax and scattered over Canada. One of these "Big Shots" is holding a series of meetings in London with communist chiefs it is claimed.

Efforts were made to reach Gregory Aristoff, Russian communist leader here but at his home it was said he would be away for some indefinite time.

OBSTINATE CASES OF HEMORRHOIDS (PILES)

A well-known physician in his hospital and private practice discovered that the prescription now known as Moone's Emerald Oil diluted with equal parts of ordinary Olive oil, will help to reduce the most obstinate case of piles with just a few applications, and stop all itching, burning, bleeding, and distress.

Sufferers should get a bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil and begin the treatment at once. It is a remedy that is easily applied, and the first application gives instant relief and comfort. All good druggists have it, or can get it for you on short notice.

Nickel Co. Will Spend $100,000 For Relief

SUDBURY, Ont., November 18 (C.P.)—The International Nickel Co. of Canada Limited board of directors has authorized the expenditure of $100,000 for the relief of the unemployed, practically all of which will be spent in the Sudbury district. A program of civic improvement involving road widening and sewer construction in the town of Copper Cliff will be proceeded with immediately, Vice-President J. L. Agnew said.

INSCRIPTION HAS COURT HEARING

Louvain University Rector Appeals Decision That Engraving Be Placed on Edifice.

HEARING TO LAST WEEK.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 17.—(C. P.)—A bitter battle over the famous balustrade on the new Louvain library as designed by Whitney Warren, re-opened to-day before the First Appeal Chamber here.

The case was raised in the form of an appeal by Rector Ladeuze of Louvain University against the decision of the Louvain Tribunal that the Whitney Warren balustrade with the much motted inscription should be placed on the facade of the edifice.

This inscription in Latin reads:

"Destroyed by Teutonic fury, restored by American generosity."

The rector and his supporters have contended warmly that this inscription tended to keep alive war memories which were best left to fade out.

The contrary view has been just as spiritedly supported by Mr. Warren and others who took part in the dispute. It is expected the present proceedings will continue at least a week.

LEGION BAZAAR HELD THIS WEEK

Need This Year Amongst Returned Men and Families Greater Than Ever.

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion is asking the public to patronize its annual bazaar, to be held this week in the Canadian Legion hall, on Wednesday and Thursday afternoon and evening.

This year, the need among ex-soldiers is exceptionally great, owing to the large measure of unemployment that has been the case since early last spring. Many of the men are physically incapable of doing hard work, so that the manual labor demanded in many of the public works now being undertaken, is impossible for them. And most of them have wives and children depending upon them.

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Legion makes ex-service men and their dependents their especial care. They look after them in every way throughout the year and spend long months in preparing articles for their annual sale, when they have a wide variety of pretty and useful gifts, to suit every purse and fancy.

The are sales of home-made cooking, of novelties for Christmas gifts, of fancy work, quilts and babies' woollens.

Afternoon tea is served on both days. It is worth one's while to drop in for a half hour and see the pretty things on view and enjoy a cup of hot tea and some home-made cake. The ex-service men will profit by your visit.

MOOSE BOLD IN NEW BRUNSWICK; STALK CITIES, TOWNS, HIGHWAYS

Attack Motor Cars and Locomotives at Night—Many Killed.

DOING MUCH DAMAGE

(Special to Examiner, Copyright 1930.)

ST. JOHN, N.B., Nov. 18.—The locomotive engineers in the maritime provinces have a new problem to contend with. Watching for moose, on the railway tracks.

The bull and cow moose are becoming the bolder. They have been stalking through the cities and towns, and parking in basements, barns and backyards.

In going into and exiting from the cities and towns, the moose have used the roads. The increased use of the highways has resulted disastrously for the moose, scores of the animals being killed this year by motor vehicles. Particularly after dark, when the moose have often attacked pleasure and commercial cars. There is something in a headlight that seems to excite the animosity of a moose, especially a bull. And twin headlights double the hatred.

The moose have been slowly learning the penalties of assaulting cars, and have been turning to the railway tracks. There the evil fascination of the headlight is not so often seen. However, there are locomotives, and all wear headlights—dazzlers all.

In New Brunswick, in recent weeks, two bull moose have been killed by locomotives, at night. At Sugar Brook, a big bull stepped on the tracks to challenge the right of way of a locomotive drawing a passenger train from Woodstock to McAdam. The driver and fireman, did their best to frighten the moose from between the rails, but all to no avail. The whistle and bell were ignored, the animal standing flat footed and with head lowered, trying to bar the way of the iron horse.

The locomotive had been slowed down to a few miles an hour. The pilot struck the moose and threw the beast off the ties. A game warden was notified, and he found the moose dying. A friendly bullet put the animal out of pain.

The challenge of the moose was in sudden, the train could not be stopped so time to prevent the collision.

MOTORING NEWS

By Frank Chamberlain.

The speed boys are at it again! Captain Malcolm Campbell, British racing driver, is now developing a Napier "Blue Bird" with which he hopes to clean up all existing automobile speed records. One Australian and two American cars are also expected to compete in speed races at Datona beach, Florida, next January. Maybe it will be recalled that in February, 1928, Captain Campbell drove a Napier at 206.9 miles an hour, a record toppled two months later by the late Ray Keech, and again in March of last year, when the late Sir Henry Segrave established the present mark of 231.3 miles an hour. Personally, we don't care for speed records.

Non-splinterable glass will soon become the common-place thing on motor cars if the present developments continue apace. According to plans, after March 1, 1931, all cars in London, England, must carry safety glass. Ordinary glass on cars will be declared illegal.

The most interesting single chassis at the recent Olympia Motor Show in London, England, was the Daimler with its fluid flywheel and self-changing gear-box. The fluid flywheel consists of a flywheel with vanes rotating within a similarly vaned rim. The rim connects with the rear axle through the gear-box. The flywheel and rim are contained in a case partly filled with oil or glycerine. As the motor turns the oil or glycerine is thrown out centrifugally. When the motor hits the proper speed, the oil or glycerine grips between the flywheel and the vaned rim, and the power of the motor is transmitted to the rear axle. When the motor is decelerated, the flywheel cuts out.

News from the Old Land reports that the finest English automobiles are streamlined, built low to the ground, frequently have no running-boards at all or use only steps; stubby, cycle-type or long, sweeping fenders, often with thick sections behind the front wheels; hoods that extend back in unbroken lines from radiators to wind-shields, sliding roofs, junctions of tops and wind-shields rounded off, commodious baggage accommodation built in the body, sober colors, plain upholstery, and more comfort and safety than have been found in bodies of other years.

The sixteenth annual Chicago Automobile Salon will will open at the Drake Hotel, Chicago, on Saturday, Nov. 8th. A variety of developments in custom coachwork styles and types are promised for the exhibition. There will also be new developments disclosed in chassis engineering. The exhibition will mark the debut of several new models of fine cars, including new eights, twelves and sixteens. The bodies of cars are to be lower than ever this year, according to predictions. Practically all of the new designs show the body sides carried down over the side of the chassis frame in a wide variety of treatments. The new school is partial to the all-metal exterior, eschewing leather, but bank, etc.; and depending largely on the high luster of surfaces for effect.

With the situation in automobile manufacturing in its present position none of the companies can afford to dismiss any available sales opportunity. With that in mind, progressive widening of the present range of cars is under way for 1931. Several more 16-cylinder cars are being designed and are nearly ready for the market. With these are to come two more twelves, according to present programs; while several other makers are to replace sixes with eights. These developments, together with the likely formation of a midget car to include Americanized designs of the baby types now manufactured in Europe, promise new ways in which the makers will strive for originality. Motor-car engineers believe that the high-power engine is here to stay, and front-wheel drives are becoming more popular every day.

Women have funny ideas about the type of motor-cars manufacturers should supply. A magazine recently asked its women subscribers to describe the kind of cars they would like, and Miss Leone Gould replied: "I'd like to see some sort of device to give you advance warning of mechanical trouble before you get to the place where your car breaks down."

Mrs. Edith Heileman suggests: "I think cars should provide a nice little elegant pocket for infants. My young married daughter tours a great deal with her two children, one four years and the other a year. The basket they use is ugly."

Mrs. Osborn Norcott dreams of a day when telephones will be installed in all automobiles. "In fact," she writes, "I would like to see in cars all the modern conveniences of an apartment, even to a shower." Mrs. Gordon Mullen writes: "I wish they would install ash trays that are really serviceable and convenient. Most of the present ones are so small and so far away that no one ever bothers to use them." Oh lady!

G.E. TUBE PATENTS VALID BY COURTS

Millions of Dollars in Royalties May Be Recovered By Company.

TORONTO, Nov. 18.—A case involving millions of dollars in royalties that may now be recovered by General Electric Company from competitors, has been decided on by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. It constitutes one of the most important rulings on record of affecting radio and radio tubes manufacturers. The court has reversed its own action of a year ago and now rules that vacuum tube patents owned by the General Electric company are valid.

The patents on the type of tube involved are owned in Canada by Canadian General Electric and the decision now removes any doubt which may previously have existed regarding ownership of the dominating patents in the radio tube field. With this uncertainty removed, Canadian General Electric Company can go on with their plans for improvements permitted by volume production without fear of their tube plant having to curtail operations due to inroads into this business by importers.

The U.S. Circuit Court ruled in October, 1929, that the patents were invalid, and its reversal of decision followed reargument of the case on the motion of General Electric.

The company may now recover royalties from competitors which have been producing similar tubes in the five years the patents have been in operation. The type of tube involved is widely used in receiving sets and are known commercially as non-gaseous vacuum tubes, defined as a process for minimizing the use of gas as a conductor element.

DONT'S FOR RADIO BUYERS

Radio's swift development has reached the point of near perfection in tonal quality. To the average man it probably appears that there are numerous types or makes of sets which offer about equally goof performance. Probably you think of radio—"Almost any kind will give a lot of enjoyment nowadays." We think that nowadays of cars, but don't forget that the motor car industry is twenty years older than radio.

It is better to be safe than sorry. Perhaps one or two of these pointers wil help you in a successful choice.

Don't let a few dollars' saving in the price influence your decision. You usually get what you pay for.

Don't forget that quality of material and manufacture in the actual instrument may vary tremendously between different makes at about the same price—and that this difference may not be apparent to you.

Don't fail to inquire pointedly as to the quality of set material and parts in the "chassis" itself.

Don't forget to examine the "chassis" yourself. Is it heavily constructed? Often the weight of a radio is a good indication of the quality built into it—and that quality means long life.

Don't buy a comparatively unknown make. Stick to the leaders in the field and avoid owning an "orphan."

Don't forget that radio reception must overcome longer distance in Canada than in the States—and that other things being equal a "made-in-Canada" product should be your choice.

Judge the wisdom of your choice by the number of leading stores which handle it.

Consult a dealer whom you know to be thoroughly experienced.

Enquire how long the manufacturer has been actively and successfully engaged in the Canadian radio industry.

Finally, don't postpone your radio purchase till winter time. The new 1930-31 models are ready for your inspection now. They'll cost as much at Christmas as in October. If you have an old radio trade it in now. Your dealer can give a better allowance for your old set when he has the active season ahead of him in which to dispose of it.

Chas. A. Levine Held As Counterfeiter

VIENNA, Austria, Nov. 18 (C.P.)—An American giving his name as Charles Levine, 33, was arrested at Summering, an Austrian watering place, yesterday as a suspected counterfeiter.

After questioning the arrested man, police said he was Charles A. Levine, who, with Clarence Chamberlin, flew the Atlantic from New York to Germany in 1927.

They added also that Levine vehemently denied any wrongdoing.

The police said the defendant arrived in Vienna with a woman, and they visited an engraver here.

The American offered the engraver a large sum of money, the report said, if the artisan would counterfeit certain French coins. The engraver told police of the alleged plot. He, too, was held for investigation.

GHOST WARRIOR PROVES FIREMAN

Covent Garden Officials Delve Deeply Into Supposed Apparition's Actions.

MIRROR CAUSED DEFLECTION

LONDON, November 17 (C.P.).—It seems the shadowy figure that unnerved Herman Darewski as he conducted his orchestra at a ball in Covent Garden wasn't a ghost after all.

Many of those who saw the ghostly figure stalk across the wall believed it to be the shade of Siegfried, Richard Wagner's hero-child, seeking retribution for the strains of modern jazz that was filling the hall from Darewski's band. As the apparently armored figure appeared the drummer ceased to drum, Darewski dropped his baton and collapsed into a chair and the dance abruptly ceased.

Now after several days' investigation, it has been determined to the satisfaction of the Garden authorities that what really was seen was the shadow of a fireman making his nightly rounds.

An official of the Garden explained it thus: "What really happened was that during a 'blockout' the fireman on duty in the darkened upper part of the huge theatre was walking along carrying a lamp. The subdued light was casting a shimmering ray from a moving ball of mirrors, and the whole effect was to throw a ghostly shadow against the wall. The fireman's helmet accounted for the armor effect."

EMBARGO ON CANADIAN GRAIN BY ENGLAND, LATEST RUMOR

Story Was Soon Spiked, But Caused Plenty of Excitement.

(Special to Examiner, Copyright 1930.)

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 18.—Rumors that Great Britain was contemplating an embargo on Canadian wheat have spread swiftly through grain circles in Winnipeg and have caused great excitement. A cable from Hon. H. H. Stevens, now in England, states that shipment of chemical-tainted wheat has been received in Liverpool and threatened the whole British market, started the commotion.

A. P. White, president of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, soon spiked the rumor, however, and explained how it started. A shipment of 24,000 bushels of Canadian wheat sent to Liverpool from Port Colborne, Ont. When it reached Liverpool it was discovered to be tainted with ethyline bichloride, a chemical used against weevil. It has not been determined whether the Canadian wheat itself was treated with the chemical or whether the wheat was taken from a bin in which United States wheat had been so treated.

Two representatives of the board of grain commissioners are on their way east to conduct a thorough investigation. Mr. White said he had never heard of Weevil in Canadian wheat although it was not uncommon un United States grain.

"In His Quiet Moments"

A True Story

Always 'the life of the party' everybody admires Ted Carruthers for his breezy good nature and winning personality. He is a real man through and through.

But in his quiet moments—

Poor Ted has his personal problem from which he cannot shake himself free when alone. A recent illness, the price of overwork, left his health impaired. The doctor says it is only a matter of time.

He now has only a few short years in which to provide for Mary and the children. What is he to do? He is not able to get life insurance and cannot save much more than $300.00 a year. In five years this will be but $1,500.00—not nearly enough!

'Tis now he realizes just what it would have meant if he had insured when able, to provide for his wife an income of at least $100.00 a month ($1,200.00 a year) as long as she lived. At his age (35) $6.40 a week with the London Life would have guaranteed it, and worry would not now be further sapping his strength, killing any chance he may have had of recovery.

The future may easily be made safe for loved ones by insurance, and worry removed from those who have dependents.

LAKEFIELD VETERANS HONORED AT JOLLY ARMISTICE DINNER

Merriment Reigns Supreme as Comrades of Other Days Enjoy Event.

GOOD PROGRAM

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 18 (Examiner Correspondence) — Mustering about one hundred strong the members of Branch No. 77 of the Canadian Legion and other ex-service men of the district answered the fall in on the evening of Armistice Day in front of the club rooms on Queen street and were formally lined up and numbered in the approved army style, for perhaps the first time since demobilization.

Comrade L. J. Charlton of the famous Fighting Fifth acted as sergeant-major and in turn handed over the parade to Major J. M. Bygott of the 40th Northumberland Regiment who mustered and led the Lakefield Company of the 93rd overseas in 1916.

The 'old major' as he is affectionately called, marched the happy squad along Queen street to the Lakefield Inn where the genial proprietor A. G. Lawless had prepared a fowl dinner for the troops. The parade was perhaps reminiscent of the days of early 1916 when hundreds of local boys and the surrounding district were in training prior to going overseas where many made the supreme sacrifice. The streets were lined with sympathetic admirers as in the days of yore and the stirring war time melodies as rendered by the boys were heartily applauded by the onlookers.

The usual army grace was said by Rev. Capt. N. Clarke Wallace, Campbellford, an ex-padre of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces. Capt. T. W. B. Marling, M.C., past president of the local branch of the Legion and formerly company commander of the famous Iron Seconds acted as toastmaster and dispensed his duties in a manner quite befitting to the occasion. Comrade Ernest Robertshaw, vice-president of the branch, proposed the toast to the King which was loyally honored. Our Empire, by Comrade N. W. Kyle, M.M., who made a stirring appeal to all ex-service men to retain their loyalty and scorn communism during the present tense period of depression. He concluded his address by an appropriate selection from the works of the great Imperial poet, Rudyard Kipling which was heartily encored.

Col. T. J. Johnston, V.D., who recruited and commanded the 93rd overseas battalion, in which hundreds of boys from Lakefield and vicinity served with distinction, responded very fittingly and during the course of his address reiterated his former opinion that it was not to end war for all time that our boys went overseas but rather to protect their families and homes and otherwise loyally serve the Mother Country.

The Canadian Legion was proposed by Councillor J. R. Hull, whose elder brother made the supreme sacrifice while serving with the 13th Royal Highlanders, whilst the councillor himself was rejected because of his youth. His remarks were primarily of a commendatory nature of the charitable and other community work undertaken by the Legion. Comrade J. R. Hull, president of the local branch was unduly brief and after welcoming the guests reminded the comrades that much of the credit for the stable condition of the local unit was due to the efforts of his predecessors, Comrades, T. W. B. Marling and Dr. M. P. Kennedy.

Lakefield Branch No. 77 was proposed by Major J. M. Bygott of Campbellford, and formerly of Lakefield who conveyed the greetings of his branch and also his personal appreciation of the honor conferred on him on the momentous occasion. Comrade K. A. Mackenzie, secretary of the local branch and formerly a commissioned officer of N.M.S. Renous, responded in his usual affable manner and the gathering sang, "For he's a jolly Tar." The secretary is the only ex-naval member of the branch.

Our guests was proposed by Comrade A. B. Burrows, who explained that he was substituting for Comrade R. J. Webster, Chief Constable of the Municipality who was unavoidably absent. His welcoming remarks to the guests were very appropriate and timely. W. H. Casement, veteran village postmaster and also honorary member of the Legion responded briefly, recalling the stirring war time days as the local boys were mustered and marched away and of the remorse of those who, due to advanced years were left behind. He spoke highly of the Legion the great work which it was carrying on.

Our Fallen Comrades was proposed by Comrade T. W. Chaplain who made an elequent address on the virtues of those who made the supreme sacrifice and drew attention to the company to the frontispiece of the program whereon was printed the immortal poem "The Silent Toast" by Canon F. G. Scott, Chaplain general of the Expeditionary Forces. The lights were dimmed and a spot light depicted a small table with the usual immaculate trimmings but without any occupants. The comrades observed the customary two minutes' silence.

Comrade M. P. Kennedy, M.C., responded and in keeping with the occasion paid tribute also to the departed and likewise made an appeal for all to assist to the utmost those who were spared to return from the great conflict.

The dinner program closed with a very hearty vote of thanks to "Mine Host Lawless," and the singing of the National Anthem which was led by the Rev. C. E. Moore, of Young's Point, an honorary Chaplain of the Legion.

The parade reformed outside and adjourned to the G.H.Q. which in this instance was the Legion Club rooms where an excellent musical program was rendered by Red Moncrief and his Corn Huskers, of Peterborough and also vocal and instrumental numbers by Comrades Burrows, Watson, Birch, Fletcher, Dr. Smith and other well known musical artists.

Zion Ladies' Aid Holds Quilting Bee

Petherick's Corners, Nov. 18 (Examiner Correspondence)—The annual quilting bee of the Zion Ladies' Aid held in Sentinel Hall on Wednesday was as usual a decided success. Five quilts were completed.

Dinner was served at noon to about thirty ladies and some fifteen men who were working on the road near the church.

Mrs. John Simpson is president of the Zion Ladies' Aid with Mrs. Ernest Irwin, treasurer and Mrs. Harry Barnum, secretary. The organization had done a wonderful work in assisting the officers of the church to meet the various obligations.

PASTOR SPEAKS AT MEETING

Rev. J. W. Wilkinson Gives Address on "Feministic Influences" to Warsaw Institute.

GOOD PROGRAM

WARSAW, Nov. 18 (Examiner Correspondence)—The main feature of the Women's Institute meeting held on Thursday afternoon was the address on "Feministic Influences" given by Rev. J. W. Wilkinson.

Among those present at the meeting were Mrs. W. Douglas, a charter member who lived away from Warsaw for twenty-one years and Mrs. E. R. Hamblin, formerly an active member and secretary of the Institute.

Mrs. T. Cooper, first vice president, occupied the chair and after the routine opening exercises and business, Mrs. Theodore Douglas and Mrs. O. B. McIlvena were appointed a committee to interview possible janitors.

The next meeting will be held in the evening in the Institute rooms at 7.30, when Mrs. Fred Crowe will give a talk on the motor trip to the coast which she and Mr. Crowe took in June.

A play was discussed and Mrs. Fred Crowe, Mrs. Weller and Mrs. McIlvena were appointed a committee to arrange for one, the practices to begin after Christmas. Rev. J. W. Wilkinson offered some plays which he had in his possession.

Two large coal oil lamps have been donated to the Institute and Mrs. D. Miller was appointed to see about getting lamps enough to properly light the room. Mrs. T. H. Crowe, Miss Valetta Drain and Mrs. D. Miller were appointed to look after some relief work.

Mrs. T. Douglas, Mrs. Fred Crowe and Mrs. O. B. McIlvena will look after the Christmas Cheer boxes.

Mrs. T. Douglas gave a reading on the Institute Ode, in which each line was enlarged upon and the meaning emphasized.

Miss L. McIlvena recited "Home," followed by the singing of "Darling I am Growing Old" in which everyone joined.

Rev. Mr. Wilkinson, in his address, pointed out that women are co-workers in community life and often wondered how bachelors got along in the ministry. When he was thinking of his life work, he spoke to three ministers about it, one encouraged him and two discouraged him. Then he spoke to three women, one his Sunday School teacher and all three advised him to do as he felt, called to enter the ministry.

Through the Christian religion woman has been placed in her proper sphere. It is a common saying that all men are equal in God's sight. That was impossible for women in life two thousand years ago. Womanhood is something to lift humanity to a higher level. Generally speaking there is something a little coarser in men and women's finer instincts overcome it.

"A great need of the day is to act as we speak and back up what we say by what we do. Our actions speak. Influence is a universal law of life and we cannot escape influencing and being influenced. Sometimes people influence for bad. In their social life, girls seldom realize the influence their words and especially their actions influence young men for either good or evil. We cannot help but notice the influence of women leaders in social, religion, economical and political life.

"However, there is no place where her influence is felt more than in the home. There is not trouble with the world where mothers are Christians. Her influence is greater than the father's."

The speaker urged women not to be satisfied with equality with men, but to go ahead and use their talents. In every true woman there is an instinct for love, home and religion. Guard and use that instinct with care.

Bazaar Held

The bazaar held by the Zion Willing Workers on Wednesday was very successful, the sum of $85 being realized. Aprons, towels, pillow slips, knitted and crocheted articles and cooking done by the ladies, were on sale. Stock's Bread Company kindly donated several dozen cookies and the Salada Tea Company donated the tea used in the tea room and for supper. Others donated samples of cocoa, baking powder and other canned goods. Tea was served and a splendid supper was also enjoyed. The Warsaw United Church W.M.S. put on the program.

Mr. Albert Graham is visiting his brother in Belleville.

Mrs. Uriah Payne has returned after a pleasant trip to Montreal.

Mrs. Fred Crowe was a visitor to her home in Otonabee on Wednesday.

Manufacturers of sporting goods in India are complaining that the supply of mulberry wood from the Chanha Manga forests is proving insufficient for their increasing needs.

United Church Fowl Supper Is Success

WESTWOOD, Nov. 18.—(Examiner Correspondence)—The annual fowl supper of St. Andrews United church was held very successfully on Wednesday evening. The supper comprised of the usual tempting dishes was served to a large number of people, all the surrounding towns and village being represented.

Following the supper a good program was given in the town hall, Rev. H. Bell making a capable chairman. The program opened with prayer, followed by the chairman's address; duet by Mr. and Mrs. Spencer of Indian River; solo, Miss Virginia Lobb; selection, the Comstock and Fife orchestra; address by Rev. Mr. Archer of Havelock; piano duet, Miss Doxsee and Miss Scriver of Hastings; solo Mr. Story of Campbellford; instrumental trio, Spencer orchestra; solo, Mr. Story; selection, Comstock and Fife orchestra; address, Rev. Mr. R. F. Stillman of Norwood; duet, Mr. Gordon Faux and L. T. Huycke of Hastings; piano solo, Miss Lena Dickson; instrumental trio, Spencer orchestra; solo, Mr. Story; selection, Comstock and Fife orchestra.

Before the last number the autograph quilt, made by the Women's Missionary Society during the summer was auctioned, the highest bidder being Mr. Richard Faux. A vote of thanks was tendered by the chairman to all taking part in the program and helping in any way, and was responded to by a hearty clap from the audience.

Miss Margaret Fallis Awarded First Prize

MILLBROOK Nov. 18 (Examiner Correspondence) — Margaret Fallis, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Fallis, Seventh Line, Cavan, was awarded first place in the Girls' Garden and Canning Club for this section of Durham county, the judging being done in the office of the Department of Agriculture, Port Hope, last Saturday.

Marian Earle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Earle, Fourth Line, Cavan, had second place, and Sadie Rowland, Mr. and Mrs. Rowland's elder daughter, also of the Fourth Line, was given fourth standing. A competitor from Hampton held the third place.

The judging is done on the basis of eighty per cent. for garden, and twenty for exhibit of canned goods, which must include four samples of the girls' skill. Cash prizes were given this year. Miss Iva Smith, of Bethany, is high girl for the whole county. Miss Edith Hopkins, of Lindsay, was the judge, and E. A. Summers is the Agricultural Representative for Durham.

The previous year the girl holding the premier place in any county was given two weeks at the O.A.C., Guelph, with all expenses, fare board, and lodging, paid, but apparently this will not be the course followed this year, owing to the limited number entering the competition. Efforts will be bent toward enlisting a larger number of entrants another season.

DODDS PRESIDENT OF ST. PAUL'S MEN

Annual Meeting of St. Paul's Men's Association is Held.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The Men's Association of St. Paul's Presbyterian church held its annual meeting last night in the Sunday School hall of the church and elected Hurrell Dodds as president for the ensuing year.

During the meeting, which was presided over by the retiring president, Dr. J. C. Smith of Lakefield, Mr. Dodds gave to his hearers a splendid address in which he outlined the plans which Germany had made for the past Great War; plans which had taken scores of years to formulate. The speaker also showed how, after war was declared, the German head of staff failed to follow these plans and as a result the great strike which German leaders for years had planned to make, failed to live up to their great expectations and Paris did not fall.

Most optimistic reports were heard on the plans for the future and a splendid year's work is expected by the executive of the association.

The officers elected were:
Hon. President—J. W. Anderson.
Past President—Dr. J. C. Smith.
Chaplain—Rev. William Allan.
Organist—Martin B. Chenhall.
President—Hurrell Dodds.
1st Vice President—G. Wilson Craw.
2nd vice President—John Hornsby.
Secretary—C. Sealright.
Treasurer—A. D. McLeish.
Executive members—F. Raines, W. Baptie, R. Wilson, W. S. Hill, J. Armstrong, Dr. J. J. Craig, C. E. Blewett, S. Hall, W. H. Shackleton, and J. G. Whyte.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Such morning as these we don't necessarily need to have hot dishes at breakfast, but when the weather gets really cold, hot breakfasts are particularly welcome. Even the first course of fruit pleases the palate if it is warm.

• • • • • • •

When cooked fruits are served they lend themselves well to combining with the cereal course, making one dish. Incidentally this is a saving of work for the housewife as it eliminates one set of dishes to lay on the table, to wash, dry and put away again!

• • • • • • •

Dried or evaporated peaches are an innovation for the morning meal. These have added flavor if dried with the skins on. Wash the fruit well, cover with cold water and put over a low fire and gradually bring to a boil.

• • • • • • •

Simmer until thoroughly tender, but not long enough for them to loose their shape. When nearly done sweeten to taste.

• • • • • • •

These are served with a rich cream as a separate course or put a spoonful or two over a plate of cooked cereal and serve with lighter cream.

• • • • • • •

A breakfast that is different results from serving the hot, they can be re-heated, peaches with the sausages. Dried apricots can be used instead of the peaches but they are not so unusual.

• • • • • • •

Baked winter pears are another seldom served breakfast fruit that is delicious not. If the pears are somewhat tasteless, as frequently happens with winter varieties, allow a teaspoon of maple syrup to each pear, one teaspoon of lemon juice to a pint of them, and sugar to taste, if the maple syrup is not sufficient.

• • • • • • •

The lemon gives zest, but can be omitted if pears are to be eaten with cream.

• • • • • • •

Prunes are a good old stand-by. Fortunately they are appreciated just now. They are hearty, and wholesome and when cooked well have a delicious rich flavor.

• • • • • • •

They should be soaked after washing, and then cooked in fresh cold water, starting with a low temperature and then gradually having heat increased until the water which covers them comes to a boil.

• • • • • • •

Then the temperature should be lowered and the prunes allowed to simmer until tender. Always have prunes lightly covered for they should steam. They can be cooked in a casserole.

• • • • • • •

A tablespoon of light molasses or syrup can be added with a little sugar when the prunes are half done while they are being cooked on top of the stove.

• • • • • • •

If cooked in the oven the liquid sweetening may be put in with the sugar at first. Be careful of sweetening prunes too much. It spoils the flavor. Some persons like a little lemon juice and rind cooked with prunes, but if the fruit is to be served with cream, as would be the case for breakfast this acid is not so welcome.

TRUE LIFE.

True life, is growth: by this alone
Is our extent of living shown.
No measurement of days or years.
Of heights or depths, of joys or fears
Can fitly serve to show how far
Upon the road of life we are.
And only as we look behind
To selves of other times, we find Ourselves to-day more strong, more wise
We gain a glimpse that satisfies.
We see how we have grasped some good
From trials once misunderstood.
We learn how every evil thing
At last must lose its hurt and sting,
When we have grown enough to see
Bright purpose through dark mystery.
True life is growth; through it we find
New meanings, merciful and kind.

BISHOP SWEENEY CONDUCTS INDUCTION

Rev. Mr. Dwelly is New Rector of All Saints' and St. James' Parishes in Penetang.

On Thursday evening last the official induction ceremony for the new rector of All Saints' and St. James' Parishes in Penetang was conducted in All Saints Church by Rt. Rev. J. F. Sweeny, M.A., D.D., D.C.L., LL.D., Lord Bishop of Toronto. Present also in the Chancel were: Rev. A. E. Winnington Ingram, B.A., Rector of St. Mark's Church, Midland; Rev. W. C. Stubbs, L.T.H., Rector of Elmvale and Rural Dean; Rev. C. R. Spencer, M.A., Rector of Shanty Bay and acting Bishop's Chaplain; Mr. A. H. Cuttle, Finance Commissioner of the Diocese of Toronto and the Rector, Rev. R. T. C. Dwelly, B.A., B.D., of the Church of England in Penetanguishene.

Following the special prayers the instructions for the new rector were recited by the Bishop and accepted by Mr. Dwelly. Dr. Blackwell, in his capacity as Church Warden presented the key of the Church to the newly inducted Rector. Mr. Arthur Jennings, the other Warden, was also present at the presentation of the key. The Bishop, his Chaplain and the Rector then visited in turn the Baptismal Font, the Lecturn, the Pulpit and the Communion Table and at each place read a special verse of Scripture and gave special instruction pertinent to that part of the Church of England ritual. He also read a special exhortation to the congregation.

Construction in Shanghai, China for 1930, is estimated at 40,000,000 or twice that of the previous 12 months.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D

ADULTS AND PHYSICAL EXAMINATIONS.

I suppose it is because I have always been interested in health and athletics that I can't understand why everybody shouldn't be interested also. I always wanted to be able to run faster than other boys, jump higher and farther, play shortstop on the ball team, forward on a soccer team, or half-back on a football team. It seemed only natural to go on into medicine and health work, and try to tell students and future school teachers something about themselves and the children they would be teaching.

And always I've tried to stress the matter of physical examination; of trying to find out what their own assets and liabilities were, so that they could help the coming generation to do likewise.

And nowadays our schools have these physical examinations by physicians and nurses that size up the youngster just as soon as he enters school, and during the years he remains there.

Thoughtful parents think this is a very wise thing to do. But what about parents themselves; what about adults and physical examinations?

Except when they are going up for an insurance examination they never think of consulting a doctor unless they are sick.

And yet there may be a half dozen little points about their particular body that, if they were aware of them, would make a great difference in their work, play, and general happiness; why they have so many head colds; feel so tired all the time; not much appetite for food; want to sleep all the time; have periods of wakefulness; have attacks of indigestion; frequent headaches, frequent pains in abdomen, difficulty in breathing through the nose; frequent sore throats; eyes tire easily, and many other things that do not prevent one working, but certainly keep one from enjoying one's work.

And just as the physician located little defects in the child, so he will locate the little defects in the adult if the adult will consult him for at least an hour once or twice a year.

This annual or semi-annual examination will give you such a knowledge of yourself that you will never have any hesitancy about eating, sleeping, or exercising. You will have learned from them just what you need to do to get the most from that body of yours.

Let your family doctor overhaul you.

In 5 Weeks One Thin Woman Gained 15 Pounds

Dear Madam: If you need more good solid flesh to fill out unsightly hollows in neck, cheeks and chest why not start to-day to get it?

Further delay may be dangerous so why not go to McDermid & Jury, McDermid's, Bond's, Lynch and Payne's, or any live druggist and get a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets—they are sugar coated, small and rich in the weight building substance extracted from codfish livers.

And while you are putting on weight with McCoy's you'll also gain in energy and physical attractiveness—eyes will brighten—skin blemishes vanish.

Sixty tablets for 60 cents—take them for 28 days faithfully—then if you are not satisfied with gain in weight and improved health get your money back—just ask for McCoy's.

Vegetables Better With Refrigeration

If the vegetables were a little crisper and fresher for this year's Thanksgiving feast, it was probably due to a recent development in the electric refrigeration industry now found in many Canadian homes.

Dietitians and engineers, looking for a method to prevent dehydration of leafy vegetables and similar foods stored in an electrice refrigerator, developed the hydrator, a container finished in acid proof porcelain, popularized by Frigidaire Corporation.

Leading product of this General Motors subsidiary is a line of low priced models designed to meet the requirements of the average Canadian family and which has resulted in thousands of sales to families which previously felt unable to afford an electric refrigerator.

All Frigidaires presented as Christmas gifts this year will be fitted with a sterling silver inscription plate, it has been announced. This plate, or "medal of honor," as it is called, has been designed to meet the wishes of hundreds of prospective purchasers who wanted their gift to be distinctly a Christmas present.

Our Mail

Conducted by ANNE WILCOX

Dear Anne:

May I drop in again so soon? Summer and Autumn have been very heavy for me, but to-day I have taken a quiet day at home to rest. By that I mean, do nothing extra that I felt pushed to do. Do what is necessary of housework, enjoy the beautiful soft, hazy atmosphere with the faintest hint of a purplish tinge over all, even when the sun shines.

Did you notice—or perhaps it was not so except just in this vicinity—that the maples were not so brilliant as usual and after delighting us for some time they and other forest trees suddenly shed their leaves, while apple and other fruit trees and lilac bushes retained their leaves still quite green, and though fading, are still on the trees? My husband and I both noticed it.

Then too, there is the thought that threshing and corn cutting are over and the granaries and silos are generally, pretty well filled; that the potatoes and roots are in; that garden stuff is safely harvested and here we have abundance. Thanksgiving surely should be sincere. We in Old Ontario are surely blessed and with that comes the thought of responsibility, for there are many not so favored.

Then it does seem as if perhaps we are bringing a curse on our beloved Canada, for which many of our forefathers gave their lives, by the wretched drink, the terrible amount of cigarette smoking, especially among women and young people, and the lack of responsibility. There is really no need for this unemployment. But it took years to reach its present proportions and will take years to get back.

People will need to learn to live more simply, without so much waste and extravagance, and be willing to get down to work. There is lots of work to do, if people will do it, without hunting up work for the sake of hunting it up and then paying for it. It must all come out of the land and the land cannot stand it.

I began with the idea of telling you how much I appreciated your thoughts on November. No, we should not be blue, and such a day as this makes one happy just to see and breathe.

Your talk on children lying touched a chord in my mind. I knew a dear little lad who was taken to a better world when he was only ten years old, but by that time he was a staunch little truth-teller. He was absolutely dependable, no matter what the consequences he was true in every way.

When he was five years old, he nearly broke his mother's heart. He would deny up and down and his mother punished him for it. She tried to teach him the wrong of telling a lie, when he would say, "But Mother, what is a lie?" She was one of the best trainers of children I ever knew, but could not get that child to realize that denying something he had done was wrong. He had a vivid imagination and used it as all healthy children should.

God pity the poor child whose imagination is destroyed, even if there are brothers and sisters. When they all play school, have they not imagination? Are play houses not the result of imagination? Pity the poor child who sees just clouds in the sky, or just stars, who sees only dead leaves being blown by the wind in November. Where could we even get a conception of God the Father or of our Saviour without imagination? Where would all the wonderful ideas have arisen which have done so much good in the world if men and women of imagination, or call it vision, did not live and act? Whence would our stories come?

Of course it can be used wrongly, so can anything. But it does seem that the inborn imagination of every normal child should be encouraged and trained.

With best wishes and many thanks, I am

Yours sincerely,
Quid Est.

P.S. I am the eldest of seven, have absolutely no accomplishments, but from earliest childhood my mind has been wonderful pictures and heard the most rapturous music. Even the dead leaves were fairies while the clouds were good children in Heaven and we used to try to see our little brother. The stars were golden cities showing through little holes. Mother let some of the notions stay, but these were some she quickly destroyed, well for us. Q. E.

Thank you so much Quid Est for your most interesting letter.

Dear Anne Wilcox:

I am enclosing another letter for you to address and forward to Ad Nauseam, please. Thank you so much for having done those favors for me before.

Would Esma please send me a cure for varicose veins? I wrote her a personal letter before, but perhaps it never reached her.

Yours Sincerely,
Elizabeth.

I'm sure Esma will forward to you her letter when she sees your request Elizabeth. I have forwarded your letter to Ad Nauseam.

Dear Anne:

I wonder if you will think I am writing too often? I would like to see a lot of letters from the neighbors again so thought I would try to drum up a few. I am sure everyone enjoys reading a good letter—a letter telling all about the daily round and common tasks. You know it is very helpful to homemakers to read of other homemakers' experiences, their successes and failures. It creates fellowship and widens our sympathies.

I really feel the most kindly interest in the neighbors who have written so thoughtfully of many helpful things. When we are happy and well, let us tell of it as when we are "ill and down and out." This old world is full of happiness if we would see it. To-day I hiked to the woods with my faithful collie and we had a wonderful time. He romped through the fallen leaves and barked joyously while I tramped along in the most satisfied mood, glad not to forget to give thanks to the Giver of this gorgeous Indian summer days with its sun and shade and mystic mistiness and thought of the words of the Psalmist, "Oh that men would praise the Lord for His goodness and for His wonderful works to the children of men."

I wonder if anyone would like my recipe for Graham Gems? I am enclosing it, and now I must stop, but wait, I want to say once more neighbors, that I am just crazy to see a letter from you each and every one.

Yours Vincerely,
Nionnet.

Thank you so much for your letter Vionnet, indeed you are not writing too often, come just as often as you like.

Anne Wilcox

BRACKEN REMAINS MUM.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 18.—(C.P.)—Premier John Bracken, of Manitoba, who acted as spokesman for the Prairie Premiers who conferred here with banking interests, declined to comment upon a report that he and his colleagues would seek a bonus from the Federal Government as a means of relieving the plight of the farmers in Western Canada. Neither would Mr. Bracken confirm nor deny another report that the Dominion Government would be urged to set up a grain stabilization corporation similar to the one now functioning in the United States, as another emergency measure.

FITTING CEREMONY MARKS REOPENING OF SUNDAY SCHOOL

Saint Andrew's United Church Rooms at Millbrook Thoroughly Redecorated.

GOOD PROGRAM

MILLBROOK, Nov. 18 (Examiner Correspondence)—An event of peculiar significance to those connected with Saint Andrew's United Church, and to many others of the community as well, was the formal re-opening of the Sunday School rooms on Friday November 14 at 8 p.m., after the redecorating and renovating which was completed last week, the contract being in the hands of W. Thomas, of Peterborough.

The basement presented a most attractive appearance as the large gathering assembled on Friday evening, the ceiling having been painted an ivory shade, with moulding of burnished gold, a stencil in bronze green and conventional design, breaking the contact between the attractive cream shade of the walls with that of the metallic covering overhead.

Wainscoting, doors, and pillars are painted a very light grey, the moulding heading the wainscoting and the lower part of the large pillars being in a somewhat darker shade. Large four-leaved screens, to use either side of the platform when entertainments are being given, are also painted pearl grey and are filled in with a green material, harmonizing with the stencil used near the ceiling.

The furnaces and pipes have all been done over with aluminum paint, and through the industry of the capable caretaker J. Pitt, there has been further improvement through the thorough cleaning of floors, transoms, windows, and light shades. In the near future the Men's Bible Class intends, by volunteer labor, to paint and varnish all chairs, tables, benches, etc., and before the annual New Year's entertainment is given, the platform is to be raised, enlarged, and probably finished with a hardwood surface.

Another needed change, and one toward which effort will be bent, is the covering of the entire basement with a good hardwood flooring, the original idea of giving it a paint finish having been abandoned in favor of the hardwood mentioned. This improvement, however, will wait for the present. The blackboard between the two windows immediately back of the platform has been eliminated and the screen for use with the lantern takes its place.

Good Program

The program on Friday evening was furnished by members of the Home and School Club of May's School, Peterborough, and its every item was much enjoyed. The pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, B.A., B.D., was in the chair and after extending hearty greeting to the large audience, said, "This Sunday School auditorium, which is dedicated to the glory of God, and the teaching of His Word that it may be established in the hearts and lives of those connected with the school, I now declare open for this high use in the service of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."

Community singing, with Mrs. (Rev.) W. W. Jones at the piano, and C. C. Garside optrating the lantern, preceded the chairman's address, the pastor mentioning in the course of his remarks, the donation of one hundred dollars from the Men's Bible Class (Mrs. L. H. Rae, teacher) toward the renovation fund, and the donation of ninety-five dollars made by the Boneka Class (Mrs. Jones, teacher) toward the same object. The Boneka Class also sponsored the gathering on Friday evening, serving the refreshments, and intending to contribute to the funds of the school the amount, totalling approximately forty-five dollars, taken in at the door. Mr. Jones also mentioned the volunteer work of Mr. Theobald, and other members of the men's class, in repairing the chairs, benches, etc., in preparation for later painting and varnishing.

The opening number on the program was a piano duet, "Qui Vive" by Misses Bryar Edmunds and Mary Burnham, and bfore passing on to the next item, Rev. Mr. Jones paid fitting tribute to the fine work being accomplished in teacher training in the Sunday School, the leader being Miss Estelle Hetherington. Three examinations were written on by the class during the past year, and there had been no failure on the part of any pupil; indeed in all the years Miss Hetherington has been teaching the classes in leadership training her pupils have always been listed on the side of success.

Popular Artists

Popular young artists on Friday evening's program were Master Frankie Frost and Dorothy Cunningham, pupils of Mr. Roy Rome, whose violin solos and duets called forth insistent demands for an encore in each case. Frankie's selections were "Passe-Pied", (Gillett); and in duet with Dorothy "The Robin's Lullaby" the recall being "The Little Prince". Little Miss Dorothy, who looked to be not more than six or seven years of age, played "Zamaretta" with "Barcarole" as encore and later in the evening gave "The Blue Bells of Scotland" with variations. The accompanist of the evening was William C. Thompson, organist of Saint Luke's church, Peterborough.

Vocal solos by Mrs. Nyal Todd were enjoyed, her selections including "When it's Springtime in the Rockies" the recall being, "Memories"; and "Pal of My Dreams". Little Miss Barbara Miller delighted the audience with her recitations given with every evidence of marked talent, her numbers being: "In the Kindergarten" and the encore for this number, "The Spellin' Lesson"; "Watchin' the Sparklin'," brought as recall, "Mary Ann."

A special treat, not listed on the original program, was provided in the violin solos played by Roy Rome, his selection, "The World is Waiting for the Sunrise" winning prolonged applause to which Mr. Rome responded with a lively old English dance number, "Elizabethan Days."

A short play, "Rev. Peter Bryce, Bachelor" held the audience in happy good humor, the characters being: Flora Flynn—Mrs. A. Brisco; Della Dodge—Mrs. George Cunningham; May Marsh — Mrs. Harry Brown; Clara Coons—Mrs. T. Brierly; Sara—Mrs. H. McMahon; Susan (the maid)—Mrs. Will Carter.

The piano trio, "Don Giovanni Fantasia" by Mrs. (Rev.) W. W. Jones, Miss Beatrice Jones, and Miss Phyllis Kidd, concluded a most enjoyable program, after which refreshments were served and a social hour spent.

Before dismissal with the National Anthem, Rev. Mr. Jones voiced the hearty appreciation felt by all present toward those who had contributed to the program, each of those taking part being presented with a box of candy as more tangible evidence of the gratitude of the hostesses of the evening, the Boneka Bible Class.

HENRY TO APPEAL

ter and Simcoe streets had been $800 on the centre sites and $975 on the corner ones.

What Constitutes Values.

"If sales do not constitute a value, what does?" questioned the City Assessor of the Council. "One or two sales do not, but when half or one third of the property in one block changes hands I maintain the prices obtained do constitute a value.

"The merchants claimed that their sales have dropped 20 per cent during the past year and that is the reason why they should not be asked to pay an increased assessment. Well, they are just as able to pay as the ordinary working man in the city, who is now working on reduced time, is on his small plot of land. If the amount sold does not constitute a guide, what does?" asked Mr. Henry in conclusion.

Mayor Denne asked: "Mr. Henry we have always given you full authority? Under your oath of office you must use your own good judgment?"

Mr. Henry answered "Yes" to both questions.

Felt To Be Unfairly Treated

Stating that he was more conversant with the situation on George street than most of the aldermen, Alderman McNabb outlined the position of the merchants on the assessment question. He said that the merchants felt that they had been unfairly treated. Increases in assessment had been from 8 to 35 percent. He thought the assessor had been led astray by the influx of chain stores, "who will pay any price for a desired location." He maintained that the small merchant who was striving to give his store its best display attraction in windows and fixtures was suffering and that taxes made up 65 to 75 percent of their rent. He affirmed that the increase should not have been confined to the two blocks or the one side of George Street, but should have been spread out more so that the whole business district would share the burden.

Later Alderman McNabb stated that he was not trying to interfere with the City Assessor nor was he criticizing his wisdom, but that he was merely stating the position of the merchants.

The motion giving Mr. Henry "power to act" passed unanimously.

HIGH SCHOOL STAGE PLAY AS A FEATURE

Interesting Program Presented By Members of Campbellford H. S. Literary Society.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 18 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—A meeting of the Campbellford High School Literary Society was held last Friday afternoon in the High School Auditorium, with the vice-president, Georgia Davidson, in the chair. Muriel Linton acted as secretary.

The reading of the minutes of the last meeting and the appointing of Stewart Anderson as critic comprised the business session.

The program was given under the auspices of the pupils of the Fourth Form. Current events were read by "Bud" Inkster. A two-act play, entitled "The White Shawl," was presented by the pupils, which was well received and presented in splendid style. Those taking part were: Blanche Wright, Bernadette Jones, Edith Wallace, Vernon Abernethy, Grant Meiklejohn and Martin Russaw.

Between the two acts musical selections were given by Dorothy Henson at the piano and Ronald Richardson, violin.

After the giving of the critics' report the meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

CAMPBELLFORD SCOUT NEWS

CAMPBELLFORD, November 18 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—About six of the older boys of the 1st Campbellford Troop of Boy Scouts spent the holidays camping at the Twin Lakes north of Havelock. Soon after camp was made a bush fire was seen in the vicinity of Blue Mountain, and rapidly travelling eastward. Preparations were made to meet the blaze and prevent it coming further south than Bog Lake. This was successfully carried out and the fire was thrown further north and east.

On Sunday afternoon a second fire came in a circuitous route to the south of the lake and burned a wide swath behind the camp, but did very little damage, only taking the under brush. After fighting these two fires the boys slept as sound as the proverbial log on Sunday night. They received great encouragement from the fire rangers. The trip was a very enjoyable one, the time being all too short to do and see all that was desired.

The boys arrived back on Monday evening in time to attend the weekly course in St. John's ambulance work, in which line of activity great progress is being made.

The regular troop meeting was held on Friday evening when the patrols reviewed their earlier tests and took some instruction in signalling.

The boys are busy at the present time preparing to spread some cheer among the children of the town. Many toys are being made and some repaired, and these will be distributed to children whom Santa will overlook, as near to Christmas Eve as possible.

The Cub Pack is showing considerable activity, and the Scouts will give every assistance to the Cubmaster in helping their younger brothers in the great brotherhood of Scouts. Scoutmaster M. H. Sergeant.

Something new in Christmas Gifts

The "Medal of Honor" Frigidaire

Here you see the beautiful sterling silver medallion or "Medal of Honor" that's affixed to the cabinet of all gift Frigidaires, at no extra charge.

Or, if you prefer, you can present the medallion alone (in a handsome velvet case) on Christmas morning and let the fortunate one select her own Frigidaire at her leisure.

This year you'll want to give "her" something different from the usual things that change hands at Christmas—something that will be a personal gift, yet a gift that she wants and needs.

And now you can give her just such a gift—a Frigidaire to which is affixed a beautiful sterling silver medallion on which we will inscribe her name or any sentiment you desire.

What a happy solution you'll find this to be! And how happy she'll be that you found it! For only a woman can appreciate all that Frigidaire means—the help it brings to the kitchen.

She'll thank you for this aristocrat of Christmas gifts a dozen times each day. And it's so easy to give her a Frigidaire! You can purchase any model you wish on special Christmas terms—a small down payment—the balance extended over a period to suit your convenience. Stop in and ask for full details today.

Queen's and Tigers to Play off In Toronto Saturday

BRUISED TIGERS ARE NURSING INJURIES AT BENGAL QUARTERS

Likely Some of Star Players Will Be Out of Saturday's Tussle.

QUEEN'S IN FINE TRIM.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 18 (By the Canadian Press)—A battle scarred team of rugbyists are nursing bruises in Hamilton to-day while preparations proceed in Toronto for the holding of the eastern Canada football semi-final at Varsity stadium on Saturday.

Hamilton Tigers, Ontario Monarchs of gridiron east and west, who captured the Interprovincial Union championship last Saturday in their first step toward another Dominion title, meet Queen's University, champions of the Intercollegiate Union, in the first of the Canadian Rugby Union playdowns.

The final "Big Four" fixture with Toronto Argonauts did not improve the health of the Tigers any and, according to reports from the Bengal camp, stitches are in big demand.

Brian Timmis, Ernie Cox and Alex Denman, three mainstays of the mighty Yellow and Black wing line, are suffering from injuries that quite likely will keep them out of the game. Timmis, injured in the opening quarter against the scullers, is said to be suffering from a torn ligament in his right ankle, while Cox stretched a ligament in his knee. Denman and several others were badly used up in their courageous efforts to halt the inspired Argo line.

Coach Mike Rodden, considering the state of his team physically, has decided Wednesday will be soon enough to start training for the clash with the Tricolor.

Queens Have Chance

Queen's came through their game with McGill University in first class shape and should be in condition to give the fast weakening Jungle Kings a terrific battle. Ordinarily Tigers would be called to win by a fairly large margin, but the Bengals of to-day are not by any means as powerful a team as that which started the Western Canada tour the middle of last October. Seven games in the West and six "Big Four" tussles has taken plenty of sting from the Hamiltonians' crushing offensive, so much so, that Queen's, providing they solve Coach Rodden's splendid interference system have a splendid chance to knock the Jungle Kings from the top of the football realm.

Decision to change the location of the game was made following lengthy conferences between Tiger Club and Queen's University officials. Hamilton desired the game be played in Toronto, but the Tricolor wished their supports to see them in action once again. However, it was finally agreed on that Varsity stadium would be the venue of the match and tickets for the struggle will go on sale to-day, according to R. W. Hewitson, secretary of the C.R.U.

This means much larger number of fans will be able to see two of Eastern Canada's best in action as the local stadium has a seating capacity of about 20,000, while that at Kingston will hold not much more than half that number.

JUNIOR TEAMS OPEN S.P.A. HOCKEY SERIES

West Toronto and Marlboro' Juniors Are Victorious.

S. P. A. SERIES

West Toronto 3 Parkdale 2
Marlboros.....9 Young Rang's 4

TORONTO, Nov. 18—West Toronto and Marlboro juniors advanced to the second round of the S.P.A. series last night when they defeated Parkdale and Young Rangers, respectively, in two exciting games at the Arena Gardens.

West Toronto took the first game after a hard battle with the Parkdale Canoe Club representatives, while in the second contest, the Marlboro snipers were in great form and piled up a 9 to 4 score on the Ranger team.

West Toronto juniors, O.H.A. champions of last season, who were eliminated in the S.P.A. series by Parkdale a year ago by 3 to 2, secured revenge on the Paddlers last night, when they reversed the tables, the Canoeists being forced to see an early lead dwindle under some speedy attacks in the last two periods, and West Toronto win by 3 to 2.

SHARPE OUTPOINTS VIRGIL KINCAIDE

English Middlewegiht Scores Fourth Straight Victory in Canadian Ring.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 18.—(CP)—Scoring his fourth straight victory in a Canadian ring, Dick Sharpe, England, last night decisively outpointed Virgil Kincaide, Buffalo, middleweight, in the eight round feature bout of the Shamrock Athletic club's weekly show here. Sharpe weighed 162½ and the loser 158½.

After a tame start Sharpe unleashed a barrage of short rights to the body and crushing left hooks to the head which completely bewildered the speedy Buffalonian, who was hammered to the canvas for a count of nine in the fifth round.

Jackie Johnson, local featherweight staged a rousing rally in the last few rounds of the eight round semi-final to overcome a lead established by Joe Meyers, Rochester, to gain a split decision. Meyers floored Johnston for a nine count in the first round but thereafter the winner more than held his own and staggered the clever Rochester boy several times with whipping right uppercuts to the jaw. Johnston weighed 130¼ and Meyers 130½.

SIX TEAMS IN 'CAGE LEAGUE

Schedule Will Get Under Way With Doubleheader on Wednesday Evening.

IN Y.M.C.A. GYMNASIUM

Six teams are entered in the City Basketball League, which will get underway with a big double header Wednesday evening at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium.

The respective teams have been busy for the past month lining up the best performers of the cage game in the city and some smart quintets should be seen in action during the long winter season. It is likely that the best players developed in this league will form a team which the "Y" will enter in the Intermediate series of the Ontario Basketball League.

The C.G.E. is represented by two sturdy squads and it is reported that some smart players who learned their basketball at college, will be prominent on both teams.

Doug. A. Loomis, physical director of the "Y", is responsible for the formation of the league which is the one circuit that is keeping the game alive here.

Many Golfers Enter Caliente Tournament

AGUA CALIENTE, Baja California, Mexico, Nov. 18.—Every professional or amateur golfer of note will have a chance to enter the second annual $25,000 Agua Caliente "open" golf tournament which will be held over the championship course here Jan. 13, 14, 15 and 16.

A field of 100 players, 90 professionals and 10 amateurs, will tee off in the tournament proper, with the field to be selected through a two-day qualifying round at Agua Caliente on Dec. 23 and 24.

To date some 49 professionals and two amateurs have automatically qualified for the "open," the world's richest event in golf. These players are the first 32 to finish in the 1930 national open championship, the 32 qualifiers in the 1930 championship of the Professional Golfers' Association, and all winners and runners-up in past United States and British opens and the P.G.A. This list covers about 50 professionals and two or three amateurs, as many of the names are duplicated on the two lists. Also some of the automatic qualifiers will not be on the coast this winter, leaving additional room in the field.

Bowmanville Hockeyists Elect Season's Officers

BOWMANVILLE, Nov. 18.—Bowmanville hockey team has reorganized for the coming season, with the following officers:

Hon. President, Peter Lombrose; President J. A. Gunn; Vice-President, H. Ormiston; Secretary-Treasurer, S. R. James; Executive, S. Moore, Rex. Jones and Alex. Edmonstone.

PLAYERS FUND DISTRIBUTED

All Accounts of Injured Players Paid in Full—Financial Report Read.

Sweaters To Be Presented.

The final meeting of the Peterborough and District Football Association was held last evening, in the Chamber of Commerce Rooms, with President V. Stewart in the chair and a full executive present.

A Soccer Concert

Arrangements were completed to have a concert in the Legion Hall on Saturday evening, December 13th, when Jamie Reid and Jean Simpson of Toronto will appear before the city public. He broadcasts over the Toronto stations and has just returned from a tour of the old country vaudeville stage. On that evening, the Canadian Packing soccer team will be presented with their sweaters and will receive complimentary tickets from the association. It is expected to be able to report that Rev. Father Phelan will present his new trophy to the local board.

Players' Fund Distributed

All players' accounts rendered to the board were submitted and received. They were all paid in full on the unanimous vote of the executive and a good sum was left in the Injured Players' Fund for next season. In previous years, a proportionate sum was only paid. The cheques were handed over to the club secretaries.

Affiliation Meeting

It was decided that a special meeting be called to deal with the question of affiliation when Robert Muir, secretary of the Ontario Football Association, will be the principal speaker on the subject of organized soccer.

Caledonian Banquet Thursday

The local Scots associated with the soccer club are holding a banquet in the Paragon Hall, on Thursday evening, at Seven thirty. Invitations have been accepted by the President, vice-president and secretary of the association.

Financial Account Read

An excellent report was delivered by Secretary Stanley Gillespie on the financial transactions of the year. He received the sincere thanks of the executive. Nearly sixty dollars being left after all liabilities had been paid; also the sum of fifty five dollars being on hand for affiliation purposes. An excellent sum being handed over to charity through the Father Phelan Charity Cup.

MONTHLY MEETING PONTYPOOL L.A.

Mrs. Talbert Killett Hostess to Members of United Church Society.

PONTYPOOL, Nov. 18 (Examiner Correspondence)—Mrs. Talbert Killett was hostess to the members of the Ladies' Aid of the United Church for the regular meeting held at her home on Thursday afternoon and was assisted by Miss Blanche Moore, of Cavan.

The meeting was opened by the usual devotional excercises with the president Mrs. H. M. Richardson in the chair.

Considerable discussion took place regarding the annual bazaar and it was decided to hold it on December 6 with a hot supper in connection with it. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess at the close of the meeting. The next meeting is being held at the home of the president, Mrs. H. M. Richardson.

JONES RETIRING FROM GOLF PLAY

Champion of Champions to Make Motion Pictures Under Warner Bros.' Contract.

THROUGH WITH TROPHIES.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17. (By the Canadian Press)—Robert T. Jones, Jr., champion of golf champions, and holder of all the major titles of the United States and Great Britain, to-day announced his retirement from competition.

Jones in his statement, announced that he signed a contract on November 13 with Warner Brothers, motion picture firm, to make a series of twelve one-reel films, "purely educational in character."

Jones, having no more worlds to conquer in the royal and ancient sport, made known his decision in a statement issued on his behalf through Herbert H. Ramsay, executive vice-president of the United States Golf Association.

Jones declared flatly he had no intention whatever of turning professional, explaining that he was prompted to retire from the competitive field because he was convinced his motion picture contract conflicted with the spirit, if not the actual letter of the amateur rule.

He did not specifically refer to whether he would continue, at any time, in open golf play, but indicated he was through altogether with championships.

Brydson To Return To London Tecumsehs

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 18.—Gordon Brydson, property of the London Tecumsehs of the International Professional Hockey League, who has been subject to considerable publicity as a result of an announcement sent from Chicago that he was to line up with the Chicago Shamrocks of the so-called "Outlaw" league, will return to London and will play with the Tecumsehs, according to information secured last night. With the return of Brydson, the hockey war clouds have cleared, as the London leader threatened an injunction in United State law courts if Brydson lined up with the Chicago Shamrocks.

In a telephone conversation with Manager Roy Brothers, Gofdon Brydson who is in Minneapolis, stated that he had not signed a contract with the Chicago Shamrocks or any other team. He is willing to return to London, and transportation has been forwarded by the London Hockey Club. The differences between Brydson and the London Club have been settled and Brydson stated that he did not intend to jump his contract.

New York Freighter Runs Aground Point

New York, Nov. 18 (C.P.)—The freighter Harry Bowen, with 36 persons aboard, wirelessed for immediate help this morning saying she was aground in the fog off Montauk Point, the extreme tip of Long Island. The message was picked up by the coastguard, and vessels in the vicinity were ordered to go to the Bowen's aid.

The steamer Harry Bowen, of 1896 tons, is a coastwise vessel plying between New York and Norfolk, Va.

TITLES CONFERRED KINGSTON DOCTORS

Edward Ryan and Charles O'Connor Honored by Pope Pius XI.

KINGSTON, Ont., November 18 (Special to The Examiner). — Dr. Edward Ryan and Dr. Charles O'Connor of Kingston, graduates of Queen's University, and who have won fame in the medical world, have had the Order of St. Gregory the Great conferred upon them by Pope Pius XI., and are entitled to carry the title of "Sir." The Order of St. Gregory the Great was founded by Pope Gregory XVI. in 1831, who placed it under the patronage of the great Pope, whose name it bears. The decoration is an eight-pointed red enamelled gold cross, in the centre of which is a blue medallion, on which is impressed in gold the image of St. Gregory. The badge is the cross of the Order surrounded with silver rays. The ribbon of the Order is red surrounded with orange borders. The costume of ceremony is a dress coat of dark green, open in front, and covered on breast and back with embroideries in the form of oak leaves. White trousers with silver side stripes, a bi-cornered ornamented hat and the usual knightly sword complete the costume.

P.C.I. WILL MEET HAMILTON BOYS HERE SATURDAY

Delta Collegiate to Play Garnet and Grey Team in Sudden-Death Game.

DEFEATED ST. MIKE'S

Visitors Are Far Famed on Interscholastic Gridirons.

Coach Ernie Legon's gallant Garnet and Grey team, champions of Central Ontario, in their hunt for further Interscholastic rugby honors will undergo the acid test at James Stevenson Park on Saturday afternoon.

The light but hardy and brilliant P.C.I. gridiron squad has been ordered to clash with the Hamilton Delta Collegiate team here on Saturday in a sudden-death game in the Interscholastic semi-final round.

Hamilton Deltas are as famed on Interscholastic gridirons as the conquering Hamilton Tigers in senior rugby circles across the Dominion. Year after year this school has turned out winning teams that have plowed their way to many championships. This year's Delta team comes here with no less reputation than those representing the same school in the past. A crew of Tiger cubs they are, carrying weight and muscle, speed and dash, along with a long and systematic training in the great fall game.

Champions of Hamilton Group

Deltas are champions of the Hamilton group, always one of the toughest circuits to surmount in the whole Interscholastic Union. Also they are conquerors of St. Michael's College, the fighting Irish. In the game in the Ambitious City, Delta defeated St. Mike's, 23 to 12, and in Toronto yesterday the Irish only succeeded in holding them to a 11-11tie sore.

Isbister, 16-year-old half back, is reported to be the star of the Hamilton aggregation. He is a kicker that ranks in the senior class, booting a football 60 yards in a game is said to be nothing for this youthful giant.

Regulars To Be In Line.

P.C.I. will carry all Peterborough's hopes into the combat. Coach Legon's players have earned the admiration and support of every rugby fan wherever they have performed this season by their pluck, skill and sportsmanly fighting qualities. Although they are expected to be greatly outweighed it can be safely said that they will not back up and some of the coach's trick plays are expected to have a great bearing on the result.

The team is in fine fettle for the contest and their plays are wellnight perfect.

It is hoped that a big crowd will turn out to view the game not only to support the home team vocally but also financially since P.C.I. must pay the whole expense of bringing the Hamilton team here.

C.N.R. May Transfer Depot To Kingston

KINGSTON, Nov. 18.—The Chamber of Commerce suggests, in an advertisement urging the passage of a fifty thousand dollar by-law to secure control of Cataraqui Bay as an additional harbour for Kingston, that the Canadian National Railways is likely at a later date to move its ferry and coal depot from Cobourg to Kingston, saving ninety miles of dead haul by the transfer. The C.N.R. has a railway line right into the centre of the Bay.

Lindsay Will Change Main Street Lighting

LINDSAY, November 18 (Examiner Correspondence). — Plans for improved street lighting on Lindsay's main thoroughfare are being prepared by the Town Council. It is about seventeen years ago since this town adopted the magnetite system of street lighting, but at present the system is not giving satisfaction. The proposed new decorative system will only cost the town the price of installing the equipment, as the Hydro will supply the power free of cost. The new system will be installed as soon as possible.

AMERICAN A.A.U. ACCEPTS RECORDS

Wykoff and Stella Walsh Credited With New Marks—Association Enlarged.

WASHINGTON, November 18 — The Amateur Athletic Union took another step forward yesterday when it was enlarged to take in three new district associations in widely separated sections of the country.

The new organizations, created at the Union's forty-second annual convention here, are the Gulf Association with headquarters in Houston, Texas, the North-eastern Ohio Association with headquarters in Cleveland, and the Missouri Valley Association with headquarters in Kansas City.

The associations of the Union now number 29—the largest in the history of the organization. Three other applications for new associations, presented by Wisconsin, Western Massachusetts and Lehigh Valley groups, were tabled for a year upon the recommendation of the National Redistricting Committee.

Accept Wykoff Record.

In a busy session, the convention also accepted as official the 100-yard dash record of 9 2-5 seconds established by Frank Wykoff, Southern California sprinter, and also took favorable action upon most of last year's other 171 record-breaking performances.

Notable among these records was the one-mile mark of 4 minutes 12 2-5 seconds, set by Ralph A. Hill, Oregon University; the half-mile record of 1 minute 52 1-5 seconds, established by Phil Edwards, New York University negro star, and the 16-pound shotput mark of 52 feet 5¾ inches credited to Herman Brix of Los Angeles A.C.

Miss Stella Walsh, Cleveland runner, and Miss Helene Madison, Seattle, and Miss Eleanor Holm, New York, swimming champions, were the leaders among the women record breakers, each with a long list to their credit.

BANKER SHOOTS WOLF

LINDSAY, Nov. 18.—Franglin C. Raber, banker of Akron, Ohio, came to Haliburton on a hunting trip. He shot a large buck on his first day, winning the camp hatchet for the first to get a deer, and on his third day he shot a large female bush wolf, collecting a $25 bounty. Each of the party of 14 got a deer.

ARCH ENEMIES WILL TANGLE AT MONTREAL

Toronto Team Expects King Clancy to Give Defense Added Power on Road Trips.

OTTAWA AT QUAKERS.

Boston and Canadien Clash in Hub City Will Be Feature Battle of the Evening.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 18 (C.P.) — To-night's National Hockey League schedule of four game should give supporters of the "fastest game on earth" a fairly good indication of the merits of the eight teams engaged.

Toronto Maple Leafs, perched at the top of the Canadian group as the result of three points garnered in a victory and tie at home, battle on foreign ice with their arch rivals Montreal Maroons. Each team has played two games and from the result of these, indications point to a close struggle. The Maroons played both games away from their home Forum, losing to Ottawa and New York Americans, respectively. Toronto drew with the Americans in a scoreless match but decisively defeated the weak Philadelphia Quakers.

Popular With Fans

Last year, these teams provided both Montreal and Toronto fans with some hectic exhibitions of hockey and apparently they will continue their rivalry. With King Clancy on their line-up the Leafs are expected to be a better road team this year, as the dynamic Ottawa product fights as hard on foreign terrain as in his rink.

The game which many fans have been waiting for takes place in Boston, where the Bruins, National Hockey League champions, entertain Montreal Canadiens, Stanley Cup holders. The Flying Frenchmen trounced the Bruins in the world's championship final last season, after the Bostonians had emerged from a gruelling series with the hard-hitting Maroons to win the N.H.L. title. Supporters of the Boston team have always claimed Maroons "softened" their favorites so that they were not able to withstand the hurricane rushes of the Habitants.

Both teams appear equally as formidable as last year. Each sextette won the only game played to date. Canadiens defeated Ottawa at home, while the Bruins squeezed out a victory over the Americans at Boston.

Ottawa at Quakers

The Ottawa Senators take to the road when they travel to Philadelphia for a game in that city with the Quakers, formerly the Pittsburgh Pirates. The latter have lost all three games played so far, due to the weakness of their defence which has been further weakened by an injury to Roger Smith, which will keep him out of the game for several weeks, it is understood.

Ottawa won their first game by defeating Maroons at home, but lost their second engagement with Canadiens. However, they have a fast well-balanced team and should keep in the running by winning to-night.

Bitter intra-city rivals clash in their first meeting in the 1930-31 season, when the New York Americans and Rangers clash not only for league honors but for the championship of the city. The team winning the most points in these clashes wins the title, synthetic as it may seem to outsiders.

The Americans are tied for the leadership of the Canadian group at present, having beaten Maroons and tied with the Leafs in three games. Rangers are in second place with three points in the American group, also having won and tied in three starts.

Bowling
Alley Gossip
By Pin Boy

A six team league from the C.G.E. Drafting Room started the season last night at the Duffus Academy, but most of the Drawing Makers showed the effects of the long lay-off and with very few exceptions the scores were well under the 600 mark.

League Records

Fred Hickey continued his heavy hitting, setting up a single of 353 and a triple of 781 that should stand in this league for the greater part of the season as records.

Donaghue and Kelbrick with their respective crews tangled on Saturday afternoon on the K. of C. alleys in a three game series to break a first place tie in the Wednesday night league. The three games were closely contested but the feature bowling of Lewis swayed the scales in favor of Donaghue, who won two out of the three.

Donaghue	1072	972	1157
Kelbrick	1008	1117	1101

Lewis set a brisk pace to collect 272- 267, 294 for a triple of 833 while the following scores were secured by his teammates, Trennam, 284, 239; Cox 219; 211; Jobe, 208; and James 224. For Kelbrick Leo Martyn and Walter Firth were in the van making 206, 221, 252, and 232, 232, 224 respectively' Chas. McCoy with 238 Kelbrick with 248, and Bill Sweetman with 18 and 239 were the other topnotchers.

BOSTON TIGERS LEADING LOOP

While Providence Reds and Springfield Indians in Tie For Second Place.

IN THE CAN-AMERICAN PRO.

BOSTON, November 18. — The greatly strengthened Boston Tigers, aided by the work of several big league discards, finished the first week of the hockey season on top of the Canadian-American League. The Providence Reds, last year's champions, were tied for second with the Springfield Indians, and the other two clubs in the circuit, New Haven and Philadelphia, have yet to win a game.

The standing, including games of November 15, follows:

	W	L	T	TP	GF	GA
Boston	2	0	0	4	11	4
Providence	1	0	0	2	5	1
Springfield	1	0	0	2	6	1
New Haven	0	2	0	0	2	8
Philadelphia	0	2	0	0	4	14

The schedule for the week follows:

Wednesday — New Haven at Providence.

Thursday—Boston at Philadelphia.

Saturday—Providence at Boston. Philadelphia at Springfield.

CANADIAN TEAMS MEET STRONG FOES IN TO-NIGHT'S BATTLES

Tecumsehs Open Home Season With Indians While Bulldogs Cross River to Detroit.

BRYDSON RETURNS.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 18.—(By the Canadian Press.)—The two Canadian teams competing in the International Hockey League meet strong opponents in two of the three games scheduled to-night. London Tecumsehs open their home season with Cleveland Indians, last season's champions, while Windsor Bulldogs cross the river to Detroit where they meet the fast skating Olympics. In the third fixture Syracuse clashes with the Buffalo Bisons at Fort Erie.

The Tecumseds may be strengthened by the addition of Gordon Brydson, clever playing forward, who has settled his differences with the London Club and is en route to the Forest City to sign a contract. Brydson had refused to report at the first of the season, claiming salary arrears were due him. He was reported to have signed with Chicago, of the American Hockey League, but this report was without foundation, apparently. Last year Brydson, who is also a fine golfer, was one of the best marksmen in the league.

In second place at present, one point behind the leading Bisons, the Tecumsehs will make a determined effort to overtake the leaders by defeating the Indians who they tied in a game at Cleveland Saturday. Previously London defeated the Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets to get off on the right foot.

Windsor fought a game but losing battle in their only game when they lost to the Bisons by one goal. Several former players of Montreal Maroons, including the one and only Clint Benedict in goal, are with the Bulldogs this year, and it is expected they will prove a real contender for the title once they hit their stride.

Like the Bulldogs, the Olympics have played but one game, winning that from Syracuse by the odd goal in five. Great rivalry exists between these border teams and as they appear evenly matched an exciting contest will probably result.

Stars Proving Good.

The Syracuse Stars showed unexpected strength against the Olympics in their opening fixture at home and may prove troublesome for the Bisons who have got off to a flying start with two victories.

Composed of players from the former Hamilton Tiger club, the Stars have strengthened the weak positions. In addition two former Owen Sound junior stars, Marty Lauder and Markle, appear due for a good season in pro company, and on their performance in the first game, should strengthen the front line.

Kansas City To Meet Buffalo December 7

The Kansas City team in the American Hockey Association is scheduled to play its first games in Buffalo on December 7 and 8, according to information in a letter which Wilfrid Ranger recently wrote to one of his friends. This is their first engagement in the east, and as it falls on Sunday and Monday nights, a number of the friends of the two Peterborough players, Bert McLeod and "Biff" Ranger, are planning a trip to Buffalo to see one or both of the games.

When flocks of wild geese recently settled on the east coast of Scotland amateur forecasters in the Highlands predicted a hard winter, saying the sign never fails.

NOTRE DAME STAR FULLBACK WITHDRAWS FROM SOUTH BEND

Blow is Severe With Team Having Three Hardest Games Yet to Play.

STELLAR ATHLETE.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18. — "Jumping Joe" Savoldi, Notre Dame's hard-running full-back, closed his collegiate football career yesterday when he withdrew from school.

His withdrawal was the outgrowth of divorce proceedings which revealed that he was married June 3, 1928. Notre Dame officials refused to comment on the matter "in pursuance of their policy of avoiding publicity."

Savoldi's loss comes as a severe blow to the Notre Dame team which has its three hardest games yet to play against Northwestern, Army and Southern California.

Savildi was the leading scorer of the Notre Dame team, having scored 8 out of its 32 touchdowns for a total of 48 points, and was regarded as one of the leading candidates for the All-America football eleven.

Knute Rockne, however, has a pair of stellar fullbacks, Moon Mullins and Dan Hanley, to replace Savoldi. Hanley, who weighs 195 pounds and is 6 feet, 1½ inches in height, hails from Butte, Mont., and had been kept under cover by Rockne until last week, when he played his first game against Drake.

Hanley reeled off a 45-yard run for a touchdown and another 73-yard dash against Drake. He was almost unstoppable, and it was necessary for two or three tacklers to pull him down.

Both Lose Regular Backs

With Savoldi out, both Notre Dame and Northwestern have lost their regular fullbacks for Saturday's game between the two undefeated teams. Rentner, Northwestern's fullback, still is nursing an injured shoulder.

Born in Italy and brought to this country about eight years ago, Savoldi has had an unusual athletic career. He was born in a lonely Alpine villa several kilometres from Milan, three hours after his grandfather, who was a dealer in fine Italian wines, had died from a stiletto wound in his throat, inflicted by roadside bandits.

Until he was 13 Joe lived with his mother's people in the old country, while his parents became moderately prosperous in the ice cream business at Three Oaks, Mich.

Joe learned football fast in high school and he became a terror to rival Michigan teams. In his first year at Notre Dame in 1928, however, he played only a couple of minutes against Georgia Tech, which prevented him from having another career of competition after this season.

CIVIC GUARDS BOMBED.

BANTRY, Irish Free State, Nov. 17 (C.P.)—A bomb was thrown at the civic guards barracks in Glengariff, near here, to-day, damaging the front of the building. Sergeant Boyland and three guards in the barracks escaped injury.

A woman's bicycle was found abandoned near the gate. The motives for the outrage were not known.

HASTINGS UNIT IN SECOND PLACE

Durham Regiment is in Seventh Place in Lewis Gun Competition.

RANGERS IN 31ST

Regiments of neighboring counties did well in the Lewis Gun Competition for Military District No. 3, the results of which have just been announced. Hastings and Prince Edward Counties' Regiment won second place with a score of 144. The Durham Regiment was seventh with 115 points and the Victoria and Haliburton Regiment eighth with 114 points. The third team of the Durham Regiment won twenty-second place with the same regiment's second team, while the same regiment's second team was in twenty-sixth place. The first team of the Peterborough Rangers was placed thirty-first.

The Governor General's Foot Guard's second team earned first place with a score of 153 points out of a possible 181, proving that the shooting was much better than in 1929 when the winning score was 128. In 1929, 26 teams competed and this year they numbered 48.

RALLY SERVICES ARE HELD IN HAVELOCK

Special Music Rendered at Sunday Service in St. John's Anglican Church.

HAVELOCK, Nov. 18.—(Examiner Correspondence)—Rally services were held in St. John's Anglican church on Sunday when the aim was to have every Anglican family in Havelock and district represented at one or both of the services.

Special music was contributed by the choir under the leadership of Mrs. P. C. Howard, with the capable support of Miss Jean Anderson, A.T.C.M., at the organ. Besides the chosen hymns for the occasion, "Seek Ye the Lord" by Roberts was sung as the anthem, C. Blackburn taking the tenor solo in a most effective manner.

At the morning service the sacrament of Holy Communion was administered to an unusually large number of communicants. At both services the Rector, Rev. P. C. Howard expressed his sincere appreciation to the congregations for their hearty response to his appeal for "an every family" representation.

In the morning Rev. Mr. Howard based his sermon on John 21:3, emphasizing the fact that Peter bravely and uncomplainingly returned to the nest when he considered it his duty to do so, after a three years' "vacation" in the company of his Saviour, Jesus Christ." The speaker applied this lesson to the practical attitude of his congregation in a most interesting and helpful manner.

At the evening service, Rev. Mr. Howard preached on the text, "So built we the wall; and all the wall was joined together unto the half thereof; for the people had a mind to work."

"As Nehemiah faced the task of repairing the dilapidated wall of Jerusalem, so we must assume our share of the responsibility of building the wall of the Spiritual Jerusalem," said the speaker.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S FUNNY SIGN.

"Uncle Wiggily! Oh, Uncle Wiggily!" squeaked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, all excited one morning as she came running into the bungalow from the lower end of the yard. "Oh, Mr. Longears!"

"Yes? What is it?" asked the rabbit gentleman quickly. He hopped out of the breakfast room, where he was eating carrot pancakes with some honey from the bee tree spread on them, and opened the kitchen door as Nurse Jane came up the steps.

"There are tracks and paw marks all over the place!" said the muskrat lady housekeeper, curling her tail into a bowknot so she would not sit on it when she took a chair.

"All over what place?" asked the rabbit.

"Your garden," went on Nurse Jane. "At least what used to be your garden in the summer."

"And what kind of marks are there?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Paw marks! Footprints! Toe marks of many bad chaps!" whispered Nurse Jane. "I think they were prowling around in the night trying to get you. Something should be done!"

"I'll put up another sign."

"Something shall be done!" said Uncle Wiggily, firmly and bravely. "I'll go down and look at those paw marks in my garden!"

"Oh, but finish your breakfast first," begged Mrs. Longears. "I have just baked you some new cakes while Jane was helping the bunny children through the back fence so they wouldn't be late for school."

"Yes, perhaps I had better eat a few more carrot pancakes with honey from the bee tree," said Uncle Wiggily. "Did all the little bunny boys and girls get away all right?" he asked Nurse Jane, who had started them for the Hollow Stump School, where the Lady Mouse Teacher heard their lessons.

"Oh, yes, the children got to school all right," squeaked the muskrat lady housekeeper. "It wasn't until I came back, after helping them through the hole in the fence, that I saw the paw marks of the bad chaps in the dirt of your garden. They may come slinking around again to-night to get you."

"I'll fix them!" said Uncle Wiggily. "I'll put up a sign."

"What kind of a sign?" asked his wife, helping him to more cakes.

"I'll put up a sign telling the bad chaps to keep away from here," said Mr. Longears. "I'll get a piece of bark, paint the sign myself and stick it up on a post. That'll fix 'em."

"Perhaps the bad chaps don't believe in signs," said Nurse Jane.

"They'll believe in the kind of sign I'll put up," exclaimed Mr. Longears. "But first I'll have a look at their paw marks."

He hopped to the end of the garden and there, surely enough, were tracks, paw prints, little hills and hollows which showed that many animals had been prowling around there quietly in the dark of the night before.

"Yes, the Bob Cat was here, so was Fuzzy Fox and Red Fox, his cousin, and the Woozie Wolf, also," whispered Uncle Wiggily, for well he knew each track of the bad chaps. Each animal's paw made a different mark in the soft dirt of the old garden.

"I'll put up a sign that will keep them out," said Uncle Wiggily. On a white piece of birch bark with some paint made from the purple juice of raspberries Uncle Wiggily made a sign which said:

PLEASE KEEP AWAY FROM HERE.

This sign he fastened to a tree branch and stuck it up at the end of his garden. Then came night. None of the rabbits heard any noise, but in the morning the sign was found torn down and there were more paw marks in the soft ground.

"So the bad chaps don't believe in signs," said Nurse Jane. "They were here again in the night."

"I'll put up another sign," said Uncle Wiggily. So he made one which said DANGER—KEEP OUT in big letters. But in the morning that sign, also, was found torn down and there were more paw marks all over the bunny gentleman's garden.

"What are you going to do now?" asked Mrs. Longears.

"I'll print a funny sign this time," said her husband. He got another piece of birch bark and on it, in big red letters, he printed:

WELCOME. COME IN AND HAVE A CUP OF TEA.

As Uncle Wiggily was painting this sign the Bob Cat, who was sneaking around even in the day time to see what was going on, looked through the bushes at the edge of the woods and saw the rabbit.

"There! That sign will fix the bad chap!" said Mr. Longears. He flipped his paint brush and, not knowing the Bob Cat was so near, spattered a lot of red paint on the bad chap's nose.

"I'd better run and tell my friends something queer is going on," mewed the Bob Cat to himself. "That's a funny sign to put up."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

Bad Cold On Her Chest Had To Stay In Bed

Mrs. J. C. Wintera, Janow, Man., writes:—"I have every reason to praise Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup as it has done me a world of good. I had a very bad cold on my chest, and had to stay in bed two weeks, and could hardly speak on account of coughing so much. I tried every medicine and liniment I could think of, but I got no relief. My husband read about Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup so I decided to try it. I took only one bottle and I am ready to recommend it to anyone with a cold."

COUNTY YOUTHS ATTENDING FAIR

Group Will Be Guests of Ontario Department of Agriculture.

PLOWING MATCH WINNERS

A delegation of fourteen Peterborough County farm boys left for Toronto this morning to visit the Royal Winter Fair which opens today.

This group includes ten boys who will be guests of the Ontario Department of Agriculture in the "500 Party" of farm boys from all over the Province of Ontario who are brought in each year to study the exhibits at the Royal and places of interest in Toronto.

The following are the names of this group:

Stewart Tedford, No. 2, Indian River.
Harry McIntyre, No. 3, Keene.
Howard Hamilton, No. 2, Lakefield.
Boyd Renwick, No. 3, Keene.
Ormond McCarthy, Keene.
Roy McArthur, Havelock.
Trevor Little, No. 2, Lakefield.
Eddie O'Toole, No. 8, Peterborough.
Norman Lemay, No. 4, Peterborough.
Ivan Drain, Warsaw.

Besides these boys several others are making a similar visit as a prize they won at County Livestock Judging Competition last summer. These boys are as follows:

Ralph Garbutt, No. 2, Lakefield, prize donated by T. P. Lancaster, M.L.A.
Roy Dunford, No. 2, Lakefield, prize donated by Bank of Toronto, Keene.
James McIntyre, Keene, prize donated by Keene Junior Farmers' Association.
Hugh Buchanan, Havelock, prize donated by Silverwoods Ltd.

These boys will participate in part of the program of the "500 party."

Plowing Match Winners.

The final announcement has just been made by the Peterborough County Plowmen's Association of the winners of special prizes at the recent plowing match. These prizes are kept open for some time each year to allow for protests and corrections. The corrected list is as follows:

(1) Trophy donated by E. A. Peck, M.P., for competition in the high cut classes was won by Wilfred Short, Woodville. This is Mr. Short's second win and the beautiful cup is now his permanent possession.

(2) Trophy donated by T. P. Lancaster, M.L.A., to be competed for in the class for Peterborough County Plowmen only. Won by Harold Collins, Keene.

(3) Trophy donated by Canadian Bank of Commerce to the winner of the jointer class. Won by John Medd, Port Perry. Mr. Medd has won this cup twice and so retains possession of it.

(4) A. J. H. Eckhardt Silver Tea Service to the resident of District No. 4, who plows the highest scoring land. Won by John Medd, Port Perry.

(5) Trophy donated by the Royal Bank to the best plowman under 21 years of age won by Ollan Leahy, R.R. No. 4, Lakefield.

(6) J. H. Burnham cup. This cup has been for years emblematic of the County Championship, any class, any age. Won by Harold Collins, Keene.

These special prizes have been forwarded to the winners with the congratulations of the donors.

ADVANCE LOANS TO UNEMPLOYED.

HAMILTON, Nov. 17. — (C.P.)— Help for bonafide employees was announced by the International Harvester Company, largest employer of labor in this city.

The company will advance loans to members of their staff who have been laid off, in order to tide them through the lean period, it was stated.

These loans will be repayable by instalment when the men are re-engaged.

DEPORTATIONS BEING STUDIED

Thomas Answers Query as to Britain's Attitude on Canadian Action.

PREMIERS WATCHING.

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 18. (C. P. Cable)—Asked in the House of Commons to-day whether his attention had been drawn to the reports of deportation of British citizens from Canada because they had become public charges, Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Secretary for the Dominions replied representations had been made from time to time to the Governments of the United Kingdom and the matter was now under consideration.

The Minister added he was sure the questioner would have "observed the very strong position so far as the Dominion Premiers are conserned, of their own interests in their own country first."

Other references to the attitude of the Dominion Premiers have been made since the recent Imperial Conference opened. In Parliament a week ago Premier Ramsay MacDonald said the Australian depression was of great importance to British employment, "but there is another phrase which has been dinned into my ears for the last four weeks, and which I shall never forget—namely: that our Dominions occupy equal status with ourselves." Rt. Hon. Mr. Thomas, on the conclusion of the Imperial Conference, said Britain was now merely a Dominion like the rest of them. "We are a Dominion now. I would like to emphasize that point," he said.

Speed Traps Are Form Of Petty Blackmail Declares Motorist Of Scarboro Traffic Law

"Speed traps are considered to be a form of petty blackmail, and motorists in general owe it to their own self respect to help abolish them. The Motor League has fought this anachronism for years past and their efforts in this case are greatly appreciated," such is one of the caustic comments made by J. H. Vernor, Manager of the Western Clock Company in a communication to the Peterborough Automobile Club.

Feeling that Mr. Vernor had been imposed upon by the Scarboro' Municipal authorities, who summoned him recently for exceeding a speed of 20 miles per hour through that town, the O.M.L. took up the defence of the case and a dismissal of the action was the result.

Mr. Vernor is a member of the O.M.L. and thus entitled to Emergency Road Service and Legal Defence.

"This place has long been a mean one, due to the fact that the municipality did not comply with the law and erect signs showing the speed limit," continues Mr. Vernor, who is of the opinion that the Motor League, in securing the dismissal of the charge on the grounds that the law had not been obeyed by the municipality, is functioning 100 per cent.

"Does it follow that all those who have been fined on such a charge are entitled to a refund," is a very pertinent question which he makes, in stating that he is under the impression that as many as 25 or 30 Peterborough motorists have been summoned for a like cause every week.

Draw For Legion Car Friday, November 28

The drawing for the Ford car sponsored by the Peterborough Branch Canadian Legion is creating a great deal of interest in the city and district. The Legion has paid the dealer for the car and holds the receipt for same as well as the license plates and it may be seen at any time on the Legion grounds.

All the profits from the sale of tickets go to the fund for the relief of all returned men in Peterborough requiring it. Nothing is paid out to any one for directing the draw. Tickets are being sold by members of the Canadian Legion and they may also be had at the Canadian Legion Hall. THE RETURN OF TARZAN No. 56 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Along the tropic African coast cruised a French warship on patrol duty. Its first officer was Lieutenant D'Arnot, Tarzan's old friend. At his suggestion, the ship had anchored off the little land-locked harbor to allow d'Arnot and others to have another look at the cabin and jungle. For here many of the officers and men had taken part in exciting adventures two years before

On landing, they had found Lord Tennington's shipwrecked party. Under his intelligent leadership the eighteen castaways were leading a comparatively secure and comfortable life. Never had they abandoned the hope that their fourth lifeboat had been rescued. Then one morning a strange and terrible figure emerged from the jungle just south of their camp.

As Lord Tennington reached for his revolver, the half-naked filthy creature called his name and came running towards him. Then he saw that it was "Monsieur Thuran," his once immaculate guest aboard the Lady Alice. When they questioned him concerning the other occupants of the missing boat, "Thuran" said: "Mon dieu, it is too terrible—but only I am alive to tell their story."

Mourning the sad fate of Jane and Clayton, the little community made preparations to board the French cruiser. The following morning it was to take them back to civilization. Lieutenant d'Arnot had wandered alone down the beach, thinking of his friendship here with Tarzan. Suddenly, his attention was arrested by a strange procession in the distance.

OBITUARY

MRS. M. P. JONES IS DEAD
LIVERPOOL, N.S., Nov. 18 (C.P.) —Mrs. Maria Parker Jones, mother of Colonel C H. L. Jones, President of the Mersey Paper Company, died at the home of her son here yesterday, after an illness of some months. Mrs. Jones, who was 86, had led a remarkably active life. Shortly after the outbreak of the World War, at the advanced age of seventy years, she went overseas and volunteered her services for work in soldiers' canteens in England. For her efforts in this connection she was awarded two medals at the end of the war. During her lifetime, she had been active in many institutions of a religious and charitable nature.

EDMUND C. FOLEY
The death occurred yesterday of Edmund C. Foley at his residence, lot 12, concession 4, Otonabee, at the age of 76 years, after an illness of two years.
He leaves two sisters, Annie Caroline at home and Mrs. Mary Ryan of this city; also brothers Edmund of Kingston and James and William of Otonabee.
The funeral will be held on Thursday at 8.30 a.m. from the family residence to St. Peter's Cathedral and cemetery, Peterborough.

DAVID BELASCO IMPROVES
NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (C.P.)—David Belasco, 76-year-old dean of stage producers, rallied to-day from an attack of lobar pneumonia and was described by his physician as "much improved" after a restful night.
Believed yesterday to be seriously ill, Mr. Belasco was brought home from Baltimore, where he had been rehearsing his newest play, and was put to bed.

CAREFUL PACKING IS BEING URGED

Time For Mailing Christmas Goods to England is Drawing Near.

NEAT WINDOW DISPLAY.

As the season for mailing Christmas gifts, particularly to the Old Country, draws near, the postal authorities are stressing the need for careful packing, and merchants are displaying goods in their windows which make popular appeal and suggestion to all types of pocket books.
The Canadian Pacific Express Company, in a neat window display suggests the very practical gift of Ontario apples, which may be shipped over to the Old Land, at specially reduced rates, in barrels or boxes. The apples are shipped in special refrigerator freighters, and are thus shipped with the consignment arrives in a fresh and delicious condition.
Charles Lacheur, postmaster, in making suggestions for Christmas gift packing, points out that the usual method is to secure an empty shoe box, which in the majority of cases, is unsatisfactory. Especially at Christmas when the Post Offices are taxed to the limit for room, and parcels have to be handled quickly, the shoe box will not stand the strain and the demands which are made on its strength.
A strong corrugated box is recommended, and even when the article is not easily broken it is advisable to wrap it in several layers of strong wrapping paper and tie it securely with a cord. Articles which are easily broken should be marked "Fragile". Special attention should be given to parcels for overseas as they run a greater risk of damage or loss.
In addressing a parcel, it is always advisable to place an address inside the parcel in case the paper becomes torn. On the outside, the address should be clear. The return address should be placed in the upper left hand corner. Some people are in the habit of putting the name of the addressee there, with the return address in a prominent place in the centre of the parcel. The result is liable to cause considerable confusion and the return of the parcel to the addressee.

CHOIR OF BOYS COMING TO CITY

One of Finest Choirs in World to be Heard on Friday, November 28.

OLD ORGANIZATION.

A choir of boys, known as the Children of H. M. Savoy Chapel—one of the finest choirs in the world—is coming to this city on Friday November 28th, under the auspices of the local Kiwanis Club.
The singers will appear on the platform, probably at the Collegiate Institute, in their gold and red uniforms, the same as they wear when singing and chanting at Royal weddings, and will render a program of part songs, and glees for the interpretation of which they are famous.
The Savoy Chapel Singers organization goes back hundreds of years, and the present members of the Choir are worthily upholding all the glorious traditions handed to them by their predecessors.
The Chapel Savoy is a little church, hidden away in a secluded corner off the busy Strand in London, and is one of the most distinguished in the British Empire.
The building dates back over 400 years at which time it was built to replace an earlier edifice destroyed during the famous Peasants' Rebellion in Chaucers day.
The church has for many years, been one of the private Chapels of the Royal family, and its choir of boys are considered among the finest, in a country where the standard of boys' choirs is probably higher than in any other country in the world.
The news that the children have received permission from the King to leave England for the first time in the Chapel's long history and to tour the North American continent, will be of particular significance to everybody interested in English church music and specially so to those interested in choir singing.

ASSAULT TRIAL ADJOURNED WEEK

Aldborough Township Teacher Allowed Out on $4,000—Girl Too Ill to Appear.

FATHER TELLS STORY.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Nov. 18 (C.P.) —The case against Harvey Gillies, 21-year-old teacher at the Oak Grove School, Aldborough township, charged with assaulting and doing harm to one of his pupils, was adjourned for a week by Magistrate Maxwell to-day on account of the student, Bessy Lamont, aged 13, being too ill to appear.
In the meantime the accused is out on bail of $4,000. The girl's story has not been told, but her father, John Lamont, farmer, declares she told him Gillies kept her and two other girls in after four and undertook to strap them for alleged disobedience. Bessy refused to hold out her hand and Gillies undertook to administer punishment by force. In the scuffle which ensued, Bessy is alleged to have sustained four broken ribs, perhaps by falling across the edge of a desk. The girl is said to have collapsed on her way home.

Jabs and Jottings as Picked Up by an Examiner Reporter

TAKES A MONTH
"I'll take the month, ye worship," said one local man with a marked Irish brogue, when Magistrate Langley offered him the choice of a $50 fine or thirty days in jail in police court this morning pleaded guilty to being drunk and it was his second offence.

ONLY ONE HOUSE PLACARDED
Peterborough presented a clean bill of health this morning to the City's Board of Health. Dr. T. W. H. Young, M.O.H., reported that there was only one placard up in the city and it was coming down to-morrow. It was for a diphtheria carrier in the south end. The milk report also showed that the city is being supplied with high grade, clean milk.
Last month there were five cases in the Queen Mary Hospital; two of infantile paralysis, two of diphtheria, and one of erysipelas.

TRAMPS IN LUMBER YARD
Tramps have taken up quaretrs in the lumber yard of the Peterborough Lumber Company, it is reported by several residents of East City. The tramps are said to bivouac in the lumber piles at night. Police said that several searches of the lumber yard had failed to find any trace of the vagabonds, and suggest that the tramps merely rest there for a time while they await a passing freight to convey them to other fields.

ENTHUSIASTS
At the Chamber of Commerce a letter has been received from Buffalo, New York, intimating that two young men are planning to make a canoe trip to Northern Ontario next summer.
Their intention is to start at Peterborough, and go north through the Trent Waterway to Balsam Lake, up the Gull River to Gull Lake.

WEDDING BELLS

RENWICK—SHEARER.
The marriage took place on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, at the Manse, Keene, of Olive Elizabeth Shearer, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Shearer, to Henry Renwick, second son of Mr. and Mrs. John Renwick.
After the marriage ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Renwick left immediately by motor for Oshawa, Toronto, and Hamilton. At Hamilton they visited Miss Isabel Elmhirst, a school friend of the bride's.

LANGFORD—WAINWRIGHT.
At nine o'clock on the evening of November 10, in the Parsonage at Noranda, Que., the marriage of Stephanie Marguerite,younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Wainwright, Peterborough, to Mr. Herman Hamilton Langford, only son of Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Langford, Toronto, was solemnized by Rev. S. McVitty. The happy couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Withard, of Rouyn, Que., and Mr. and Mrs. Rogers Taschereau, of Noranda, Que. After the ceremony a dinner was served at the Hotel Noranda in honor of the bride and groom. Mr. and Mrs. Langford will reside in Amos, Que.

MacDonald Favors Back To Farm Move

LONDON, November 18 (C.P.) — The Labor Government is considering a "back to the farm" solution for the nation's unemployment problem.
Premier Ramsay MacDonald today conferred with the Minister of Agriculture on a Bill which would provide garden plots and small farms as a means of sustenance to jobless men who know how to till the soil.
Mr. MacDonald said he believed the cities' unemployed burdens were increased by the presence of many farmers who have fled from poverty to the centres of population because the funds available are restricted. He explained the new Bill would put the farms at the disposal of trained men only, since it would take too long to make farmers out of city dwellers.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE SUGGESTED FOR STUDY OF FEDERAL RELATIONS

Would Bring Up Connection Between Indian States and British India.

HAVE 32 MEMBERS.

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 18 (By George Hambleton, C. P. Staff Correspondent).—The Round Table Conference advances towards Indian Federation—a United States of India—but there is much ground to be covered.
The business committee of the conference to-day laid before the plenary session, recommendations for creation of a special committee of 32 members. This special committee would study Federal relations. The conference proper did not reach a formal conclusion, for a number of amendments were submitted and the recommendations therefore went back to the business committee for further consideration.

Consider Federal System
In the terms of the business committee's recommendation, the Federal Relations Committee "would consider this structure of a Federal System of Government in India, as regards relations between the Indian States and British India, and relations between the Provinces of British India and the centre, and recommend the main principles to be applied."
It proposed that Rt. Hon. Wedgwood Benn, Secretary of State for India, should preside over this special committee, and that its members should consist of six members of the British Delegation, ten from the Indian States delegation and 16 from the British India delegation. The services of a skilled draftsman should be placed at the disposal of the committee.
The Federal Relations Committee should also, it was recommended, be empowered to suggest if necessary the appointment of sub-committees, not necessarily confined to members of the main committe, to consider special subjects.
Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald intimated that various proposed amendments to the structure of this special committee had been submitted. Until these were considered by the business committee he did not propose to put its conclusions formally before the conference. No objection was raised to this course and the recommendations consequently went back again.

United States of India.
And it was the Federal idea which ran through further speeches to-day. The Maharajah of Alwar, ranking native ruler of India, who always wears a circlet of diamonds in his turban, was not enchanted with the word "Federation" as a mere form of expression. To him the "United States of India" sounded more grand, he said.
"The problems of India are more complicated and more momentous than the problems of any other country," he continued. "Race, religion, language, government, all add to the complexities. But a United States of India, united in a common body to work out Indian national problems, would form the shortest and quickest route to Dominion status in the British Empire."
Lord Peel, one of the British Conservative delegates, and former Secretary of State for India, thought "We should attempt perhaps to lay some stones immediately on which that great Federal idea can be built." He cited a statement by Lord Irwin, Viceroy of India, before the Indian Legislative Assembly last January, and declared that declaration held no promise of immediate translation into fact of the full measure of Dominion status. Dominion status was pointed out then as a goal "which might be attained in a swifter way or in a shorter time if things go well with the political development of India."
"While therefore we are united in the goal, we may differ on the pace or rapidity with which we may attain that goal," Lord Peel said. He declared that apart from legal and constitutional rights founded on Acts of Parliament, Great Britain's position in India, and her services to India, have given her a strong claim for consideration on moral grounds.

LEVINE IN JAIL SCORNS CHARGES

Vienna Attorney Claims U. S. Aviation Enthusiast Be Freed To-day.

COUNTS RIDICULOUS.

VIENNA, Nov. 18. —(CP)— From his prison cell, Charles A. Levine, who police say, is a United States aviation enthusiast, today ridiculed allegations of suspicion of intention of forgery which yesterday brought his arrest.
Levine was taken into custody at Semmering Spa, where he was resting, and brought to Vienna. Police said they found a ticket to Venice in his possession at the time of his arrest.
The Vienna Police President said that Levine had given orders to a Vienna engraver for metal dies and matrices to enable him to coin French two franc, one franc, and one-half franc pieces as issued by the French Chamber of Commerce.

Expect Freedom Today
PARIS, Nov. 18.—(CP)—The Paris edition of Chicago Tribune in a Vienna dispatch today said that Dr. Koretz, Charles A. Levine's Vienna attorney, had stated that the charge against his client was laughable and that today's investigation would bring his exoneration and freedom.
It was out of the question, Dr. Koretz said, "for a man of such position and such wealth to undertake counterfeiting notes of such a small unit as two francs, or 25 francs. He told me emphatically that he was innocent and suspected someone of seeking revenge against him."

CLUB MEMBERS HEAR A. M. MOON

Shop Director at Vocational Training School Addresses "Hi-Y' Club.

CHOOSING A VOCATION.

Dealing with the necessity for early decision in arriving at one's life work, A. M. Moon, B. A., Shop Director and teacher of Electricity at the local Vocational School, was the speaker at the regular weekly meeting of the "Hi-Y" Club at the Y.M.C.A. This talk was the first of a series of vocational guidance talks which are to be given the Club during the next few weeks.
Mr. Moon pointed out that by silver-tongued oratory a speaker might be able to convince his listeners that his own particular vocation was the one to follow, and he cautioned the boys to weigh their decisions carefully. He described the school system in Ontario and provided a chart which illustrated in a graphic way the many and varied courses which were at the disposal of any earnest-minded chap who set his heart on reaching the top.
Jack Cullen and John Mark, in a vote of thanks, expressed to the speaker, the sincere appreciation of the group for his helpful and very interesting address. Nelson Stanger's Program Committee has secured Leo W. Copp as speaker for the next supper.

HUNTER IS MISSING NEAR MARMORA

Lindsay Constable Arrests Two Burglars

British Liner Crashes Into Cliffs; 550 Passengers and Crew Are Saved

LISBON, Portugal, Nov. 19.—(CP)—Riding through thick barriers of fog, lifeboats today carried to safety 550 passengers and crew of the British steamship Highland Hope which ran on the back cliffs of Berlengas off the coast of Portugal today.

Officials of the Nelson Line stated that of more than 200 passengers some were bound for Rio de Janeiro and others for Buenos Aires. Many were Londoners, and some representatives of big London business firms. Some were going to Buenos Aires for the British trade expedition which the Prince of Wales will open in January.

The ship was given up as a complete loss.

Her holds were full of water and she was sinking rapidly.

The British Consul has left for Peniche where the ship's passengers, numbering between 200 and 300 were being landed.

WHEAT PRICES RECOVER TO-DAY AT WINNIPEG

Guarantees to Montreal Bankers By Western Premiers Not Divulged.

Solution Up to Gov't, Banks.

Whether or Not Manitoba Adopts Compulsory Pool System Highly Important.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 19. (CP)—Wheat prices recovered on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day from the low break of yesterday. Meanwhile the three Prairie Premiers continued on to Montreal to confer with leading bankers on the situation.

The Dominion Government yesterday declined to commit itself to the Prairie Premiers' suggestion that the Government guarantee a fixed price for wheat, at about 70 cents a bushel. Prime Minister R. B. Bennett is still in the British Isles and acting Government heads would not accept responsibility for a decision of such a far-reaching nature.

No Definite Disposal

The matter however has not been definitely disposed of.

Wheat-growers of the Western Provinces were in hopes of a fixed price of about $1 a bushel or even $1.15. Alberta farmers want $1.15 a bushel as a guaranteed price; Saskatchewan favored the even dollar, and farmers of Manitoba were in session at Portage La Prairie to-day, discussing the question.

Another decision of great importance will be made by the Manitoba farmers now in session—whether or not Manitoba will adopt the compulsory pool system which has already been approved by Saskatchewan. The Alberta pool has not yet taken a stand on this question.

The general situation has been relieved somewhat by the assurance secured by Prairie Premiers from Toronto banking heads, that their banks will carry the wheat pools' margins on "long" wheat, bought at prices much higher than those now prevailing.

The Provincial Governments of the West stand committed to guarantees involving millions of dollars, which were necessary before the banks would supply to the wheat pools the funds necessary to pay initial payments to the farmers. For a time, the provinces had hopes that the Dominion would share this responsibility, but a suggestion that the Federal Government take some of the guarantees was rejected by Prime Minister Bennett last August.

Put Before Bennett.

The Western Premiers will renew their proposal of a fixed price on

NEW YORK PLANS RACKETEER WAR

Conference Called to Consider Ways of Ousting Gangs Preying on Industry.

Rockefeller, Young To Aid.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 (C.P.)—John D. Rockefeller Jr., Owen D. Young and Charles M. Schwab are among fifty men and women who have heard the call to arms against the racketeers of New York.

District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain has issued invitations to a conference to-morrow on methods of suppressing the assaults of gangsters on industry. He said he had receive no replies as yet but was confident all who were summoned would be present.

The list includes professional men business heads, industrial and labor leaders, clergymen, bankers, publishers, shipping magnates, welfare workers and city, county and state officials.

Bennett Pays Visit To Edinburgh City

LONDON, Nov. 19.—(C.P. Cable.)—Premier R. B. Bennett, of Canada, was in Edinburgh to-day after a fast trip from Belfast, where he was the guest of the Ulster government. Since leaving London last Sunday he has already filled his engagements in the Irish Free State and Northern Ireland, and it is understood he will carry out the original intention of visting Paris for a conference with French Government officials on trade matters, before he prepares to return to Canada.

GOV'T IS LEANING TO LABOR PEER AS NEW VICEROY

Times Claims Tendency Shown to Regard Post as Spoils of Office.

IRWIN'S TIME UP APRIL.

No Action Likely Taken By Premier MacDonald Till After Round Table Parley.

LONDON, Nov. 19 (By Thomas T. Champion, C. P. Staff Correspondnet).—The Labor Government, seeking a successor to Lord Irwin, whose term of office as Viceroy of India expires next April, seems to have conceived the idea that a Labor Peer should be appointed, says The Times in a leading editorial to-day. The Times declares that among the adherents of Labor there are many better qualified men than in the small handful of Labor Peers.

"There has been an obvious tendency lately among partisans of the Government to regard the succession as though it were one of the 'spoils of office' to be dispensed for services to the party," The Times said.

Why Limit Post to Peerage?

"Casting among their adherents—even their most nominal and least distinguished adherents—Labor seems to have conceived the idea that their political dignity demands the appointment of a peer who can be claimed as one of their own complexion. If the idea is ever to be held seriously—and there is no doubt its existence has—then it might well be asked, especially of the Labor Government, why the choice is to be limited to the Peerage? More than one bygone Viceroy was not a Peer when he was selected.

"It would be surprising if the Labor Party—supposing membership were really regarded as a passport—could produce no candidate in all its ranks with better credentials than are to be found in its infinitesimal handful of Peers. The simple truth is that there is one at present in that small (still far too small) assemblage, who is even remotely qualified for the most difficult, most responsible and most distinguished position in the service of the Crown.

"At the stage which matter have now reached it is only fair to credit Premier MacDonald, who is not usually careless about appointments, with the intention of awaiting developments of the Round Table Conference, before assessing finally the special qualities most needed in Lord Irwin's successor."

Belleville Man Held As Crash Victim Dies

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Nov. 19 (C.P.)—Gordon Green, run down while walking on the sidewalk at Point Anne by a car allegedly driven by Frank Maracle, succumbed from his injuries in the hospital here to-day and after preliminary evidence was taken at an inquest opene dby Dr. R. W. Tennent, coroner for the district, the hearing was adjourned for one week. Frank Maracle has been arrested and when he appears in court in a week will face a charge of manslaughter. Maracle, it is alleged, was passing another car when his car went upon the sidewalk, knocking Green to the ground, who sustained a fractured skull. The police arrested Maracle at a dance some hours after the accident.

ENTRANCE MADE INTO STORE, LOOT IS FOUND IN CAR

Two Daring Robbers Caught Robbing Store in Town of Lindsay.

REMANDED ONE WEEK.

Constable With Night Watchman Was Touring Eastern Section of Town.

LINDSAY, NOVEMBER 19 (Examiner Correspondence). — Commendable astuteness on the part of Constable Hodgson, which resulted in the arrest of two daring nocturnal robbers, complete with loot valued at $500, possibly provides a clue to several burglaries which have been committed lately in Peterborough and district, although there is no evidence to show that the pair had operated elsewhere.

Remanded One Week.

The prisoners, who gave their names as Roy Clark and Harry Scott of Coulter Hotel, Adelaide Street, Toronto, were remanded for a week when they appeared before the magistrate this morning. In the meantime Chief of Police Lawlor will endeavor to get a complete history of their recent movements.

It is learned that Constable Hodgson was making a tour of the eastern section of the town in his car, accompanied by Nightwatchman J. Davis. On approaching the C.P.R. overhead bridge on Colborne Street at 3 a.m. the constable's suspicions were aroused by a car which was parked by the side of the road. He made investigation and found that the car contained a large supply of cigarettes, silverware, and groceries. The officer kept a lookout and a few minutes later saw a man approaching the car with a further supply of loot. He approached cautiously, but was not aware of the presence of a representative of the law, until he felt a hand clapped on his shoulder and the realization that the game was up. The prisoner was cautioned to keep quiet and the trio kept vigil until a second man approached the car. He was also placed under arrest.

Entered Through Window.

Further investigation disclosed the fact that the loot had been secured at the store of Wilbert Nicholls, situated near the C.P.R. Station. Entrance to the premises had been made through the cellar window, outside of which was another pile of goods awaiting transfer to the car.

On being searched at the Police Office, permits were found on the men which showed they had been working for the Canadian Magazine Company, 247 Adelaide Street W. Scott later gave his name as Charles Vernon McKinney, and volunteered the information that they had stolen the car in Toronto — a Chevrolet, bearing a Toronto license, P-5124, and that their destination was Montreal.

GASOLINE PUMPS ARE BROKEN INTO

Two Local Service Stations Pumps Broken Into By Thieves.

LOCKS ARE BROKEN.

Smashing the locks on two gasoline pumps at service stations in the city last night, thieves secured a quantity of gas. The pumps were located at Dawson's service station at the corner of McDonnel and Reid streets and at the Sanitary Ice Station on Water street north. In both cases the thieves used a heavy tool in forcing the lock.

A series of thefts from stores in the county recently have all been accompanied with thefts of large quantities of gasoline from pumps, and it is suspected that the same gang has begun operations in the city.

Gasoline thefts have not been uncommon here this summer, but in all other instances the gas was siphoned by rubber tubing from parked cars. The thefts from the service stations last night were made in whole quantities, but neither of the stations could estimate closely just how many gallons had been stolen.

Peterboro's Budding Aquatic Stars

The above youngsters gave a sensational display of swimming skill in the Y.W.C.A. Pool on Friday evening. They competed in the Babies' Competition, giving the spectators a thrill as they dove unerringly from the high balcony. They are, left to right: Doris Doukas, Freddy Fowler, and Lily Long. All three are under eight years of age, and received all their instruction from Miss C. F. Littlefield, swimming and physical instructor at the Y.W.C.A. Their ability is further proof of the manner in which Peterborough kiddies are taking to the water.

CHOICEST OF CANADIAN PRODUCE, ANIMALS, POULTRY AT ROYAL FAIR

Sir Robert Borden to Officially Open Great Show To-night.

500 YOUNG FARMER GUESTS

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 19 (C.P.)—The choicest of Canada's agricultural products and the bluebloods of her cattle, domestic animals and poultry were on display here to-day.

At ten o'clock this morning, without any ceremony or speechmaking, the gates of the Royal Winter Fair were opened to the public. Housed in the buildings of the Canadian National Exhibition are hundreds of horses, livestock, poultry, foxes and cats and dogs, seeking glory in their respective classes, while in other buildings are aisles and aisles of fruit, flowers, dairy products, seed, grains—the best Canada and United States has to offer. Perhaps the most varied show is the great display of apples, entered for competition by farmers and associations from Prince Edward Island to British Columbia. The displays consist of boxes of apples, packed for shipment, and placed one box beside the other, 10 crates high and 25 crates wide, forming a great, glistening sea of red and green.

The show will not be officially opened by Sir Robert Borden until this evening, when the former Canadian Premier, will address the throng in the huge Coliseum. It is here the horses will give their annual performances and where the military teams will fie for world honors in horsemanship.

One of the features of to-day's program is the parade of the 500 young farmers, who are guests of the Ontario Government.

Motorist Is Injured When Car Hits Pole

Injured in a motor accident at the corner of Park and Sherbrooke Streets, James T. Lang, 135 Dublin Street, was conveyed by ambulance to Nicholls Hospital early last evening suffering from brain concussion. He was attended by Dr. Herbert Young, who said that his injuries were mostly bruises about the head and would not likely prove serious.

Lang's car bumped against a Hydro pole on the north-west corner of the intersection after being in collision with a car driven by Frank Hooey, 196 Aylmer Street. It is believed that Lang was thrown out of his car, a small coupe, by the impact which resulted in his head wounds.

Hooey was proceeding south on Park Street, but it is not known in what direction Lang was driving, since there were no witnesses and the man was unconscious when taken to the hospital.

Both cars had considerable glass broken, but other damage was slight.

No Date Is Named For Brokers' Appeal

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 19.—(C.P.)—The appeals of William J. Smart and Maurice R. Young, Toronto brokers, who were sentenced to prison terms when they were convicted on charges of conspiracy to defraud, were set over sine die by Second Division Court to-day.

R. H. Greer, K.C., spoke on behalf of the appellants. W. N. Tilley, K.C., special Crown prosecutor, presented no opposition to the postponed hearing because as yet they have not been provided with any transcript of required evidence.

Chief Justice Latchford asked Mr. Greer when they would be prepared to continue but no certain day was set. His Honor left the matter in hands of Mr. Tilley and asked that the case be brought up as soon as possible.

KITCHENER CASE READY FOR JURY

James J. Hill Charged With Causing Death of Motorcyclist on Highway.

JUDGE KELLY PRESIDING.

KITCHENER, Ont., November 19 (C.P.). — Evidence in the manslaughter case at the local Assizes in which James J. Hill, city, is the defendant, was concluded at noon, and the case will go to the jury late this afternoon. The accued is charged with having caused the death of William Aberhardt, 21 years in the early morning hours of last June 22 on the Kitchener-Preston Highway.

Aberhardt was on a motorcycle, and was driving northerly towards Kitchener, while the accused was driving a motor car. A crash resulted with fatal results to the motorcycle. The defence produced evidence purporting to show 2that the motorcyclist was going at a rate of 70 to 75 miles an hour at the time of the accident, and that the machine had poor lights. The Crown on the other hand contended that there was no reason why Hull should not have seen the motorcycle regardless of its speed, and that the accident was caused by Hill's attempting to pass another machine going in the same direction as his own. The sitting is being presided over by Mr. Justice Kelly.

HALIFAX HARBOR COMMISSIONERS' ACTIONS PROBED

Charge Body Contracted For $300,000 Job Already Provided For.

PIERS NOT UP TO MARK.

Claim 1,372 Extra Men Paid $5,000 on Election Day.

HALIFAX, N.S., Nov. 19 (C.P.) — The investigation of past activities of the former Halifax Harbor Commission opened here to-day with serious charges levelled against the former administration of this port, by C. B. Smith, K.C., representing the Dominion Government.

Mr. Smith charged that the former Harbor Commission had improvidently contracted for $300,000 work of work previously provided for; that they entered into leases whereby the lessees were not required to pay an amount sufficient to meet the carrying charges of the properties involved; that they purchased 24,000 tons of cement made from a formula yet to prove its fitness for use in submarines construction, previous to approval of the contract in the carrying out of which it was to be used; that the contracts for two of the piers at present under construction are not being fulfilled according to specifications, and finally, that 1372 extra men were paid $5,000 on election day.

Mr. Justice F. Orde of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of Ontario is presiding over the Commission.

WOMAN'S DEATH SERIOUS FOR TWO

Fatal Fumes Lead to Arrest of Fumigator and Apartment Owner.

Face Manslaughter Count.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 19 (C.P.)—Two people were arrested to-day on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Mrs. Elizabeth McNiven, who was found dead in her apartment on Nov. 4. Mrs. McNiven's death was caused by gas used to fumigate the apartment directly below hers, according to the verdict returned by a coroner's jury at the inquest last night.

W. E. Harris, fumigator, and E. Snelgrove, owner of the apartment, are the two men arrested. Evidence submitted at the inquest revealed that the people in the apartment below had asked the landlord to have their apartment fumigated. A solution known as calcyanide gas was used, and the fumes apparently seeped into the room above.

London Loan Company To Merge With Huron

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 19.—(By the Canadian Press.)—It is officially announced that negotiations leading up to the absorption of the People's Loan and Savings Corporation of London by the Huron and Erie Mortgage Corporation were definitely concluded to-day by the Boards of Directors of the institutions. The agreement for the purchase is to be submitted to the shareholders at a later date.

It is understood that Huron and Erie officials made, during the past two or three weeks, an examination of the securities owned by the peoples, and after mature deliberation on the part of Huron nad Erie directors, it was decided to purchase the instiution.

Oklahoma Twister Takes Heavy Toll

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 19 (C.P.)—Striking during a heavy rain, a tornado to-day killed at least 17 persons and injured 60 others in and near the little town of Bethany, seven miles west of here.

The downpour of rain continued several hours after the tornado twisted past, handicapping the efforts of relief workers.

Over a foot of water stood in the town, in which 200 building were destroyed.

THOS. DAVIES, TORONTO, MISSING SINCE EARLY ON MONDAY MORNING SEARCH PARTIES ARE ORGANIZED

Missing Man When He Left Camp Intended to be Away Two Hours.

RETURNED SOLDIER.

Was Accompanied on Hunting Trip by William Barrah of Marmora.

MARMORA, November 19 (Examiner Correspondence). — A posse set out from here this morning in charge of Provincial Police Constable P. Gray to institute a search for Thomas Davies of Toronto, who has been missing in the bush since Monday morning.

Mr. Davies, who was on a hunting trip, was camped near Lynch's Mill at Shannick, some miles north of this town, and was accompanied by William Barrah of Marmora.

The missing man on leaving camp expressed the intention of being absent for a period of about two hours. His failure to return within the stipulated time did not cause his companion any undue uneasiness, but when Tuesday morning came and there was yet no signs of Davies he immediately requested a neighboring resident to drive into Marmora and inform the police, and consequently the search party has been organized.

Mr. Davies, who is about thirty years of age, is a veteran of the Great War, and is said to have been shell-shocked.

STEAMERS RACE TO AID FREIGHTER SINKING AT SEA

S. O. S. Reports Swedish Ship 400 Miles Off Cape Race.

NEAREST VESSEL 200 MILES.

America, Whose Skipper Is Hero of Two Rescues, Expects to Arrive at 2 O'clock.

S.S. AMERICA, November 19 (By Bates Raney, Associated Press Staff Writer). — An SOS signal from the Swedish steamship Ovidia, which radioed that she was sinking 400 miles south by south-east of Cape Race, took the America off her course at 2 a.m. to-day to speed to the rescue of the stricken vessel, a freighter of 1,898 tons.

Captain George Fried, the America's skipper, hero already of two ocean rescues, the Antinoe and the Florida, expected to reach the Ovidia, which was bound from Newport News to Saint Nazaire, France, about 2.00 p.m., E.S.T., this afternoon.

200 Miles to Go

The America's position at 2 a.m., E.S.T. was 45:10 north longitude and 49 west, about 200 miles southeast of Cape Race. The Ovidia's position was roughly 200 miles southwest of the America, or 400 miles south by south east of Cape Race.

The S. S. Endicott also proceeded to the assistance of the Ovidia, officers hoping to reach her about noon. Moderate northeast winds and moderate seas prevailed.

Captain Carlsson of the Ovidia sent this message:

"Taking water hold number two. Heavy list. Trying to keep afloat but pumps unreliable."

YOUTHS FACING SERIOUS COUNT

Two Winnipeg Motorists Out on $10,000 Bail Pending Manslaughter Trial.

SUGGESTION OF DRINKING.

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 19 (C.P.)—Charges of manslaughter have been laid against two young Winnipeg men, Herbert Warren and Earl Andrews, as the result of an automobile crash in which Robert Simpson, 22, lost his life. Andrews was the driver of the car which crashed into an auto driven by Warren on November 12.

Following an inquest into Simpson's death the manslaughter charges were placed against the two men. They were given their freedom on bail of $10,000 each. The coroner's jury stated that there was "a suggestion of liquor being partaken of by both parties, and we are of the opinion that both drivers are culpable, but we are inclined to believe that of the two Herbert Warren was

ALBERTANS WANT SET WHEAT PRICE

Would Have Gov't Buy at $1, Covering Deficit By Taxation Scheme.

22ND ANNUAL CONVENTION.

CALGARY, Alta., Nov. 19 (C.P.).—Following the sharp decline in wheat on the Winnipeg market yesterday, the question of a Dominion Government-operated wheat board will be one of the major topics for discussion and decision by the 305 delegates meeting here to-day at the 22nd annual convention of the Alberta Association of Municipal Districts.

The following resolution will be submitted to the convention for discussion and approval:

"Whereas, the Wheat Pool in the three Western Provinces cannot function efficiently owing to high interest charged by the banks on loans," and "Whereas, the pool members cannot meet their obligations with the small initial payments for their wheat," and "Whereas the non-pool farmers are selling their wheat far below the cost of production," and "Whereas the prices on all farm machinery and on all other things which the farmers must buy are too high in proportion to wheat, therefore be it resolved that the Dominion Government be requested to establish a Wheat Board and purchase all wheat from the Canadian farmers at $1 per bushel at the elevator nearest to the farmer, and sell it at the market price, and that any deficit be covered by increased income tax or by any other source of taxation."

The Weather

The weather keeps unseasonably mild. Lowest last night, 44 degrees. Some rain has again fallen, but the total is small.

Yesterday's highest temperature was 55 degrees, the lowest 52 degrees, or a range in temperature of only 3 degrees. This is very unusual. I only remember it occurring once of twice in over 30 years. Mild weather occurred last year in November until the 19th, when rain gave place to snow. Snow-plows were out for the first time on the 22nd. The first time the temperature went below zero was on November 29. There was fair sleighing on December 2nd, and sleighing (good, bad and indifferent) continued until March 1.—W.P.

GANANOQUE BRIDGE OPENED.

GANANOQUE, Ont., Nov. 19 (C.P.).—Gananoque's new reinforced concrete bridge with a 30-foot wide roadway for vehicular traffic over the Gananoque River was opened at 7.47 last evening by Hon. Wm. Finlayson, Minister of Forests and Mines, before a large gathering.

SOVIET-BRITISH TRADE DEALINGS ROUSE INTEREST

Balance of Trade With Britain in Past 9 Years in Moscow's Favor.

SAME WITH FRANCE, ITALY.

Soviets Aim For Economic Depression in World—Bread Queues Start.

TORONTO, Nov. 19.—A special despatch from London says: Development of trade between the United Kingdom and Russia is attracting more public attention as evidence of the policy of dumping becomes clearer.

The Soviet Union Year Book for 1930 shows that Soviet purchases in Great Britain during the period 1920-29 have amounted to £113,017,000, and Soviet sales during the same period to £164,408,000, the trade balance in favor of the Soviet Union being thus £52,391,000. This balance has been growing steadily in the past four years as Russia has been able to extend her commerce. Statistics compiled by the Economic League from Soviet forces show that although the United States has increased its trade tremendously with Russia, it has been largely one way, while Britain, France, Italy, Holland and Persia have contributed to Soviet wealth by purchasing much more than sold.

The sales, however, have been chiefly in machinery and implements, which have added to Russian efficiency, and have enabled the Soviet Government to produce in volume and undersell even those countries which provided the means. This is what is going on now, bringing economic depression to the world.

Bread Queues Appear

Not long ago The Daily Herald's Moscow correspondent wrote that bread queues had appeared in Russian cities after two years of absence. "This," said the correspondent, "is particularly aggravating to the population, because everybody knows that the harvest is good, and that the Soviet is exporting considerable quantities of grain." About the same time this was printed, 7,000 quarters of wheat arrived at Leith in a Soviet ship from Russia, for the Scottish Co-operative Wholesale Society. Russian wheat is offered on the Baltic Exchange at prices 25 shillings a quarter less than it costs the British farmer to produce.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Nov. 19—The Preparatory Disarmament Commission to-day adopted the first article of the naval armament section of the draft convention providing for total limitation and reduction of tonnage.

Mourned Are Safe. Fishermen Find Out

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 19. (CP) The fishing schooner Mary F. Curtis came in from the fishing grounds with her flag at half-mast, and her crew mourning the loss of Rodney Williams and James Haynes. The two had gone adrift in a fog a week ago, and had not returned to the ship. Standing on the fish pier awaiting the vessel were Williams and Haynes, and they joyfully welcomed the recent mourners. They had been picked up by a ship after being adrift sixty hours, had been landed at Halifax, and then shipped home.

HON. FRED T. SMYE IS LAID TO REST

Leaders in Politics, Industry and Finance Pay Tribute at Hamilton Service.

PNEUMONIA VICTIM.

HAMILTON, Ont., November 19 (C.P.). — Simple but impressive funeral services were held here yesterday for the late Hon. Fred T. Smye, M.L.A., for Hamilton West and Minister without portfolio in the Provincial Cabinet, who died last Saturday after an attack of pneumonia.

Members of the Ontario and Dominion Parliament, leaders in industry and finance gathered with citizens in paying tribute at the service.

The Provincial Cabinet was represented by almost a full quota. Members of the Legislature from many parts of the Province, representing all political parties, were in attendance.

After services in the Church of the Ascension, interment took place in Hamilton Cemetery. In the morning a private service was held at the home, conducted by Rev. W. T. Ballam, rector of the Church of the Ascension, and Rev. Frank H. Smye, Montreal. They also conducted the church service, assisted by Bishop Newnham.

BANKS NOT TO BLAME

OTTAWA, Nov. 19. (CP)—"Pure bunk", exclaimed A. J. McPhail, President of the Canadian Wheat Pool, when informed of a report that the grain market collapse was due to concentration of holdings in the hands of Canadian banks. The report, emanating from Winnipeg, claimed that the Pool did not own any wheat and that prices were deflated by uncertainty on the part of buyers as to the future intentions of the bankers.

AGENTS UNCOVER AERIAL RUM RING WORKING BORDER

U. S. Officials Allege Aliens Besides Whiskey Being Smuggled In.

2 SYNDICATES—30 PLANES.

Indictments Issued Against 14 Members—12 Aircraft Seized in Year.

DETROIT, Nov. 19. (CP) — The Federal Government holds indictments against 14 alleged members of airplane smuggling syndicates believed responsible for the dumping of scores of aliens and thousands of cases of liquor within the United States during the past year. Twelve airplanes have been seized.

Ten of the indictments were returned yesterday by Federal Grand Jury. The counts included alleged violations of the tariff, immigration and prohibition acts and also cited conspiracy. The ten men indicted were among 18 named last spring in connection with a large conspiracy case. The other four indictments also named men included in the original 18 but were continuation of old indictments.

Agents Work With Runners

Information turned over to the Government by under cover agents who gained the confidence of the smugglers and worked with them for weeks formed the basis of the indictments. The two syndicates operating at least 30 planes smuggled liquor and aliens across the Canadian border into the United States. Some of the planes landed at isolated fields near Detroit while others flew into Wisconsin, Indiana, Ohio and Illinois. Such cities as Saginaw, Toledo, Milwaukee, Cincinnati and Sandusky were the more distant destinations of the smuggling planes. These planes cleared 1,800 cases a month from a single Canadian airport, according to one government agent. Varying amounts were cleared from other fields.

Among those involved in the gigantic smuggling plot is said to be Russel (Curly) Rosler, a pilot in the 1930 all-American flying derby. Hosler was one of the four re-indicted. Others indicted include notorious down river rum-runners, airplane pilots and Windsor, Ont., residents.

WINTER STRIKES WESTERN COAST

Forest Ranger Succumbs After Battling Snow in Crater Lake Park.

AIR TRAVEL DANGEROUS.

DENVER, Col., Nov. 19 (C.P.) — Winter took a firm and icy grip on a widespread area from the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific Coast and from Arizona to Canada, as snow fell in depths ranging up to twenty-four inches. The fall was heaviest in the mountains.

The loss of one life has been attributed to the storm. Mountain passes were snowbound, air travel was made hazardous, and many highways were clogged with drifted snow.

Exposure was blamed for the death of William C. Godfrey, chief forest ranger in the Crater Lake National Park, who died after battling his way on foot through forty-four inches of snow from Fort Klamath to the Government camp.

MAN IS INJURED, INDIAN ARRESTED

Driver Charged With Criminal Negligence at Belleville When Pedestrian is Hurt.

$10,000 BAIL ASKED.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., November 19 —Frank Maracle, Indian resident near Point Anne, is a prisoner in the county jail, facing a charge of "negligently operating a motor car and doing grievous bodily harm to Gordon Green," also of Point Anne. Maracle is alleged to have been at the wheel of an auto which crashed upon the sidewalk late last night where Green and two other companions were walking. Green sustained a fractured skull, and was still unconscious late last night. Physicians have given him only an even chance of recovery.

Provicial Constable Bert Hammer and Traffic Officer Byles visited the scene, and, receiving information went to a private home, where a dance was in progress, as it is alleged Maracle left the scene of the accident. Scrutinizing the cars lined along the sidewalk, the police noticed one with a right fender freshly crumpled and, seeking the owner, found Maracle. When he appeared in court to-day, defended by Charles A. Payne, K.C., bail of $10,000 was demanded by Crown Attorney Donnan, but the accused was unable to raise the amount.

LORD'S DAY ACT WELL ENFORCED DECLARES PRICE

Attorney General Answers Recent Action of United Church Presbyteries.

Druggists Issue Statement.

Conference to be Held Between Rev. Heustis and Edward Bayly, K.C.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 19 (C.P.)—"I think there is good enforcement of the Lord's Day Act throughout Ontario," declared Attorney-General W. H. Price last night, replying to the latest protest from the United Church of Canada concerning the laxity shown in enforcing the Act.

The central presbytery of the United Church here has followed the example of two other presbyteries of that denomination by passing a resolution requesting the Attorney-General to take steps to curb the alleged multiplicity of breaches of the Lord's Day Act.

Druggists, on whom the censure for alleged "commercial" breaches had mainly fallen, issued a statement through the Ontario Retail Druggists' Association, declaring the druggist was as anxious as anyone to observe Sunday and any sales made in drug stores other than drugs, medicines and surgical appliances, were the exception rather than the rule.

Attorney-General Price announced conferences on Sabbath observance in Ontario were being held between Rev. C. H. Heustis, representing the Lord's Day Alliance, and Edward Bayly, K.C., Deputy Attorney-General.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK SEEN FOR CANADA IN WHEAT MART

Washington Predicts Dominion May Soon Have Export Market to Herself.

U.S. TIED UP FOR MONTHS.

Winter to Halt Russian Shipments—Southern Countries Crops Not Ready Till January.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 19. —(CP)—Canada is now the only exporter of North American wheat. Within a month the Dominion may have the immediate world market to herself. These views are drawn from canvass of the wheat situation here.

Chairman Alexander Legge of the Federal Farm Board, which organization through the Grain Stabilization Corporation apparently went ahead today with its immense purchases on the Chicago market, is authority for the statement that the United States is out of the world wheat market for months except for commitments already made that eliminates the United States at Liverpool.

The stream of Russian wheat now pouring out through the Black Sea will be cut off by weather in about a month.

The harvest of the southern hemisphere will hardly be ready for market until early in January.

Another fact which pessimists have apparently overlooked in contemplating the present hysterical market is the fact that 22 importing nations this year grew six and eight-tenths per cent less wheat than they did last year, so that there should be room for absorption of that much more in the world market.

PORT PERRY FARM LOST 700 CHICKENS

Police Dog is Found Tied to Nearby Tree—Hen House Cleaned Out.

OSHAWA, Nov. 19.—Russell Wray, who resides near Port Perry, was the loser early yesterday morning in one of the most daring and biggest chicken thefts ever perpetrated in this district. In all, he lost over 700 chickens, together with 3 turkeys and 9 ducks. The loss was not discovered until 5 o'clock yesterday morning, when Mr. Wray went to the poultry houses to feed his fowl, although he and his wife had heard a noise during the night. They got up to investigate, could see nothing, so went back to bed. This was some time after midnight, Mrs. Wray said.

The loot comprised every bird Mr. Wray had, including 250 spring pullets which were quite valuable. The thieves must have used one or more trucks in making their getaway although they left no clues behind them.

The culprits cut the telephone line leading to the Wray house and enticed away the large police dog which was in the yard, guarding the poultry. The dog was found, bedraggled and forlorn, tied to a tree in a woodlot near the farm yesterday morning.

Provincial Constable Thomas Mitchell of Oshawa is investigating the theft.

Strikers In Seville Clash With Officers

SEVILLE, Spain, Nov. 19 (C.P.) — A general strike was called in Seville to-day, disorders following immediately when striking workmen clashed with police. Two persons were wounded.

Strike delegations visited shops and factories and dragged out workmen who did not cease their labors willingly. The two persons injured were hurt when strikers stoned a motor car on which they were motorman and conductor.

The strike was entirely unexpected but was called apparently in sympathy with the movement earlier this week in Madrid and Barcelona.

$15,000 CHARITY DRIVE

OSHAWA, Nov. 19.—A campaign to raise $15,000 to enable the Oshawa Associated Welfare Societies to assist the needy families of the city during the coming Winter was launched today. An army of 100 citizens has been organized to canvass thoroughly the whole city. The Rotary Club has already contributed $2,000 and the campaign has the support of all the city's services, clubs and church organizations.

WANT PROBATION OFFICERS.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 19 (C.P.).—Probation officers in every county centre in Ontario was the aim of the Provincial Government, Attorney-General W. H. Price stated in an address on the work done by Children's and Domestic Relations Courts. He emphasized the necessity of their extension in order to conserve the integrity of the youth of the Province.

FALLACY TO CUT WHEAT ACREAGE

Important That Canada Maintains Supremacy as Exporter Says Harold Fry.

EXPERT REVIEWS SITUATION.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 19 (C.P.) — Reduction of acreage seeded to wheat by farmers in Western Canada in an effort to cut down production and thus limit the exportable surplus of stocks, would be an economic fallacy, in the opinion of Harold S. Fry, of Regina, Chairman of the General Publicity Committee of the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference, which will be held in the Saskatchewan capital in 1932. Mr. Fry is also Publicity Director of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool.

According to Mr. Fry, Canada produces in largest quantities the world's best hard spring wheat and ranks as the world's greatest exporter of wheat. He held it paramount that Canada maintain this supremacy, either by finding new markets for wheat, lessening the cost of production, finding new uses for wheat or a combination of all three.

Mr. Fry offered these observations in response to an invitation by R. J. C. Stead, Director of Publicity of the Department of Immigration, Ottawa, at a meeting of the World Exhibition Committee here. He revealed, in substance, the extent to which world wheat production has been increased in all countries, and declared the world surplus had been steadily increased since the period 1920-24, without the world really awakening to the extent of the economic change.

Censure Motion Seen Upon Parley Report

LONDON, Nov. 19 (By Thomas T. Champion, C.P. Staff Correspondent) —When it produces its report on the Imperial Conference in the House of Commons, the Labor Government will probably face a motion of censure tabled by the Conservative Opposition.

Discussion on the Imperial Conference is scheduled for next Wednesday in the House of Commons, and Lord Stanley (Cons., Fylde, Lancashire) will move a motion regretting the Government's failure to make any progress with a policy of inter-Imperial trade. This will be a private member's motion; Lord Stanley having been successful in the ballot taken to decide who would move it.

CLAIM BROWNLEE TO RESIGN POST

Knowledge of Grain Industry May Lead to Invitation to Joint Bennett Gov't.

POLITICS BE NO BARRIER.

TORONTO, Nov. 19 (C.P.)—A special despatch from Calgary to The Mail and Empire to-day says:

"Reports that Premier Brownlee is to retire as head of the Alberta Government are circulated here on high authority."

"Rumors of this nature have appeared sporadically ever since the Bennett Government acceded to power. Their present revival is traced to the current crisis in wheat. Mr. Brownlee has an intimate knowledge of the grain industry, having formerly been general counsel for the United Grain Growers. It is believed here that his experience in this respect might eventually result in his being invited to join the Bennett Government.

"Although he heads a progressive administration in this Province, Mr. Brownlee has been regarded as holding political views of a Conservative stamp. The fact of his leading a Progressive party here would not be a barrier to his transition to Ottawa, it is declared.

Liberals In Hamilton May Change Policies

HAMILTON, Ont., November 19 (C.P.). — The reverses which Liberalism has experienced in recent Provincial and Federal election contests have not dampened enthusiasm here, but have stirred members to the realization that changed policies, especially on the temperance issue, must be adopted in a renewed fight for power, speakers declared last night when the annual meeting of the Hamilton Liberal Association was held. There are matters which concern the well being of the great mass of people in Ontario other than the prohibition question, which the party might well deal with, it was agreed.

Several of the delegates who will represent the local branch at the Provincial Convention in Toronto on December 16-17, spoke and concurred in the view that the Liberal Party should divorce itelf from the liquor question.

PEG PRICE OF $1 URGED ON WHEAT

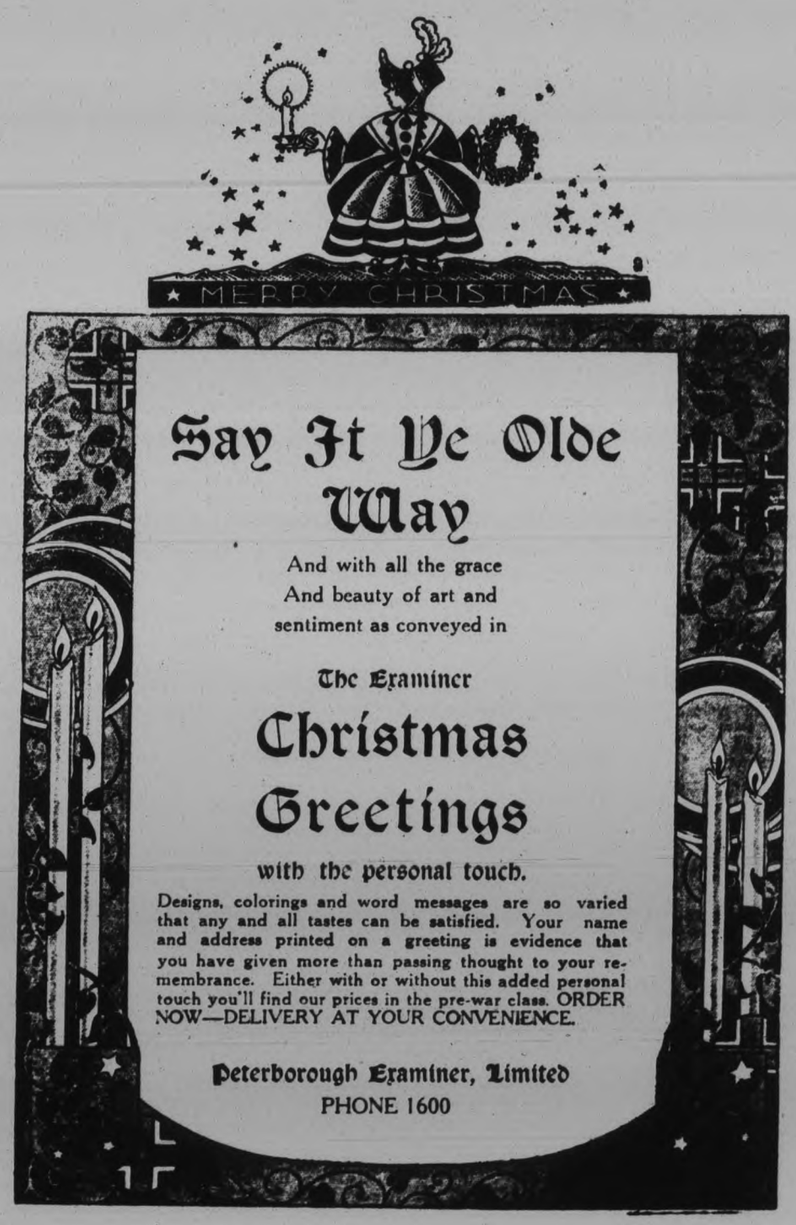
Farm Chieftain Claims Figure "the Hope" For Stabilization of Canadian Industry.

OUTLINES PLAN.

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man., Nov. 19. (CP)—"Pegging" of wheat prices at a world figure of $1 per bushel through Dominion Government effort was urgently advocated last night before the annual convention of the United Farmers of Manitoba by George H. Williams, President of the United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan section.

A "pegged" price, Mr. Williams held, is "the hope for the stabilization of Canadian industry as well as agriculture." Speaking as a fraternal delegate, the President of the Saskatchewan Agrarian body, largest such unit in the west, with its 30,000 members, outlines a plan parallell to that he proposed to Hon. E. B. Ryckman, acting Minister of Finance, during his recent Western tour.

Fifty-cent wheat and 8 per cent. relief, with debts piling and pyramiding, can mean nothing but economic stagnation" asserted Mr. Williams.



PASTOR CONDUCTS MEMORIAL SERVICE IN CAVAN CHURCH

Returned Veterans Headed By Bethany Band Parade to Service.

SPLENDID ADDRESS.

CAVAN, Nov. 19. (Examiner Correspondence).—A memorial service was held in Cavan United Church on Sunday evening conducted by the pastor, the Rev. J. E. Whitham, when the returned men of the district and members of the L.O.L. gathered at the Community Hall, headed by the Bethany Band marched to the church where the front pews were reserved for them.

The pastor, himself a chaplain in the Great War, chose as his scriptural lesson, Hebrews 11, commencing at the 13th verse, and his text was from Hebrews 11:40, "God having provided some better things for us, that they without us should not be made perfect."

"This chapter," said Mr. Whitham, 'might be called the honor roll of the saints. It is twelve years since the war, how far have we gone towards the ideals for which these men suffered and died? These twelve years have been dramatic and treacherous but disappointing!"

In masterly style he outlined advances in commerce, industry, science the airplane having bridged the distance between nations and continents. Industry has been advanced through many labor saving machines. Science has made wonderful advances with machinery along scientific lines.

"We can move under water, soar through the clouds, flash messages great distances, hear voices from many miles away, but in spite of all the mighty advances made, he asserted that the last twelve years have been the most disappointing that the world has ever known!

He quoted from great authorities statements that the nations have not yet learned the great lessons which the Great War should have taught them. The world has not yet learned the great principles men died to save.

"Either civilization will end war, or war will end civilizztion. If we are to do our duty to the dead and at the same time to the living, the principles for which men died must not perish."

With illustrations from his own work and experiences in the Great War, the pastor vividly protrayed the horrors of war, stating that any man who went through it would never want to see another, and would be most anxious that the next generation should be spared its horrible experience.

"War is not a beautiful thing, it is horrible, savors of savagery and should be swept aside and not taught in our schools. 'Brittania rules the waves', is a poem quoted often, but it matters not who rules the waves, because if another war comes it will be decided in the air We should see that war is presented in the school in its true light. There are two kinds of patriotism, 'some people like to sing 'God Save the King' and wave the flag, but would rather the other fellow would do the fighting and do the paying.' Patriotism is love of country home and religion, and the mighty principle for which men died, should never perish on the earth. We must think of the men who never came back, who love ow obedience and courage went to a war to end war. They laid the foundation on which the structure might be built, and cemented it with their blood.

It is only by following the example of the Prince of Peace and His teaching that the world will ever possess real peace."

The sermon appropriately closed with the quotation of the poem, "Who goes there?"

The congregation remained seated while the men marched out, the band, followed by the returned men and the members of the L.O.L.

The band gave a short open air program following the service.

FINE PRIZES TO BE GIVEN AWAY

Campbellford Hockey Club Dance and Free Draw Changed to December 19.

Radio and Watch Featured.

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 19.—At a meeting of the executive of the Campbellford Hockey Club held last night it was decided that the date of the free draw and dance be changed from December 5 to 19.

The reason for this action was to give the committee more time to sell tickets and to make the necessary arrangements. Two fine prizes are being given away, with an optional choice for the first.

The premier award will be a Philco-All-Electric Radio valued at $100.00, or the option of a diamond ring, the second prize will be the choice of a ladies' or gent's gold watch, valued at $25.00.

This dance, being staged as it is just before the holidays, is expected to draw a large crowd, especially as it is all in support of hockey, the sport that is always patronized in Campbellford and district.

JOLLY TIME IS SPENT BY Y.P.S.

Campbellford and Burnbrae Presbyterians Stage Joint Meeting With Great Success.

REV. D. McKENZIE SPEAKS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 19. (Examiner Staff Correspondent).— The Young People's Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Campbellford, were hosts on Monday evening to the Burnbrae society of the church.

Thomas Campbell the Campbellfrd president, took the chair for the opening exercises, with W. A. Newcourt as pianist and Miss Grace Blue as secretary. The meeting opened with the singing of a hymn, Scripture reading by Franklin Roe and prayer by Mr. Newcourt, after which the Burnbrae president, Malcolm Hutcheon took the chair.

This portion of the program commenced with an address by Mr. Rutcheon followed by a short talk by the Rev. Donald McKenzie of Burnbrae. Mr. McKenzie based his theme on the encouragement given by the Young People's Society to the young people as a whole, to perform Christian work, and the goodwill and fellowship which comes from that work.

The musical portion of the program was as follows: Piano and violin duet, Dorothy Watson and Fern Weatherill; reading, "Running to Happiness" Nellie Bennett; vocal duet, Grace Ingram and Howard Hutcheon; reading, Mrs. Frank Little; solo, Fern Weatherill; reading, "The Valley of Silence" Mrs. R. Craighead; mouth organ selection, Frank Haig and Leo Fry; and a duet by Malcolm Hutcheon and Helen Odie.

After the musical portion of the program, many items of which were heartily encored, Mr. Newcourt of Campbellford gave a short address after which the National Anthem was sung and the Benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Mr. McKenzie.

A very delightful lunch was served by the Campbellford Young People to their Burnbrae visitors bringing a very delightful evening to a close.

Victoria Council Opens Fall Session

LINDSAY, Nov. 19.—The Victoria County Council met in the Court House, Lindsay, yesterday afternoon for its final session this year. There is not a great deal on the docket except the usual routine business unless one is to mention the by-law that has to be passed to issue debentures for the $80,000 that the country owes the province for expenditures on provincial highways here in 1928-29. The council has been faced with this for several sessions, but as the province was in no hurry and the interest was the same either way they did it, the debentures were not issued.

BARN RAISING BEE.

Neighbors in Fenella District Respond to Aid Erecting New Structure on the Adams Farm.

FENELLA, Nov. 19 (Examiner Correspondence).—Under the direction of E. Sherwin, carpenter, with his gang of men, work has been started, and is rapidly going forward, on the new barn that is being erected on the property of Mrs. Maggie Adams, Fenella, to replace the one destroyed by fire in the early fall, during threshing operations. A bee was called on Friday last, when upwards of twenty men, with teams, responded to haul material in place for the new building. It is expected that the work will be far enough advanced to hold the raising the latter part of this week.

Dandruff Crust Quickly Dissolved

One after another, a million men and women have made this discovery: that this simple method does dissolve the crust of dandruff; puts the scalp in the pink of condition; makes hair soft, lustrous, thick and vigorous.

Get a bottle of "Danderine" from your drug or toilet counter today. Put a little on your brush each time you dress your hair. Penetrating to the head, its soothing aid soon has an itching, feverish scalp cool, comfortable, healthy. The crust of dandruff simply melts away.

Dandruff is unsightly. It is the cause of grayness, baldness, dry, brittle, dull hair. When the scalp is freed from this irritating scurf, Danderine soon has the hair back in condition; soft, glossy, thick, vigorous and youthful-looking.

Start on Danderine today and end hair worries. A thirty-five cent bottle will demonstrate its merit!

DR. E. J. FREE IS LAID TO REST

All Parts of County Pays Respect to Pioneer Campbellford Physician.

AUSPICES MASONIC ORDER.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 19 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Campbellford paid tribute on Tuesday to one of its oldest physicians and most respected and beloved citizens, when the late Dr. Edward John Free was laid to rest in Warkworth Cemetery, following services in the house and Christ Church, Campbellford.

The service at the church was conducted by the Rev. N. Clark Wallace, and was fully choral, the choir being augmented by many singers of the town. The main body of the edifice and the gallery was filled to capacity, there being people from all parts of Northumberland County who had come to pay their last respects to a man whose influence was felt for many miles around, and who claimed the respect and affection of people from many parts of the country.

The funeral was held under the auspices of Golden Rule Lodge, No. 126, A. F. and A. M., of which the deceased was a Past Master, the Lodge taking the final service at the graveside.

Dr. Free died suddenly on Sunday, November 16. All that day he had been well, having received several calls and attended to them. In the afternoon he was visiting relatives near Warkworth, when he was taken ill, Dr. A. Haig of Campbellford being called, but the sick man passed away late that evening.

Known and respected through the whole county, and with a practice that covered many miles of the surrounding country, Dr. Free was born in Seymour Township in 1859. His wife pre-deceased him a little over one year ago. He is survived by two sons, Dr. F. deF. Free of Campbellford and John of Smith Falls.

Many floral tributes testified to the esteem in which the late doctor was held by the town and community. A Past Master of Golden Rule Lodge, he took an active interest in Masonry in the community, and for many years chairman of the Board of Education, he was keenly interested in all educational matters.

The pall-bearers were all nephews of the deceased: Marshall West, Gerald West, Earl West, William West, Harry Free and Ralph Free. Members of the Masonic Order acted as flower-bearers.

THE RETIREMENT OF BOBBY JONES.

There have been many glorious episodes in the remarkable career of Bobby Jones, golfer extraordinary, but undoubtedly nothing finer than the spirit he has shown in withdrawing from the field of competition because he has entered upon a moving picture contract that may possibly be a violation of the principle of amateur sport.

Mr. Jones believes that an amateur should be like Caesar's wife, above suspicion, and while there is a very real doubt as to whether the contract he has signed is an infringement of the spirit of amateurism, the famous champion refuses to place himself under the slightest implication of having committed a technical breach of the amateur code.

A good deal of color will have gone out of amateur golf competitions with the departure of Bobby Jones.

No golfer in the world has a finer record of achievement and none is held in higher regard as a sportsman than the celebrated Atlantan, whose feat of winning the British amateur, the British open, the American amateur and the American open in one year has never been duplicated and probably never will be.

Golfing enthusiasts—and millions of other people throughout the world who know nothing of golf and yet who have followed with admiration the consistently brilliant performances of Bobby Jones—will regret to hear that he is to compete no more in championship competition, and at the same time will honor him for the conscientious motive that has lead to his withdrawal.

WISE INSTRUCTIONS.

Most people in Ontario will approve of the instructions issued recently by Sir Henry Drayton to vendors, inspectors and other employees of the Liquor Control Board urging that care shall be taken in the issuing of liquor permits in view of the unemployed situation and the reduced incomes of many breadwinners.

Sir Henry's words are worth noting.

"I desire particularly," says the head of the Liquor Control Board, "to emphasize that under present conditions the greatest care should be exercised both in the issuing of permits and the sales of liquor to those who may suffer from the present economic conditions. Help them to conserve their funds."

The Liquor Control Board shows a proper appreciation of its responsibilities in laying down the policy that people who are in needy circumstances should not have their troubles aggravated by being allowed to waste their money in purchasing liquor.

In the carrying out of this policy, of course, much depends upon the individual vendor.

The official who realizes that his real duty is not to sell liquor but to control the sale of it, who understands that he is giving the best service when his sales are being cut down rather than increased, will make every effort to obey these latest instructions and to see that so far as he is concerned that families whose income is inadequate will not find themselves further distressed by foolish expenditures on liquor.

One encouraging sign is that there has been a marked falling off in the purchase of new permits, only 36,926 having been issued so far this month, as against 53,810 at this time last year.

CHRISTMAS MAIL.

A mild controversy has been occasioned by the action of the Postmaster-General in decreeing that there shall be no distribution of mail on Christmas Day, the intention being, of course, to allow letter-carriers to celebrate the festival with their families instead of having to wrestle with heavy packs of Christmas mail on the holiday morning.

One exchange says of this order:

"Interference with a social and domestic custom of this kind has been taken light-heartedly, and perhaps the Minister has little sympathy with Christmas and the traditions with which it is associated, one of which more than almost any other, is the arrival of the postman with his load of letters and greetings and his happy reception of the gifts that are not withheld on the merry festival."

To which the Ottawa Journal replies:

"Yes, but what about the merry festival of the postman? Is he, too, not entitled to the joy of sitting home with his family on a Christmas morning, watching his children extract things from their stockings, explore their Christmas tree? Or is this Christmas joy, about which the editor writes so eloquently, just for a favored few?

"The paper we have just quoted from says there is altogether too much of the spirit of Scrooge in the postoffice ruling. There appears to be considerable of selfishness in the objections to the ruling."

There is another angle to the question.

It is just possible that the majority of letter-carriers would prefer to deliver mail on Christmas Day.

In the first place, they may not wish to lose the pay they would otherwise receive for this work, and, secondly, Christmas morning from the viewpoint of a postman is not the worst day of the year to have to call upon the people he serves along his route.

The letter-carrier is usually remembered at Yuletide, and when he calls on the morning of the festival is sure of a warm welcome and perhaps more generous treatment than upon any other possible occasion.

THE WHEAT SITUATION.

Will the Federal Government eventually find itself in the wheat business?

That is the question that logically suggests itself following the request made at Ottawa yesterday by the Premiers of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba that the Dominion Government guarantee a fixed minimum price for Canadian wheat.

The ultimate decision will have to be made by Premier Bennett, and there will be nothing definitely determined until his arrival back in Canada which leads to the opinion that the situation is critical enough to justify a demand that the Prime Minister should cut short his visit to the British Isles and hurry back to the serious problems that await him.

Of these, of course, the wheat crisis is the most important; prices have dropped to an unheard of low level, and the condition of many western grain growers is desperate.

Ottawa opinion is that Mr. Bennett will refuse to establish a federal guarantee for wheat prices, and that there will be no underwriting of provincial guarantees by the Federal Government; that was the Premier's attitude in August when he conferred with the Premiers of the Prairie Provinces and with leading Canadian bankers, and there is no reason to believe that he has changed his mind.

The unfortunate feature of the whole situation is that the present price levels are inevitable in view of the larger world production of wheat in the past crop year, accompanied by decreased buying power.

The trend is not for higher but for ever lower prices, and the conditions in the Prairie Provinces, which must necessarily be felt in the industrial East, are critical.

The Dominion Government must deal in some manner or other with the crisis—and it is the feeling at Ottawa that Mr. Bennett will prefer to offer direct relief to those most in need of assistance rather than to accept an obligation that might easily run into a hundred million dollars.

TAXES AND CANDIDATES.

Those intending to become candidates for election to municipal office this year are reminded that, under a change in the statute, they must file with the treasurer or collector of taxes of the municipality in question a statement of the lands in it of which the candidate is the owner or tenant and obtain from such official a certificate that there are no municipal taxes or rates due upon the lands. Should such taxes or rates remain unpaid, the clerk of the municipality is bound under the law to refuse to place upon the ballot paper the name of any candidate thus disqualified.

The section of the Municipal Act governing this question reads as follows: "Before making the declaration (of qualification) the candidate shall submit to the treasurer or the collector of taxes of the municipality a list of all lands in the municipality of which the candidate is the owner or tenant, but not including land of which he is a tenant as set out in clause (r) of sub-section 1 of section 53, and shall procure from such official and file with his declaration a certificate that there are no municipal taxes or rates due on any such lands, and the clerk shall not place on the ballot paper the name of any candidate who fails to file such certificate with his declaration."

The Act specifically provides that "a person against the land in respect of which he qualifies there are at the time of the election any taxes overdue and unpaid" cannot become a candidate for election. But it makes an exception of "a person who is a tenant holding under a lease which provides that the landlord shall pay the taxes and who qualifies in respect of land other than that covered by such lease."

The situation thus appears to be that no individual who owes the municipality taxes, either as owner or tenant, can qualify as a candidate, with the exception that should there be an agreement between him and his landlord providing that the latter shall pay the taxes and such taxes remain unpaid, he may qualify upon other land of which he is the owner.

Legal opinion obtained by the clerk of one of the neighboring rural municipalities holds that the disqualification for non-payment of taxes applies to taxes that remain unpaid at one o'clock on nomination day.

It is not without interest to learn the other disqualifications which the law provides. Those ineligible for election to a municipal council include judges, jailers, sheriffs, deputy sheriffs or sheriff's bailiffs, chief constables, any officer or employee of a municipality, any person other than the head of the council who occupies a seat upon a board or commission concerned with the construction, management or control of an electric railway or steam railroad owned by, leased to or controlled by a municipal corporation; a clerk or bailiff of a division court, a crown attorney or clerk of the peace, a registrar or deputy registrar of deeds, a master or a local master of titles, a member of a board of education or of a public or separate school board unless his resignation as such has been submitted at least three days before the day of nomination, a police magistrate, a clerk of a county or district court, a deputy clerk of the Crown or a local registrar, a person having an interest in any contract with the commission (with some exceptions), a person who has an action or proceeding against the corporation, a person who is counsel or solicitor in the prosecution of a claim or action against the corporation or opposing such claim or action, a person who is an undischarged bankrupt or insolvent within the meaning of any Bankruptcy or Insolvency Act in force in Ontario.

This may be a lengthy list, but actually it involves very few who are not office-holders under the Crown or the municipality. It is different, however, with the provision in the law regarding the payment of taxes and any person intending to become a candidate and anxious to escape disqualification should make certain about the point in question and see that the necessary certificate is fyled.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Premier Ferguson is one man who need have no fear of being found in the ranks of the unemployed. The newspapers are picking jobs for him.

Attorney-General Price has not yet made the announcement the people of Ontario are waiting for, namely that he is entering an appeal in the Solloway-Mills cases.

Mr. Bennett will find plenty of problems waiting for him when he arrives home. He picked a bad time to take over the responsibilities of government.

Ontario vegetables are the best the world produces. By buying more of them you will vary your menu and contribute to the health of your family and the wealth of the Province.

And now the Globe wants to know if Mr. Ferguson is coming home to say good-bye.

THE SILVER HAWK

By

WILLIAM BYRON MOWERY

He was checked by Aurore's sharp, anguished cry. They had come to a pool of moonlight on the path, and Aurore stopped suddenly and confronted him, and she was trembling as though his words "girl" and "wife" had struck her a terrible blow. Dorn said quickly: "But Aurore, wait; I'll finish this absurdity of mine; the girl living there, my wife—she had never been more than a shadow to me—only the vaguest kind of an ideal of what I thought a girl should be. Then three weeks ago . . . it's just three weeks, almost this same hour, isn't it, Aurore, that you came over to my island? . . . I was studying one night and looked up, and she stood there under the torch of my tent——"

Aurore understood him then, and she cried: "Your home isn't built yet, Jim! That's what you mean! It's only—what you hoped for."

"Then you understand, Aurore, why I can't accept your offer. You'd be paying for the air line, for the home—and you would not be there. Could I stand that?"

Aurore did not urge him. She was thinking: "Next year at this time I'll write to him and tell him where the money is deposited." And with that resolution made, she was face to face with her greater duty to Dorn, which all that day she had desperately staved off.

They were still standing in the pool of moonlight. Out on the bosom of the lake they heard the sociable gabble of ducks feeding in deep water, and the sleepy koke-koke of a pair of wild swans. In the night silence arose the voice of the mountains—the chastened murmur of overfalls, the swelling whisper of avalanches, the dreamy rustle of pine boughs overhead, all blended into one endless slumber song.

Aurore's voice trembled when finally she said, "Kansas promised he'd come—and look after me, Jim."

"You asked him to?"

Aurore nodded; she could scarcely trust her voice and she knew that she had to be courageous now. The moonlight was in her hair, and she saw that Dorn was aware of it; she drew a little away into the shadow so that her features and the glow in her hair would not add more to his struggle.

He said, not in his usual decisive way, but falteringly: "Then—you mean—I shouldn't come back here?"

"Jim, you must not! Jim, we've got to face truth, human facts—truths as old and deep-rooted as those mountains. We can't go on just liking each other. You'd want to possess—to possess completely."

Aurore found his hand and her fingers tightened upon his clasp; and she went on with desperate courage: "You mustn't come back, Jim. You mustn't see me again. We mustn't allow ourselves . . . what we saw this afternoon . . . we must never fall to that. But we will it's inevitable—unless—unless . . . "

Dorn had pulled himself sharply erect. Unhesitant now, he completed her sentence, "Unless I never come again!" There was no weakness of purpose about him; he seemed to have won over that, and was meeting her halfway and was a tower of strength to her. "I'll promise, Aurore."

He clasped her hand. Aurore thought he was leaving her then, but Dorn suddenly bent closer and slipped his arm around her and held her against him, whispering, "But first . . . before I go . . . a moment always to remember, darling . . ."

Aurore's cheeks were wet with tears, and she could not see Dorn, and her body shook with sobs. Gently Dorn raised her on tiptoe, kissed her hair, the forehead; and for a moment their lips met. Then he was gone.

CHAPTER XXVI.

GRAY FIGURES IN THE MIST.

From the cabin, from the bed which Dorn had made for her, Aurore heard the Silver Hawk rise and circle in the night sky and start away into the southwest; and she listened, not breathing, till the motor-song died to a whisper, and vanished altogether.

After a while she arose and groped out into the big room and lit candles; the darkness was unbearable and the loneliness was crushing, for she had no more visits of Jim Dorn ever to look forward to. She tried to be courageous and to distract her thoughts by tidying up the cabin, but there on the table were the breakfast dishes of her last meal with him, and Aurore could not touch them or even look at them. She flung herself down upon the settee and buried her face in her arms and cried bitterly.

Toward dawn Aurore slept a little, utterly exhausted by her terrible ordeal; but at daybreak she stirred and woke and went out into the cold gray morning where the air was cool on her feverish cheeks. She started toward the jutting boulder, but there she and Jim Dorn had once sat; and she went on past it, her eyes blind with tears, on to the lower end of the island, and at the water's edge she bathed her face and arranged her dishevelled hair. High overhead the first hints of sun were rosy in a cloud; the mossy wildwood behind her was waking; but she did not notice.

Aurore remembered her momentary terror when Jim Dorn had spoken of a girl, his wife, in that home of his. The word had nearly annihilated her, till she realized it was only visionary. She was not ashamed of her cry which betrayed her anguish and her sudden, flaming jealousy; Aurore had no pride left, no strength such as she had shown in those last moments with Dorn. If he had returned then and asked her to go away with him, she would have yielded and gone.

She did not know what her life would be after she dared leave this wilderness hiding. Her future had all been bound up with Henry Carter-Snowdon, but that was dead now; and she had no plan, no hope or ambition. Her one wish was that sometimes Jim Dorn would use her money to advance himself and to carry out at least a part of his vision.

While Aurore was still there at the lower end of the island, unable to go back to the desolate cabin, she heard the drone of an airplane motor, and her heart stopped with the thought that it was Jim Dorn returning to her. But as the sound rapidly grew louder, she knew it was a deeper and more rumbling drone than the Silver Hawk's. When it swam into sight, up above the mesa, Aurore saw it was a big biplane; and it looked exactly like one of those machines which had come upon her and Dorn yesterday.

She watched it sail out over her lake; and expecting it to go on she was surprised and very much startled to see it circling above the island and dropping. It meant to light there! The pilot had sighted the cove and was spiralling down toward it!

Aurore was frightened, and she shrank back out of sight. That was a cartographing machine; Jim had said it was; but it was not Kansas' plane, and she was afraid of strangers seeing her. She could not imagine what its mission could be; three men were in it; they were geticulating at the island; their landing was not accident; they must have come for her.

The biplane lit heavily three hundred yards out and taxied into the cove. Aurore hid closer than ever in the cover of the bushes as she saw the three men get out a boat and paddle hastily ashore and start running up the path to the cabin—vague and gray and grotesque figures through the morning mist. She tried to reason down her trembling fear. She thought: "They're friends! That's a cartographing machine. Jim must have sent them here. He had some reason . . . I ought to go to them. . . . "

Aurore did start up toward the cabin, but a nameless fear shook her and she kept to the cover of the bushes and flitted from tree to tree, watching the cabin with wide, terrified eyes; and a hundred yards from it, she stopped and hid in a clump of bracken. The men had passed into the building; a minut later they came out of it again, and one of them had her rifle, snaping the shells out of it. Two of the men started up through the pines, and Aurore knew that, not finding her in the cabin, they were combing the little island for her.

The third came down toward Aurore, tramping heavily and clumsily through the bushes; and he stepped upon a log forty paces away and Aurore had a first clear view of him. Her cry of horror smothered in her throat; all her senses reeled and she was frozen with terror there where she lay on the moss. She glanced around wildly, to flee, to hide, but there was no escape, she was caught, a prisoner, on the tiny island; and the man who stepped down from the log and came on toward her was Henry Carter-Snowdon.

CHAPTER XXVII

"WHAT—AT QUESNAL?"

With Aurore his prisoner in the cabin under the great pines, Carter-Snowdon's hunt for her was ended, and Jim Dorn's fight to keep her safe in the wilderness where she fled had come to nothing. Because Dorn had carefully shieded her from suspecting her enemies were closing in, this blow had fallen upon Aurore with avalanche suddenness. Brought back to the cabin now, she had flung herself, dazed and utterly crushed, upon the rough settee where last night she had lain and cried, heart-broken, at having to tell Jim Dorn that he and she were not to see one another again.

Carter-Snowdon stook looking down at Aurore, breathing heavily, a battle ground of warring emotions. Her flight from him had been a blow to his egoism, and he was wrathy for having lost three precious weeks in this hunt for her. But there was in him a desire to be tender with Aurore, now that she was in his power again and to be magnanimous to her—after she was properly humiliated. He still believed that her flight had been merely a sudden, foolish caprice; that in reality she was quite willing to come back to him, and was not so wretched as she made appear. In those moments he could forget in some measure his jealousy toward Dorn the cartographer. The tables were turned now and he possessed her; and he thought that Dorn's guardianship had amounted to nothing beyond a few brief visits here. He reasoned that Aurore McNain knew her social position, her wealth and her value entirely too well to give one serious thought to a man who lived by his daily work.

Carter-Snowdon had the decency not to abase Aurore in front of other men. He swung on the detective and snapped at him: "Get out. Your check's good now." With more tolerance he said to Quillan, the biplane pilot: "Go down to your machine. See it's ready for a long flight. We'll be leaving in a few minutes."

He closed the door behind the two, and was alone with Aurore. When he started across toward her, Aurore looked at him fearfully and rose up from the settee where she had been lying, and moved a little away from it. He did not touch but loomed over her, his bulk cutting off a golden shaft which was slanting through the window and which had been sunsheen in Aurore's hair. He demanded of her:

"What made you get out of my coach that night, run away from me, hide up here in this hut? I want to know!"

He took her wrist and made her look up at him, and when Aurore did not answer, he repeated angrily: "I'm talking to you; I say, what possessed you to do a thing like that?"

Aurore said hopelessly, "You'd never understand."

"I wouldn't? You must have changed a hell of a lot if I'm not even able to understand you any more!"

Aurore would not answer: the oath and the insulting tone blocked any reply from her. When he saw she was not going to explain her flight, Carter-Snowdon put the question aside as unimportant compared with other things he wanted to say. He took up one of her words and played sneeringly with it:

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

TRENT RIVER ROAD IS BEING IMPROVED

Narrow Places Are Being Widened and Holes Filled With Gravel.

TRENT RIVER, Nov. 19 (Examiner Correspondence) — Considerable improvement has been made on the Trent River—Campbellford road. Quantities of gravel has been used and the road widened in many places. Trucks have been employed drawing gravel to fill in the mud holes on the 14th concession.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Turk of Norwood were Sunday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Redden.

Mr. John Waters of Campbellford was renewing acquaintances here on Monday.

Mr. James Mann has the contract for building a fence around Mr. Watson's lot on the back channel.

Mrs. Percy Gardner of Norwood left to-day for Detroit and Walkerville, where she will spend two weeks with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. William Preston had as Sunday guests: Mr. and Mrs. Willis Preston and Miss Edna Richardson of Hastings.

Miss Ethel Longmuir has been confined to bed through illness for two weeks but is making a good recovery.

Recent visitors with Mr. and Mrs. David Burgess, Cedar Lodge, were Mr. and Mrs. Will Thompson of Westwood; Mr. and Mrs. Sam Johnston and Mrs. Robert Longmuir of Campbellford; Mr. and Mrs. Sanderson of Norwood; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Spencer and Mr. and Mrs. Will Davidson and daughter, Dorothy, of Havelock.

BIRTH—On Friday, November 14, 1930, to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lewis, Norwood Road, a daughter.

What To-day Means To You

WHAT TO-DAY MEANS TO YOU "SCORPIO."

If November 19th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a.m. to 8:30 a.m., from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. and from 11 p.m. to midnight. The danger hours are from noon to 1 p.m. and from 11 p.m. to midnight. The danger hours are from noon to 1 p.m. and from 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

It will be proven on this date that Fate can be brutal as well as kind, and that certain close associates are made of straw, and not steel. There will be more promises than fulfilments. Danger warnings through pleasure.

The child born on this November 19th will have a very genial nature, and will win affection and friends through its merry, sunny disposition. It will not take like very seriously, although it will be both sincere and honest. It will love sports and games, and will be only a fair student.

You have a brave, courageous and adventurous nature, and you will never allow your existence to become a tame or settled one. If you be a man, the blood of a navigator or "colonist" flows through your veins, and you will feel the call of distant lands. You are a handyman, and will always be able to make a living for yourself, and to be of service to others. When your days become a treadmill, you have the nerve and ambition to seek the place where there may be a ladder. You are seeking more than comfort and security.

It is easy for you to co-operate with others, and you are always ready to listen to advice, although you are not afraid to stand on your own judgment. You do not pretend to be a "know-it-all." You have too much nervous energy to lead other than an active life, and your mind and fingers are seldom idle. Your enthusiasm, your optimism and your vigor, make you a stimulating companion, but not a restful one. You take a sympathetic interest in others, and you are one in whom it is easy to confide. You are generous, and are almost too willing to be a sturdy oak upon whom others may lean. You love responsibilities, and you take considerable pride in doing your duty at all times.

If you be a woman, you are very fond of entertaining, and you have the qualifications for a social leader. You have considerable tact and are a good mixer. (Copyright 1930, by the Bell Syn., Inc.)

THROWN BY A BULL

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 18 (C.P.)—Thrown by a bull at the Canadian National Exhibition grounds, Fred Parker, of Waterloo, Ont., was seriously injured to-day. Parker, who is a visitor here for the Royal Winter Fair was rushed to a local hospital. The extent of his injuries are not yet known.

Ash Cans Are Upset By Prowlers At Night

Residents on Benson avenue are very much exercised over the mean acts of some young men who are deliberately upsetting ash cans full of ashes set out twice a week for the garbage collector. Benson avenue is one of the city's best looking streets and the ratepayers are endeavoring to keep their properties in good condition, but the wanton messing up of the street is not conducive to good appearances or to good citizenship.

Unless the practice is discontinued by those responsible court cases are likely to result.

Sheep Flocks Worried By Dogs In Cavan Twp.

CAVAN, Nov. 19 (Examiner Correspondence)—On Saturday night, dogs again attacked Loyd Sutton's flock of sheep. They killed two, and one is badly injured. One is missing doubtless scared by the dogs and ran away. A short time ago, dogs attacked the flock and nine were lost. Mr. Sutton had a flock of 34 early this fall but has lost 12.

It is the general opinion that after a flock of sheep have been attacked and badly scared by the dogs, they never thrive as well. They do not feed as contentedly, and are very easily alarmed.

On the same night that Mr. Sutton lost the first of his flock, J. W. Whitfield, Millbrook, lost several from the same cause.

Dogs are being allowed to run at large and many are not even wearing tags.

POLICE FIND CLUE IN DOUBLE DEATH

Receive Letter From Woman Who Lived in Montreal With Victims.

DESERTED HER HUSBAND.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 19. (CP) Evidence that the men known as George and John Kerr, who committed suicide here last week had previously run away from Detroit with the wife of a man who saved them from starvation and kept them at his home for weeks, was brought to light Monday when Montreal police received a letter from Jesse L. Hagle of Detroit, Mich. The unknown woman whose whereabouts the police are still seeking and who had been living with the two brothers in this city, is now believed to have been Mrs. Hagle.

Gave Men Money

According to a statement received from Detroit, the two men went under the names of George and John Wilson during their stay in that city. Hagle met them when they were without money and unable to get work, he says and took them into his household, giving them food and lodging for several weeks. In July 18 however, he returned from work to find his baby alone in the house, the two men whom he had befriended had run away with his wife, taking with them all the money in the house and also a bank book which was in Mrs. Hagle's name.

Following the desertion of his wife, Halge lost his position and was forced to rely on friends to take care of him and his baby while he searched for work He tried to locate some clue as to the whereabouts of his wife, but was unable to find where she had gone or for what reason.

Asked for $50 Loan

Absolutely nothing was known of her until last week, when he learned from his wife's sister in Kind, Mich., that she had wired and asked for the loan of $50, a sum which she received shortly before her disappearance.

The janitor of the apartment where the men were found dead told the police during the inquiry that a telegram addressed to Mary Hagle had been received, a day or so before the men committed suicide, by a woman living with them. The woman was known to the janitor as Mrs. Jonn Kerr. The police then traced the message to Detroit, Mich.

FATHER J. FILLION IS DEAD.

QUEBEC, Que., Nov. 18 (C.P.).—A cable received here yesterday announced the death in Algiers, Africa, of Father Joseph Fillion, member of the White Fathers of Africa, and brother of Mgr. P. J. Fillion, rector of Laval University, Quebec.

Besides Mgr. Fillion he is survived by another brother, Rev. Father Fillion, bursar at the Ste. Anne de la Pocatier Agricultural School.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND BRIEFS

A SPECIAL SERVICE TO THE EXAMINER

That the New York Stock Exchange intends to strictly censor market letters and circulars is evident in the request that such material be sent to the committee on publicity for editing. The committee will then be in a position to read and correct the copy before it reaches the public and any extravagant statements will naturally be eliminated in the process. Of course the trouble is that the objectionable literature in the past has been circulated by other than stock exchange member and better business bureaus have been organized in all principal cities in Canada and the United States to counteract this. A few years ago certain publications along the lines of tipster sheets were being sent into Canada through the mails, but with the co-operation of associations and the post office officials at Ottawa such publications were banned.

Not in the past couple of years has activity on the Toronto Stock Exchange dragged with such utter abandon of spirit as the first hour this morning. Long spaces along the board were blank, unbroken by a single transaction recorded while the leaders themselves experience only halting movements. Only 20 shares of International Nickel changed hands the first three quarters of an hour.

There were 15 shares of Ford, a couple of odd lots ran actions in Walkers and less than half dozen transactions in Brazilian, Bell Telephone C.P.R., the Oils. Massey Harris came in for selling following the discouraging news regarding the wheat situation and the lot of the western farmers. Cockshutt Plow also was depressed. Reaction in the implements also featured early trading in Wall Street with some of the leaders in the group well below last night.

Toronto members of the Investment Bankers Association of Canada held a luncheon here to-day with the principal speaker Thomas H. Bradshaw, general manager of the Massey Harris Company. Practically all firms members of the association, were represented and Mr. Bradshaw warmly welcomed by the chairman.

W. G. and W. Meeting.

A meeting of more than usual interest to the Street will be the annual general meeting of shareholders of Walker Gooderham and Worts, Limited, at Walkerville on Friday. It is confidently expected directors will announce the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share for the current quarter and possibly make some statement as to the dividend policy for the future. The financial statement for the year ended in August last was published some weeks ago and showed the dividend requirement of $1 a share to have been barely earned in the fiscal period. Since the close of the year, there have been negotiations for a sales pooling arrangement between Canadian distilleries, also talk of a possible merger. No doubt officials will have something to say of this pooling arrangement and set at rest rumors of consolidations.

A story originating in Montreal that Brewing Corporation of Canada was negotiating to take over control of O'Keefe's Beverages, Limited, and Canada Bud Breweries Limited, was officially denied by all parties to-day. An official of Brewing Corporation stated there was no truth in the report and officials of O'Keefe made similar statements. A director of Canada Bud said there had been no official conversations or discussions of any such negotiations before the board of his company. Canada Bud would not be interested in exchanging their shares for the shares of another corporation and any proposal made would have to be on a straight cash basis.

ACTION OF WHEAT MARKET HAS EFFECT ON IMPLEMENT TRADE

Weakness Felt in New York Following Suggestion Dominion Government Stabilize Price of Wheat.

LITTLE TURNOVER.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov 19 (CP)—The Toronto Stock Exchange market went through the motions this morning, little else. Trading could be classed almost entirely as of "accomodation" Prices changes were small, some up others down, having no special significance and leaving the general market flat and toneless.

International Nickel had a turnover of approximately 100 shares up until midday and that about indicated the general lack of interest. Nickel was selling unchanged at 18⅝. Noranda was slightly higher above 18, Ford of Canada firmer above 20, Bell Telephone up a small fraction, C.P.R. F. N. Burt, Page-Hersey unchanged, Brazilian Service Stations easier. The oil group was without distinctive trend, B.A. Oil, International Petroleum just above last night, Imperial Oil somewhat softer.

Farm implement stocks were under pressure, due both to weakness in this group, in New York and to unfavorable reception of the suggestion that the Dominion government take steps to stabilize the price of wheat. Massey-Harris had a comparatively large turnover through declining only ¼ point to 15. Cockshutt Plow eased on sale of a few shares.

NEW YORK LIST SOARS UPWARD QUIET TRADING

Nervous Tension Effectively Eased Shown By Action Following Firm Suspension.

SEVERAL 2 POINT GAINS.

Passing of Selling Crisis in Winnipeg Wheat Has Favorable Increase.

NEW YORK, November 19 (C.P.).—Having passed the tests of a secondary selling wave in a manner gratifying to Wall Street, the stock market rushed higher in quiet trading to-day.

Business news was too confused to inspire any brisk upturns, but the fact the market was able to withstand announcement of insolvency of one of the smaller stock exchange members was regarded as evidence that the recent nervous tension had been effectively eased

Shares gaining to 2 to 3points or more included Atchison, Reading, Union Pacific, Southern Railway, Westinghouse Electric, Dupont, Byers, Johns-Manville, United Aircraft, Allied Chemical, Hudson, Studebaker, Electric Auto Lite, Kelsey Hayes, Bohn Aluminum, Timken Roller Bearing, Aton Axle, and Western Union. Such issues as U.S. Steel North American, American Canners, General Electric, Consolidated Gas, International Telephone, Fox, Loews, Woolworth, and Proctor & Gamble gained a point or more.

Passing on the selling crisis in the Winnipeg grain market had a favorable influence on speculative sentiment. One intrepretation placed on the refusal of the Canadian Federal Government to guarantee a minimum price for wheat was that Government officials apparently felt that the bottom had been reached.

SHEEP BREEDING FULLY DISCUSSED

Council Hopes For National Policy Regarding Wool Growing in Canada.

TORONTO, Nov. 19.—Work already done toward framing a national policy regarding sheep breeding and wool growing in Canada, both in Eastern domestic flocks and western range flocks, as discussed at a meeting of the Wool Committee of the National Research Council at the Royal York Hotel Monday. Technical members of the National Research Council, representatives of the Agricultural Colleges, Experimental farms and Universities, representatives of the wool growers association, and of the wool manufacturers association took part in the discussion. Dr. W. H. Fairfield, Alberta, reported on testing carridale sheep at Lethbridge; Dean Shaw of Saskatchewan, Prof. Sackville, of Alberts, and Dr. Fairfield reported on mass breeding experiments in co-operation with range wool growers; Geo. B. Rothwell of the Experimental Farm, Ottawa, discussed the survey of grading fleece of pure bred sheep which was already having practical effect; Prof. Sackville, Alberta, reported on studies of environmental factors in wool growing; and Dr. Whitby, of the National Research Council, discussed laboratory methods of testing wool. Besides those already mentioned there were present; F. E. Lather, Chairman, Dr. A. Larose, S. J. Cook from the National Research Council; G. E. O'Brien and W H. J. Tisdale of the Canadian co-operative Wool Growers Association; David. C. Dick, H. W. Lundy, A. Burton, D. N Panabaker, Dr. Zeidler, and Douglas Hallam from the Canadian Woollen and Knit Goods Manufacturers Association, and J. C. Steckley, Ontario Agricultural College.

SLIGHT CHANGE IN MINE STOCKS

Prices Move in Irregular Lower Manner in To-day's Trading.

MISSOURI ACTIVE.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 19.—(By the Canadian Press)—Forenoon saw another slow session on the mining market with prices moving in an irregular lower manner. Many issues failed to put in appearance prior to middays and majority of quotations were about steady with last night.

International Nickel acted firmer, moving up for a gain of 65 at $18.75 at noon. Noranda was unchanged but Hudson Bay continued the decline, dropping another quarter to $5. Arno was slightly easier.

Big Missouri featured early trading, opening at 50 and holding above that level all morning to show a gain of 7½ from last night at 52½. Renewed attention to this issue is attributed to activity in the west with reports intimating early commencement of milling operations. Mining Corp. was stronger but failed to advance more than a point and Wright-Hargreaves and Lake Shore were up a few cents each. Teck Hughes, Dome, Granada and Hollinger were somewhat easier.

Oils were a relatively firm section, Acme Gas seeing brisk turnover and gain of 3 at 32. Nordon was up 9 to 72 in good demand and Imperial sold a quarter higher at $17.30 other oils were holding.

LEVINE HELD FOR FRAUD.

VIENNA, Nov. 17 (C.P.).—Charles A. Levine, United States aviation enthusiast and business man, was arrested here to-day. He will be formally charged to-morrow with an alleged gigantic fraud perpetrated in Vienna. Levine, who recently was in England, was resting at Semmering Spa when arrested.

IN PICTURESQUE NOVA SCOTIA

Nature has been lavish in distributing her charms throughout this most attractive province by the sea, and in the Bras d'Or Lakes district a scenic gem has been created. The lower illustration gives a typical view of this attractive section of the Maritime Provinces. Apart from its interesting beauty spots, Nova Scotia is also noted for its salmon streams, and the picture at the top shows an exciting moment in this sport of kings, when one of the gamiest of Canadian fish is netted after a fight of sometimes more than half an hour's duration. So well known are the salmon streams of Nova Scotia that anglers come from all over the continent to fish their waters.

Winnipeg Review

Heavy selling by Chicago in the nature of unwinding of spreads between the two markets, combined with further liquidation of long holdings and selling against cash wheat was the cause of the weakest market seen here in years, and on the extreme break prices were around 7¾ cents lower than the close Monday night, December falling to 57 3-8 cents per bushel, and the May sinking to 62¼ From the extreme break there was a fair recovery of more than three cents, but there was real business passing, the support being largely of a technical character, such as buying against the daily bids, with other shorts covering with the market running into odd lot buying, but this upturn was difficult to hold. Late news from Ottawa was to the effect that the government after listening to the three western premiers, had decided that they could not make any move in the way of supporting the market, at least until Premier Bennett returned to Canada. It was said that some propositions were put forward, the nature of which was not known. The general understanding is that the pool does not own any wheat to-day, as it has all passed into the hands of the banks at these prices, and just what the banks will do with their holdings will now be the cloud over the market unless the dominion government comes to their assistance, which is not thought to be possible. Export business overnight was again extremely small, however, between 100,000 and 200,000 bushels worked by the trade, while the pool again reported no business. The cash demand was only ordinary, offerings were light, and spreads about unchanged. The Chicago market was again much stronger than Winnipeg, but lower, with the Farm Board reported as buying. Winnipeg futures closed 4 7-8 to 5¼ lower.

Coarse Grain—There was very little doing in the coarse grains. All markets were lower in sympathy with the decline in the leading cereals, but there was not much pressure, and at the same time the demand was very thin, a few old cars being worked to Eastern Canada only. Oats closed 1 5-8 to 7-8 lower, Barley 5-8 to 7-8 lower, and rye 2 cents to 1¾ cents. lower.

Flax—This market sank in sympathy with the general weakness with a very small business passing.

Liverpool due 1 7-8 to 1 5-8 lower.

PRIME MINISTERS VISIT EDINBURGH

Three Premiers Receive Honorary Degrees at University of Edinburgh.

GIVEN FREEDOM OF CITY.

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Nov. 19 (C.P.).—Three Empire Ministers—Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett of Canada, Rt. Hon. James Scullin of Australia, and Rt. Hon. G. W. Forbes of New Zealand—spent to-day in Edinburgh. After a visit to the Scottish National War Memorial in Edinburg Castle, where each laid wreaths, they received the Freedom of the City at Usher Hall.

At the ceremony when the Freedom of the City was conferred, Lord Provost Whitson welcomed Premier Bennett as the representative of Canada, to whose freedom and advancement Scotsmen had so largely contributed.

This afternoon the three Premiers received honorary degrees from the University of Edinburgh.

Unemployment in the Philippines is decreasing.

FAVORABLE NEWS ANTICIPATED FOLLOWING TECH HUGHES MEET

Annual General Meeting in Session This Afternoon in Buffalo.

KIRKLAND PRODUCTION.

TORONTO, Nov. 19. (Special to Examiner.)—According to some official word from the north the crosscut on the 4,150 level at Kirkland Lake gold has cut the main break with assays running between $13 and $15. Splendid results are being obtained on the 4,275 level east of the dyke, it is understood. From same source it is learned production for October was between $55,000 and $60,00.

The Morrison Mine at Gowganda continues to meet expenses with silver obtained from development faces. During the past two months development operations have been continued steadily and ore in increasing amounts has been put in sight. Ready for stoping when conditions warrant. The success of this property, which has been put on a paying basis in spite of reduced price of silver, illustrates the value of the highly concentrated silver values that have been characteristic of the cobalt, South Lorrain and Gowganda camps.

Teck Hughes Meeting.

Some favorable information is anticipated at the annual general meeting of Teck Hughes gold being held in Buffalo this afternoon Manager Forbes is understood to be prepared to give something of interest regarding ore reserves and several new directors will probably be added to the board.

Lake Shore's declaration of a regula quarterly dividend of 20 cents a share will bring total distribution to shareholders up to and including December 15 to $11,200,000. During 1930 payments will total $3,000,000 or $1.50 a share, which is only slightly below the year's total for Hollingers, leading Canadian procuders. Up to September 20, last, Lake Shores total bullion production from start of operations was $27 683,674, and the total dividends during the same period were $10,620,000, indicating a return to shareholders of 38.36 of gross since inception of production.

It is reported that, in extending main shaft from the 300 level to 400 level, plant mining and reduction company on which Premier Gold recently dropped an option, has been sinking through ore of a higher grade than any previously found in the mine. The company is sending a car of concentrate to Tadanac each week. The concentrate runs between $200 and $230 per ton, rather more than half of which usually is in gold.

Another western property receiving attention these days is Big Missouri, now being brought into production by Consolidated Smelters. The original mill, which has a relatively small tonnage capacity, should be in operation next month and will be increased in the near future, it is stated. Current strength in the stock is attributed to renewed interest in the western group which formerly figured largely in the action of this company's shares.

WHEAT PRICES

Premier Bennett's return to Ottawa, it is understood, meanwhile alternative suggestions are under consideration, including bonusing of wheat growers and the creation of stabilization machinery similar to that created in the United States to control market fluctuations.

The visit of the Prairie Premiers to Montreal to-day led to the belief that they will seek further financial assistance but what guarantees they can put forward in return have not been divulged.

The matter rests with the Dominion Government, the banks and the market itself.

PAIR OF BANDITS GIVEN 18 YEARS

Hold-up of Unionville, Agincourt and King City Banks Draws Lashes Also.

HARD TIMES BLAMED.

TORONTO, Ont., November 19 (C.P.). — James Kirkland and Jack Darwent, who last weke pleaded guilty to robbing the Canadian Bank of Commerce at Unionville, were today sentenced by Magistrate Keith in County Police Court to 18 years in Portsmouth Penitentiary. Kirkland will also receive 15 lashes and Darwent 10.

The two men were arrested in Barrie on November 6, after they had allowed money to drop from their pockets in a restaurant. The pair admitted holding up the bank at Unionville where they obtained approximately 6,000. They also confessed to having robbed the Bank of Nova Scotia at Agincourt, while Kirkland confessed to holding up a bank at King City.

The two men are both residents of Toronto. Hard times was given as the reason for the robberies.

CREW ABANDON STRICKEN SHIP

Three Liners After Race Unable to Aid Slowly Sinking Ovidia.

HEADED FOR ST. JOHN'S.

SS AMERICA November 19 (C.P.). — The steamship America, answering an SOS call from the Swedish steamship Ovidia, reached the side of the stricken vessel this afternoon.

The crew of the sinking ship after a council among themselves started abandoning the craft in their own boats shortly after 12.5 p.m (Eastern standard time).

Captain George Fried, the America's skipper hero of the Antinoe and the Floride rescues, brought his vessel alongside the Ovidia after a sharp run of ten hours off his course to reach her side. In addition to the America, the steamships Mauretania and Endicott also stood by the floundering Swedish ship which had been taking water in her No. 2 hold and had a heavy list.

Before the decision of her captain to abandon the ship, she had been trying to reach St. John's, Nfld and had asked the Endicott for a tow.

The barometer was falling and the weather was freezing.

ABANDON FOUL PLAY THEORY.

SMITHVILLE Ont., Nov. 19 (C.P.) — Ontario Provincial Police have abandoned the theory that Charles Lampman, 12, met with foul play on his father's farm near here on Nov. 10. His body was found hanging from a tree, and at first it was suspected the boy had been murdered.

DEROIT, Mich., Nov. 19.—(By the Canadian Press.)—Mrs. Mary Hagle, wife of Jess L. Hagle, of Detroit, professed to-day to be able to throw no light on the suicide in Montreal last week of two brothers with whom she said she travelled from Detroit to Montreal last July.

Municipal bus drivers of Glasgow, Scotland, have asked for increase of minimum wages from $15 to $20 a week.

NOTED MOSLEM'S SOLE OBJECTIVE IS INDEPENDENCE

Tells Round Table Delegates He Did Not Come For Dominion Status.

FEDERAL SYSTEM DEBATED.

Ten-minute Closure Rule Set—27 Speakers Still to Come.

LONDON, Nov. 19 (C.P.).—Maulana Muhammad Ali, prominent Moslem politician, who has served prison terms for his activities against British rule in India, and who is a delegate to the Round-Table Conference, to-day announced to the conference that he was committed to complete independence for India.

"I have not come to ask for Dominion status," he said. At the close of his speech he turned to Premier Ramsay MacDonald and said, "I take my seat, and hope I shall not be called upon to speak again until you announce that India is as free as England."

Once Gandhi's Ally.

Muhammed Ali, though in former years a close ally of Mahatma Gandhi, Nationalist leader, has been an opponent of the recent civil disobedience campaign.

The Round-Table Conference today entered the third day of debate on the advantages of the Federal system of government against the unitary system, in the future constitution of India.

With 27 speakers still to come, the Conference was menaced with the probability of having to hold day and night sittings if the debate was to be concluded within reasonable time.

Consequently the conference adopted a 10-minute closure rule. The chairman, however, was left with discretion to suspend this 10-minute limit for speeches of unusual importance or in exceptional cases.

Story Of Oppression.

The conference to-day heard a dramatic story of alleged oppression and the struggles of Hindu Hahazabba or Protection Society, quoted from a statement by Miss Medeleine Slade, daughter of a British Admiral and one of Mahatma Gandhi's disciples, in proof of cruelty in India.

"The whole affair is one of the most devilish, cold-blooded and unjustified in the history of mankind," Dr. Moonje quoted Miss Slade.

This had passed, declared Dr. Moonje, "and the time will never come again when any show of physical force is going to cow the Indian people.

"I have seen with my own eyes," he continued, "officers with police, faced by thousands of people, children, boys, women and men, who said, 'All right, you do your worst, we are prepared to be shot down.' While being shot down they will run away, but when the shooting stops they will come again," he declared.

"India wants to be a Dominion within the British Empire" Dr. Moonje went on. "We will be satisfied with nothing less than responsible Government. I want to be as free in my country as the Englishman in England, the Canadian in Canada, the New Zealander in New Zealand, the Australian in Australia. Nothing less than that is going to satisfy me."

The Maharajah of Patiala, one of the ruling Princes, explained that in saying they were willing to join an All-India Federation the native Princes did not contemplate any severance of the Imperial tie.

Want British Connection

The Maharajah is the chief of the Sikh Princes, and ruler of the largest state in the Punjab. "The maintenance of the British connection" he emphasized, "is the fundamental assumption of our whole position.

"By federation we mean an arrangement entered into by us and British India jointly, under which while rBitish India manages those affairs which exclusively concern it, and while the Indian States manage those affairs which exclusively concern them and while the Crown discharges such functions in India as are reserved in the Crown—British India and the India States join together in a system which will provide or joint management, and joint control of matters that jointly concern the two sides of India."

The Maharajah of Patial's concluded, "I believe I am speaking for my brother Princes as much as for myself, when I say we look forward to the birth of a greater India.

"Whether that greater India will take the form of a United States of India, or a Dominion of India, we may know mor clearly before this conference comes to the conclusion of its work."

WANT WIDER HIGHWAY.

GALT, Ont., Nov. 19 (C.P.).—Representatives of the Preston and Galt Councils, in session here, passed a resolution urging the Highways Department to take immediate action to widen the highway connecting the two places. A deputation from the two municipalities will wait upon Hon. G. S. Henry to present this request.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.— (By the Canadian Press.)— The New York Stock Exchange to-day announced suspension of the firm of Bauer, Pogue, Pond and Vivian for insolvency.

The firm maintained offices at Albany, N.Y. and Knoxville, Tenn. Its principal office is in New York city.

CANAL LABORER SERIOUSLY HURT

Martin Sullivan Suffering From Broken Bones and Internal Injuries.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 18.—(Examiner Correspondence)—Martin Sullivan is in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, recovering slowly from the serious injuries received when he fell on Thursday from dam 3 where he was employed.

The hook on the shovel caught in the gauntlet of Mr. Sullivan's glove it is alleged and lifted him up and when the glove gave way he was thrown about twenty-five feet, sustaining serious injury including broken bones and internal injuries.

Tea and Sale Held.

The Ladies' Association of the Lakefield Presbyterian church held a very successful afternoon tea and sale of home cooking at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gavin Preston on Saturday. Among those assisting were Mrs. R. J. Burton, Mrs. Charles Thompson, Mrs. H. C. Garbutt, Mrs. Robert Garbutt, Mrs. Preston, Mrs. Richard White, Mrs. Turk, Mrs. A. H. Clark, Mrs. Charles Lee, Mrs. J. M. Simpson, Miss McKibbon and the Misses Jean Clarke and Ethel Lake.

Quilts Finished.

Three quilts were completed at the Women's Institute meeting on Wednesday. Mr. Edgar of the Children's Aid Society of Peterborough, was present and bespoke the assistance of the Branch for the Children's Aid and urged that a tag day be put on but this was not approved and it was decided to hold a shower for the purpose at an early date.

A.Y.P.A. Card Party.

Ten tables were played at the A.Y.P.A. card party on Thursday evening. Prizes were won by Miss Winnie Payne and Mr. Keith Wannamaker, while Miss Amy Watson and Mr. George Gregg won the consolation prize.

BIRTHDAY MEETING AT TRENT RIVER

Mrs. Harry Mann Entertains Members of Women's Institute.

TRENT RIVER, Nov. 19.—The Trent River Branch of the Women's Institute being one year old this month, the November meeting of the local branch held at the home of Mrs. Harry Mann on Thursday afternoon, was in the form of a birthday meeting.

After the usual opening exercises, the roll call was responded to by ten members who named what they would contribute toward packing the box of Chritmas cheer.

The members of the Institute are planning to hold a square dance at the home of Mrs. A. Wight on Nov. 28.

At the close of the meeting a delicious lunch was served and the candle on the birthday cake was lighted by Mrs. Thomas Tyler, vice president, in the absence of the president. The hostesses were Mrs. F. Scott, Mrs. Henry Woods and Mrs. Harry Mann. The December meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Patrick Logan, of Havelock.

Young People's Union Meets in Omemee Hall

OMEMEE, Nov. 19 (Examiner Correspondence).—The regular meeting of the Young People's Union of Trinity United Church was held on Monday evening with a splendid attendance and was in charge of Mrs. Irvine Connel, who took the opening excercises. The scripture, John 15, 1-17 was read by Dr. McPhee.

Devotional leaflet on the scriptural lesson was taken by Miss Faulkner. A solo by Mrs. C. Elliott was much enjoyed.

Miss L. Race gave the topic on "Reading" which was very instructive and well prepared. The recreation half hour was brought to a close by community singing.

KEENE

Miss Bertha Elmhirst was in charge of the Young People's Club of the United Church for the regular meeting on Sunday evening. Miss Kathleen Nelson read the Bible reading which was explained by Miss Wilena Nelson. Miss D. Chapman took the topic, "The prevention of war." An instrumental trio was given by Messrs. Roy Francis, Ivan and Alfred Fletcher.

Mr. Samuel Armstrong was admitted to the Peterborough Hospital on Monday.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. Albert Armstrong on Monday evening, November 17, a daughter.

District Churches

HAVELOCK UNITED CHURCH

HAVELOCK, Nov 19.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The pastors and choirs of Norwood and Havelock United Church exchanged on Sunday evening and a very good congregation greeted the visitors here. The choir, under the leadership of Professor Charles H. Walker, A.V.C.M., gave a splendid number of anthems very capably; especially fine was the number sung by the male voices, which were heard to good advantage in "My Anchor Holds." The choir as a whole is very well trained but there is a slight preponderance of women's voices in the soprano section. The anthem "Jesus Is High" was the opening anthem, and was immediately followed by the male chorus. This was followed by the singing of "All People Who On Earth Do Dwell", by choir and congregation. This was followed by a very fine sermon by Rev. Mr. Stillman, who took for his text "The Lord will perfect that which He hath for me. The speaker urged his hearers to learn to say "Not my will but Thine O Lord be done." He spoke of man's unwillingness to trust to the guidance of his Heavenly Pilot. Just as the Israelites were unwilling to be led into the Promised Land, and doubted the ability their guide, so does man refuse to yield himself to the designs and plans of his Heavenly Father. The potter would fashion a vessel of honor, but the clay is hard and will not conform to the design of the Master. True a vessel is formed, but not so perfect or beautiful as the pattern. Just as the tawdry and cheap things are forgotten in a short time and the perfect works of art, science, music and philosophy preserved for the benefit of future generations, so should man forget his tawdry, cheap sentiments, and follow the highest ideals that have been preserved for his benefit throughout the ages.

If we follow the inspiration of the Spirit of God, our senses will be extended to grasp the finer things. Just as modern appliances have extended the scope of our vision, hearing and sight, so shall the Holy Spirit working in us, extend our hearts and minds, to the higher, better things, so shall we conform to the mould of the Master, and form a vessel of honor, the delight of the Sculptor.

Mr. Stillman spoke of having seen Helen Keller, the girl who was born deaf, dumb and blind, who through the medium of Miss Sullivan, who established contact with her mentality, eventually went to school, then to college, afterwards receiving her degree of B.A. This was through the instrumentality of a woman like herself who took infinite pains to give the afflicted girl some of the better things of the world. So will the Holy Spirit lead man into higher channels if he will follow the high ideals preserved for him.

Ideal in Parents.

The child's first ideal is his parents. He believes them to be perfect. Then his teacher is the ideal. Next come the men and women high in authority in the high positions of life. Always looking farther for ideals, finally through these first ideals being brought to Jesus, the Perfect Ideal. Jesus has said, No man can come to the Father, but by Me. The speaker asked the congregation to consider the opportunities for good that are everywhere about us. Parents should teach their children to be obedient to the proper authority. They must learn discipline. A teacher may be the most learned of men, but if he has not discipline, he is a failure. A child who is not disciplined, at home is badly handicapped when he steps out into the world of men. Each one in his small sphere should do his best, to live up to the high ideals handed down. What a wonderful reward, when our lives are ended to hear the voice of the Master saying: "Well done, well done, thou good and faithful servant."

The sermon was followed by an anthem, "Saviour, Thy Children Keep", followed by the congregation and choir singing "Sun of My Soul, Thou Saviour Dear", and the Benediction by Rev. Mr. Stillman.

For Coughs From Colds Where You Want Super Help

Coughs from colds that hang on call for super help. Don't take the chance with anything less than Creomulsion. That combines seven major helps in one. See label. It does the utmost for such coughs.

But wise people use it for milder coughs—use it to be safe. It costs a little more than lesser helps based on a single factor. But it costs nothing if it fails to bring you prompt relief. Your druggist guarantees it. Is it not worth $1.25 to have supreme help for a trouble that breeds danger?

CREOMULSION for Difficult Coughs from Colds

The croupy cough strikes terror to the mother's heart.

What a satisfaction she feels when she has at hand Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine with which to bring quick relief to the little sufferer.

The combination of linseed and turpentine with some other equally valuable ingredients has made Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine the most effective and most popular treatment for coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis, etc.

PEGGED GOLD CLAIMS.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Nov. 19.—L. Orford, the secretary of the Wanderers' Cricket Club, had a shock lately when he discovered that the club's three grounds, on one of which England and South Africa will begin a test match this month, had been pegged as gold claims.

The pegging was apparently the work of an old prospector whose imagination had been fired by a report that a quartz roof had been discovered on part of the cricket ground. Fortunately the pegging was illegal.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Nov. 19.—Receipts at the Union Stock Yards yesterday were: 461 cattle, 167 calves, 688 hogs, 345 sheep and lambs.

There were 1,500 cattle over from yesterday, in addition to a light fresh supply when the market opened this morning. Trade continued slow on common to medium butchers, with prices of these grades down 25 cents a cwt. for the week to date. Nothing choice moved in the early trading. The price range in sales up to 11 o'clock was 4c to 6½c a pound.

Good butcher cows sold from $4.50 to $5 a cwt. Baby beeves were slow and lower at $8 to $9 a cwt. Stockers and feeders were the only classes of cattle holding firm and active, in prices ranging from $4.50 to $6.25 a cwt. Calves had a light supply, opening 50 cents a cwt. more than yesterday and $11.50 to $12 for choice veal, with common grassers selling at $4 to $5.50 a cwt.

The sheep and lamb supply is light with lambs selling firm at $8.25 a cwt. for good ewes and wethers, with culls and bucks at $2 a cwt. discount. Sheep are steady at $4.50 for the best, culls at $1.50 to $6 a cwt. Hog prices are steady at $9.75 a cwt. f.o.b. and $10.75 to $11 a cwt. w.o.c. for bacon.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Nov. 19.—The local butter market was weaker yesterday and trade was slow in all quarters. Prices were ¼c lower at 30c to 30½c for Ontario No. 1, and 29c to 29½c for No. 2. Buyers were not interested even at the weaker trend and business from the brokers' viewpoint was bad, though wholesalers continued to move some storage stacks into consumptive channels.

Egg prices were unchanged at 55c for extras, 47c to 48c for firsts, 32c to 35c for seconds, and 40c to 42c for pullet extras, ungraded, delivered, cases returned. Retailers were offered supplies at steady prices of 62c for extras in cartons, 60c for extras loose, 52c for firsts loose, 38c to 40c for seconds loose, and 45c for pilet extras.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—Several half million bushel buying orders given to many different houses at once formed an exciting order of procedure in the Chicago wheat pit yesterday. In at least one case, instructions to purchase wheat were absolutely without limit as to the amount. Under such circumstances failure of efforts to obtain a Canadian Government guarantee for minimum wheat prices at Winnipeg was accompanied by a whirlwind 8½ cents a bushel collapse of wheat prices there, while the Chicago wheat market held amost unchanged for the principal delivery, and showed for other deliveries a maximum setback of not more than 4 cents.

Buying by U. S. Government

Much of the big buying of wheat in Chicago came from United States Government-sponsored agencies, but a huge additional aggregate was to reverse gigantic spread trades in which wheat had been simultaneously bought at Winnipeg and sold in Chicago. With the recent re-entrance of Federal Farm Board allies into the Chicago wheat future delivery pit as an upholder of Chicago quotations, the process of selling wheat in Chicago against equal purchases at Winnipeg became unprofitable, and wholesale undoing of the spreads reached a climax yesterday.

Closing Chicago quotations on wheat were nervous, ¼ to 3⅜ cents a bushel lower than Monday's finish. Corn closed 1¾ to 3 cents down; oats 1⅛ to 1⅜ cents off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 15 cents.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, November 19. — In a crash unequalled since the collapse of the stock and grain markets in October, 1929, wheat values yesterday were swept down to 55c, or 8¾c below the previous close, on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, the market rallying near the close to record losses of 4¾c to 5¼c for the day.

The sudden collapse of values created a near-panic, and for half an hour bedlam reigned, with wheat pouring into the pit, and buying power drowned out. The November future closed at 58¼c, down 4¾c; December down 5c at 57¾c; May declined 5¼c to 62¼c, and July slumped 5¼c to 64c.

When breathing spell arrived, following the mid-session avalanche of selling, bids were of sufficient volume to take the slack out of the market and a good recovery was made. The market for hte balance of the session held fairly steady at levels about 3c up from the bottom.

The wave of selling started with the unwinding of spreads between Winnipeg and Chicago, and the tide of wheat rose as stop-loss orders reached the pit, and weak holders were forced to liquidate.

Export trade did not figure to any extent in the day's business.

Cash-wheat trading was fairly good, with mills the best buyers.

Coarse-grain trading was light and sales of little account.

Wealth from the Rocks

If history is correct the accidental discovery of metal ages ago was the first great step in the civilization of man.

Each year in this age a great stream of metal flows into the world's Circle of Commerce.

This year the stream is naturally at a lower level than in 1929. But the Canadian tributary has swollen to record proportions . . . More Canadian metal has been produced so far in 1930 than in any corresponding period.

The savings entrusted to The Canadian Bank of Commerce are used for judicious purposes, including the production and marketing of this great quantity of metal. Every dollar saved and deposited with this Bank finds its way into the Circle of Commerce, there to help to keep in motion some important Canadian industry.

SERGEANTS OF RANGERS HOLD DINNER

TALES OF HARDSHIP TOLD SOCIETY BY SUPERINTENDENT OF SHELTER

Four Children Recently Brought to Shelter From Near Young's Point.

COMPLAINT FROM APSLEY.

Harrowing tales of child neglect were related by John Edgar, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society at the monthly meeting held in the City Council Chamber yesterday afternoon. Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave, presided.

Mr. Edgar, recitation of the suffering of four children whom he recently brought from Young's Point, was added emphasis on the work which the Society is continually promoting with such vigor, and which is reflecting beneficially on the welfare of neglected children.

He told of how the children were in such a terrible condition that their clothes had to be burned; that the odour in the car from their sadly neglected bodies, was fierce; and he had to drive in to the city with all the windows open. The house in which they were living was but a little shack ten feet square, and so dark that one could not see properly. The furniture consisted of a rough table and one or two old chairs; if there was any other furniture he did not see it. The mother is in the reformatory and the father is on remand on a charge of child neglect.

Another case not quite so flagrant was mentioned of six children in the Apsley district, for whom assistance has been requested.

On the motion of Alderman W. Stocker, seconded by the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, the superintendent was given full power to act in the latter instance as he saw fit.

The purchasing committee report was presented by Mrs. W. H. Gibbs.

The chairman in mentioning contributions to the Society from Rev. Father Paul Costello, said, "we appreciate his kindness very much."

It was announced that the annual meeting of the Society will be held on November 27th. The following nominating committee was appointed: James Abraham, convenor; Mrs. J. J. Lynch and Mrs. Samuel Newhall.

During the month of October the following donations were received: Cakes, Bredin's Bread Company; Comic Papers, Miss Emmerson; Bread and buns, Hoopers; clothing, Mrs. Crawford; bread and cakes, Murray Street Church; dresser and stand, Mrs. Elcombe; clothing, Mrs. Denmark; venison from the Ontario Government.

Auditors Working On Stockbrokers' Books

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 19 (C.P.)—The same auditors who checked the Solloway-Mills accounts for the Province of Ontario are now auditing the 28 crates of books seized here this week for the British Columbia authorities. Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General for Ontario announces.

"I don't believe the auditors will go to the Coast," said Col. Price. "They are now at work on the books here. We started them on the work immediately at the request of the British Columbia Government."

The books all relate entirely to the British Columbia business of the former brokerage firm. Mark Cosgrave, acting for the British Columbia authorities has been in Toronto for several weeks tracing the books.

INTER-PROVINCIAL MARKETING URGED

Domestic Freight Rates Deemed Greatest Obstacle in Way of Trade.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 19 (C.P.)—The government of inter-provincial marketing and agreement for closer co-operation in the collecting of information beneficial to agriculture marked the first of what was unanimously decided would be an annual conference of Ministers of Agriculture here.

Domestic freight rates was deemed the greatest obstacle in the way of the great possibilities of inter-provincial trade in the product of the farms. It was decided to study all possible data in this connection with a view to arriving at a solution that would encourage inter-provincial marketing and afford in some measure, immediate relief to the farmers.

The importance of agricultural education in keeping farmers abreast of the times was discussed. In this connection the Federal Department offered to give Provincial Agricultural schools the use of experimental farms and their staffs.

Hon. Robert Weir, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, announced he proposed calling two conferences; one of the Minister of Agriculture in the West and another of the Ministers of Agriculture in the East, to deal with problems of peculiar interest of those sections of the country.

Mrs. E. R. Chandler is to be the first woman mayor of Newport, Isle of Wight.

SERIOUS COAL MINE STRIKE THREATENED IN NOVA SCOTIA

Miners Stage Sympathy Strike as Union Member is Discharged.

CONDITIONS ARE BAD.

By BERTON E. ROBINSON.

(Copyright, 1930)

SYDNEY, N. S., Nov. 19.—(Special to The Examiner).—When Edward Kennedy, pump-man at Number Two Colliery, Glace Bay, the largest colliery in Canada, bought a house from the coal company and immediately raised the rent of it four dollars a month to a brother employee tenant, it is rather more than possible that he failed to see the consequences of his act. For as a result of this, Number Two Mine is now closed on one hundred per cent. strike, the first complete strike since the dark days of 1925, and the possibility of the strike spreading to all the collieries of the Dominion Coal Company looms large on the horizon.

Kennedy bought one of the company houses, and informed a miner, a tenant in the house, that he might remain there, but would have to pay four dollars a month more rent. The tenant refused, and left the house, and immediately went to union officials and complained of Kennedy's action. The result was that Kennedy was expelled from the U.M.W. and the mine officials were notified that he was not to be allowed to go to work, since he was now a non-union man. The officials refused to listen to the union, and as a result, the day shift men, in whose shift Kennedy is employed, refused to go to work. When the night, or "back" shift men, came to the mine, and learned the state of affairs, they, too, refused to work.

As a result, officials called out the maintenance crew to look after the pumps and the fires, and a conference between men and officials was called. The conference came to nothing, and the maintenance men withdrew, forcing the officials themselves to man the pumps and fire the boilers.

Pickets have been placed all around the mine, and every sign of a regular 100 per cent. strike is evidenced.

It is more than possible that, failing an early conciliation, the other mines operated by the Dominion Coal Company will go out on sympathetic strike.

It is regarded as particularly unfortunate that such an occurrence should have happened at this time of year, as conditions among the miners are far from the best, and every day's work possible is needed by the men in order to keep their families from suffering real want.

EXHIBITION IN SOUTH AMERICA OF GREAT IMPORTANCE TO CANADA

Elmer Davis Urges That Delegates Attending Should Be Representative.

ATTEMPT TO BOOST TRADE.

TORONTO, Ont., November 19 (C.P.). — "I would like to associate myself with Angus McLean, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, in emphasizing the significance of the visit of the party of Canadian business men to the British Empire Exhibition at Buenos Aires next March," said Elmer Davis, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, here last night.

"Our trade with South America has been growing in a gratifying manner. The exports from Canada to ten countries in South America have increased from $3,500,000 in 1914 to $32,000,000 in 1930, while our imports from the same countries have increased from $5,500,000 in 1914 to $28,000,000 in 1930. Gratifying as this increase in trade is, however, we must admit that it is only a small percentage of the total South American trade, and we should try to increase our portion. At the present time 475 Canadian manufacturers are actively selling goods in South America.

"Consequently, it is of the greatest importance that the party visiting South America next March should be a representative one, and should include presidents, vice-presidents, and general managers of firms interested in the trade. In addition the trip will provide an excellent opportunity for a winter cruise and a very favorable reception in South America.

"It is also important that parties should travel on a Canadian ship and sail from a Canadian port. The offices of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, the Canadian National Railways, and the Canadian Manufacturers' Association will be continued vigorously to assemble a large and representative party."

DECORATIVE BLANKS FOR C.N.T. MESSAGES

Scene Depicts Christmas Carol Singers in Old England.

Quite as gay as a Christmas card is the new Canadian National Telegraphs' blank on which all Christmas greeting messages will be delivered this year.

The period of the illustration is back in the days of the merry old England of Queen Elizabeth's reign and the decorations show a group of Christmas carol singers serenading under the glowing windows of a home on a snow-covered street. In the background can be seen the welcoming doors of an ancient church. "Seasons Greetings" are lettered on a hanging street sign of gold, the words being in black and the capitals in cheery red. Instead of the usual yellow blank the decoration is printed on special white paper, with envelope to match.

Telegrams at this season of the year are considered appropriate forms of greeting and the service is not only made available throughout Canada and the United States but extends to England and the continent.

FINE TRIBUTE PAID TO LOCAL UNIT ESPRIT DE CORPS IS COMMENDED

Officers Desire to Make Battalion One of Best Units in Canada.

TOASTS WELL HONORED.

Many social functions have been held in the Armouries in the past and many more will be held in the future, but possibly none have yet conveyed a more pleasing significance than the first annual dinner of the Sergeant's Mess, Peterborough Rangers Regiment, held last evening under the presidency of C.S.M. Joseph Gaskell.

The gathering provided wonderful evidence that esprit de corps exists in the Regiment to an unusual degree, and that under the command of its popular commanding officer, Lieut.-Colonel M. H. Park, V.D., it is steadily forging ahead, and now occupies an enviable position—second to none—among the other regiments of the Brigade.

The affair was graced by the presence of the ladies of the guests and of the warrant officers and sergeants, who, after partaking of a splendid banquet, danced into the early hours of the morning to the strains of Ric Roberts' Orchestra.

R.S.M. Calladine, in proposing the toast of "The Regiment," said that for many years his activities in the Peterborough Rangers had been his hobby. After coming from overseas in 1920 he thought that he was through with wearing khaki, but was induced by the Colonel to again help in reorganizing the unit. He thought that at the present time the regiment had one of the best Colonels possible, and a good type of N.C.O.'s and men, and he would always jealously guard the welfare of the Rangers.

Alderman Malcolm McIntyre, in responding to the toast, voiced the regrets of His Worship Mayor Roland Denne, who was unable to attend, and whom he was representing. On behalf of the city, the speaker offered his congratulations on the advancement which the Regiment is making, and assured the gathering that it holds a warm place in the thoughts of the community.

C.Q.S.M. Chate, N.-W. Frontier (bar), in proposing a toast to the guests, made kindly reference to Col. W. G. Hall, the late O.C., and to the present Colonel, and also to Sergeant-Major Burrows, adding that it is his dearest wish that such a dinner shall become an annual event. He mentioned the newly organized Friday night recreation on the badminton courts, which is open to all the sergeants of the Garrison and their ladies, and made a cordial offer to the gathering to come along and participate. If fifty racquets are needed, he said, we will get them.

Lt. Col. Gordon Hall

"I am glad of the honour of being called upon," said Lieut.-Colonel W. G. Hall, V.D., who responded. "When I received the invitation to this dinner I resolved that nothing should stand in the way to prevent my attendance."

He thought that one of the things which went to make a good battalion was its N.C.O.'s, but he added there is another important factor which is often overlooked. He referred to the wives and sweethearts of the N.C.O.'s, who, he said, "are back of the Regiment also."

The speaker, in paying tribute to the capabilities of Colonel Park, said he would like to see the Battalion back to its pre-war strength, and he could see no reason why the unit could not turn out on parade with 500 men in the very near future. Its welfare is in the right hands.

"I am also proud to be here this evening and to have at my right hand a lady, the widow of a former commanding officer of this Regiment. All of us who knew him respected him and loved him. His wife is carrying on in his footsteps as a good friend of the Regiment, and is also a good friend of the returned boys and their families. I refer to Mrs. J. Mills."

"It is indeed a great inspiration to have her present this evening. She is working not only for the good of the Regiment, but for the good of Canada and the Empire, as indeed her late husband ever did."

Captain and Adjutant R. J. Bolton, in proposing "The Ladies," thought it was a fine idea that they should be present on such occasions, and hoped that in all social functions of the Regiment they would be fully represented in the future.

The Mother of the Regiment.

"I have often be called the mother of the Regiment, but I do not feel that I am the mother any more," said Mrs. Mills in response to the toast. "It is not now like it was before the war, when there were company dances and when I knew every officer, N.C.O., and man, but I hope that from now on I shall get to know you all more fully. I have always been interested in the Regiment, and since I can remember I have ever been fond of the Militia.

"Perhaps I am one of the oldest persons who come to the Armouries. I knew several of you before the war. I came here when it was the old military drill shed. I was here at the time the corner-stone of the present building was laid, and I was with the men when they left for overseas service. We were all glad when the war ended and you men got back to Peterborough, and with the reorganization of the Regiment after that period I also rejoiced. You have a wonderful Colonel and a wonderful lot of sergeants—the backbone of the Army."

Absent Comrades.

"There is another toast which I think should be honored to-night," said Colonel Park, "and I am thinking now of the old 57th Regiment Sergeant's Mess. Many of them have gone; few are still with us, and our thoughts go back on this occasion which is so close to Armistice night, to the days when the call came and the members of the Peterborough Rangers Sergeants' Mess so nobly responded."

The toast was honored in silence, the whole gathering standing for one minute with bowed heads.

"I feel that I am late on parade—a thing which I hate to be—continued the Colonel, "but I will now respond to the toast to 'The Regiment.' I am glad in doing so. It is a great honor you have done me and other officers and guests to-night in requesting our presence. I don't know of any dinner I have ever attended at which I have felt happier. I wish to pay my compliments to the Sergeants' Mess of the Peterborough Rangers in saying that you never do things by halves. My good friend,

Shot by Fanatic

Yuko Hamaguchi, premier of Japan, narrowly escaped with his life when a fanatic shot him while he was waiting at railroad station in Tokio. The assailant claimed that he intended to kill the premier to end the depression in Japan. For a while the premier's life was despaired of but to-day's reports indicate he may recover.

REV. G.H. JOHNSON ATTENDS RALLY

HELD IN TORONTO

It was the privilege of the pastor of Bethany Tabernacle of the Christian and Missionary Alliance to attend the Annual Conference of the above named Society, including all the pastors of the branches in Eastern Canada. From every standpoint the Conference proved a success, and as strict emphasize was laid upon the spiritual, there was a unique and deep consciousness of the Lord's presence in the midst.

"Each report showed advance and blessing, and especially was it interesting to hear of advance in the work at Montreal, a difficult center; the new Tabernacle at Belleville, completed, paid for and dedicated; and also the reported blessing at the large Tabernacle and congregation at Ottawa with numerous remarkable conversions," said Mr. Johnson.

"Much emphasize was laid upon pure evangelism of a sane and scriptural character and this is to be promoted in all branches just as far as possible, witnessing to the Four-fold Gospel testimony. Speaking of this district, two new churches have been established, and other places entered with the Gospel message.

"The children's work and Sunday School activity was quite thoroughly discussed, and along with it the work

without a worry-how it pays

BEFORE a happy evening, take a bath with Lifebuoy Soap. Millions, the world over, do that to be safe.

Body odours destroy many a romance, and wipe out the choicest charms. Yet Lifebuoy offers everybody absolute protection for six hours at least.

Sweetness is not a mere matter of cleanliness. Bad odours come from rancid oils, deep in the pores. Every drop of perspiration brings them out.

But Lifebuoy, with its safety factor, corrects that situation. Its antiseptic lather goes deep. For at least six hours after you use it, you have no worry about odours.

The Safety Scent

Lifebuoy leaves a little scent—a safety scent. But it disappears at once. It lingers only long enough to say, "Joy to your evening; you are safe." Then there remains just the odour of the clean. And safety for at least six hours.
